COL. LINDBERGH ARRIVED AT SAN SALVADOR SUNDAY A. M.

Thousands From Miles Around Were at the National Capital to Greet the Lone Eagle—Ovation Was One Such as the Republic Never Before Gave a Foreigner—Hopped Off at Belisle, British Honduras, at 6.30 and Arrived at San Salvador at 9.15—Covered the 260 Miles of Mountains in Two Hours and Forty-Five Minutes Flying Time.

SAN SALVADOR, Republic of Salvador, Jan. 1.—(AP)—Colonel Charles Lindbergh today added another national capital to the list of those which he has visited, seen and conquered.

Today it was San Salvador, diminutive mountain city of this Central American republic to which the "Lone Eagle" winged his way, arriving at Lepaine field here at 9:15 this morning. He left Belize, British Honduras, at 6:30, traversing the 260 miles of mountainous territory intervening in two hours and forty-five minutes.

Lindbergh landed amid a great throng of people—from over the whole country—not the star of the aviation field and gave them an ovation as Salvador has never before and certainly not such a demonstration for any person.

From the moment a little speck appeared in the sky and minutes later became recognizable as the "Spirit of St. Louis," there were shouts of "here he comes," "he did it again," and "viva Lindy." Shouts turned to roar of acclaim as the flyer settled his plane over the field, circling it two or three times and getting, as he later said, "the feel of it" before attempting the landing.

Almost the plane had dropped the multitude jammed around it and it was with difficulty the flyer was taken from his "ship" and escorted to the spot where the president wanted to greet him and then off the field to where an automobile was waiting to take him to San Salvador. With the din of his admirers' shouts in his ears he was taken into the city, where he was given an opportunity to change his clothes before beginning the round of entertainment and receptions in his honor.

At 4 this afternoon, he was the guest of the president, Senor Romero Bosque, at a reception at the presidential mansion to which members of the court, the diplomatic corps, military officials and those prominent in Salvadoran life had been invited. This reception was but the first of a lavish program of entertainment which has been arranged for the visiting aviator during his two days here.

All shops and business places were closed today beyond even the usual on the New Year holiday a government proclamation having made this an occasion extraordinary. Visitors came in this city from even the furthermost hamlets of this nation, the railroads having greatly reduced their rates in order to allow everyone a chance to view the famous flyer.

Charles A. Lindbergh took leave of this little colony which he "put on the map" with the mighty shouts of New Year good wishes from a vast throng ringing in his ears.

Fully an hour before the take-off, for San Salvador, which was made at 6:30, an enthusiastic crowd as large as that which greeted him on his arrival Friday, had assembled on the tiny polo field which the "Viking of the air" has made famous. As Lindbergh approached the field accompanied by Sir John Burdon, the governor general, and Lady Burdon, the police had great difficulty in holding back the good natured crowd, which had been kept quiet so far with popular songs and music, rendered by the two principal bands of of the colony.

After Lindbergh had made an inspection of the Spirit of St. Louis and donned his flying clothes, he said goodbye to Sir John and Lady Burdon, who left a sick bed in order to see him off, and then granted a brief interview to newspapermen.

"I am more than pleased with my visit to Belize," said the ambassador of good will from the north. "I deeply appreciate the hearty reception that has ben given me and I hope some day to return for a longer visit."

PLANE CARRYING MRS. LINDBERGH FORCED DOWN

EDWARDSBURGH, Mich., Jan. 1—(AP)—The giant air liner, carrying Mrs. Evangeline L. L. Lindbergh and a party to Detroit on their return flight from Mexico City, was forced down in a field near here today during a terrific snow and sleet storm. It was the second time in 24 hours that the plane was forced to land by the gale.

Last night the ship was brought down on a small automobile race track at Roby, Ind., when it encountered stiff headwinds after hopping off from St. Louis on the last lap of the return journey. Pilot Harry Brooks took the plane to the Ford field near Hammond, Ind., while other members of the party spent the night in Chicago.

When the storm subsided somewhat this morning, it was decided to resume the journey, but the plane had been out only a few minutes when it nosed into the driving snow and sleet that sheeted the fuselage and disabled the motor.

Brooks headed for the Ford airport at Sturgis, Mich., but the storm became so severe that he was forced to land here. The landing was made without mishap and after Mrs. Lindbergh, and the other members of the party were taken into the city, Brooks piloted the plane to the Sturgis field where it is planned to resume the journey tomorrow morning.

Mrs. Lindbergh was not in the least alarmed during the trip, according to members of the party and expressed herself as being "thrilled" by the experience.

NEW YEAR GOOD WISHES SHOUTED TO LINDBERGH

COUPLE DROWNED WHEN AUTO SKIDDED INTO RIVER

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., Jan. 1—(AP)—An automobile driven by Mrs. Minnie V. Nickerson, of 88 Chestnut street, Fairhaven, who was accompanied by Patrick Riley, engineer, of the fishing schooner, Mary R. Mullins, of this port and Edward Bruce, of 25 William street, skidded on the New Bedford and Fairhaven bridge shortly before midnight last night, and after whirling around twice plunged into the river and sank.

Bruce who was riding on the rear seat kicked out a window or opened the door and came to the surface where he was rescued and taken to the Union hospital suffering shock and multiple cuts and bruises. Mrs. Nickerson and Riley were drowned and their bodies have not been recovered although the police and fishermen have been dragging the river all day.

Mrs. Nickerson is the wife of Captain Shirley L. Nickerson, who when master of the schooner Minnie V. in 1925 had his craft seized and forfeited by the government for being engaged in the liquor traffic. Mrs. Nickerson at this time was found to be the owner of the craft according to the papers issued at the customs house.

FOUR DEATHS IN NEW YORK WERE CAUSED BY ALCOHOLISM

NEW YORK, Jan. 1—(AP)—Manhattan's millions celebrated a comparatively safe, if not san New Year's eve, police announced today after checking up the aftermath of the festivities.

Four deaths were caused by alcoholism, police reported. A man was beaten to death by a gang who set upon him and a companion. The accidental asphyxiation of a woman was the only other fatality reported. Several persons were treated at hospitals for minor injuries suffered in brawls and street accidents. Four persons were hurt by stray bullets from firearms used as noisemakers.

Police contended with mid-day traffic conditions in the theater and night club district until early today, while reserves moved from place to place wherever the crowds threatened to become unmanageable.

Prohibition officers enlivened the celebration with a few raids but these were made without spectacular features and guests were not molested.

False alarms sounded by revellers sent fire department equipment on 23 futile runs.

MAN WAS FROZEN TO DEATH IN PITTSBURGH

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 1—(AP) — One man was frozen to death and the death of another was attributed to the severe cold wave that reached Pittsburgh and vicinity early today. Frank Baden, 50, a Negro, was frozen at a mine where he was employed. Robert C. Miller, 25, of Detroit, Mich., fell from a freight train and was fatally hurt. It was believed Miller had become cold and lost his hold on the moving train.

The coldest weather of the winter was experienced here today. The temperature fell to three degrees above zero at noon. Sub-zero temperature was forecast for tonight.

PLANT OF THE SCRANTON SUN WAS DYNAMITED

SCRANTON, Pa., Jan. 1.—(AP)—Three persons were injured, thousands of New Year's revellers were thrown into panic and windows in a radius of three blocks were shattered by an explosion of 16 sticks of dynamite which damaged the three story plant of the Scranton Sun, an afternoon daily, just as the bells were tolling in 1928 a few seconds after midnight this morning.

County and city authorities are working on several definite clues arising from the belief that the blast was a reprisal by certain lawless elements against the Sun as an institution and not directed against any individual.

This theory has been strengthened by the fact that the dynamite was set off at an hour when the building was deserted, a watchman was out of the building, no force was at work in the composing room.

A flash and deafening roar marked the blast and hundreds of New Year celebrators departing from nearby dance halls within a few hundred feet were almost thrown into panic as bits of glass and other debris rained through the air. Several women fainted and Lucy Bradwith, colored, and her five year old niece living in the rear of the Sun building were cut by flying glass. Another injured was Gerald Burke.

The charge believed to be of 16 sticks of dynamite was set off in the rear of the building near the press and directly under the composing room where the linotype machines operate. The force of air following the blast in tornado-like freakishness ripping huge paper rolls in half, breaking windows and loosening doors and spending its forces through a skylight where it ripped off the roof.

ONE MAN WAS KILLED IN TRIPLE TRAIN ACCIDENT

CHICAGO, Jan. 1—(AP)—One man was killed and eelven other persons were injured today in a triple train accident on the Chicago and South Bend Electric railway near Kessington, a suburb. The man killed was J. G. Stafford, motorman of a Gary express train who was crushed when his train crashed into the rear of a South Bend limited stalled on the tracks behind a disabled local train.

The others injured suffered cuts and bruises and are not considered serious.

The accident was a duplication of a wreck on the Chicago and Alton railroad in Chicago yesterday when two women were killed and fifty other persons injured in a triple rear-end collision.

DOUBLE TRACK BRIDGE WAS CARRIED AWAY BY FLOOD

ALGIERS, Algeria, Jan. 1—(AP)—Railroad communication between Algiers and Oran was interrupted today when the double track bridge over the river Habra was carried away by floods and other bridges were threatened.

Based on reports that continue to filter in, the flood damage of the past few weeks is estimated at close to 500,000,000 francs.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

MOSCOW Jan. 1.—(AP)—An internal state loan of 10,000,000 rubles (about $50,000,000) will shortly be issued by Ssoviet Russia.

MARSEILLES, France, Jan. 1.—(AP)—Five occupants of a hydro-airplane, which was undergoing a test flight, were killed when the machine crashed from a height of 1,200 feet over Etang de Berre.

ROME, Jan. 1.—(AP)—Cardinal Rouleau, archbishop of Quebec, will take possession of his titular church of San Pietro in Montorio at a ceremony to be held this afternoon. This is one of the oldest church in Rome.

ROME, Jan. 1.—(AP)—The pope received Monsignor Francis J. Spellman, of Boston. Later in the day came General Nobile, the famous Italian aeronaut, who presented the pope with his book on the North Pole expedition.

LONDON, Jan. 1.—(AP)—Notice of the coming marriage of Miss Edythe Baker, American revenue actress, and Gerald D'Erlanger, son of Baron Emyle D'Erlanger, widely known banker, was given at St. George's, Hanover Square, register office yesterday.

ONE DEATH WAS CAUSED BY HIGH WIND IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, Jan. 1—(AP)—A gale was caused by the high wind which descended out of the north today to drive a two-day fog out of New York harbor and send the temperature down to a seasonable mark.

A heavy timber, torn loose from scaffolding about the steeple of a church under construction in Greenwich Village struck and killed three-year old Ziba Trigila who was being carried in the arms of her father, Totello Triglia. He escaped with cuts and bruises.

Ships which had been held in the harbor more than 36 hours by thick fog began steaming out to sea as soon as the first chill blasts rolled back the heavy blanket of mist.

The Anchor line freighter, Tarantia, which was in collision with the Dollar liner, President Hayes Saturday, proceeded to her pier today. The President Hayes, which had been anchored off Robin's reef in the lower bay resumed her way to Boston. Inspection showed that both ships had suffered only superficial damage in the mishap.

Merry-makers, who had set out on warm, moist New Year's eve, scurried home in a real January weather when Dawn brought the celebration to a close.

32 STORES ROBBED IN GALESBURG, ILL., SUNDAY

GALESBURG, Ill, Jan. 1 (AP)—Thirty two stores in the main business district of Galesburg were robbed today with a loss in cash and merchandise.

In several places attempts were made to open the safes but none were blown, the robbers contenting themselves with merchandise and cash in sight. Every type of store was entered, the thieves starting at one end of Main street and working systematically, branching out to loot a few stores on side streets. Drug stores, pool halls, confectionary shops, meat and grocery stores, a tire shop, several bakeries and a laundry were included in the wholesale looting.

A week ago 12 stores were robbed and the following night four more were entered. Two extra policemen were added to the regular night force of six after the first series of robberies. None of the places entered last week were included in last night's robberies. No arrests have been made.

NINE PERSONS WERE SHOT IN PHILADELPHIA SUNDAY

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 1 (AP)—Three girls, five youths and one man were wounded by lead pellets, ricocheting bullets and blank cartridge wads early today as Philadelphians "shot in" the new year.

Miss Mathilda Miller, 17, received a charge of buckshot in the back when she started to enter her home after returning late from a dance. She was taken to a hospital where it was said she probably would recover. Miss Lucy Vermote, 17, of Runnemede, N. J., was shot in the foot and Miss Anna Colongo, 15, received a scalp wound from a stray bullet while the celebration was at its height.

Some of the injured youths were shot by parties who fired from automobiles and others were the victims of self inflicted wounds. All will recover.

BOSTON, Jan. 1—(AP)—Salvage operations upon the sunken submarine S-4 off Provincetown, remained at a standstill today, halted by rough seas and warnings of storms on the way, the navy yard here was informed by wireless from the officers in charge.

The heavy weather prevented a continuation of operations by the divers who yesterday completed all operations to enter the engine room in which the bodies of at least ten of the 40 men who lost their lives in the disaster are believed to rest.

MAROONED IN AN ISOLATED REGION BY SEVERE STORM

VALPARISO, Fla., Jan. 1.—(AP)—Marooned for hours in an isolated region on Chocawhatchee bay by a severe storm, which swept down with the cold wave from the north, ten persons were reported safe today, after an all night search by boat crews, who scoured the gulf coast in this section. A seaplane from the Pensacola naval station today also joined in the hunt.

STORM WARNING ISSUED BY THE WEATHER BUREAU

"Advisory, 10 a. m. Warning changed to northwest north of Sandy Hook to Eastport, Me. Disturbance of great intensity centered over northern Maine moving slowly northeastward. Will cause strong westerly winds and gales tonight, diminishing Monday."

OBITUARY

B. F. Jones, Jr.

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 1—(AP)—B. F. Jones, Jr., chairman of the board of directors of the Jones and Laughlin Steel corporation, died at his home here today.

Mr. Jones had been ill less than two weeks.

The corporation of which Mr. Jones was the dominating head is the second largest independent steel company in the country. It was founded by his father, the late B. F. Jones, and has been in the steel business here for more than three quarters of a century.

Five Persons Shot in An Inn in Buffalo

Proprietor Was Killed — Girl Was Fatally Wounded—Work of Three Gunmen.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Jan. 1—(AP)—While the New Year's celebration at Peacock inn, Washington street, was at its height today, three men, two of them masked, who had entered the place for the alleged purpose of seeking the life of a former boxer, shot and killed the proprietor of the inn, fatally wounded a girl patron and injured three other guests. The man they were seeking is said by the police to be Roger Lavin. He was not in the place.

The victims of the shooting were:

Michael George, 33 years old, proprietor, killed.

The men came to the door of the second floor of the Washington street building at 2.45 o'clock this morning.

Eugene Brunner, floor manager, told the men they would not be admitted. Two of them donned masks. The third, a tall young man, pushed Brunner aside. All then drew 45 calibre automatic revolvers and started out of the room, crowded with merrymakers.

Laughter and singing suddenly ceased. The tall man announced they were looking for Lavin, but unable to find him they started out, their revolvers drawn. They were at the door when a man at a rear table, shouted:

The men wheeled around and demanded identity of the man who shouted. At this George came from the small barroom armed with a revolver, and approached the gunmen. A few feet away, he opened fire.

The three men then started firing promiscuously about the place and George emptied his revolver before he was felled.

The others wounded were also guests.

CONTEST OVER DIVERSION OF WARE AND SWIFT RIVERS

(Special to The Bulletin)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 31—Apparently the dispute as to proposed diversion of the Ware and Swift rivers from its natural outlet into the Connecticut river, and the use of those waters for filling a reservoir to give Boston an additional supply, is no nearer amicable adjustment than before the conference here on Friday of last week before the army board of engineers.

The matter is one of general New England intrest inasmuch as it may establish a precedent for diversion of other streams like the Merrimack in New Hampshire or rivers in any other New ngland states, where the waters have interstate flow.

The Connecticut attorneys will bring the matter before the United States supreme court on Tuesday next, asking for permission to file an equity suit to restrain the proposed diversion. The Massachusetts attorneys do not expect to present at that time, unless the court asks that arguments be then presented.

DRIEST NEW YEAR'S EVE EVER IN CHICAGO

CHICAGO, Jan. 1—(AP)—"The driest New Year's eve we have ever had," was the statement of E. C. Yellowley, federal prohibition administrator, today in summing up last night's activities in Chicago.

"There was very little drinking and no trouble in any of the places where our agents were placed," he said. Mr. Yellowley contributed this to the willingness of the proprietors to cooperate with his office and the spirit of the persons, who went to the hotels and cabarets to celebrate.

At 3 a. m. Sunday the administrator stated that 75 per cent. of the 250 imported agents posted in hotels and cabarets reported that their places were closed for the night and little drinking and no disturbance.

Several hotels cancelled reservations at the last minute stating that they did not desire to act as a police to their customers and at the same time fearing the padlocking order under a recent court decision.

49.2 MILES IN AN AUTO FROM A PINT OF FUEL

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Jan. 1.—(AP)—Application for an injunction to restrain C. J. Weeks, 60, local railroad engineer from revealing a new motor fuel by which he said he was able to obtain 49.2 miles in an automobile from a pint of his mixture, was filed in United States district court here yesterday by Nathaniel P. Pratt, of Decatur, Ga., and George L. Pratt, of Atlanta.

The petitioners asserted that they advanced Weeks $13,700 to develop the process and that after telling them "a person or persons connected with the gasoline industry had offered him $1,350,000 to forget his formula," Weeks has since opened negotiations with two motor companies.

The suit declared preliminary tests have shown that process would "revolutionize the automobile industry," the cost of manufacture being only a few cents per gallon.

Europe Takes U. S. As Model of Prosperity

All European Countries Are Striving to Produce Similar Conditions at Home.

LONDON, Jan. 1—(AP)—Europe opens the door on 1928 almost in fear and trembling that something unexpected will upset the slow upward trend of economic life of continental countries.

Glowing reports of American prosperity fall on envious ears in Great Britain, France and Germany and the hope for 1928 in all these countries is to produce, as nearly as possible, similar conditions at home. In the minds of economic experts there is not a chance to reach the American prosperity level, but with peace in industry, such as Great Britain is particularly striving for, without dangerous upheavals on the continent such as were barely avoided in 1927, and without radical political upsets in general elections, Europe may well look forward to further economic progress.

All Europe seems to be desirous of taking the United States as a model for prosperity, but Lord Gainford, president of the federation of British industries, has warned against adoption of American methods as a panacea for all the economic ills that face his country. "Although Great Britain can learn much from America," Lord Gainford said, "we must not attempt to graft American methods and processes, lock, stock and barrel to our older and totally different structure. x x x Never since the war have relations between British employer and employes been more amicable than now. If we can develop and consolidate this atmosphere, then we need not fear the future."

In Germany the economic reorganizement with France is one of the most hopeful signs of the coming year. On three key industries—steel, potash and dyestuffs—joint agreements have been reached which bids fair to realize Hugo Stinnes' dream of complete Franco-German trade agreements as a means of the permanent pacification not all Europe. Any halt in the upward movement in Germany with its demoralizing effect upon the money market and credit, would naturally be extremely unwelcome, as uninterrupted progress in economic rehabilitation is most essential to political stability.

Constitutionalism is expected to govern business developments in France until the May elections. Uncertainty over the new radical-socialist coalition and whether Premier Poincare will have a safe parliamentary majority after the election is responsible for this cautious attitude. Stabilization of both the franc and politics, is what the French business world hopes the new year will bring.

Europe continues to talk about tearing down the tariff walls around its 25 or more component countries, but 1928 opens with little actually accomplished along that line. All sorts of resolutions dealing with this subject have been introduced and duly seconded; in fact, if resolutions elimintaed tariff barriers, Europe would be as free of customs houses as the boundary lines that separate the states in America. When it comes to the point of actually lowering tariffs, however, each country finds some god reason why the lowering process does not apply to it at the particular time. It is good economic medicine—for the other fellow—sums up the tariff policy as practiced by Europe to date.

NEW EVIDENCE AGAINST DR. CHARLES M'MILLAN

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 1—(AP)—The net of circumstantial evidence connecting Dr. Charles McMillan with the death of Mrs. Amelia Appleby, wealthy widow of a Chicago inventor, was declared by sheriff's deputies and police to have been drawn tighter about him with the discovery today in a search of the physician's apartment of what was believed to be the $50,000 worth of jewelry reported owned by the woman.

The search was made at the request of Capt. William Bright, head of the homicide squad at the sheriff's office on information that Mrs. Appleby formerly was the owner of such an amount of jewelry that had mysteriously disappeared.

Diamond rings which the officers declared would fit the fingers of Mrs. Appleby, necklaces, jeweled bracelets, women's underclothing and a hypodermic needle and narcotics were also found in Dr. McMillan's apartment, the officers assert.

PREMIER POINCARE OF FRANCE HAS BEEN ILL

PARIS, Jan. 1—(AP)—Premier Poincare was ill and unable to be present at the presidential palace to assist President Doumergue at the New Year's receptions of officials and dignitaries in the senate chamber. One of the most important functions of the day.

The premier has been working 15 and 16 hours daily for the past 18 months without a vacation. He was attacked by a chill at about 7 o'clock Christmas morning after sitting all night in a stuffy, overheated chamber to put the budget measure through. He emerged into below freezing cold at daybreak. The chill was followed by a high fever which increased throughout the week. Despite this he stuck at his desk until Saturday when he was forced to take to his bed.

Circles close to the premier insist that his condition is not serious, claiming that he is merely overworked and needs a complete rest for a few days.

The New Year

In mellow echoes, let your chimes their hopeful story tell.
"A bright New Year, a glad New Year, hath come to us again!"

Oh, who can say how much of joy within it there may be Stored up for us, who listen now to your sweet melody?
Good-bye, Old Year! Tried, trusty friend, thy tale at last is told.
O New Year, write thou thine for us in lines of brightest gold!

FIVE U. S. MARINES KILLED 23 WOUNDED IN NICARAGUA

Suffered Loss in Battle With 500 Well-Trained and Uniformed Rebels—The Rebels Suffered Severe Losses, But the Exact Number Was Unknown—The Engagement Lasted an Hour and Twenty Minutes—The Rebels Were Under Comand of General Sandino—Captain Livingston, Who Commanded the Marines, Was Seriously Wounded.

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, Jan. 1—(AP)—Five United States marines were killed and 23 wounded in a severe engagement with rebels on the outskirts of Quilali, last Friday, says an official announcement at Marine headquarters today. The rebels suffered "severe" casualties, but the exact number killed was unknown.

The marines killed were:

First Sergeant John E. Hemphill, Chicago.

Corporal Adolph Theilhart, Middle Village, L. I., N. Y.

The engagement was between 500 well-trained and uniformed rebels under General Augustino Sandino and a joint patrol of American marines and Nicaraguan national guardsmen, said a report received by Colonel Louis Mason Gulick, commander of the marines in Nicaragua. The engagement lasted an hour and 20 minutes. The number of rebel casualties probably will not be known as Sandino's men carried off their dead and wounded to keep them from vultures.

The patrol was under command of Captain Livingston, who was seriously wounded. The attack by the marines sent out from Matagalpa was expected by Sandino, who had learned of it through his spy system. Sandino had been concentrating his forces at Quilali for several months and could not be taken.

An intensive drive against Sandino, with the determination of driving the rebel leader out of the department of Nueva Segovia, has begun, Colonel Gulick said. He expects another battle probably will take place when marine forces approach El Chipote, which is 18 miles from Quilali.

WILL BE NO LETUP IN EFFORTS TO DISARM REBELS.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 1—(AP)—Stunned at the casualties suffered by the American marines in their engagement with General Sandino's rebels near Quilali last Friday, navy and marine corps officials expressed the opinion tonight that the campaign to rid Nicaragua of the last vestiges of outlawry would be carried on with unprecedented energy.

They saw no let-up in the combined efforts of the marines and the Nicaraguan national guardsmen to disarm all the bands that refused to lay down their arms under the terms of the Stimson agreement, despite that others lives may be lost in the relentless drive to clean up the little war-torn country.

It is no secret in official circles that Sandino is believed to have been supplied with arms, ammunition and supplies from outside sources and through this aid has been able to put up a strong front against his pursuers.

Plans of the marines and Nicaraguan guardsmen to crush the outlaws or run them across the Honduran border have been held up thus far it was said, only because of the rainy season in northwestern Nicaragua. When this is over, officials believe a more progressive court will be possible and to stop our gun-running operations on the part of persons outside the troubled nation.

A total of 1,400 enlisted men and officers comprise the existing force of marines in Nicaragua. This number has been maintained there since last August when the force was reduced.

The fast coast under the Stimson disarmament program, more than 4,000 rifles were taken from the Nicaraguan government. Colonel Gulick declared has strengthened the belief among officials here that Sandino's capture is the biggest trouble facing the U. S. marines today for the present. Government officials, has received reports of the movement of rebel forces in the vicinity of quarters that are [illegible]

RESCUE OF BOY SCOUTS WHO WERE SNOWBOUND

MODESTO, Calif., Jan. 1.—(AP)—Twenty-five Stanislaus county Boy Scouts were telling parents and friends interesting tales today in the coziness of their homes of a five-day experience in the snowy fastness of the Sierras that tax[illegible] their courage and ability.

The scouts were rescued late last night from their snowy prison at Spinchfield grade when a caterpillar tractor ploughed through ten miles of drifts ranging in depth from six to ten feet. The boys were marooned in their winter camp at Pine Crest last Tuesday by the heavy snowfall. The lads, ranging in age from 12 to 14 years, showed the true scout spirit, however, and no complaints or faltering were reported. Bravely and cheerfully they waited for their rescuers, Scout Executive Vernon Bald reported.

After the tractor reached the boys, they were brought to Long Barn where trucks supplied by the Pacific Gas & Electric company took them to Merced, Modesto and other towns where they lived.

OFFICERS TO PUNISH HOLIDAY MERRY MAKERS

SHELBY, N. C., Jan. 1.—(AP)—Fireworks crackled anew in Shelby today as Mayor W. N. Doracy and the Shelby police force emerged from a barricaded city hall and instituted reprisals against the holiday merrymakers who last night drove them to shelter with a barrage of the explosives.

Eleven men were arrested in the first move of the authorities who intimated that others would be taken when they ignited their figurative cannon crackers.

The police force was driven to refuge in the city hall last night when they threatened to arrest offenders who tossed explosives under their feet. As the crowd was dispersing at the request of the sheriff, police brought a fire hose into play and hostilities were renewed. The authorities were held at bay in the barricaded city hall while the merry-makers welcomed the new year, being permitted to leave only after the celebration had ended.

INFANT WAS DEVOURED BY WOLVES IN LITHUANIA

RIGA, Latvia, Jan. 1—(AP)—Hungry wolves defeated the heroic efforts of a mother and a faithful horse near the Lithuanian village of Maiety and devoured the woman's infant child when the horse fell from exhaustion in sight of safety.

Driving to the village in a sleigh with her baby, the woman was suddenly attacked by the ferocious beasts when some distance out. Urging her horse on at full speed to escape the wolves, the woman gained sight of the village and safety when the horse gave up and fell from exhaustion. Before peasants that were aroused by her cries could reach the scene, the wolves devoured the baby and severely injured the mother.

ERIE, Pa., Jan. 1.—(AP)—New Year found Erie snowbound with the worst storm in the memory of the oldest inhabitants still raging tonight. Street car traffic has been at a standstill for hours and hundred of automobiles have been abandoned in all sections of the city.

Snow which started falling late Saturday night was being drifted by a northwest wind which at times reached a velocity of forty-five to fifty miles an hour. State street, main business artery in sections is buried under four to five feet of snow. Trains entering the city are from two to four hours late.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 1—(AP)—[illegible] 4,075,452 federal income tax returns [illegible] in the United States [illegible] a tax of $727,479,426 in 1926 [illegible] of $21,561,154,[illegible] the returns [illegible] seven bureau reported today [illegible] returns [illegible]

The average [illegible] 1926 was $5778.91 at [illegible] rate of 3.37 per cent on an average net income of $5,291.76.

Compared with [illegible] 321,566 more people filed returns [illegible] 1926 and the total net income reported by $675,326,000, [illegible] tax paid, however, [illegible] $67,765.

The 412,763 reporting corporations paid an income tax of $[illegible] on a net income of $[illegible] These figures show an increase over 1925 of $75,314,288 in the corporation tax and an increase in the corporations' net income of $175,563,487.

This spread is explained [illegible] by the 13 1-2 per cent [illegible] ing in 1926 against the [illegible] 1925. Had the returns for 1926 been made at 13 per cent, the bureau said, the tax for that year would have been about $1,137,300,000 or $45,700,000 less than at the higher rate.

CHICAGO, Jan. 1—(AP)—Snow bound in many sections and with scores dead from the sub-zero wave, the mid-west tonight entertained no outlook for immediate relief from the coldest wave of the winter.

Weather bureau observers said low marks of from 10 to 15 below zero here were expected by morning and that it would be at least two more days before the break of the sub-zero wave came.

In the Chicago area alone, 19 deaths have been attributed to the cold in two days and similar reports of death and suffering prevailed in other sections west to the Rockies, east virtually to the coast and south to Oklahoma and Texas.

Snow drifts have blocked many highways and train routes; demoralizing bus schedules and interurban lines and halting motor traffic and marooning scores of motorists. More than 400 motor cars and their passengers were held prisoners by the drifts along Dunes highway east of Chicago, farmers turning their homes over to the stranded parties.

Other towns in Illinois, Iowa and Missouri reported similar conditions.

DEATH OF MRS. MARIETTA LYON, AGED 102 YRS. 8 MONTHS

REDDING, Conn., Jan. 1—(AP)—Connecticut's oldest resident, Mrs. Marietta Lyon, died here at the stroke of twelve midnight just as the New York was being ushered in. Mrs. Lyon was 102 years and six months old.

She was born in Newtown, moving to Redding after marriage. She has lived in Redding for 77 years. Before her marriage she was Miss Marietta Skidmore. She is survived by one son, Rufus Lyon, who for many years was city editor of the old Bridgeport Farmer and a daughter, Mrs. Hobart Brinsmade, of St. Louis.

MEETING THE NEW YEAR WITH HOPE AND COURAGE

A New Year is opening before us, and tomorrow we shall have entered upon it. It will doubtless bring trials and difficulties but it will also bring much of joy and happiness. Let us look forward to it with hope and courage, and a readiness to meet calmly and bravely whatever it brings.

It is probably true with most of us that the beginning of the New Year causes one to look back on the year that is gone, sometimes with regret that he has not made better use of the opportunities it brought, sometimes with more than regret over the mistakes he has made; and so the New Year seems to give us the chance to start all over again and avoid the errors of the past. Perhaps this is why the coming of the New Year seems almost like the beginning of a new life, and we may well resolve that, in this new life, we will do the best that we are capable of. It may be true that few of us will be able to fully live up to this resolution, but at least we may earnestly try; and let us hope that in many instances the effort will be successful.

If this is to be happy New Year in the fullest sense it will be because we do something to help others; for it is the teaching of experience that it is not what we do for ourselves, but it is in the service we render to those around us that happiness consists.

Let us start the New Year with the determination to cultivate anew in our community good comradeship and fellowship. This spirit is one of the greatest assets that any community can have.

I have read that in one European country it is the unbroken practice on New Year's day for the people to bury all the animosities of the past and meet with friendly greetings those from whom they have been estranged, thus starting anew their community life in the spirit of friendliness and good will toward one another. What better custom could be inaugurated in any community? There is no city or community where better feeling prevails than among the people of Willimantic.

If trouble visits anyone in our midst a strong feelnig of sympathy goes forth to the afflicted one from every member of our community, and this is as it should be, and let us see to it that this spirit shall increase during the coming year.

And to each and every one of you I wish the happiest of New Years and that when the year 1928 has run its course and ended you may look back over the months that have gone and truthfully feel that it has been the best year of your life.

CHARLES A. GATES,
Mayor of the city of Willimantic.

NEW YEAR IS WARMLY WELCOMED IN WILLIMANTIC

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Jan. 1.—The New Year dawned here bathed in a warm sunshine and mild temperature which came as a treat after the showery and foggy farewell of 1927. It was a fitting birth for a new year and the populace oined in making fitting welcome to 1928. While the inclement weather subdued the merry-making on the eve and confined celebrations indoors there was considerable private participation in observance of the holiday in homes today. Locally a dance at the Al-Pierre Tabarin, theatre parties and many motor trips to inns and other emporiums offered amusement for the New Year Eve. There were several watch night parties in homes.

The churches were crowded today and sermons of the occasion were delivered by the pastors. At the Catholic churches the sermons were substituted by the reading of the diocesan decretals in compliance with a request of the bishop.

The two outstanding attractions tonight were a midnight picture program and musical revue at the Capitol theatre which was largely attended and a New Year's frolic given by Willimantic lodge, No. 1311, B. P. O. Elks at the home. The affair opened at 10 o'clock in the evening with a concert by the Peerless orchestra. At midnight dancing was in order and continued until three o'clock Monday morning. A musical revue was given by professional artists. The frolic was considered one of the most successful ever held and was attended by over 300 Elks and their friends. It was in charge of a committee composed of Ralph B. Gates, chairman; Charles H. Palmer, J. Francis Moriarty, Fred Dumaine, Raymond A. Parker, Robert E. Casey and Ernest Bottomley.

Monday, being a holiday in observance of New Year, there will be a general suspension of business. It is indicated that the people will take opportunity of the day to visit and otherwise go out in quest of merriment. All stores conducted by members of the Willimantic Business Men's association will be closed. Other than the opening of the stamp and general delivery windows during the forenoon, the post office will be closed. The "Watch Night" service at the Methodist church will be omitted this year for the first time in 25 years. Monday evening there will be a union Protestant service at the Methodist church with the pastor, Rev. Harold H. Critchlow, in charge. The annual meeting of the Mansfield Congregational church will be held Monday night with a supper at 6:30 o'clock, followed by roll call and business. This afternoon the every-member canvass of the parish was held, in charge of the pastor, Rev. T. Hawthorne Jones.

SUSTAINS BROKEN LEG IN AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENT

WILLIMANTIC, Jan. 1.—Three people were hurt in a collision of a motorcycle operated by Clinton B. Smith of Pomfret Center, and an automobile driven by Miss Marian Stark, of Lyme, on the Columbia highway near Katzmann's filling station, three miles from here, at 5 o'clock Saturday night. Smith sustained a broken left leg and severe body injuries. Riding in a side car attached to Smith's motorcycle was William E. Johnson, also of Pomfret Center. Johnson was thrown out and he suffered a sprained back and multiple abrasions on the body. In the car driven by Miss Stark was here sister, Jean Stark, riding in the front seat and Channing H. Morrill, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Morrill, of this city. Mr. Morrill was thrown against the front seat and quite seriously hurt. The three injured men were taken to St. Joseph's hospital. Young Smith remains in the hospital with a broken leg and cut on the face. Johnson was released this morning after treatment for multiple cuts and abrasions. Morrill suffered a severe gash over the right eye. It is expected he will be discharged in a few days. An X-ray has been taken of his chest to determine possible fracture of the skull. Neither of the drivers remember having seen the other vehicle prior to the accident. Both machines were coming easterly from the direction of Hartford. Miss Stark, driving a Buick car, had passed the motorcycle and was turning into Columbia road. The motorcycle struck the right rear fender, cutting it clean from the body of the car. The cycle was practically demolished. An investigation was made by State Policeman Griffin and Daley, of Stafford barracks.

Three automobiles and a motor bus figured in a severe collision on West Main street, near the junction of Mansfield avenue at six o'clock Saturday night when a public service car operated by Stokes Watson, of North Windham, ran headon into a Buick coach driven by H. N. Bullard, of this city, while clearing the front of a New England Transportation company bus which was backing into Menditto filling station. Following Watson's machine was a Chevrolet driven by Roger Paulbus, son of Joseph F. Paulbus, of this city, which bumped into the rear of the Watson car when that machine came to an abrupt stop in the collision. The bus, a parlor observation type, was driven by Boyt W. Freslove, local starter, and as stated was backing into the filling station, with part of the bus proecting onto the street. Watson, driving a Studebaker sedan, was traveling westerly on the same side of the street as the bus. The local machine was headed east. Riding in Watson's car were John and Michael Piechta, of Milford, Mass., their brother, Leon Piechta and his two young children, on their way to spend New Year's day with relatives in Lebanon. All but the youngest child were injured and taken to St. Joseph's hospital. With the exception of John Giechta, they were released after treatment. The former was treated for severe bruises. The Studebaker and Buick were badly damaged and Bullard was hurt when thrown against the steering wheel and windshield of his car. The Chevrolet was but slightly damaged. An investigation was made by Traffic Officer Arthur Hurley. No arrests were made.

Heavy fog made driving extremely hazardous for over twenty-four hours up to Saturday afternoon when rain served to disperse the thick fog. Two accidents were reported from the immediate vicinity as a result of the fog. Friday evening a Buick roadster operated by Orrin Cone of Winter street, this city, ran into the side of a freight train that was standing on the New Haven railroad crossing at South Windham, on the Windham Center road. Cone claimed that because of the fog he couldn't see the freight. The machine was put out of commission. On the North Windham road, a car, said to be a Hudson, crashed through the state fence. An automobile party escaped death by a matter of inches upon approaching one of the railroad crossings on Columbia avenue when a freight train suddenly hove into view. The driver succeeded in bringing the machine to a stop within a few feet of the thundering train.

The contemplated purchase of the Turner mill on Valley street, now occupied by the Goyer Manufacturing company, by the town for a trade school building, meets with the approval of the state board of education, it is indicated in a letter received from the board. In a special town meeting held December 21, the selectmen were authorized to purchase the Turner mill, or any other suitable site, for use as a trade school and to expend a sum not to exceed $10,000 for remodeling the building. The purchase of a building was limited to a cost not in excess of $35,000. F. J. Trinder, director of the division of vocational education for the state inspected the Turner plant, a three-story brick structure of substantial construction, and recommended its approval to the state educational board. Arthur B. Meredith, of Hartford, secretary of the state board of education, came to this city and personally delivered the notification of approval. The proposed trade school is to be established by contract with the between the state and the Windham schol board under the authority of an act of the last general assembly which provides an appropriation of $50,000 for the school.

The Turner mill is owned by the Willimantic Development company and a special meeting of the board of directors has been called for Tuesday, January 10, to act on the matter of selling the building. In the event of a sale steps will be taken to dissolve the company.

STATE OFFICER HEINOLD IS MARRIED TO LOCAL GIRL

WILLIMANTIC, Jan. 1.—Henry Heinold, member of the state police barracks at Stafford Springs, and Miss Edna M. Demers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Demers, of 50 oPrk street, were united in marriage at three o'clock Saturday afternoon in St. Mary's rectory on Maple avenue by Rev. Edward A. Mathieu. The attendants were Mrs. Joseph Grimes, sister of the bride, and Ernest LaFleur of this city. For the wedding the bride was attired in tan silk with hat to harmonize. Her traveling dress was of blue worn under a fur coat. Mr. and Mrs. Heinold left by motor on a wedding trip after which they will reside in Stafford. The bride is a well known and popular local young woman. She has been in the employ of the Holland Silk Manufacturing company. Officer Heinold has made a wide circle of friends here through his work as a state officer. The wedding was followed by a reception at the home of the bride's parents.

Willimantic auto owners apparently came out well in the mad scramble for automobile registrations. There was but a very small percentage of locally owned cars that had not been registered when the time expired Saturday and many new markers made their appearance during the day, as allowed by the motor vehicle department. No end of interesting stories were told by those who figured in the eleventh hour rush.

Ten Willimantic residents subscribed to Yale University's worldwide campaign for a $30,000,000 endowment fund which successfully terminated in ten days ago and being now overFriday night, having passed the quosubscribed by over a quarter of a million dollars. Stanley J. Sumner and Attorney John H. King were chairmen of the local Yale fund.

The oft-continued non-support case of William Segar was taken up in police court Saturday morning and the accused ordered to furnish a bond of $500 to guarantee payment of $10 a week to his wife. The alternative was a six months' jail sentence. Through his counsel, Segar appealed to the superior court.

A sea gull peregrinating proponsity came as a rare sight to local people this forenoon. The gull hovered over the business section for some time.

Henry W. Chamberlin fcmer superintendent of the town farm, who underwent an operation some time ago, has reentered St. Joseph's hospital for treatment.

Miss Mary Moriarty is spending the week-end with her sister and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel A. Shea and family in Providence, R. I.

Traffic Officer Grant Bombria made an unusual capture this morning when he made captive a large house-fly which was winging its way about on Main street. The fly appeared fully active despite the time of the year.

Miss Frances Stanley entertained at bridge and a luncheon Friday afternoon. Miss Marion Hillhouse won first prize and Mrs. Kenneth N. Hillhouse, second.

James B. Fullerton and son, Kendall, have returned from Waterbury, Vt., to drive back an automobile that Mr. Fullerton had been forced to abandon there on a visit to relatives while the flood was still at its height. Mr. Fullerton states that there is yet much to be done to relieve the sufferers.

Mrs. John T. Quilan entertained in honor of her son Jackie's fifth birthday, Thursday. Refreshments were served and games played. Present were Betty Brooks, Margaret Riordan, Harriet King, Alfred Judge, Bobby Scranton, Vernon Mason, Tommy and Danny Connell, Dickie Congdon and Jackie Quilan.

Loud voices that residents of Pleasant street at first thought was a three o'clock-in-the-morning attempt at Sweet Adeline, turned out to be a fight. The serenaders proved to be four local young men and they were arrested on charge of breach of the peace.

VOLUNTOWN

It is rumored that work will begin in the spring on the Federal aid highway over the old Norwich- Providence turnpike. This is the old route over which in early days stage coaches used to run and made regular stops at the Robbin's tavern, near the village. The old mileatones are still to be seen along the route. The new road, when completed, will shorten the distance to Norwich or Providence by several miles.

Miss Jeanne Russi, of the Academy of the Holy Family, Baltic, spent the holidays at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ovela Russi.

Mrs. Thomas McDonald and daughter, Kathleen, spent Christmas day at the home of Mrs. McDonald's daughter, Mrs. Peter Violette, at Lisbon.

PUTNAM'S MAYOR-ELECT SEEKS CIVIC CO-OPERATION

As head of the city government of Putnam I wish to extend my own best wishes and those of the city counsel and city officials for prosperity and happiness in 1928. I appreciate the responsibility placed upon me in my elevation to the position of mayor of Putnam, and it shall be my effort to direct the affairs of the city in such a way as to bring as much benefit as possible to its citizens. During the year 1927 Putnam has not made phenomenal strides ahead, but it has held its own, and its situation is no worse than that of other communities in this section. It is not to be expected that a considerable business boom will strike Putnam with the year 1928, but it is reasonable to hope that work and cooperation on the part of the citizens can make it a year of progress and of happiness.

CHARLES A. RICHARD,
Mayor-elect of the city of Putnam.

PUTNAM

ECONOMY WAS WATCHWORD IN PUTNAM GOVERNMENT

In reviewing the year 1927 I need comment only that it has been my aim, as mayor of Putnam, and the aim of the city council and officials, to carry on the government of the city for the best interests of its citizens. At the same time economy has been the watchword of the year in all of the considerations of the council. The biggest problem of the year, the water question, has been discussed completely in an effort to determine the best solution. That decision we must leave to the new mayor and council. Industrially the year has not seen great advance, nor can we expect rapid strides toward the peak of prosperity. Progress will have to be slow, gained as a result of work. To the people of Putnam I wish happiness and prosperity in 1928, a prosperity to be gained by hard work and by interest and cooperation in the government of the city.

VICTOR CHAPDELAINE,
Mayor of the city of Putnam.

G. P. SWANSON ELECTED NOBLE GRAND OF PUTNAM LODGE

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Jan. 1—At the annual meeting Friday night of the Israel Putnam lodge of Odd Fellows, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: Noble grand, George P. Swanson; vice grand, Robert F. Allard; recording secretary, Herbert A. Johnson; treasurer, Leon T. Wilson; financial secretary, Lucius H. Fuller; assistant financial secretary, Allie S. King; trustee for three years, William P. Warren. The officers together with several appointive ones yet to be named will be installed at a future meeting.

The sixty-first annual convention of the Young Men's Christian association of Connecticut will be held at Hartford on January 14 and 15 at the Hotel Bond. This district can send five voting delegates to the convention and as many more as may wish to go. Ralph C. Jenkins is the chairman of the promotion work in this section.

The Woodstock Theft Detecting society held its annual meeting on Thursday at the Agricultural hall at the South Woodstock fair grounds. This society was founded in 1793 and incorporated in 1824 and is holding meetings, although the detecting of theft has been assumed by police department. It is composed of both men and women and have their meetings, give a dinner, enjoy a literary program and elect officers. At the annual meeting the constitution is always read and all members not responding to the roll call are fined.

The officers for the coming year were elected as follows:

President, William M. Gallup; vice president, Charles H. Potter; treasurer, Mrs. F. A. Jordon; clerk, Mrs. A. H. Williams; standing committee, S. H. Peckham, Mrs. Albert Hammond, Albert H. Williams, Mrs. Everett May, George Wetherell, Mrs. George M. Sampson; pursuers, Leonard H. Healey, William N. Herindeen, Ernest R. Pike, Allen W. Kenyon, Albert H. Williams, Everett E. May, Edward L. Chamberlain; literary committee, H. D. Baker, Henry Joy, Mrs. George Butts, Miss Annette May, Mrs. Louise Child, Mrs. L. H. Lindeman; auditors, Everett May, C. T. Child, S. H. Peckham; collector, C. M. Perrin.

The program for the entertainment at the meeting was in charge of Rev. Henry D. Baker. Mr. Baker and Miss Elsie Hibbard read several selections and Galen Pike gave an interesting talk of his work in forestry in Idaho.

Funeral services for Frank G. Johnson were held from his home this afternoon, Rev. John E. Duxbury, pastor of the Methodist church of this city officiating. Burial was in the West Thompson cemetery. He was 67 years of age and had been a resident of West Thompson for the past twenty-five years. He is survived by his wife, four daughters and one son William of Putnam. He also leaves a brother, William Johnson of Pomfret and one sister living in Sweden.

A man giving the name of Jack Ducette residing in Hartford was fined $100 and costs by Justice Percy Tourtelotte of North Grosvenordale, after he had been found guilty of driving while drunk. Officer William Bell arrested the man in Quinebaug after the Ducette car had been in collision with a car owned by a Webster man.

A New Year's eve party for all of the young people of the city was held Saturday evening at the Second Congregational church. Games were played, refreshments were served and beginning at 1:30 there was a religious service held. The affair was in charge of committee from the Congregational, Methodist and Baptist churches.

The New Year's party which had been planned by the Oscar Swanson post, American Legion of North Grosvenordale was cancelled by the committee in charge. It is now decided that the first activity of this prosperous post will be opened with an entertainment later in January and they are also planning a Mardi Gras festival sometime toward the spring.

DANIELSON

DANIELSON QUIETLY USHERS IN THE NEW YEAR

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Jan. 1—Up to the time this was written Sunday afternoon Danielson developed no special outstanding happening of any kind to mark the birth of a New Year. Being Sunday, it was observed as such—quietly and peacefully. Church services occupied at least part of the time of a great many people this morning, and little family or friendly gatherings, and this really can mean both, appeared to be taking up the time of the greater percentage of Danielson's people this afternoon.

A driving rainstorm on New Year's eve killed off much of the enthusiasm of those who were bent on "going somewhere." It appeared today that many projected parties were cancelled. In others, the plans went through and the Old Year was speeded on its way while those who said "Goodbye" turned to give a gladsome greeting to 1928.

As has been remarked, all was peaceful hereabouts today. The lid was due to be flipped off one minute after midnight, however, with a dance at the state armory, lasting into the early hours of Monday morning as one incentive to "pep" up the holiday period. Also just after midnight tonight a vaudeville entertainment was scheduled to go on at the Orpheum theater, and a great case of favors had been provided by the management to be distributed among the patrons.

Monday again rates a holiday. For this particular day there is ample diversion planned for those who wish it—theatrical attractions, dances, basketball, dinner dances and what not.

One is sure that Danielson people will be delighted to know that Deacon and Mrs. Albert C. Greene of 197 Main street had six of their seven children with them for New Year and were, despite their advanced years, able to thoroughly enjoy the family reunion and its attendant happy hours. Deacon Greene is nearing the century mark in age, but is yet a youth in his attitude toward life. Mrs. Greene, too, is of a sunny disposition and of the sweet, motherly type.

With them on Saturday all of their children excepting James A. Greene and the members of their family. They are residents of distant Indiana and found it impossible to be here. Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Greene of New London, Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Greene of Jersey City, Major Edward C. Greene, M. D., stationed at Brooks field, Texas, in the army aviation medical corps; his son Edward Greene, Jr., senior at Yale university, Mr. and Mrs. George M. Greene and their children, Richard and Lucy of Ashland and Cambridge, Mass., Miss Mary E. Greene of Cambridge, Mass., all came for the reunion, and Miss Alice Greene is at home with her parents.

Albert Greene, namesake of Deacon Greene, and son of Mr. and Mrs. George M. Greene, was unable to be present because of illness.

MANUFACTURING PLANTS TO OPEN AFTER THE HOLIDAY

DANIELSON, Jan. 1—Wheels of industry that have been inert since the eve of Christmas will start spinning again all through this territory Tuesday morning. The Christmas-New Year period has been a real holiday for thousands of mill operatives up and down thme Quinebaug valley.

It has been a great boon for them, but tinged, for many, with the fear that it portends lax times during 1928. This is hardly a fair assumption and more or less pessimistic.

A point that hundreds of these mill workers overlook is that mill executives are as anxious to keep their plants on full time operation as the operatives are to have them. It is decidedly a mutual proposition. An idle mill earns no dividends for anyone. The outlook for 1928 is not unpromising, and no man can truly say that it will not prove to be a really happy prosperous year. One may guess, but one does not know. There are many indications that it will be a real year of activity and abundant happiness for the people of eastern Connecticut.

GIRL HAS FINGERS BROKEN WHEN CARS COLLIDE

DANIELSON, Jan. 1—A crash of cars in the rain on the state highway just south of Elmville just after 6 o'clock Saturday night resulted, among other things, with broken fingers for Miss Christina Costa and lacerations on her face, the result, it is assumed, of flying glass. Frank Costa, her brother, was driving the car, and he had his overcoat torn off in the jam. The accident happened as a machine driven by Augustus Ducett of Lewis boulevard was coming slowly south along the state highway through the storm. A car owned and driven by Joseph Diggitt of Goodyear was trailing the Ducett car, and when Mr. Diggitt turned out the car driven by Costa came along and there was a head-on smash. A result of the checkup of the accident on the part of State Officer Royal Scranton was the ordering of Ducett into court to answer to a charge of driving while under the influence of an intoxicant.

Saturday afternoon funeral services for Olive S. Hopkins were held at Foster Center, Rev. Donald R. Strout of Summit, R. I., officiating. The bearers were Ralph Nichols, John W. Bowen, Jr., Benjamin G. Eddy, Louis Harris. Burial was in the New Rockland cemetery, which is being developed into one of the most beautiful cemeteries in this section of southern New England. A. F. Wood was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

The funeral of James Riley, Brooklyn, who died at Norwich the past week was held from the undertaking rooms of L. E. Kennedy Saturday morning at 8:30, with a high mass of requiem at St. James' church at 9 o'clock. Rev. James McCarthy, M. S., was celebrant of the mass. Burial was in St. James' cemetery. The bearers were Edward Lenehan, John Weaver, James R. Walsh, Thomas Gorman, Patrick Moran and Daniel Smith. The committal service was conducted by Rev. Antheleine Mollard, M. S.

This afternoon at 1:30 at the home on East Franklin street there was a prayer service for Mrs. Harry O. Ware, followed at 2 o'clock by a funeral service at the Nazarene church. Both services were conducted by Rev. A. E. Gallup. At the church service Mrs. Leon W. Brown, with harp acompaniment, sang All The Way My Saviour Leads Me, and Jesus, Son of God. The bearers were Edward Bennett, James Moran, Otis Edwards, John Doloff, Benjamin Reynolds and Edgar Reynolds. Burial was in Westfield cemetery. A. F. Wood was the funeral director.

December maintained until the very last minute its evident intention to make a record of being a month almost absolutely free from snow. The record, believed to be unapproached for many years, was three and a half inches for the entire period—and the snow was really sleet.

Max Bretschneider, with the Rock Island railroad's engineering department and stationed at Horton, Kan., is sending holiday cards to friends here from Dallas and Fort Worth, Texas, where he has been spending the Christmas-New Year season. Mr. Bretschneider, a graduate of Northeastern university, at Boston, is the son of Mr. and Mrs Arndt Bretschneider, of Mechanic street.

The motorists were very good today as to not trying to operate their cars with 1927 numbers. Chief John McFarland said that he was called upon to warn only one man running a car with the 1927 markers, and this man, on a hurried trip, had the 1928 markers for his machine on the seat beside him.

At all the masses at St. James' church this morning Rev. Antheleme Mollard, M. S., announced the reopening of the parochial school Tuesday morning for the winter term.

Mr. and Mrs. Alphonse Ollette and members of their family are spending the New Year season with Mrs. Ollette's mother, Mrs. Zoe Lacombe of Water street.

Benjamin Weisberg of New York has been spending a few days with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. Weisberg, of Academy street.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Getty of Boston arrived here this afternoon for a visit with Mrs. Eloi Getty.

Mr. and Mrs. Edison Cooper of Moosup ston were guests today of Mrs. Sarah Penfield of Bried street.

Many an automobile in Danielson was out of service today because of too great delay in trying to get new registrations on the part of the owners, and driving with old numbers was not countenanced.

Quaker Hill Community House and Fire Station

The village of Quaker Hill is to have a combined fire station and community house added to its community equipment in the spring, actual construction work having already been considerably advanced on the two story building which will serve the double purpose. The building will be jointly owned by the fire company and the Good Cheer Sunshine society of Quaker Hill.

The lower floor of the structure, which will be 75x40 feet, will be arranged for use by the fire company, with space for the fire engine, company quarters, kitchen, pantry, etc., and space set aside for the heating plant for the building. The second floor will be laid out so as to provide for a large auditorium, with quarters for the Sunshine society, including space and equipment for preparation and serving of banquets, etc. In addition to rooms for society purposes.

The foundation has been completed and the filling which will serve as a foundation for the cement floor of the engine space is already in place, and the steel work for carrying the second floor load supported on each side by concrete pillars is also completed. The open winter has favored the contractor in pushing the work along and with the roof on he will be able to carry the interior work along regardless of the weather.

Subscriptions from residents of the Quaker Hill section of Waterford and a general contribution from the treasury of the Good Cheer Sunshine society are taking care of the financial side of the proposition, and contributions continue to pour into the fire company's treasury so that the financial prospects are regarded as very satisfactory. The undertaking has been sponsored by a committee of the fire company, which consists of William L. Lanphere, chairman, Andrew F. Smith, Benjamin Hoy and Alfred Bitters.

Today will be held the annual Tournament of Roses, with which Pasadena welcomes the New Year.

LOOKING BACK AND AHEAD

Once again through its annual survey of conditions in eastern Connecticut relating to business, industry, construction and banking, The Bulletin in today's issue presents much food for thought.

According to the turnover for the year New London and Windham counties did a greater volume of business during the 12 months of 1927 than they did during 1926. Activities were nevertheless spotty. Industrial activities were up and down but the condition was generally reflected in the figures which show a decrease both in wages and volume of business. Uncertainties, industrial changes and short time all played their part in these results.

It was in banking that the big increase was evidenced and it was the large turnover in the Norwich institutions that made it possible for the survey et disclose an aggregate gain for the year 1927. Attention cannot fail to be directed also to the fact that the savings banks show an appreciable gain, amounting to more than $3,000,000 for the two counties, while a pointer which is not to be disregarded is the gain in postal receipts for the year just ended.

Eastern Connecticut has been and still is feeling the effects of the uncertainty in the cotton mill industry in New England. The great need is for the replacement of such industries as have moved or closed with something different and the utilization of the available industrial plants throughout the two counties. Steps in this direction have been taken, others are under way and it is to be hoped that they will be successful beyond expectation. The advantages for the manufacturer and the transportation facilities which this end of the state affords remain as conspicuous as ever, and it is only a question of time before they are going to be recognized and employed to the benefit of those directly concerned as well as eastern Connecticut in general.

During the new year Norwich can anticipate the benefits that will come through the deepening of the Thames river channel, the development of certain new industries and the two counties should feel the effect of the employment of the various opportunities for cheap power now available as an important industrial attraction. With general conditions basically sound we can look forward to sharing in the anticipated good business for 1928.

A WISE DEMAND

Whenever aviators are lost at sea it is the navy department that is at once sought to render assistance. It is a logical thing to do. The navy has ships and men, it also has other equipment that can be employed in a search for the missing and it is usually possible for some of this equipment, seaplanes or ships to be found available for immediate response.

But there isn't much satisfaction in starting a search when there is no idea where the lost may be, when no definite course has been disclosed and when a search under such conditions means not much different than looking for a needle in a haystack. So indefinite was the plan of the quartette in the Dawn that some entertained the belief for a while after their disappearance that they had attempted a flight across the Atlantic. There was no more to work on after it was established through the elapse of time that they were lost than there was in the case of those two French aviators who set out for this side of the Atlantic and were never heard from. Much searching was done about Canada but there was never any evidence that they even reached midocean.

Instead of starting out on a wild goose chase hereafter for those aviators who may experience trouble the navy department gives notice that it will draw the line at searching unless it is provided with an official routing. This would indicate where a search should be made and would not only save much time and expense on the part of the searchers but would greatly improve the chances of locating fliers who have been forced down provided there is any chance at all remaining.

It probably will never be possible to prevent those aviators who want to from taking such risks as really endanger their lives. Some would set out even if they knew no one would be available to effect a rescue in case that became necessary. Whatever restraint is possible should be brought to bear upon the foolhardy, and the insistence upon all information possible from aviators before their start as to where they are going to fly is well within the bounds of reason.

CUBA PLAYS TRUMPS

Opinions may vary as to what should be done in regard to the threat that has been made by Cuba relative to the termination of the new postal convention between the two countries, but there's no question but what it deserves early and careful consideration in order that the merits of the matter may be brought to light.

This country has a law over 60 years old which prohibits the importation of cigars in small quantities. It is a law that was intended to give protection to the makers of cigars in the United States since it was regarded as a means of preventing the dodging of the tariff thereon. Under the proposed change in the law it is pointed out that the effect of the tariff would not be lost, that the same protection would be insured and Cuba would not be deprived of mail facilities as is now the case.

From such methods as Cuba has tried in the past it has not gotten much satisfaction. Now it proposes to do something more effective. If it cannot get free from the unpleasant restrictions it is going to throw overboard a postal arrangement that would work to the disadvantage of many in this country who carry on a large parcel post business with Cuba.

Not only would it put such restrictions upon American firms but it would open the field to those of other countries.

The need seemingly exists to find out the truth of the whole situation. If there is an injustice being done through the barring of small quantities of cigars from Cuba it ought to be corrected. It is a matter upon which President Coolidge urged that action be taken. Cuba has apparently gotten tired of inattention and it cannot be blamed.

There remain two months before the limit expires. It is a busy session, much business is waiting, some of it of the greatest importance, but there ought to be time to crowd in a decision on this matter. Either the change should be acted upon or a good and sufficient excuse for maintaining the present law should be forthcoming.

MEETING OLD AGE

For the purpose of determining the number of persons over the age of 65 who are dependent upon community aid or relatives for their living, surveys have been made by the National Civic federation which shows in the eastern part of the country the number runs from 20 to 25 per cent. In other parts of the country the percentage is not so high.

These surveys are interesting in connection with efforts for placing the aged on pensions, for they indicate those who have made provision for themselves when they get beyond the age of [illegible] and those who have not.

It concerns a situation which has to be considered and it is well that it should be looked at in the proper light and from all angles. It may well be considered whether the 20 to 25 per cent is larger than it should be, and whether it doesn't lie largely within the power of such people to correct the situation themselves.

It is unfortunate and undesirable that there should be so many who are dependent upon others. Where does the fault lie? Couldn't it have been avoided? The history of the various cases would reveal much of interest in this relation.

Again it is well to determine whether it is a desirable thing to lend encouragement to those conditions, or whether it is preferable to so teach that percentage that they will display a greater interest in making provision for themselves. Will there be a greater incentive for dependency by encouraging indolence or by discouraging it? Will the old age pension idea result in an increase or a decrease of the dependents?

FEDERAL TAX REFUNDS

Most people regard the federal tax refund of $104,000,000 as a nice snug sum. It will even permit of a distribution in interesting amounts for many people. It represents taxes which have been collected by the government in excess of what was justified under the law. A large variety of questions are invariably involved. Where differences of opinion arise in regard to the interpretation of taxation laws, exemptions and the like it is the practice of the government to collect and then get a ruling or test out the decisions bearing on such points.

Revenue laws have been simplified for the purpose of putting an end to so many cases of overtaxation, and it is to be noted that there is a decrease by $75,000,000 from the taxes refunded the previous year. Efforts have also been made for the purpose of restricting the authority to refund, in the belief that the avenue should be so narrowed that advantage would not be taken of the authority.

Suddenly plunging into such a tremendous tax collecting business as this country did made it inevitable that there would be need for many adjustments. That was particularly true because of the many complications which featured the tax laws. In view of the huge sums which the government collected even now, with taxes eliminated and others cut, it is by no means a large sum that is involved in the tax refund for 1927. Federal taxes promise to be even smaller at some not distant date, but when or whether that desirable change comes the dwindling in the tax refunds is a good sign, and there seems to be good reason for expecting its continuance. Perfection in such operations, quite the same as in others, comes through practice.

WOMAN IN LIFE AND IN THE KITCHEN

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

Soak iron rust spots in rice water.

Old muslin curtains made nice squares to wrap around the cleansed celery or lettuce.

Sauces for fish usually are poured over it just before serving.

Stocking will last much longer if washed after each wearing.

Diced bacon may be added to string beans to flavor them.

Gold or silver embroideries will not tarnish if wrapped in black paper.

To keep napkins fresh place them in a roomy envelope case.

Try apple sauce and gingerbread for dessert occasionally.

Going over the surface with fine sandpaper will renew an old felt hat.

Cereal with dates is a good breakfast dish.

A cake filling may be made of a quarter cup of grated maple sugar and a cup of whipped cream.

If you will add some macaroon flour or a few broken macaroons to the bread scraps your bread pudding will be 100 per cent more tasty.

A blotter placed over the grease spot on the wall and a warm iron passed over it will usually cause the mark to vanish.

As a pound of print butter measures exactly two cups, the easiest way to measure one is to cut the print in two.

Discolored and blackened aluminum pots and pans will brighten wonderfully if rubbed with a cloth dipped in lemon juice.

If you want crisp pie crust, try adding a quarter teaspoonful each of vinegar and olive oil to the ice water you wix the pastry with.

Baked on the half shell, sweet potatoes become delicious. Use cream, butter, seasoning, and beat insides until light before refilling shells.

Keep a large peach basket in your kitchen to hold waste paper. It is very light and may be easily carried when you wish to dispose of the paper.

UTILITY BOXES

A place for everything and everything in its place is the motto of the girl who treats herself to a set of boxes covered with a quaint paper and painted pink inside. One large box has compartments for eight pairs of shoes, another is for stockings or gloves, and there are a scrap basket and an adorable hexagon-shaped hat box.

STOP LEAKS

Enamel the refrigerator pan that leaks a little. Give it a coat both outside and in and when that dries give it another. All leakiness will disappear and it will be easy to keep it clean. Small soldering outfits may be bought very cheap to keep small holes in tin pots and pans soldered and save repair bills.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY

Doughnuts and gingerbread are good winter sweets, when the body needs plenty of energy food.

When preparing food for baby, keep stirring the food until cool after removing from the fire. This will prevent skin from forming on top and the full nourishment will be retained.

When applying a salve to the scalp one should try to avoid smearing it on the hair. Divide the hair into small sections and carefully rub a little of the ointment along the partings. Now massage the scalp.

The only way to remove the bagginess under your chin is by the right kind of massage persistently followed. After you have cleansed the neck, pat on a little vaseline or cold cream to lubricate the massage and then lie down in a comfortable position and start the treatment. Use the heel of your hand and rub your chin and throat with a gentle but firm rotary motion. The jurpose of the massage is to stir up the circulation and make the muscles firm and supple.

ENLARGING THE SMALL ROOM

Light walls and woodwork.

Avoid the use of to much furniutre and too heavy draperies.

Cocoa in a Juffy.

If you use a great deal of cocoa and sometimes are called upon to make it in a hurry, why not make a quart of chocolate sirup and keep it on ice in a bottle? When cocoa is desired, one teaspoon of sirup to a cup of hot milk will make the cocoa in a jiffy.

CHILD'S QUILT

An attractive covering for a quilt for a child's bed is composed of pages cut from three or four linen fastcolor story books, alternating the squares with blocks of plain white or cream-colored linen. It will always be fascinating to the youngster who owns it.

EASIER ON THE EYES

When learning any intricate pattern of Irish crochet, practice with a large needle and fine wrapping string. You can then save this for a pattern and will have no trouble copying it again at some future time.

HIKING SHOES

To make a comfortable pair of shoes waterproof for outdoor use, melt together a dressing of two parts of beeswax to one part of mutton fat. Apply at night and in the morning wipe well with a piece of flannel.

STAR SHAPED LAMP SHADES

The star is one of the most popular motifs in modern decoration, and deservedly so. A beautiful lamp seen recently was made of Venetian glass of a deep blue, with a parchment shade made in a star shape and trimmed with deep blue stars.

DICTATES OF FASHION

Transparent velvets have proved a great success and are to be had at popular prices.

A rose pink crepe georgette dinner gown has a bolero and two tiers of the georgette trimmed intricately with pearls.

Red registers high in favor of headgear. Small felts, velvets, velours and satin run from scarlet to deep, rich, purple reds.

Jeweled belt buckles or hip ornaments, together with earrings and necklaces of matching gems form new evening jewelry sets.

A Nile green crepe blouse has a tucked tailored vest and upstanding collar piped with silver and decorated with tiny silver buttons.

Shell pink has a renaissance in popularity for evening gowns. A chiffon gown has silver and pearls for trimming and a red rose decoration.

The cardigan ensemble has become almost a uniform with smart women. In its newest version it appears with a coat and skirt knitted to suggest tweed and a striped two-toned sweater.

The latest advices from Biarritz, which is always worth watching for data on sports clothes, is that silks instead of wools are the vogue, and that men's shirtings are exceedingly smart.

The present designs for lingerie employ the right angle and straight line almost exclusively. Tops, hems and arm holes are square and straight even though they may be elaborately decorated with lace or embroidery.

NEW DANCE FROCKS

The new dance frocks are what they term "bouffant." That is, the skirts are full and flaring, while the bodice is very low-waisted and semi-fitting. In fact, the skirt in reality is on a yoke which fits tightly about the hips, and which comes down in a point longer in front than in the back. Crepe, georgette and satin are the materials used.

THE ALL BLACK COSTUME

Nothing quite takes the place of the all black costume in the wardrobe of the woman of fashion, and this season all black is particularly smart. A woman seen recently at tea at one of the hotels was dressed in a black satin frock relieved only by the inevitable long string of pearls. Over this was worn a coat of black velvet with a cape of the same. The cape had no collar.

WHITE ORGANDY FOR BEDROOM

The revival of flowered wallpapers for bedrooms has brought about an added interest in organdy draperies, as they form such a delightful contrast. With a white paper covered with a trellis of ivy leaves nothing could be nicer than a bedspread and curtains of white ruffled organdy.

SEWING SUGGESTIONS

Old silk hose if cut open and sewed together make soft dust cloths for fine furniture.

A small rug of any kind which is beginning to wear will last for years if lined with heavy overall ducking and titched firmly.

If boys' or men's shirts become worn at the collar, rip the front of the shirt, cut out the worn part, fit collar band onto front again and stitch up. It will be like anew shirt.

The buttons on a woolen or knitted coat sometimes tear away from the fabric, leaving a bad hole. To prevent this, place a linen button of equal size at the back when sewing on the pearl or horn button. Sew right through, thus fastening both buttons with the same stitch.

Old bath towels are easily converted into pan lifter, if cut in small squares and given a neat covering of bright gingham or chintz. To the corner may be sewed a snap from a child's supporter or a brass ring and the lifter hung on a screw hook near the range. These launder very nicely.

FOR THE HOME WORKER

If you are making your own cushions remember to include one or two triangular shapes. If finished with a heavy tassel on the one point they are immediately fanshape and very attractive. Kapoc is the cheapest of fillings, but down the more lasting. Real eiderdown is prohibitive, but goose down is a good working substitute. Buy down-proof ticking for the under cases, or failing that, be sure to coat the inner esurface with soap or beeswax to prevent the feathers working through. Make the inner case the exact size of the cover and stuff it tightly. An insufficiently filled case very quickly goes limp and flat at the corners.

If your stuffing feels slightly damp when it comes from the shop, air it near the fire before use, shaking continuously, till the lumps have dried out.

SMART WASTEBASKETS

There are many new ideas in wastebaskets. Here is one suggested by Needlecraft Magazine: "Cover the outside of a wire waste basket with black oilcloth and line inside with red oilcloth. Attach two glass bracelets to the sides for handles. The bracelets should preferably be green or red. This makes a simple but smart-appearing basket for living room, sunroom or porch."

WATER STAINS

Water stains on mahogany may be cleaned if done at once. If it has been on long enough to cause a white spot it can be removed if rubbed with a soft cloth and a little polish. The spot will eat into the finish if allowed to remain, and the table top will need refinishing. Avoidance of unnecessary spotting by asbestos mats under vases of flowers is the best prevention.

CONCERNING WOMEN

In Japan only widows and those intending to enter convents cut their hair short.

Mme. Nemchinova, Russian ballerina, carries insurance on her legs to the omunt of $100,000.

The little town of Urbandale, Mo., has a population of 35, but it is governed entirely by women.

This year 122 women are members of 34 state legislatures, and four women will sit in the 70th congress.

Mrs. Charles D. Walcott is a member of the United States Board of Indian commissioners.

Mrs. Sophia Bronsveld-Vitringa, the first woman member of the Dutch parliament, has entered a convent.

Miss Elsie R. Cannon of Washington, D. C., has just been appointed a commissioner of the United States court of claims.

AN IMPROVED DUSTPAN

Bend the hollow tin handle of the dustpan to a right angle with the pan and insert a discarded broom handle. It avoids much stooping.

SUGAR FOR TEA

Rub the cube sugar over an orange until it absorbs some of the juice and use this sugar when you serve tea later in the day. It will impart a delicious flavor.

RECIPES

Cranberry Raisins and Honey Jam—4 cups cranberries, 1 cup seeded raisins, 1 cup honey, few grains salt.

Chop cranberries and raisins together, saving all the juice. Cook with honey and salt over very slow fire until it thickens, and pour into sterilized glasses. Stir often; it must not separate.

Cranberry Mold—4 cups cranberries, 2 cups water, 2 cups granulated sugar.

Boil cranberries with water until berries stop popping. Strain through fine sieve; add sugar and str; then boil rapidly for 8 to 10 minutes—or until a drop jells on a cold plate. Turn at once into a wet mold and cool.

YOUR HEALTH

SPUTUM BORNE DISEASE AND PERSONAL HYGIENE.

By F. A. Long, M. D., Madison, Neb. Member Gorgas Memorial.

Hygiene is the science of health. The word is derived from Hygiea, the daughter of Hippocrates, the father of medicine. The subject is a large one and even the topic, personal hygiene, is too large for discussion in limited space. It is desired to call your attention to heating and ventilation in relation to sputum-borne diseases and personal hygiene.

We have known for a long time that certain diseases affecting the nose and throat, the mouth and lungs, are contagious and that they are carried to other persons living in close contact, as in the same room, and more directly by inhaling, in breathing the breath exhaled or floating droplets of secretions coughed and spat out by the person or persons so affected.

We have found out during recent years that some persons having had a disease such as diphtheria or scarlet fever, although they have recovered from the physical effects of the disease, harbor the germs of the disease in the tonsils, or in accessory sinuses. What are accessory sinuses? Hollow spaces on the bones of the cheeks and the inferior portion of the skull, lined with mucus membrane and communicating with the nasal passages.

The bran-like scales or persons recovering from a disease such as scarlet fever, contrary to an age-old belief, are not such a great menace; but the danger from a person having had the disease to another person coming in contact with him is that the convalescent person is, or may be, a disease carrier, that he may harbor the germs in the accessory sinuses, the nasal mucus membrane, or in the crypts of the tonsils, and that these germs may be and are discharged into the surrounding air, either by sneezing, coughing, or hawking, or indeed by ordinary breathing and in this way are a menace and a danger.

If germs are diluted with an abundance of fresh air, they largely lose their virulence, or their dangerous properties, for fresh air is one of the greatest antiseptics we have.

It therefore follows that we must have an abundance of fresh air in the schoolroom, in the home, in the bedroom, at all times.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Samuel E. Parr, who has been honored with the presidency of the American Chemical society, is professor emeritus of industrial chemistry of the University of Illinois, with which institution he has been connected for almost 40 years. His achievements in his chosen field have made his name known in Europe as well as America. He devised the Parr calorimeter for determining the heat value of coal and other hydro-carbons, which is widely used throughout America and Europe; also a new type of calorimeter for determining the heat value of combustible gases. Professor Parr is a native of Illinois. After receiving degrees from the University of Illinois and Cornell university he went abroad to complete his studies at the University of Berlin. Upon his return he began his professional career as an instructor in general science at Illinois college.

Why You Should Do Business With a Member of the Norwich Real Estate Board

The Norwich Real Estate Board was organized to promote the real estate interests of Norwich and vicinity, to facilitate the business of buying, selling, and renting real estate, and to encourage close and friendly cooperation of owners, agents and customers.

Membership in the Board requires honesty, efficiency and fairness in all dealings of members with owners and purchasers, and guarantees to you experience and judgment.

Unbusiness-like methods and unethical dealings are not countenanced by the Board, and any person deeming himself unfairly treated by or through any member of the Board may lodge a complaint which will receive prompt and careful investigation.

A REALTOR

"Realtor" is the name adopted by the National Association of Real Estate Boards as describing a member of any one of the more than five hundred Boards in the country that are affiliated with the National Association, and have subscribed to the Association's "Code of Ethics." The Courts have upheld the claim that this title cannot be used by anyone who is not a member of such a Board. Therefore, this term, used instead of "Real Estate Agent" is becoming increasingly known throughout the country as a synonym for the correct methods of transacting the real estate business

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

Johnny Chuck's Closed Door.

I close my door and shut it tight
And sleep the whole long winter night.
—Johnny Chuck.

Peter Rabbit kicked up his heels, said goodby to Whitefoot the Wood Mouse, scampered along the foot of the old stonewall and finally disappeared down underneath it in a certain hole he had used very often. There he felt perfectly safe from Reddy Fox. That hole was too small for Reddy to get in and the stones were so placed that Reddy couldn't dig the hole and larger. Peter could s' inside and laugh at Reddy. He had done this very thing more than once.

Now, as he sat there, Peter was thinking of what Whitefoot had told him about the home of Striped Chipmunk, where no one except Shadow the Weasel could possibly get to him while he slept.

"This sleeping in winter is a queer thing," said Peter to himself. "I never would be able to go to sleep with any degree of comfort, knowing that Shadow the Weasel might find me. No, sir, I never would be able to go to sleep with any degree of comfort. Of course, Jimmy Skunk is so big that he hasn't got to worry. But if I were in Striped Chipmunk's place I should worry all the time. This matter of sleeping reminds me that I haven't been over to Johnny Chuck's house in some time. I wonder if he has closed his door this winter the way he did lastwinter. When I get out of here I'll run over and see."

A few moments later Peter heard the merry voice of Tommy Tit the Chickadee. "Come on out!" called Tommy Tit. "Reddy didn't come ever here at all. He is on his way to the Green Forest this very minute."

Now Peter knew that Tommy Tit was to be trusted. Tommy Tit is one of the most honest little people in all of the out-of-doors. So Peter promptly poked his head out, looked around and then scampered out. Sure enough, he could see a spot of red away over toward the Green Forest. He knew that that must be Reddy Fox. "Thanks, Tommy," said he. "I was just wishing it were safe for me to do a little errand," Peter at once started off. "Hold on!" cried Tommy Tit. "Where are you going in such a hurry, Peter?"

Before Tommy could say another word Peter was off. Away he ran, lippety-lippety-lip, as fast as his legs could take him. Straight over to Johnny Chuck's house scampered Peter. There were tracks in the snow around Johnny Chuck's doorway. It was plain to Peter that Reddy Fox had been there, Black Pussy the Cat had been there, Bowser the Hound had been there and Jimmy Skunk had been there. And Peter chuckled when he saw all those footprints. "My!" said he "Johnny Chuck is popular. He has been holding a regular reception and probably without knowing it. It must be a very comfortable feeling to know that an enemy cannot get you. Well, here goes to find out if that door is closed."

"Hold on!" cried Tommy Tit. "Where are you going in such a hurry, Peter?"

Peter entered ohnny Chuck's doorway and crept down the long hall about the length of his own body. That was as far as he could go. Johnny Chuck's door was closed. There was nothing to show that that hall ever had been any longer. It was just as if Johnny had started to dig a hole and then given it up. But Peter knew better than this. He knew that away down under ground Johnny Chuck was sound asleep. Perhaps Polly Chuck was with him. Whether she was or not, he knew that Johnny was there, and he knew that Johnny had closed that door by packing in sand from inside. Peter's curosity was satisfied. "What a sensible thing to do," said Peter, as he started back to the Old Orchard.

INFORMATION SERVICE FOR WOMEN VOTERS

The League of Women Voters and the National Broadcasting Co., are inaugurating an experiment in the educational use of the radio, which promises to be of unusual interest to the public. It will consist of a series of talks, interviews, discussions, etc., to run from January to November, 1928, and designed to supplement what the voter gets from partison sources and to give unpartisan information and historical background which will be helpful in forming intelligent judgments on the issues of the campaign.

These talks are expected to come on Tuesday evenings at seven o'clock. The programs for the first on January 3 and the second on January 10 have already been announced by the National Broadcasting Co. Notices of the service have ben sent all presidents of local leagues in Connecticut by Miss Mary Bulkeley, president of the Connecticut League of Women Voters.

In commenting on the service Miss Bulkey said, "No series of talks over the radio can of themselves constitute political education. Such education must come from a wide variety of sources. The purposes of the voters' service are stated as follows by the national committee, of which Miss Katharine Ludington of Lyme is chairman:

"To reuse voters to a more responsible attitude toward government and the campaign more than a sporting event. To direct listeners' attention to the important issues of the campaign and to treat issues on their merits and not from the standpoint of campaign strategy. To stimulate thought and curiosity so that listeners may seek further information from other sources."

K. OF C. INSURANCE DIVISION IS IN HEALTHY CONDITION

That the insurance division of the Knights of Columbus is in a strong financial condition, is the conclusion of Insurance Commissioner Howard P. Dunham, who has released the report of the regular triennial examination of the society made by the Connecticut insurance department. The examination was made under the supervision of Assistant Actuary Hartwell L. Hall.

The Knights of Columbus is one of the great fraternal societies of the country. The report states that on September1, 1927, it had an insurance membership of 238,607, carrying insurance of $264,449,067.33. In addition it had a social membership of 441,773. The society was organized in 1882 at New Haven, Conn., and its principal office is still maintained there.

The admitted assets of the society on December 31, 1926, amounted to $24,850,005.63. Mortuary assessments collected during the year were $2,672,872.95 and the expense dues amounted to $961,470.39. Death claims paid totaled $1,761,000.00.

A reserve valuation made by the Connecticut insurance department showed the ratio of assets to liabilities to be 132.74 per cent. The ratio of actual to expected mortality has been consistently favorable, being 77 per cent in 1926. The average rate of interest earned during 1926 was 4.8 per cent.

The report states that the society voted to grant old age benefit concessions effective January 1, 1927 to members on the level rate plans. The value of this concession amounted to approximately $835,000.

The amount of insurance in force on December 31, 1926 was $259,211,374.33 of which $234,828,000 was on the five year step rate plan, $14,456,000 on the 15 payment life plan and $7,544,000 on the ordinary life plan. The maximum amount written by the society is $5,000.

Of a New London young man whose mother was Mary E. OBITUARY

Frederick B. Lewis

Frederick B. Lewis, 61, treasurer of the C. F. Noyes Co., of New York city, died suddenly Sunday morning at his home, 165 Woodland avenue, New Rochelle, suffering an attack of heart disease shortly after he had arisen at 7:30. Mr. Lewis was in good spirits when he arose, but he returned to bed when the heart attack came on and he passed away at 7:45.

Mr. Lewis was born in this city, the son of James S. and Elizabeth Bill Lewis, and the early years of his life were spent here. He was a Bulletin newsboy and assistant mailing clerk for the Bulletin and had also been clerk in the insurance office of his cousin, John F. Parker, before going to New York about 35 years ago. There he entered the real estate business and later became affiliated with the Noyes company, one of the leaders in the field, and of which he was treasurer at the time of his death.

Besides his wife, he is survived by a son, David, 21, who is in the engineering force of the Erie railroad, located outside of New York; a daughter, Marion, and a brother, Robert, who is traveling in the west and was in El Paso, Texas, at Christmas time.

The body is to be brought here for burial after funeral services are held at the church in Pelham which will be deferred until his brother can reach New York from the west.

Samuel Baldwin

Samuel Baldwin of Plainfield, for six years overseer in the weaving department of the Lawton Mills, Plainfield, died Sunday morning in Norwich following an illness of five weeks. He was well and favorable known in eastern Connecticut, having resided in Baltic, Occum, Goodyear and for the past six years in Plainfield.

Mr. Baldwin was born in Blackburn, England, April 27, 1867 and came to this country when a young man. He was married about 32 years ago in Lisbon and is survived by his widow, four children, Mary, Harry and Edna of Pilanfield and Lawrence of Fishers Island. Mr. Baldwin also leaves three brothers, William of Baltic, Joseph of Los Angeles and John of England.

He was a member of Shetucket lodge, No. 27, I. O. O. F., of Norwich and of Mt. Vernon lodge, No. 75, F. and A. M., of Jewett City. He was a member of the Plainfield Congregational church.

Mrs. Arthur J. Dawley

Following an illness of a week with pneumonia, although in failing health for a number of years, Eugenia Ann McLean, 84, widow of Arthur J. Dawley, died at 3:45 o'clock Saturday afternoon at her home, No. 87 Broad street, Norwich.

Mrs. Dawley was the daughter of Obed P. and Charlotte A. Ladd McLean and was born in South Glastonbury, Conn., but for the greater part of her life she had resided in Norwich. She was educated in the public schools of South Glastonbury, in which town for a number of years she taught school. She was united in marriage with Arthur J. Dawley in South Glastonbury, Sept. 12, 1877. Her husband's death occurred in Norwich Jan. 18, 1915. Mr. Dawley was a member of the well known lumber firm of H. F. & A. J. Dawley, of Norwich.

Surviving Mrs. Dawley are two sisters, Miss Mary McLean and Miss Helen McLean, both of East Hartford and a brother, James McLean, of Hartford. She was a member of the United Congregational church.

Mrs. Dawley was of very pleasing personality, a woman of generous impulses, who took great pleasure in aiding every worthy cause which came to her attention. Her liberal means enabled her to do much good in a quiet way and many wll learn of her death with recollections of her kindness and sympathy in times of sorrow or affliction. She was gentle and considerate to a marked degree, always amiable and agreeable as a neighbor, and a friend, and these characteristics remained with her to the end.

AMPLE WATER SUPPLY FOR MONTHS AHEAD

Due to enlargement of Connecticut reservoir and other water plant equipment in 1927 and previous years, and to abundant rainfall and cool summer weather, 1927 will be outstanding for the entire absence of water shortage in Connecticut, according to President Walter P. Schwabe of the Connecticut Water Works association in a review of the year in the water supply industry.

"The year 1927 will stand out as a year during which no shortage of water supply was experienced anywhere in the state," Mr. Schwabe said. "A cool summer and abundant rains have kept all reservoirs filled, assuring an ample supply for many months ahead.

"Betterments and improvements have been made in many works and a normal amount of main extensions and service connections were made. It is becoming more and more the practice of water works operators to use only the best of material and many companies and departments now use special cement lined pipes and brass pipe for connection to mains, to gain longer life and save replacement expense.

Inspection of public water supplies, particularly those of smaller communities, on the part of the bureau of sanitary engineering of the state of health, constantly tends to safeguard and improve the public water supplies of Connecticut. This supervision on the part of the state board of health is of material value in the maintenance and delivery of pure water to the communities of the state."

COUNTY 4H CLUB BOYS THIRD IN STATE CONTEST

Announcement was made Sunday by R. W. Whaples, New London county club leader, that this county's 4H club poultry judging team was placed third in the state contest at Durham, Ct. Boys from every county but one in the state competed.

There were 28 boys and girls in the contest. The four who ranked highest will go to the Madison Square garden to compete in the national poultry judging contest. The following is the standing of the county teams: Middlesex, Litchfield, New London, New Haven, Fairfield, Tolland and Windham.

Herbert Lowe of Montville was the highest man from this county and stood fifth in the state; Hollis Cummings of Lebanon was second and stood eighth in the state; Donald Cummings of Lebanon was third and stood sixteenth in the state; Ralph Gibbs of Yantic was fourth and stood twenty-third in the state. Herbert Lowe made the highest individual score on exhibition classes of any boy or girl in the state.

TAKES APPEAL FROM FIRE MARSHAL'S DECISION

An appeal from the decision of Fire Marshal Howard L. Stanton in refusing a permit to erect a building, 40x40, to be used for a blacksmith shop and general jobbing and repair shop on Talman street, easterly of Main street, at what is known as "the battlegrounds," has been filed with Selectman William S. Murray, chairman of the joint town and city zoning board, by Isaac Fishkin. The fire marshal refused the permit because the proposed location is in a class A (residential) district.

Mr. Fishkin states in his appeal that although the decision of the fire marshal is in acordance with the zoning ordinance, the enforcement of the ordinance would work an unreasonable hardship, in view of the already established nature of the locality where he desires to erect the building in question. The hearing on the appeal, it is expected, will take place the latter part of this week.

JUDGE RESERVES DECISION IN TWO DAMAGE SUITS

Decision was reserved by Judge Charles B. Waller in the court of common pleas Saturday in this city, in two damage suits tried jointly. The suits are those of Mrs. Catherine Reardon of this city against James E. McCusker of Jewett City for $500 damages and Fortune Cyr of Jewett City against the same defendant, for $500 damages. The suits were brought as the result of a three cornered accident, June 20, 1923, on the Norwich-Jewett City road, near the J. B. Martin Co., mill in Taftville.

The defendant was driving towards Jewett City. His machine, it is claimed in the complaint, struck Mr. Cyr's machine and Mrs. Reardon's machine which was being operated by Harold Reardon. Mr. Cyr's machine and Mrs. Reardon's machine were headed toward this city.

NORWICH POST OFFICE WILL BE CLOSED TODAY

PROSPEROUS YEAR IN CONN. ELECTRIC INDUSTRY

"Interconnection of electrical generating stations by means of high tension transmission lines has definitely proved its worth in 1927," according to President Samuel Ferguson of the Hartford Electric Light Co., chairman of the Connecticut committee on public service information, "plants in Connecticut having been of valuable assistance in emergencies not only to other plants within the state, but also to those in neighboring states."

Further reviewing the year, Mr. Ferguson says:

"1927 was a more prosperous year for the light and power companies of Connecticut than had been anticipated at the start because of the fact that the coal strike in Pennsylvania did not result in the high fuel prices which heretofore have accompanied all such disturbances. Also those companies with hydro-electric developments have been favored with exceptionally good water conditions, because instead of an oversupply in the spring and a deficiency later, this year the spring run-off was slow and distributed over a considerable period.

"The construction of high tension lines between the principal generating plants of the state has been continued so that at the end of the year there are relatively few communities that are wholly dependent upon any one generating statio nfor their supply of electricity. While these lines require the expenditure of large amounts of money, the gain to the communities which they connect in insurance against prolonged interruptions to service amply warrants the cost.

"Throughout the year the companies of the state have given much attention to the problem of increasing the usefulness of electric service in the home, and types of rates have been very generally introduced which make possible a much greater use of electricity in Connecticut's homes at greatly reduced costs as compared with anything that was thought to be posable a few years ago."

STREET RAILWAY SERVICE BETTER IN STATE

That street railway service has undergone improvement in 1927 and will continue to be bettered in 1928, is indicated in surveys by Lucius S. Storrs, former president of the Connecticut company and now managing director of the American Electric Railway association, and by President R. P. Stevens of the association. Indications for 1928 are good, the surveys show, because the industry is improving its service constantly and is merchandising intelligently.

These are outstanding 1927 accomplishments, according to Managing Director Storrs, service improvements and the coordination of major transit facilities, including rail cars and buses, under electric railway management. It has become increasingly apparent in 1927 that the electric rail car is the most economical vehicle for use in mass transportation; but the bus, under the same management as the trolley, has proved to be of important supplemental aid in a general transportation service. Coordinated under single management, the two vehicles give the best possible local transportation.

FUNERALS

Edgar Crawley

At 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon, the funeral of Edward Crawley of Montville was held at the parlors of Undertakers Church and Allen with many relatives and friends attending. The service was conducter by Rev. Charles Smith and burial took place in Comstock cemetery. The Masonic burial service was conducted at the grave by W. M. John Dodds and Trueman Keyes, chaplain, of Oxoboxo lodge, F. and A. M., of Montville. The bearers were R. C. Bolz, Benjamin Lamphere, George Thorpe, Jacob Jensen, Roscoe Dart and Frank Richards. The large attendance included a delegation from Oxoboxo lodge. There were many beautiful floral tributes.

Mrs. Ralph C. Sherman

The funeral of Mrs. Ralph C. Sherman of Gloster, R. I., who died Wednesday at St. Joseph's hospital, Providence, was held Saturday at the First Congregational church Chepacket, R. I.

Besides her husband and two children Mrs. Sherman is survived by her mother, Mrs. Nettie Robins of Canterbury, Conn., two sisters, Mrs. George Couch of Brooklyn, Conn., and Miss Viola Bennett of Canterbury, and a brother, Ellsworth Bennett, of West Glocester, R. I.

Mrs. Elmer Kinney

At noon Saturday, the body of Mrs. Elmer Kinney arrived in this city from Grand Rapids, Mich., where she died Thursday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. William Usborne. The funeral was held at the parlors of Undertaker C. A. Gager and the service was conducted by Rev. Joseph F. Cobb, of South Windham, formerly pastor of the Chruch of Good Shepherd, Universalist, of which church Mrs. Kinney was at one time a member. The burial was in Yantic cemetery, and Rev. Mr. Cobb conducted the committal service. The bearers were Leon Dix, Kenneth Culver, Elmer Hall, and Harry Hiscox. Many relatives and friends were present and there were a number of beautiful floral tributes.

Mrs. Sarah E. Risley Reavey

At 2:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon the funeral of Mrs. Sarah E. Risley Reavey was held at the home of her son, George A. Risley, No. 110 West Thames stret, with a large attendance of relatives and friends. Rev. Edward C. Dunbar, pastor of the First Baptist church, conducted the service. The burial took place in the family plot at Yantic cemetery, where Rev. Mr. Dunbar conducted the committal service. The bearers were George A. Risley, George A. Risley, Jr., Frank D. Davis and Fred S. Davis. Among the many mourners present were relatives and friends from Providence, Hartford, Westerly, Bellows Falls, Vt., and other places. There were many very beautiful floral tributes. Undertakers Church and Allen had charge of the funeral arrangements.

INCREASED USE OF GAS IN PAST YEAR

Increased use of gas for a growing number of purposes in Connecticut will develop in 1928, a general survey of the Connecticut gas industry by E. E. Eysenbach, president and general manager of the Hartford gas company indicates. "The year to come," he states, "will in my judgment, continue to witness an ever widening field for the use of gas in Connecticut, and more effort than ever will be made to give gas service to all outlying suburbs and communities wherever possible.

"Statistics gathered from all Connecticut gas companies show that the sales of gas for 1927 will show a substantial increase over the year 1926. This is all the more gratifying to our business in view of the fact that 1926 sales were unusually large on account of fuel shortage during the early part of the previous year.

"Greater sales efforts were made by all the companies during the year, especially on house heating and automatic water heater installations. Besides this, new industrial installations are being reported by a number of companies: Bake ovens, carbonizing furnaces, kilns, case hardening furnaces and many other kinds of equipment.

"The research work being carried on by the American Gas association has given an impetus to this class of business and Connecticut companies are all supporting the association in this work as well as the work being done by the appliance testing laboratory at Cleveland.

"Rate schedules were revised by several companies in the state during the year, generally along the lines of reducing the commodity charge and adding a demand charge. Such a schedule aids very materially in the obtaining of profitable business."

CIVIC PROJECTS GAINED IN NORWICH IN 1927

During the closing days of 1927 a glance backward shows us that there are three outstanding civic projects that have been brought to completion during 1927. The gates of the Deep River reservoir have been closed and it will soon be a beautiful lake winding back among the hills, more than doubling our present water shed, and also our storage capacity. At a small expense the height of the dam can be raised and the storage capacity doubled again. It is safe to say that Norwich will have plenty of water for generations to come. The appropriation for the reservoir and pipe line was $1,050,000, and the project was completed within the appropriation.

The rebuilding of Main street from Ferry street to Burnham square was completed in September. Although this did not look like a big job, it was a complicated one, as it also included the laying of new gas and water services to every building on the street, the rebuilding of the double track trolley line, and also the telephone manholes and ducts; the laying of the sheet asphalt on the cement base was done by contract. This was also completed within the appropriation and is probably the best piece of street in the city of Norwich.

The people who only know Hollyhock island as the worst looking spot in the city, the dump, would be well repaid by a visit to it now. A ball field, acres in extent, as level as a floor, awaiting only a coating of loam meets the eye. During last summer more than 50,000 people attended the ball games at the Academy campus, under the supervision of the recreation commission, and I think this athletic field will be a source of revenue to the city as well as pleasure to our people.

To the members of the court of common council, the various city officials, the heads of departments and employes, as well, the members of the police and fire departments, who have been so loyal to the city during the past six years; to the members of the press, who have been so courteous and so willing to do their part in our civic duties; in fact to each and every one of our people, I extend my very, very best wishes for a happy, prosperous New Year.

MILO R. WATERS,
Mayor of the city of Norwichh.

HOLIDAY ACTIVITIES OF BACKUS HOSPITAL ANXILIARY

In spite of the pressure of personal affairs during the holiday season of Thanksgiving and Christmas, the various departments of the Woman's auxiliary of the W. W. Backus hospital have faithfully carried on their work with gratifying results.

The membership committee report a gain of between 200 and 300 during the month with many still to be heard from.

A number of members have been added from the suburban districts of Baltic, Jewett City, East Great Plain, North Franklin and Yantic.

The literature committee has made its usual collections, many magazines having been contributed. Visitors during the weeks from November 27 to December 31st from St. Joseph's church, Central Baptist, Trinity Methodist, First Spiritual union and the Connecticut Council of Catholic Women have been most devoted in the performance of this duty, earning the gratitude of the auxiliary and the patients at the hospital.

On December 1 Mrs. Charles Nowasadko, Mrs. Joseph Rozanski, Mrs. Walter Krzesick and Miss Stella Staciciewicz, members of the Ladies' society of St. Joseph's church, visited the hospital with ice cream for the patients.

On Sunday, November 27, an enjoyable musical hour was provided by the choir of the Church of the Good Shepherd (Universalist) by some of the young people of the church. The program was arranged by Mrs. A. N. Foster.

Music on two Sunday afternoons was in charge of the Central Baptist church and Trinity Methodist church. One Sunday Comfort circle, King's Daughters, secured George A. Guile, violinist, and his sister, who greatly entertained the patients and nurses by a varied program of familiar selections.

A well arranged program of a high order of excellence was given on Monday, December 26, by the choirs of St. Patrick's and St. Mary's churches, under the auspices of the Connecticut Council of Catholic Women.

The committee in charge was Mrs. Thomas J. McVeigh, chairman, Mrs. James Purdon, Mrs. Roderick F. Sullivan, Mrs. Thomas J. O'Rourke, Mrs. Joseph F. Burns, Mrs. Frederick LaFontaine, Mrs. Louis Combies, Mrs. Carl Welte and Mrs. John R. Tarrant.

The Christmas carols as sung by the male chorus of St. Patrick's choir under the direction of Henry LaFontaine, were particularly enjoyed by the patients and staff. The double quartet from St. Mary's choir rendered, among other things, Agnus Dei, G. Bizet, With All Your Hearts, with recitative from Elijah, The Angel's Song, Mid-Winter's Snows, with solos by Edward T Connelly and Nicholas J. Spellman.

At Thanksgiving the holiday committee supplied chocolate turkeys, and at Christmas the holiday and flower committees combined forces to create an air of festivity by placing wreaths in the front windows and at the door, decorating corridors and reception room with laurel poinsettia and Christmas trees. Under the direction of Miss Jane Bill, assisted by Mrs. John Hall and Miss Mazie Caruthers, 29 gift boxes were prepared and presented to patients—their individual names adding a fine personal touch.

It goes without saying that gifts bestowed in such a spirit of good will, carried with them a large measure of happiness.

A turkey dinner with ice cream and cake was another event of the holiday celebration, made possible by the efforts of the donation committee—all the good things being given by the churches and friends to whom the auxiliary is deeply grateful.

Neither were the nurses forgotten. Their special gift—a radio was installed in time for the Christmas party, at which the doctors and their wives and the executive board were guests.

The night of the party, an ideal radio night, the program "came through" in a way to leave nothing to be desired, and dancing to music music was enjoyed until 12 o'clock.

A Christmas tree was a feature of the entertainment which, as is customary, was furnished by the preliminary students. On the Thursday after Christmas the student nurses gave a pretty informal dance for their friends.

The month has been very active at the school. The graduate staff has inaugurated staff meetings at which one of the nurses reads a paper. The first paper was presented by Miss Zeigler, theorectical instructor. The subject was, "The Value of Phychiatry to Nurses."

The student nurses are preparing a play to present in Slater hall, Friday, January 13, and preliminary students are giving a demonstration, January 4th, just before their acceptance into the school.

The committee on recreation for nurses of the Woman's auxiliary are sincerely interested in making the course as the school of nursing as pleasant as possible, and the February class for which applications are now being accepted will enjoy comforts and pleasures unknown to former classes.

This afternoon at the Y the celebrated All-Heller team of Willimantic plays the Academy Independents, really the Academy varsity while at Parish hall tonight the Taftville Crescents hook up with the Aetna Five of Hartford.

Crescents-Aetna

The Crescents intend to make an extra strong bid for their first win of the season this evening in facing the Aetna Five of Hartford. The Taftville team has lost its two starts, to Danielson Towners and All-Manchester but in this evening's engagement they plan to get onto the right side.

The Crescents have drilled long and hard for this game, regarding it as one of the most important of the season. With Normandin and Brown or Gauthier at the forwards, Harris and Griffin, Eccleston, Pingree and Coleman to pick from for the guards, the locals appear well fortified for the well-known insurance City club. Brown a newcomer should help the Crescents considerably.

There will be a fast preliminary game and dancing will follow the main attraction.

All-Heller-Academy

The All-Hellers will be making their second annual visit to the city in tackling the Red and White this evening. Last year they beat the local schoolboys by something like 50 to 19, showing all that had been predicted of them. They are five brothers of a Willimantic family and four of them are basketball candidates at college. They present a very interesting appearance on the court, for in addition to the unique fact of their being of the same family they have acquired teamwork four of eastern Connecticut's high band together at the holidays to campaign for about three weeks and although that is all the practice they get still they are good enough to make the best semi-pro teams in New England travel. Friday night they soundly whipped All-Rockville, one of the very few teams to hold a win over them. Rockville won by three points in 1926-27 but things were somewhat reversed last week. Saturday night the Hellers lost to Springfield Y. M. H. A., but before dropping this decision the Willimantic boys gave the strong City of Homes team some stiff competition, in fact they led them all through the first half.

The Academy, of course, will have its hands full to win tonight. However, no doubt the Red and White will be better this year than in its first season at the sport. The Independents will have four of last year's team ready. Capt. Jim Kelly and Buck LaCroix will go to the guards with Joe Viau at center and Les Pingree at a forward. The fifth position will probably be chosen from Dave Tigar, Red Fagan or Swatzburg.

The main game starts at 3 o'clock with a preliminary between the Alphas and Celtics, both of Norwich, starting at 2 p. m. The Alphas will have McCry, Brown, Fenton, Conklin, Lambert and others while the Celtics will use Gauthier, Griffin, Eccleston, Coleman, Burrelle, etc.

LOUGHRAN-LOMSKI FIGHT FEATURE FOR THIS WEEK

NEW YORK, Jan. 1—(AP)—Tommy Loughran of Philadelphia begins what he hopes to be an active defense of the world light heavyweight championship Friday night in Madison Square Garden against Leo Lomski of Aberdeen, Wash., over the 15-round trail.

Loughran, who acquired undisputed claim to the title by defeating Jimmy Slattery of Buffalo, previously the champion of the National Boxing association, a few weeks ago, declared he wanted to gain the distinction of being the undefeated king of the light heavies when he was ready to step into the heavyweight division.

"I do not wish to cheapen the championship of the 175-pound division, as at least one of my predecessors on the throne did by surrendering the title with the flimsy excuse that he could not make the weight," Loughran said today.

"This match with Lomski will be the most important one in my boxing life. If I should happen to lose this contest, it would shatter my dreams of some day stepping into a ring with Gene Tunney in a battle for the heavyweight championship."

The bout will be the third in less than three months in which Loughran has been a principal since he started campaigning for his present crown, which was voluntarily vacated by Jack Delaney of Bridgeport.

Loughran defeated the venerable Mike McTigue, the champion of the New York state athletic commission, on October 7 last, and then whipped Slattery to clinch sole possession of the 175-pound honors.

CALIFORNIA TURNS BACK PENNSYLVANIA THREAT, 27-13

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 1.—(AP)—A decisive 27-13 victory was the west's answer to the second eastern football challenge within a week.

By that score, California's Bears turned back University of Pennsylvania's Quakers in Berkeley, Saturday. Last Monday, West conquered East, 6-6, in the annual charity game at San Francisco. On both occasions, the eastern ridiron cohorts were favorites.

Some 30,000 persons braved cold and showery weather yesterday to see California upset the dope and run rampant through the big Penn eleven. The Blue and Gold team, functioning better than at any time during the regular season, smothered the famed aerial and ground attacks of the eastern eleven steadily and in a crushing fourth period offensive, drove over two touchdowns to break a 13-13 tie and pile up a commanding lead.

"Brick" Marcus, a red haired bespectacled halfback, who raced around the ends, crossed up the strong Penn line and knifed it for stunning gains was the central figure in California's closing rally. Coming into the game near the end of the period, Marcus lugged the ball ten times for a total of 105 yards to score both touchdowns. A minute after the last quarter got under way, Marcus, whose defective vision necessitates his wearing especially constructed glasses, reeled off a 55-yard run for a touchdown. It broke the tie and put the Bears in a lead that was never relinquished. Shortly after, Marcus went over the line again to give his Alma Mater an impressive total and its second triumph over Pennsylvania in three years. On January 1, 1925, the Bears trampled the Quakers under a 14-9 score.

Pennsylvania made its best showing yesterday in the second period when it ripped through the California line to score two touchdown and end the half with a 13-7 lead. The Bears tied the count in the third quarter.

SOUTHERN RACING PROGRAM OPENS AT NEW ORLEANS

NEW ORLEANS, La., Jan. 1—(AP)—A forty-four day racing meet opens at the fair grounds park here tomorrow with the New Year's Day handicap, the inaugural feature for a purse of $5,000 added.

The race is the fourth on the day's card and is to be run at a mile and a sixteenth for three year olds and up.

Among the outstanding entries in the handicap are Sea Rocket, C. R. Coyle's colt who equalled the record of 144 4-5 for a mile and one-sixteenth; Marconi, Mose Goldblatt's recent purchase from the Island Farm stable who recently won a sprint race and was third in the Christmas Day handicap, and Justic F. William Daniel's colt who finished second to Sea Rocketh in the same race. Almadel, owned by Al Price Headley and Safon and Gios, of the Green Tree stables, are other popular entries.

Among the innovations this year at the fair grounds are the rule sponsored by Col. E. R. Bradely barring use of the whip to apprentice riders; adoption of the Bradley starting gate, a device with individual stalls for starters, and installation at strategic points of electrically amplified loud speakers for important announcements. The track has been virtually rebuilt.

PITTSBURGH FAVORED TO WIN IN TODAY'S GAME

PASADENA, Calif., Jan. 1—(AP)—The Panther footbillers of Pittsburgh, rivals of Stanford's Cardinals in the East-West clash here tomorrow, sprang somewhat of a surprise here today when they were put through a brief workout on the Rose bowl turf instead of taking a day of rest.

Coach Jock Sutherland thought his players needed a final practice to put them on edge for tomorrow's 13th Tournament of Roses battle to polish off the rough edges in their play.

The sons of the Stanford Red on the other hand, spent the day in complete relaxation at their hotel waiting the call to battle. Coach "Pop" Warner reported them in perfect trim.

Dope tonight still favored the east to triumph in the annual classic which provides a colorful climax to the grid season, although the Cardinals, who are defending western gridiron honors for the third time in four years, were given an even break by many experts.

Past records reveal that Pittsburgh has made the better showing, going through the east schedule without tasting defeat while Stanford met with two reverses.

NABHOLZ TURNS IN BEST SCORE AT PALOS VERDES

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 1—(AP)—Larry Nabholz, of Cleveland, turned in the best card of early finishers in the first 18 holes of today's final 36-hole drive of the Palos Verdes open golf tournament when he toured the course in 69, three under par. It gave him a 64-hole aggregate of 214 strokes.

George Von Elm, former national amateur champion, was in second place with 218. Three were tied at the end of 64 holes with 220. They were Waldo Crowder, Lawrence, Kans., Bobby Cruickshank, New York, and Willie Hunter, Los Angeles, California open title holder.

TUNNEY TO RETIRE ONLY WHEN COUNTED OUT

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Jan. 1.—(AP)—The descending arm of a white clothed referee will be the only factor in ending the boxing career of Gene Tunney, heavyweight champion of the world.

So Tunney declared today in announcing a New Year's resolution as he walked down the fairway after a long and true drive on the Miami Beach Bay Shore Golf course.

"I will retire only when I'm unconscious," Gene asserted. "My career as a boxer shall end only then. This talk that I will retire when I make my million is quite without foundation."

Concluding his remarks, Tunney scoffed at reports that he would quit the ring soon saying "Show me another trade or profession where I could make a million a year. Perhaps that will settle the always interesting question of when a champion plans to retire."

BATTERY E WINS FROM RAINBOW FIVE

WESTERLY, Jan. 1.—At the armory on Dixon street New Year's eve the Battery E basketball team of the 243rd R. I. C. A. C., defeated the Rainbow Five of East Greenwich, R. I., by the score of 33 to 29. Right Forward Lamb for the Batterymen came through with a total of 16 points, Center Searles being a close second with 8 field goals and two foul baskets to his credit. For the visiting Rainbows, Shogren left forward, and Right Forward Enwright made the best showing for the Scallop Town players.

DEMPSEY AND MOVIE STARS TO BROADCAST TODAY

NEW YORK, Jan. 1—(AP)—Jack Dempsey and his wife, Estelle Taylor, along with a trio of other movie stars will face a microphone in Rose Bowl at Pasadena, Calif., on Monday afternoon, Jan. 2, at the annual Tournament of Roses, the National Broadcasting company announced today. They will speak over a national wide hook up of more than 50 radio stations which will broadcast the Stanford-University of Pittsburgh football game. John Gilbert, Colleen Moore and Leatrice Joy also will talk.

The three networks of the National Broadcasting company, the red, blue and Pacific coast division, are to be linked in the broadcast.

Death Takes Notables In Sporting World

NEW YORK, Dec. 12—Many men prominent in baseball, pugilism and other branches of sport and athletics passed away during the year now drawing to a close.

Among those claimed by the Grim Reaper were old time baseball stars whose performances on the diamond thrilled the fans of a decade or two ago.

Charlie Bennett, who died at his home in Detroit on Feb. 24, aged 66, was rated as king of the backstops in the 80s and was catcher on the only Detroit team that ever won the world's championship. Bennett was generally credited with being the first catcher to use the chest protector in the game.

Billy Gilbert, keystone of a brilliant New York Giant infield in the pennant-winning years of 1904 and 1905, died at his home in New York Aug. 8, aged 52.

Love Cross, one of the greatest third basemen in the history of baseball, dropped dead in Toledo on Sept. 6, aged 61. While at the height of his fame Cross played with the Philadelphia Americans.

Jerry Denny, a bright star in the early days of the National league, died at Houston, Aug. 16. Denny had played in the major league with the New York, Providence, St. Louis and Indianapolis teams. He was known as the player who never used a glove.

Other prominent figures in baseball who passed away during the year were Thomas T. Brown, a contemporary of "Pop" Anson and at one time manager of the Washington club; Michael J. Doyle, who played with the Philadelphia Nationals in the days of Spalding and Reach; Ross Young, Giant outfielder and considered by Manager McGraw to be one of the greatest players in the game; Danny Shay, who played with the New York Giants 20 years ago and later managed the Kansas City American association team; Otto Borchert, picturesque owner and president of the Milwaukee American Association club, and James E. Johnstone, well known as a major league umpire and inventor of baseball appliances.

Death claimed three of the most colorful figures in pugilism in 1927—"Tiger" Flowers, the taciturn negro "praying colonel," who had ruled the middleweight boxing ranks; William H. Rothwell (Young Corbett.) who won the featherweight championship from "Terrible Terry" McGovern in 1901 and lost it three years later to Jimmy Britt, and Freddie Welsh, who won the world's lightweight crown from Willie Ritchie in a furious 20-round battle in London in 1914. He lost the title to Benny Leonard in New York, May 23 1917. Young Griffo was another to answer the call.

Others lost to pugilism in 1927 were Aurelio Herrera, once a ring idol in the featherweight division; Spider Kelly, a famous lightweight fighter in his day; Elwood McCloskey, who held his own with the greatest featherweights in his day, but who had been blind for 25 years; Jimmy Delaney, of St. Paul, noted light heavyweight boxer.

Other figures in the sporting world who died were Walter J. Travis, the first American golfer to win the British amateur championship; Sybil Bauer, who held 23 world records among women swimmers; William C. Frost, noted athlete and president of the American Olympic committee; Tom Gallagher, widely known as a master billiard player; Pedro Maupome, the billiard champion of Mexico; James McLaughlin, famous old-time jockey, and G. H. ("Ham") Keene, the well known trainer for the Widener stables.

MACDONALD SMITH WINS PALOS VERDES TOURNEY

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 1.—(AP)—MacDonald Smith, Great Neck, Long Island, N. Y., stylist, turning in an aggregate card of 284 strokes for the 72 holes today won the $2,500 Palos Verdes open tournament from a field of national golfers.

Smith won after a bitter battle during the final 18 holes with Al Watrous, Grand Rapids, Mich., pro, and Fred Morrison, young Pasadena, Calif., golfer, with whom he was playing in a threesome. Smith's card for the tourney was 74-69-71-70—284.

The youthful "light horse" Harry Cooper trekked home with a card of 285 for second place honors while Watrous grabbed third with 286. Cooper's rounds were 70-74-70-71, and Watrous 69-74-69-74.

Champagne Captures Feature.

PARIS, Jan. 1.—(AP)—Champagne gave a sparkling performance at the Vincennes New Year's day races by capturing the feature race. The four-year-old filly trotted a mile and five furlongs in the record time of 3 minutes and 49 seconds. The previous record was 3 minutes and 51 seconds.

The stakes were worth 50,000 francs to the winner of seven starters. The track was very slushy with snow.

Industrial League Has Very Successful Year

Industrial athletics were introduced successfully to Norwich during the summer when a baseball league known as the Norwich Industrial leagued and sponsored by the Norwich Recreation commission operated for nearly three months at the Academy campus with games nightly, except Saturday and Sunday. Play started June 16 and ended Sept. 15.

The teams in the league were Richmond Radiator, Y. M. C. A., International Silver, Thomas Bottle, Werman Shoe, Cortecelli Silk, Atlantic Carton and J. B. Martin.

After an exciting but not so close race at the top of the standing the Richmond Radiator nine won the pennant, fighting off some determined thrusts in the closing games of the season. However, a lead they had provided for themselves in the middle of season was enough to carry them through unscathed. The Iron men took the lead in about the third week after the Y. M. C. A. and Insilcos had alternated at setting the pace and for ever after they were never headed.

Lloyd Jarvis, Academy star, led this club through to their successful season, his pitching, fielding and batting being the high lights of the Foundrymen's work. The champs had Bilinderman catching with Andy Kotch helping Jarvis out on the mound, Gerry Burke at first, Jack Savage at second, Gil Kampf at short and Bargnesi at third with Tim Coughlin in left. Manager Reed McCrum in center and Bill Kane and Doc Mara in right field.

Pete Tombarl's home run hitting was another feature of the season, the Y catcher getting four.

The Richmond-Insilco game, which drew over 4,000 to the campus to see Lloyd Jarvis and Johnny Greene pitch against each other may also be ranked in history as a headliner of the season.

William C. McKean was elected president of the league and he ruled with success. The eight teams prospered well under him and it was largely through him that things ran so well.

The city recreation commission, William J. Fitzgerald, chairman, which sponsored the league also comes in for much credit for their thoughtfulness at providing the Norwich fans with such wholesome yet spirited entertainment.

It is also to be hoped that this large will again operate in 1928 for the foundation of this year's project will make for even greater success.

BOXING FLOURISHES IN NORWICH DURING 1927

Boxing during 1927 in eastern Connecticut and especially in Norwich had its best year in a long time. Both ends of the game, pro and amateur, had above the average success during the year.

The Moose conducted the professional shows here at Olympic hall, opening in January and running about monthly until May when lack of facilities for outdoor bouts caused them to stop. Several leading fighters of New England appeared here and on the whole, some fast bouts were staged.

Meanwhile, the amateur end of the game was beginning to find a life. First, the Pastime A. C. conducted these shows on a small scale at Union hall in Greeneville during the spring months. The Duwell A. C. then picked it up and ran outdoor shows under A. A. U. sanction with great success during the late summer and early fall at their athletic field. The Pastime A. C. again took the promoting end when the indoor season arrived and since mid-fall they have been staging the amateur bouts at Olympic hall, running about semi-monthly.

New London had plenty of activity among the mitt-slingers, also in both the amateur and pro end of the game while Westerly and Jewett City had a short look at the game.

Tigers Hold Lead

BOSTON, Jan. 1.—(AP)—Leadership of the Canadian-American Hockey league will be at stake when the Boston Tigers and Springfield Indians clash here tomorrow night. The Tigers now hold first place over Springfield by a single point as a result of last week's games. New Haven ranks third, two games behind Springfield. The standing:

Team	Won	Lost	Tied	Pts
Boston	9	5	1	19
Springfield	8	5	2	18
New Haven	6	6	2	14
Providence	5	6	3	13
Philadelphia	5	7	1	11
Quebec	2	8	3	7

Academy Athletic Prospects Are Very Bright For 1928

While graduation continues to hew with abundance through the Academy sport squads still the outlook for the coming year is above the average. N. F. A. teams have been in the habit of losing regulars right and left during the last few campaigns but still winning teams come forth.

The baseball burden this year lies mainly on the capable shoulders of Captain Mace Goldblatt, catcher, and the two pitcher-outfielders, Johnny Greene and Lloyd Jarvis. These boys have written their names in bold and indelible letters across the book of Academy sport records during their stay at the school, each establishing records that will forever linger in the hearts and minds of true followers of the Red and White. It seems too bad that they will have to go in June. They have been seemingly the breath of the athletic existence at the school during their far-too-brief stays. There is no better battery set than this trio in New England high schools, yes, in national high schools and upon them will be placed the cares of a state champion. They ought to come through and we think they will. Coach Earle E. Brigham will have Billy Tirrell and Chubby Gibbs, also lettermen from last year to help him in the large task just a month or so ahead. Others are Buck LaCroix, Arico, Berghinzo, in the infield, with Eddie Hamil, another letterman, in the outfield, while a few newcomers to the school tagged with good reputations are also slated to report. For pitchers there are several candidates including Boots Greene, Johnny's brother, and Mish, brother of Al of last year's team.

In football Coach Courtland Whitney will have besides Capt. LaCroix at end, Berghinzo, end, Fox and Mish, guards, and Jackie Marks in the backfield. However, several others who will be on hand saw considerable service this year, including Cruickshank, Welch, Bugel on the line, and Brock, Aldrich, Brewer and Fagan in the backfield.

In basketball the outlook for the season which opens Jan. 7 is very bright. Four lettermen from the initial campaign in 1926-27 are ready for the call. They are Joe Viau, who may be used as a forward, Les Pingree, a center and Capt. Jim Killy and Buck LaCroix, guards. The other position will probably be filled by either Fagan, Tigar or Swatzburg. A schedule less severe than last season but still calling for something like 18 games is planned and hopes are held that N. F. A. will be enabled to present a record strong enough for its entrance in the Yale tourney.

In the other sports things do not seem to be dark. In tennis there will be enough around to still keep the Red and White up among the best while in track, although Artie Armstrong is gone, still some creditable things should be done while in cross-country the entire team is intact for 1928.

KILLINGLY HIGH OPENS BASKETBALL SEASON TONIGHT

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Jan. 1—The basketball season for the Killingly high school team opens this week, on Monday evening, and much is to be made of the occasion. As is the custom, the Alumni team will furnish the opposition. This year, instead of using collegians and thereby badly handicapping the school team, as has been done in the past, only recent graduates will be used by the Alumni. The Alumni team will likely be made up of Gallup, Neilsen, Barrett, Brennan, Crosby and Stoddard. Ralph Bowen is managing the Alumni team. Players on the high school team will be selected from a group made up of Young and Adams, forwards; Lague, McKeon, centers; Capt. Spencer, Clark and Wood, guards.

An added—and new—feature of the opening night this year will be the basketball game between a team of girls representing K. H. S., and a team of Alumnae. The personnel of these teams is not disclosed.

After all the basket shooting and court activities the gymnasium is to be turned into a dance hall, and a few social hours enjoyed. To make the gymnasium suitable for dancing buckled floor boards have been planed the past week, and the floor newly refinished, correcting a difficulty that was a bit bothersome for dancers in the gymnasium last winter.

Cochet Beats Peterson.

PARIS, Jan. 1.—(AP)—Henri Cochet started his 1928 tennis campaign auspiciously by defeating Eric Peterson, Denmark's Davis cup ace, 6-2, 6-4, 6-3, in the finals of the covered courts Christmas tournament which closed today.

Rene Lacoste, who has been absent from the courts since he captured the United States championship last fall at Forest Hills, announced today that he would resume play at the Queens club in London, Saturday, Jan. 7.

Greeneville Tigers Were Leading Semi-Pro Team

Football locally had what can be termed a good run during 1927, in addition to the Academy there was the Greeneville Tigers, Norwich's semi-pro representative. The Tigers played at J. B. Martin park and won 4 and lost 2. They drew good-sized crowds.

The Tigers lost in their eastern Connecticut championship game with the Ockford A. C. of New London. The New London firemen compiled a very good record, in fact, one of the best in the state.

Other activity on the gridiron this fall in eastern Connecticut was at Noank, Jewett City and Willimantic, but only spasmodically. There was little doubt but that the Ockfords were the class of the section.

BASKETBALL BRIEFS

Two likely looking games today.

They start off a busy week for the basket fans.

The scholastic end of the game gets going again during the week with all to a surprising degree. Each year they schools in action.

The Academy ought to get plenty of practice, experience and all that sort of thing out of today's game.

In Eddie Nichols the Hellers have a capable reservist for he was All-State scholastic forward last year and bids fair to rise to just as high heights this season. He is captain of Windham.

The Taftville Crescents are counting strongly on a win tonight to sort of make up for those two losses they had suffered in as many starts to date.

DUWELL ATHLETIC CLUB HAD ACTIVE YEAR IN PROMOTION OF LOCAL SPORTS

Both financially and from a point of competition the Duwell Athletic association enjoyed the most successful year during 1927 since the organization of the club several years ago. With the possible exception of the Norwich Twilight league which did not pan out as well as in years past every venture undertaken by the Duwells proved successful from every angle. The outstanding features of the season's activities was the annual 5 mile road race staged on Memorial day and the inauguration of outdoor amateur boxing.

The road race which had a field of 68 starters including some of the country's outstanding distance men was won by Frank Titterton of New York city, at the time the national 15 mile champion, Ben Russell of the Cygnet A. C. of Portchester finished in second place, a short distance ahead of Jacoby winner of the 1926 run, Johnny Keeley local student furnished the thrill of the occasion for the local people by romping home in sixth place in the van of a number of the celebrities. The team prize was won by the Duwell club with the Waterbury Boys club and Cygnet A. C. second and third respectively.

Amateur boxing which lured an average of 1,000 fans to each of the four outdoor shows staged over at the Duwell field was begun in the early part of August with semi-monthly shows throughout August and September. At each of the four shows the fans witnessed 11 good bouts and in turn the Duwells netted fancy gate receipts.

Working in conjunction with the New London Agricultural society the Duwells ran a track meet at the fairgrounds on Labor day, Sept. 5 with competition in three different classes. Closed events to military organizations attracted athletes from the Sub Base, Coast Guard, Fort Wright and the Connecticut National Guard. The team trophy in this branch was easily won by the Coast Guard. Closed playground events drew young athletes from each of the play centers of the city while the open A. A. U. events saw teams from New Haven, Waterbury, Putnam, Norwich and New London in competition.

During the summer and fall season Duwell athletes (both track and distance) were sent to meets in various sections of the state and performed with remarkable success. On May 23 a team of five distance men ran the 8-mile handicap run at Port Chester, on August 17 a large team of men took part in the Police field meet at New Haven, Duwell athletes took part in the state A. A. U. track and field championships at Hartford on Sept. 7, and several of the wearers of the maroon and blue entered for the Stafford Springs field meet on Columbus day.

FRANK M. GREEN
President of Duwell Club

The outstanding men at track were Joe Jackson, who successfully defended his 100-yard dash title at Hartford and featured elsewhere, and Johnny Sullivan, who copped a third place at the state championship mile run and also finished among the winners at both New Haven and Stafford Springs over the mile distance. The Duwell baseball team, formerly the Warriors, successfully defended the club colors on the diamond winning 20 out of 27 games. The team, composed entirely of amateur ball players, stopped several of the semi-pro teams in the vicinity and were well up in the standing of the Norwich Twilight league when it went to pieces.

The Norwich Twilight league sponsored by the Duwell club for the past three years did not attract much interest and was closed about three weeks before the end of its scheduled season.

Shortly after the first of the year a gymnasium and shower room were added to the Duwell club rooms and were used to advantage as training quarters by many of the prominent young local athletes.

Several of the members of the Duwell club officiated at important track meets and distance runs about the state.

The final Duwell venture which proved of probably greater interest to young Norwich, than any other event staged during the year by the club was the Duwell Christmas party held at the Palace theater on December 18. Approximately 800 children were entertained and each was given a Christmas package at the conclusion of the affair.

Davidson Favors Universal Draft

BOSTON, Jan. 1—(AP)—Claude B. Davidson, president of the New England Baseball league, a class B organization, favors a universal draft rule and no other and plans so to place himself on record at the special meeting of the National Association of Minor leagues in Chicago, on January 9. Davidson today received a summons to attend the meeting.

The basketball program for the coming week in eastern Connecticut is the largest and contains the most important games of any week in the current season. The outstanding event is the coming of the Renaissance Big Five of New York city, world's colored champs to the Plainfield Community house Wednesday evening.

The renewal of scholastic competition loads up the week's court slate for all of eastern Connecticut high school quintets have at least one game scheduled.

In Norwich games are slated for Monday, Thursday and Saturday, the latter being the occasion of the formal opening of the Academy's second season at basketball.

SPORTS SLANTS

A few upsets may be lurking in ambush, but for the most part the campaign of 1928 gets under way with the principal champions apparently more strongly entrenched than any group in recent years.

Take Bobby Jones, Helen Wills and Rene Lacoste, for example, all are young, in their early twenties; but also just about as supreme in their special fields of action as any titleholders have been in a blue moon.

Bobby has acquired the habit of lifting at least two major golf crowns a year. Since he has decided to participate only in the American open and amateur tournaments in 1928, it will be customary to find him a top-heavy favorite to take either or both.

Queen Helen will seek foreign conquests again but unless "Beaming Beauty" Nuthall bounds along to greater heights no one appears likely to impede the triumphant sweep of the Californian, who now holds about all the women's tennis honors in sight.

Seren Rene is just about as firmly lodged at the peak of men's tennis as Tilden was a few years ago. Since the young French ace was able to turn back "Big Bill" on American soil two years running, he figures to repulse all rivals on home courts and help keep the Davis cup on France's shelf.

There are quite a few others with a bright and rosy outlook for 1928.

All that seven other American league clubs are thinking about is how to stop the New York Yankees and their brace of battering-rams, Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig. It is difficult to figure how the Yanks can be checked except by a railroad wreck or gas attack.

Gene Tunney whether he has one or two battles, seems to have a pretty firm hold on the heavyweight scepter. Having weathered probably as furious an attack as Jack Dempsey ever will be able to turn loose again Tunney figures to make it three straight over the old Manassa Mauler in their scheduled 1928 engagement.

Johnny Weismuller, the "human fish" of the Illinois Athletic club, has been leading his particular parade longer than any other ruling king of sport. Johnny has been "crawling" out ahead of all the short distance swimmers for seven years but he views good for another winning campaign in which the Olympics are the main goal.

The biggest athletic concentration of the year for the Olympics at Amsterdam will find the United States defending all the major sport titles.

Eastern Connecticut Maintained Good Business Through 1927

NEW LONDON AND WINDHAM COUNTIES SHOWED TOTAL OF $1,218,932,372 IN BANKING, BUILDING, MANUFACTURING

Made Increase of $4,033,115 Over Figures For Twelve Months of 1926—New London County Had $912,407,529 and Windham County $306,524,843—Manufacturing Lines Showed Varied Experiences In Norwich, New London, Willimantic, Danielson and Putnam—Difficult Period For Textiles Was Reflected in Smaller Volume of Business in These Lines—Building Work Expenditures Ran Ahead of a Year Ago—Savings Bank Deposits Increased in the Eastern Connecticut Territory—Commercial Banks Showed Greater Volume of Transactions — Incoming Year Promises to Sustain Good Average Level For Business Interests.

Indications that were seen at the beginning of 1927 that the year was to present satisfactory business conditions in eastern Connecticut were found to be fairly well sustained when the record of the year in New London and Windham counties is reviewed.

This is shown when it appears that the business total for the two counties is $1,218,932,372, which is a gain of $4,033,115 over 1926 when the total was $1,214,899,257, according to the figures assembled by The Bulletin.

The big industrial interests of this section, which play such an important part in the occupational life of its residents, disbursed $28,348,399 in wages which was a decrease over 1926, when the amount was $29,489,331, while the total volume of manufacturing business decreased from $197,087,771 to $185,350,027. In New London county the wages from industrial plants wents from $19,879,933 in 1926 to $18,988,762 last year, while in Windham county the two years compared with $9,359,637 in wages in 1927, and $9,609,398 in 1926.

Total banking in the two counties exceeded the figure of the year before, showing $994,896,345 for 1927 as against $979,562,069 for 1926. In the total banking transactions, New London county accounted for $767,762,951 and Windham county for $227,133,394 in 1927, while in the preceding year these amounts were $747,890,624 in New London county and $231,671,445 in Windham county.

In building the year showed $5,180,938 for the eastern Connecticut total, in which New London county had $4,027,583 and Windham county $1,153,355, while in 1926 the total was $4,024,400, of which $2,962,390 was in New London county and $1,062,010 in Windham county.

Manufacturing Slackeneed In Norwich In Year

Somewhat smaller figures were recorded in Norwich in mill and manufacturing lines in 1927 than in the preceding year as it was shown that employment was afforded to 6,827 men and women, for whom there was a wage disbursement of $8,053,052, and the value of product was $26,209,790. In 1926 the number of employes was 7,472, wages $8,506,728, and product value, $28,402,773.

There were lines of employment in which gains were recorded, but the textiles had periods of slackened work in the early part of the year and a large paper mill went out of business early in the year.

In the cotton mills the total wages were $1,991,011, with 2,111 employes and product of $4,773,897, as compared with the 1926 figures of 2,397 employes, $2,115,500 in wages and $6,273,691 in product. Among the woolen mills the wage distribution was $1,853,573, with 1,005 employes and product of $4,148,064. These had been 1,157 employes, $1,469,500 in wages and $5,377,005 in product in 1926.

The belting and leather business was about the same as last year, but the paper making was less due to the discontinuance of a large paper mill, and these combined lines showed smaller figures than a year ago. The total for 1927 was 350 employes, $461,096 in wages and $2,084,076 in product as against 345 employes, $468,545 in wages and $2,180,628 in product in 1926.

Silk and velvet mills maintained a level but little below 1926, employing 1,034 bands, with wages of $1,308,986, and product of $6,194,069. In the year before the employes had numbered 1,109, wages were $1,324,950, and product $5,447,365.

Foundry and iron work showed decrease in the two years, employing 215, disbursing $352,000 in wages and turning out product value of $685,000 in 1927 as compared with the 1926 figures of 250 employes, $413,200 in wages and $910,000 in value of product.

The year was a smaller one for manufacturers of metal goods, giving employment to 171, disbursing wages of $185,500, and turning out product of $713,000. In the year before these concerns had had 226 employes, wages of $275,500 and product of $865,000. The year recorded an increase in the firearms and cutlery lines which gave employment to 396 in 1927, with wages of $544,627, and product of $1,089,500, as against 360 employes, $520,000 in wages and $989,000 in value of product in 1926.

In miscellaneous lines of manufacture there was employment for 1,545 hands, wages of $1,856,259 and product of $6,522,184 in 1927 as compared with the 1926 figures of 1,628 employes, wages of $1,919,538 and product value of $6,369,684.

Difficult Industrial Year In Danielson Territory

List 1927 as a difficult year in Danielson and in other communities up and down the Quinebaug valley. It belongs in what may be termed the difficult list. One is puzzled a bit in reviewing it satisfactorily from the standpoint as a successful—or non-successful—year for business. It was good in some ways, not so good in others.

Taking the textile industry, on the prosperity of which largely hinges the prosperity of this section of Eastern Connecticut. It has had a truly difficult year. This chronicler has talked with many Eastern Connecticut mill men during the past six months and they have been almost unanimous in declaring that 1927 was one of the most difficult years in which they have done business, and the majority of these men are silver-haired and of long acquaintances with the textile business. They know whereof they speak.

Not a class of textile manufacturers escaped the vagaries of their business in 1927. Slumps hit indiscriminately among the cotton, worsted and woolen manufacturers. They haven't really known just where they were at all through the twelve months. Business has been "spotty," uncertain and largely unprofitable, even for mills that have run steadily. Only a small group of manufacturers in this territory have made any money. The majority of them have been satisfied, under existing conditions, to keep their plants running even if they could hope for nothing better than an even break—no profits, no losses—and some have been unable to do as well as that. Still others have kept their plants closed for months, and still assert that they have no idea at all when they will be able to reopen them.

The situation was illustrated to this writer, some months ago, by one of the most prominent of the cotton manufacturers of southern New England, by relating the following little story: It appears that a man died and in due time arrived before the pearly gates. St. Peter came out to welcome him and incidentally inquired of the new comer, who was crying, why he wept so bitterly. "I weep because I so miss my family and friends," the man replied. And as St. Peter ushered the weeping one inside to be happy in Paradise, lo and behold, along comes another man—crying. Again the Saint inquired as to the tears and the man said, "I cry because I left undone on earth many things I had wished and hoped to do," and, like the man who had come first of this group, St. Peter consoled him, and sent him into heaven. And there came a third man, weeping more bitterly than the weeping ones who had gone before. Slumping down, this man cried aloud in his sorrow. "Why do you weep thus?" inquired St. Peter, touched by the agony of the man. "I am a cotton manufacturer," said the sorrowing one, whereat St. Peter sat down beside him and also began to cry.

Here you have a picture of the cotton manufacturing industry in New England, a bit overdrawn perhaps, during the last twelve months. It does, however, give one a bit of viewpoint on what a struggle the manufacturers are involved in to save New England's greatest industry, which will be saved, they assure you.

Bright Side of Picture.

But the picture is not entirely dark. There are concerns in this vicinity, like Powdrell and Alexander, operating five mills in Killingly, and the Grosvenordale company, with two big plants in the Grosvenordales that have had a really good year and are promising even greater things for 1928. They are manufacturing special things cottons, and therein seems to lie New England's salvation in the cotton manufacturing industry.

Last summer the Eastern Connecticut Mills association staged a textile exhibit at the state armory in Danielson. That exhibit opened the eyes of the thousands who went to see it as to what Eastern Connecticut's mills are doing. These plants are turning out really entrancingly beautiful materials, many of them with the sheen of silk and designs as gorgeous as are to be found in the really high priced materials with which they must compete. This class of materials, requiring the greatest skill to devise and manufacture, points the way to the future prosperity of the cotton industry in New England. Well informed men in the industry say that the woolen and worsted business will take care of itself eventually. It does not have the southern competition that the cotton industry has, and does possess the bulk of highly trained executives and workers making those materials in America.

General business has suffered in this section of eastern Connecticut,

NEW SAMUEL HUNTINGTON SCHOOL, Norwich Town

TWO EASTERN CONNECTICUT COUNTIES HAD ACTIVE PERIOD IN BUILDING

Total of $5,180,938 In New London and Windham Counties In 1927 Exceeded Preceding Year—New London County Had $4,027,583 and Windham County $1,153,355 — Norwich, New London and Willimantic Showed Substantial Increases.

Building and contracting lines in New London and Windham counties had an active year in 1927 that sent the estimated expenditures to a higher mark than in 1926, as the total for 1927 is shown at $5,180,938 as compared with $4,024,400 in 1927. In the cities there was a noticeable increase in the erection of dwelling houses.

In New London county the 1927 building total was $4,027,583 as against $2,962,390 in the preceding year. Much of this increase is ascribable to Norwich where the 1927 building total was $1,626,343 which exceeded the 1926 total of $885,575. In New London the figure was $1,276,815 in 1926, which increased in the past year to $1,801,240. In other parts of the county the building expenditures went from $800,000 in 1926 to $600,000 in 1927.

In Windham county there was an increase shown on figures of $1,153,355 for 1927 and $1,062,010 for 1926. In this result Putnam gave smaller figures in 1927 than in the preceding year, respectively $400,000 and $450,000. Willimantic's building year was better in 1927 as the total estimate was $303,355, which exceeded the mark of $212,010 in 1926. In other parts of the county the building work for 1927 was estimated at $450,000 as against $400,000 in 1926.

Norwich Building Mark Exceeded Former Year

Norwich building activity which had dropped to below normal in 1926 came back to average figures in 1927 in such general lines as erection of new dwelling houses, garages, and miscellaneous work, while the general total was boosted to the mark of $1,626,343 by the erection of two new ward buildings at the Norwich State hospital at a total expenditure of about $325,000 for the general contract, plumbing and heating, and the erection of the new Samuel Huntington school at Norwich Town for which $225,000 was appropriated.

The grand total of $1,626,343 in city and town was represented by 392 permits as compared with 253 permits for a total of $885,575 in 1926.

The erection of new dwelling houses increased over the preceding year as there were permits issued for 79 as compared with 56 in 1926 and there were also many more new garages built, the number showing as 137 as compared with 90 in 1926.

In the city Fire Marshal Howard T. Stanton issued 293 permits which was 77 more than the year before and in the town area there were 96 building permits issued by Town Clerk Charles S. Holbrook, which was 27 more than the preceding year.

Building In the City

Among the more notable pieces of work in the city were the erection of the fine two story store property on Main street by the Mohican company, a steel freight shed by the Thames River line at the dock on the harbor, and the new store property by the Silberman Furniture company on Main street, a building extending through from Main to Water street and eight stories high on the Water street side.

An enlargement of the Central Baptist church building gave this congregation the finest and most up-to-date modern church plant in the city and scarcely exceeded by any in the state.

The varied character of the construction in the city is shown by the following summary:

New frame dwellings	49
New frame garages	137
New frame storehouse	1
New frame sheds	14
New frame barn	1
New frame mercantile	4
New brick church property	1
New brick power house	1
New brick mercantile	3

New structural steel building	1
New steel freight house	1
New steel tank	1
New concrete garages	3
New concrete silo	1
Alterations, frame buildings	98
Alterations, brick buildings	13
Total	293

There were 40 permits issued by Fire Marshal Stanton in the first quarter of the year for an estimated expenditure of $116,615, followed by 112 permits in the second quarter for $205,830, with 62 permits for $153,615 in the third quarter and 79 permits for $125,693 in the fourth quarter. The figures used are from the amounts given by the applicants for permits, but in many instances the actual expenditures far exceed the estimated amount.

These permits were divided as follows:

	No. permits	Amt.
Frame dwellings	49	$202,[illegible]
Frame shops, shops	17	[illegible]
Frame, mercantile	5	24,[illegible]
Brick, mercantile	6	56,[illegible]

Alterations, frame	99	50,[illegible]
Alterations, brick	16	61,[illegible]
Totals	293	$600,[illegible]

Town Building Permits

Through the office of Town Clerk Charles S. Holbrook there were issued 96 building permits for work in the town, outside the city limits, on which there was an estimated expenditure of $215,400. These were classified as follows:

	No. Permits	Amt.
Frame dwellings	20	$123,000
Frame garages	21	12,[illegible]
Frame sheds, etc.	9	[illegible]
Frame, mercantile	2	10,000
Gas and service stations	2	10,[illegible]
Alterations, frame	22	6,[illegible]
Totals	96	$215,400

Harland Road Development

A notable development of the year has been the selection of Harland road, otherwise known as the Old Canterbury turnpike or Gallows hill road, as a site for the erection of a number of fine dwelling houses near the Norwich Town end of the road and a short distance from its junction with Washington street. These have been placed on a commanding site where the road reaches the crest of a hill with a beautiful view of the valley below. Among the owners of new residences here are Dr. James J. Donohue, Thomas M. English, Lewis J. Oat, Willard F. Hough, Ross S. and Kirk H. Wilcox, Mrs. Joseph P. Gadle, Jr., and Thomas Smith.

Samuel Huntington School

The Norwich Town section is having a fine new modern schoolhouse built, for which the town made an appropriation of $225,000 for the acquirement of land for the site on West Town street and the cost of construction. This is expected to be completed so as to be ready for the opening of the school year in September.

New Wards at State Hospital

Besides the work already mentioned the total is swelled by the erection of

The Magnitude of Their Business Interests Clearly Shown

In securing the figures herewith The Bulletin is indebted to the custodians of the accounts, and thanks them for their prompt and obliging responses. Except in a few instances there was a ready response from those approached for information, but where estimates had to be made, they were carefully figured.

The greater part of the figures were based upon amounts actually taken from the books of the business houses. The promise to disclose no business secrets will explain why in a number of instances it has been necessary to assemble several lines into one sum. The immense figures reached must be a surprise to all as it is to The Bulletin, and the residents of the cities and towns of the two counties can well feel a pardonable pride in the magnitude of their business interests as here shown.

FARM AND HOME BUREAU HAS AIDED NEW LONDON COUNTY AGRICULTURE

Covering Alfalfa and Clover Crops, Fruit, Forestry, Dairy, Poultry, Marketing and Farm Management—Placed 76 Pure Bred Sires on Dairy Farms—Set Out 25,000 Red and White Pine Trees — Farming Communities Show Growing Inerest In Work of Farm Bureau.

Many communities in New London county have experienced the helpful advice and aid of the County Farm and Home bureau in the past year, both in the work bearing on production of crops, care of the farm animals and improvement of conditions in the women's sphere in the farm house. County Agent Walter T. Clark, has been in direction of the farming activities, Miss Gladys E. Stratton and Mrs. B. H. J. Robynson have had charge of the home demonstration work, and Randolph W. Whaples has directed the 4-H club work among the juniors, this being a new branch taken up in the county this year for the first time.

All three leaders report a constantly increasing interest and participation by the people of the farming communities in what the farm and home bureau offers them, which gives promise of growth for the work in the incoming year.

County Agent Clark Gives Annual Report

In his annual report, County Agent Walter T. Clark summarizes the work of the year as follows:

The agricultural program of the New London County Farm bureau has progressed quite satisfactorially during the year of 1927. The program however, has been much similar to that of 1926. At this time the program was made up so that certain lines of work in each major project were emphasized.

In the soils and crops program special effort has been displayed on the growing of legume hay such as alfalfa and clover. It has been with this in mind that 83 soil samples were taken and tested for acidity. Fifteen hundred tons of lime were bought by New London county farmers through the county lime pool; much more was bought from private dealers and by individuals however. Much has been done to increase the use of acid phosphate a necessary chemical for growing legumes and many other crops on the dairy farm. The above results are fundamentals for a sound alfalfa clover program.

WALTER T. CLARK, County Agent.

However, in order to increase the acreage of legumes instruction must be given on inoculating and farmers must see the crop actually growing. Four such inoculating demonstrations were held, eight so-called twilight given place to discuss the growing of given place to discus the growing of alfalfa or clover with the county agent or crop specialist. One large harvesting demonstration was held at the farm of H. R. Whitman of Waterford where the curing of alfalfa was shown from start to finish also demonstration of preparing seed bed.

Other items in the crops program included seven pasture improvement demonstrations, the use of better types of seed corn for silage by nine farmers and treating seed potatoes for disease by twelve farmers.

The fruit program consisted of emphasizing the importance of growing better apples. Seventeen demonstrations were given on pruning, mice control, grading and packing.

Eight growers followed a special management program recommended by the fruit specialist. These are known as demonstration orchards. One large county fruit meeting was held in February where important fruit problems were discussed.

Special service was furnished by the farm bureau on apple storage. Prof. W. E. Cole of Massachusetts Agricultural college, was engaged and eleven growers and farmers were assisted in remodeling or on new plans. Fifty spray calendars were distributed.

The vegetable program consisted of regular monthly meetings of the growers around Norwich and vicinity and new visits to men about the county. Two county meetings were held with growers from Windham county. These were minor field meetings. Four vegetable management demonstrations were conducted, many special disease and insect control calls were received and answered.

In the dairy program 76 pure bred sires were placed on farms in the county. Seventeen were assisted in getting better stock. One cow test association was reorganized with 20 members and a tester visiting these herds regularly once per month. Sixteen farmers were assisted in sanitary milk production and 21 assisted with barn ventilation.

Nine poultry demonstrations and meetings were held and one large county meeting.

In the Grow Healthy Chick program 62 poultrymen owning 100,650 chicks followed this schedule. This was the major item in the poultry program.

Two hundred and twenty farm, office and phone calls were answered on disease and parasites troubles. This may seem high but the most of these calls were made to men other than the ones following the healthy chick program. However, most of the signers of the program were visited regardless or not of trouble.

In farm management two young farmers clubs were met. One old one in Lebanon, meeting each month and one organized in Baltic, this past fall. Thirty-eight account books were distributed, twenty-one of which were completed. One field tour was held in August when farms in Tolland and Hartford county were visited.

In rural engineering seven water systems were installed, following plans and advice from the farm bureau. Eight sewage disposal systems were also installed. Two ditching demonstrations were held, the ditching being done by dynamite.

Twenty-nine buildings were remodeled or built by plans furnished.

Four forestry demonstrations were held, these being thinning and planting. New plantings of pine, were made in the county including 27,000 trees and covering 23 acres.

Details of the Work

Details of the work of the year were given by Mr. Clark in his report along the line of the different projects, which included soils, farm crops, fruit, market gardening, forestry, rodent control, dairy, poultry, rural engineering, marketing, and farm management. Extracts from these are given as follows:

Soils.

The principal item of attention in the crops programme was alfalfa and clover. It was therefore important that we give the subject of liming in the soil programme considerable consideration.

One very striking demonstration of liming was shown on the farm of N. S. Lewis and Son, of North Stonington. A ten acre field was limed at the rate of three tons per acre and sowed with clover and some grass seed. On the same field there were two and a half acres left which received no lime and was sowed to clover and some grass seed, the same as the limed portion was. The seeding was made in early summer. In September the percentage of clover stand was about 90 and the unlimed nothing. It was very convincing to Mr. Lewis and his neighbors that the land needed lime in that section.

The failures in clover and alfalfa largely have been the lack of lime. In many instances a half ton or ton of lime has been the difference between failure and success with legume crops.

Many farmers in New London county are beginning to realize that it is unwise to sow all the lime just before seeding. Also they are practicing the system of applying at least one half the lime the year before planning to seed. This necessarily means one must look ahead a little.

Acid phosphate is also another chemical which is necessary for Legume hays. The past year has found more acid phosphate used in New London county than any previous year. Nineteen farmers that we know of used it clear with stable manure for their corn crop.

Some dairy farmers who previously bought commercial chemicals or mixed goods are now buying lime and acid phosphate to go with their stable manure and getting better yields of corn and better stands of clover.

During the past year eighty-three samples of soil were tested for acidity or lime requirements for farmers interested in clover, alfalfa or garden crops which required lime. A simple test called Soil-Tox was used and as a result nine of these outfits were bought and are being used by farmers.

Eleven farmers are using lime and acid phosphate on their pasture land for the first time this year.

Some interest has been shown and many inquiries received about the care of stable manure. Several farmers are putting acid phosphate on each day to preserve the nitrogen and four have built pits and covered them to save the manure from wasting in the weather.

Farm Crops.

The major portion of time spent on the crops program was devoted to alfalfa and clover. It was thought when arranging the programs that the one thing the dairymen needed and could do was to grow and feed more legume hay. It saved him money in buying grain and fertilizer, it enriched his land, was best for the stock and could be grown in New London county providing he followed certain rules in preparing and seeding.

A very encouraging factor in the alfalfa work was that all the exchanges were handling northern improved alfalfa and clover seed. Also a number of the dealers were handling seed of known origin which is favorable for sowing in this part of the country.

In June a meeting was held at the Whitman farm in Waterford which drew quite a crowd of interested people. There were 125 present.

The process of curing alfalfa was shown from the time it was cut to the time it was moved away. In order to show this some of the crop was cut two days before, some the day before and some the day of the meeting. That which was cut the second day before was carted the day of the demonstration and that which cut the day before was cured by side delivery rake and some carted. The hay in the opinion of the audience was put into the barn too green and would spoil but a follow up meeting is to be held in January to see how the hay comes out of the mow.

In addition to this demonstration a field was plowed and prepared in the proper way for seeding alfalfa and clover.

In all the operations on this farm much interest was shown and it would seem as though something similar could be held next year, as it seems to create more interest in these legume crops. It was surprising how many people put in hay which was not cured any more than it was at this demonstration.

The work on potatoes this year was not as extensive as in the years past. The use of certified potatoes has become quite general now and it seems unnecessary to spend time promoting their use further. There is, however, much to be done on the subject of spraying. Thirteen farms, most of them small growers, have sprayed or dusted for the first time this year.

There are some farmers interested in sweet clover for pasture. There has been no organized work on this but where people have been interested and it has been economically sound advice we have given them.

Fruit.

In the fruit program during the past year the important items stressed were pruning, fertilizing, packing and grading. There were seventeen demonstrations held to show the method of accomplishing the above.

They were held in various parts of the county. During the spring and summer there were seven spray letters that went out to the fruit mailing list. These letters called the attention of the grower to what spray should be applied, what to use, at what stage and other important information. These were sent out at about the time the spray was ready to apply. The grading and packing demonstrations were held in cooperation with the state agricultural department. These were for the purpose of educating growers on what the new grading and packing laws are.

Market Gardening.

The market gardening programme has been practically confined to vegetable management work. This consists of regular monthly visits from the vegetable specialist and at which time he assists the men on the farm in any way possible, that is, planning a control of disease and parasites and insects. Of course, this necessarily means that there will be a limited number of farmers getting this service but a greater number have derived benefit from the vegetable program by the monthly meetings of the Norwich vegetable growers.

During the summer twilight meetings are held at the farms. At these meetings a number of growers meet and go over a field with the vegetable specialist and the owner and discuss the problems he may be confronted with. These discussions ranged from marketing to disease control and management. Also during the summer there were two meetings held with the Windham County group at Brooklyn, first at Brooklyn and then at Norwich at the farm of F. E. and L. R. Peckham. One of the outstanding co-operators in vegetable work was L. R. Peckham who owns three or four acres on the edge of the city. He has been very successful in growing celery, tomatoes and cucumbers under glass.

Forestry.

A year ago forestry work in this county was inaugurated for the first time. This past year a little more interest has been shown in the program. There were four methods demonstrations all of which were on thinning. Lots were measured off one-half or one-quarter of which was then properly thinned and the other left as it was. These lots will be managed in this manner for the next few years. All of them were picked on the main highway so that they could be easily seen by passersby.

Due to the fact that we have a nursery for pine, spruce and hemlock transplants at the Norwich State hospital it was possible to get a number of farmers to take much of this. There were 23 acres of pine, spruce or hemlock set last year. The stock used was practically red and white pine. This figures about 25,000 plants.

It is, however, more important, we believe, that the farmers take some account of what they already have before they become too enthusiastic over planning new stock because there are a great many acres in New London county, which if properly cared for, can yield a very good annual income and still improve the quality of wood growing on this land. More work of this nature will be undertaken this year and it is thought that very few planting demonstrations will be held.

Rodent Control.

There were two method demonstrations given under this project. These were control of field mice in orchards. They were given in cooperation with E. L. Mills, representative of the Biological Survey at Amherst, Mass. Mr. Mills also is cooperating with one of our growers, George Goldie, of Salem, in the control of deer in his orchard. He is using rags, naptholein and some other chemical.

Dairy.

The dairy program has been as usual the placing of pure bred sires and work with the New London County Cow Test association. This past year there were 76 pure bred sires placed on farms in New London county. Some of these, however, were replacements of animals placed sometime during the last four years. All of these animals were placed either directly or indirectly by the farm bureau. This makes a total of 320 placed in New London county since 1924.

This work of course will be continued but from now on the work will be confined more to the cooperating with men who have been doing tubercular testing for it seems foolish to encourage a man to purchase a purebred sire and which will probably come from a tested herd and be put into a non-tested herd and then he stands the chance of losing it. As a result of the tubercular test there has been quite a demand for assistance in obtaining high grade pure bred females for replacements or foundation stock. Seventeen such farms have been assisted in this work. Eleven of these have purchased pure bred animals for foundation and remaining high grade stock.

In 1926 we started the New London County Cow Test association. This was reorganized again in March, 1927, with 20 herds which includes 427 head of cows eligible for testing.

In the last session of the legislature an Area test law was passed. During this past summer two of the milk markets which get milk from this county passed ordinances for tubercular tested milk. As a result many herds have been tested or have applied for test. There have been many calls for assistance and help was given 42 in aiding them in rearranging their barn and ventilation and in securing replacements of those that they have lost.

As a result of the testing and more purchasing of purchased sires there are necessarily more dairymen raising their own stock. Twenty-one have been advised in the method of feeding, management in raising cows for replacements.

Poultry.

The most important item on the poultry program this year has been, as last year, the grow healthy chick program. There were a greater number of accredited chicks purchased as a result of the program of 1926 than at any other year. Most all of the men who had accredited chicks in this county were sold out long before the season was half over. These signers, there being sixty-three, represented 100,650 chicks and were visited at least once during the growing season and in some cases where trouble was reported more than that. About 200 visits were made where trouble was being had with parasites and paralysis. There were more poultry calls this year than have ever been before.

Last winter there was a county poultry meeting.

There were, this fall, two culling demonstrations. There seems to be some interest in culling. We thought that it was somewhat of an old story but because there is always something new coming up in regard to this work and some of the poultrymen were anxious to obtain this information and also to check on what they already know.

Rural Engineering

The important part of the engineering program was to interest people in getting water to the house and barn either by pump or by some power means. Seven farms have installed the water system during the past year. Four of these, however, have been hand pumps where formerly they were carrying water in the bucket. The other three have been power systems.

Mr. Knipe, the agricultural engineer from Storrs, has assisted these people in getting these systems in. Mr. Knipe did not do any of the actual work but planned it out for them. Five people installed sewage disposal systems. These have been septic tanks of the double chamber type and have been installed by the farmers themselves following blue prints furnished by this office.

During the spring two ditching demonstrations by dynamiting were held. On the farm of August Lackowitz of Fitchville about thirty acres were drained. This meant blasting of about 2,300 feet of ditch. Even though the season has been very rainy the meadow has been comparatively well drained. Mr. Laskowitz states that if it had not been drained the meadow would be practically a pond all summer.

During the past year there have been calls for twenty-nine blue prints, twenty-five of which have been poultry houses and assistance was given in remodelling four barns.

Farm Management

The farm management during the past year has been practically farm accounts, and Young Farmers' club work. There were 38 farm account books placed in the county, 21 of which were kept and 16 of these were summarized or will be summarized when the year is completed in January. It has assisted them greatly in organizing their business in such a way that they can add another line of business to make a larger farm income.

There are two young farmer clubs, one in Lebanon and the other recently organized in Baltic. The one in Lebanon has been going now for three years. Practically all of these men who have been regular members of the young farmers club in Lebanon have made some definite change in their business which has netted them a larged farm profit. In some cases it has been the addition of poultry, in other the addition of more stock and in some cases the renovating and caring for an orchard that might be on the farm.

Marketing

Most of the time in marketing has been spent in cooperating with the Eastern Connecticut Poultry Producers and assisting the county pool for lime and fertilizer.

During the past year six new members have been obtained for the Eastern Connecticut Poultry Producers which is an organization for the marketing of eggs. This represents about 6,500 birds. Cooperation has also been extended in assisting the publicity committee of this association in getting together information for the stockholders.

The county lime and fertilizer pool was again organized last spring, A. E. Shedd being appointed the buyer. This pool handled about 1,000 tons of fertilizer and 1,500 tons of lime last year. There was no great saving in buying in this manner as many fertilizer companies were getting prices so low last spring. However, if it was not for the organized pool it is thought that the independent manufacturers would not get their prices so low as they did.

Recommendation For Farm Bureau Work

The outlook for the coming year is very good. The attendance and interest shown at the recent annual meeting will justify this. It is easier to get extension programs across now than it was even four or five years ago. People are becoming more interested in this work and are becoming to realize that it is an organization here to stay and something they can derive real help from, as it has unlimited resources to it, such as the State college and the United States department of agriculture.

The recommendations for next year are to follow much the same program as we have during the past. It seems as though one or two items in each project to carry out would be a good thing. The Grow Healthy Chix program will be carried on one more year. The dairy program will be confined to work with these dairymen who have tested their herds for tuberculosis. It seems as though that if we should follow this closely we should keep up with the tide.

In the fruit work more work will be tried with small growers this year in order to increase the sales on the farm. We hope to do this particularly with small dairymen who have a limited income and hope that it will increase their income during the next three or four years.

In crops work the alfalfa program will be carried on but will be more intensified in the towns of Franklin and Lebanon. As last year we intend to make an effort to get more funds to purchase lime. Lebanon is one of the largest dairy towns in the state and should be a great field for increasing use of lime and growing of legume hay.

In his annual report, Mr. Whaples acknowledges the assistance given by the following local leaders of clubs: Mrs. Marjorie Ayer, Franklin Thimble Wearers, North Franklin; Mrs. Irving Hurlbutt, Jolly Cookies and So-ers, Gales Ferry; Mrs. T. A. Day, Happy Workers, Salem; Mrs. Louis Chapman, Happy Workers, Salem; Russell Waldo, Lebanon Dairy Club, Lebanon; Russell Waldo, Wehava Poultry Club, Lebanon; Mrs. N. S. Strong, Busy Bees, North Plain; A. J. Willson, Red and White Poultry Club, Stonington.

Annual Report.

Home Gardens.

Club work on the home garden project started about May 20, 1927. The state office furnished health garden seed collections for 20c per package; the Pachaug Grange furnished certified seed potatoes to every boy and girl in Griswold who would take, plant, care for and exhibit them. A local hardware store furnished squash seed to all the boys and girls who wanted them. The state office furnished certified seed potatoes, at cost, to all the boys and girls in Lebanon who wanted them. The seeds were given out to 46 boys and girls in Griswold and 40 youngsters in Leban-

HOME DEMONSTRATION WORK FOR NEW LONDON COUNTY RURAL HOUSEWIVES

For the first part of the year, from Dec. 1, 1926, to Aug. 1, 1927, the work of the home demonstration department of the New London County Farm Bureau was conducted under the direction of Miss Gladys E. Stratton, as home demonstration agent, but she was transferred to another field on the first of August. Her place was taken by Mrs. B. H. J. Robynson, who continued the work for the balance of the farm bureau's year to the first of December.

Miss Stratton's Report.

For the period in which she was in charge Miss Stratton reported in part as follows:

There were 39 communities with a program of work during 1927, 48 women, either directors or local leaders, having assisted in carrying out the various projects arranged for their communities. Twenty-three groups made a program and followed it through the year. Other groups selected single projects and as these were completed chose others to work on. New groups were organized in Pachaug, Norwich, Stonington village, Ledyard and Pawcatuck. Junior clubs continued from last year in Gales Ferry, North Franklin, Salem and Exeter.

Rural Engineering.

In the rual engineering project this year we decided to make a drive on one phase of the work. This was to be called "Water at the Kitchen Sink." Because this project was decided upon after other project work, for the year, had been planned there was not as much time available for it as I would liked to have put on it but through interest started at the annual meeting and carried on in news articles and such quite a number of people have become interested in the project and individual help has been given in several instances. The rural engineer from the state college has made personal calls at my request.

Home Marketing.

Help has been given individuals on requests on any of the problems they had in marketing home products. Some people are selling rugs, canned products, baskets and other home made articles and by putting them in touch with certain concerns or individuals they have been able to get rid of some of the products they were making. There has been no organization work in home marketing.

Foods and Nutrition.

All the groups in the county worked on food preparation, worked on the vegetable project which includes vegetables as a main dish for the meal, various ways of preparing common vegetables and the uses of vegetables in salads.

A few groups had demonstrations on quick breads and pastries, uses of dried fruits and supper dishes. There were 18 days given with an attendance of 291 in the following communities: Jewett City, Salem, Gilead, Cohanzie, Ledyard, Pachaug, Hanover, Franklin, Pawcatuck, Norwich Town, Leffingwell, Cider Hill.

One of the flour companies gave us the use of one of their demonstrators for four days' work in the county and such things as whole wheat yeast breads, German coffee rolls, fancy quick breads, a standard cake recipe and twice cooked frostings, were demonstrated. The pastry demonstrations were requested in most instances as the emphasis was put on the bread making.

Clothing.

The clothing project this year included (1) a four day course taking the women from alteration of commercial patterns, through cutting and fitting and finishes. (2) Renovation of garment. (3) Uses of sewing machine attachments. (4) Bias bindings used as finishes. (5) Drafting patterns for bloomers. (6) Millinery. (7) Christmas suggestions.

Miss Van Cleef, the state clothing specialist, met two groups in the county giving the four-day course. The women taking this work felt that they had had a great deal of help as they understood how to alter a pattern so that they could use it for more than one garment, they learned how to make the various finishes like set-in pockets, different kinds of neck finishes, bound button holes, plackets, cuff finishes and gained a good deal in cutting and fitting. One of these groups has asked for the same sort of course on wool materials in the fall. There was an average attendance in one of these groups of 18. Some days we had as many as 28 people there. Fifteen carried the dress problem to completion and Miss Van Cleef felt that the work done by this group was the best of any community in the state so far.

One group had a fashion show at the end of the series in connection with the grange meeting. The garments which they made in class were judged by three judges who came from outside the community. First the judging was on types of material used and the workmanship and were judged off the women. The ladies who came first in this were Mrs. Jesse Frampton, Mrs. Bert Allen and Mrs. H. R. Whitman, Marion Allen and Margaret Whitman. The ladies then put on the garments and they were judged for general appearances, that is suitability of material to the person and becomingness. Mrs. Frampton came first, Mrs. Allen second, and Mrs. Guy Radway third.

In the other five communities in which Miss Van Cleef worked at the making or making over of garments, one or two days meetings were held. The towns were Stonington, Ledyard, Groton, Cider Hill, Bozrah.

The educational department of the Singer Sewing Machine company loaned Miss Glynn, one of their demonstrators for four days' work in the county. These meetings were for leaders and in some instances as many as six or eight communities were represented.

Another commercial demonstrator who spent four days in the county was Miss Nora Hott of the Barton Bias company. These meetings were held in Waterford, Leffingwell, Groton and Poquetanuck and included the use of bias bindings as trimmings and finishes covering such points as mitering corners, making scallops, French binding, cording, piping and trimming with fur as well as the uses of bias binding for table linens, etc.

As several groups have wanted to draft their own bloomer patterns eight groups have had this work. Assistance was given at some of these meetings on making finishes, like bound button holes, set in pockets, plackets and decorative stitches.

We have no millinery specialist this year but one group was promised millinery and had procured material for the work when the millinery specialist was called away so this group was met and about 12 people took advantage of the meeting. Twenty-four hats were made or started and most of them finished during the day.

MRS. B. H. J. ROBYNSON
Home Demonstration Agent.

We had a set of small articles made up to use as Christmas suggestions or articles which could be sold at the local church sales or fairs. These were used at various meetings. Eight groups were met and 650 patterns taken.

Home Management.

Since December 1st work included in this project comes under (1) rearrangement of kitchens; (2) labor saving equipment; (3) kitchen utensils; (4) stain removal and laundrying fine fabrics.

The work done in rearrangement of kitchen has been entirely individual during the past six months. Fourteen women have done some work on this project.

The summary of some of the things done this year by women interested in improving their kitchens are: Small equipment added and reported, 119; sinks raised, 7; breakfast nooks put in, 3; work surfaces raised, 11; new kitchen sinks, 5; kitchen cabinets built, 2; kitchens redecorated, 9; kitchens rearranged, 14; built in conveniences like shelves, ironing boards cabinets and closets, 22; rearrangement of small equipment, 18.

Eighteen group meetings have been held in the county to make service wagons and 283 wagons have been made. Most of the women coming to these meetings have never used tools before and many of them had never used a saw, plane, square or other carpenter tools.

This has been one of the most satisfactory projects carried on this year the women are finding their tables of very great service and feel that they can have them because the cost is not excessive. Three women have been particularly good in assisting other women in making these tables. These were Mrs. Rana Barber, Fitchville; Miss Marjorie Brewster, Griswold; Miss Louise Schroeder, Mystic. The communities having this work are: Gales Ferry, Cider Hill, Mystic, Stonington Village, Cohanzie, Gilead, Norwich Town, Norwich, Poquonock Bridge, Preston, North Stonington, Wequetequock, Jewett City, Bozrah, Pachaug and Groton.

Mystic, North Stonington, Waterford and Griswold had two meetings each.

Some of the work of this division is reported as follows: 5 power washing machines have been purchased; 11 women have purchased knife sharpeners; 19 women have purchased wooden spoons; 3 women have purchased stools for the kitchen; 7 have reported long handled dust pans; 5 have reported fireless cookers; 4 kitchen scales; 119 have reported purchasing small equipment; 8 pressure cookers.

Nine groups in all had demonstrations on stain removal.

Laundrying.

Miss Martha Foster from the Colgate company, gave demonstrations in Mystic, Leffingwell, Bozrah and Salem on laundrying and stain removal. The demonstrations given were practical and very helpful. At the Leffingwell meeting there were people from Hanover, Jewett City, Leffingwell, Norwich Town, Colchester, Norwich and Montville. In Bozrah people came in from Franklin, Leffingwell and Fitchville.

Home Furnishings.

In household furnishings some demonstrations and lectures have been given on (1) picture hanging and room arrangement; (2) color in the home and flower arrangements; (3) window hangings and draperies.

In Franklin the whole series of meetings were given. Fourteen rooms have been rearranged in this way. Groups met with this project were: Franklin—three demonstrations on the project; Jewett City — One demonstration "Room Arrangement and Picture Hanging;" Stonington—Two demonstrations "Room Arrangement and Picture Hanging"; Poquonock Bridge—One demonstration "Color in the Home and Flower Arrangement"; Norwich Town—One room arrangement and Picture Hanging; Groton—One Room Arrangement and Picture Hanging; Leffingwell—One "Color in the Home and Flower Arrangement."

Upholstering.

Five groups were met in working out problems in upholstering furniture, and there were 16 meetings at which 329 chairs were reseated in either cane, Hong-Kong grass, splint or reed. Because of the work on chairs and service wagons there has been more or less demand for help in re-

EASTERN CONNECTICUT BANKING REACHED HIGH FIGURES IN YEAR

Banking business in eastern Connecticut was maintained at good average volume in 1927, despite the somewhat spotty year that was experienced in manufacturing, mercantile and building lines in New London and Windham counties...Savings bank deposits accumulated, indicating that the average citizen and wage earner found it possible to continue the thrifty New England habit of accumulating a reserve to serve in times of need and emergency.

Total transactions of New London and Windham county banks in 1927 were $994,896,345, which compared with the 1926 total of $979,562,069.

Total deposits in the savings banks of the two counties at the end of 1927 were $90,970,722 which exceeded 1926 when the deposits were $87,747,987. In the total of the past year the New London county savings banks had $75,650,105, while those of Windham county had $15,320,617. In the year before the New London county banks had $71,256,859 and the Windham county banks $16,491,128.

Norwich Banking Business Recorded Good Year

Norwich national and savings banks experienced, on the whole, a good year in 1927 without anything to make it unusual but indicating the general trend of good business conditions in the territory in which their substantial financial resources go into the lifestream of trade and enterprise. Commercial accounts in the national banks have been maintained in a satisfying way and the increase of savings deposits in the savings banks, both in number and amount, has been a significant feature of the year.

Officered by men of experience in financial affairs, with a conservatism that bespeaks safety and stability, but broad enough to insure financial backing to make their resources available for the requirements of enterprises that look to Norwich as their financial center, the Norwich banks enjoy the confidence of the public which they serve and are looking forward to another good year in 1928.

The call money rate was at 6 per cent in the early part of the year for loans from the national banks, but has been at 5 per cent for some time past. The Thames National bank, of which Arthur M. Brown is president and Nathan A. Gibbs cashier, had one of its largest business years, handling a large number of mercantile and individual accounts as well as payrolls for a number of the industrial plants in Norwich and vicinity.

The Merchants National bank likewise has experienced a year of good business, its line tending more especially to mercantile and individual accounts. Frank L. Woodard, whose name has been associated with Norwich banking for many years, is president and Henry F. Powers as cashier directs the active management of the bank affairs with conspicuous ability.

The Uncas National bank is the third of the strong financial institutions which meets the general banking needs of the community and has done so in the past year with satisfaction to its patrons and profit to itself. William H. Allen is the president and Henry L. Frisbie has filled the position of cashier for a long term that has demonstrated his qualifications to direct the active management of the bank.

The Bankers Trust company, of which Angus Park is president and John R. Tarrant is secretary-treasurer, has enjoyed one of its largest and most prosperous years that has enable it to add $10,000 to surplus as well as declaring an extra dividend to its stockholders. Commercial accounts have increased and larger balances have been carried during the year; the Christmas club reached new high figures with a distribution of $23,000 for 500 members, and savings deposits have increased from $333,303.10 to $588,463 with 2,108 accounts.

1919	302,767,639.24
1920	371,255,187.06
1921	284,439,957.00
1922	332,206,300.00
1923	390,374,674.00
1924	350,866,028.23
1925	372,749,938.94

Among the savings banks the interest rate on deposits is 4 1-2 per cent and the rate on mortgage loans is 5 per cent, Norwich being practically the only city in the state where this rate is charged borrowers on real estate loans through the savings banks, as the rate in other cities is 6 per cent. Savings deposits in the three Norwich savings banks have increased during the year from $39,575,631 at the end of 1926 to $42,136,664 at the end of 1927, and the total number of depositors from 50,452 to 52,485.

The Norwich Savings society, one of the oldest savings banks in the state and the largest bank in eastern Connecticut, of which Charles R. Butts is president and Guy B. Dolbeare treasurer, shows an increase of savings deposits from $20,915,305.31 to $21,743,419.68 in 22,771 accounts. An important movement in which the bank officials take great interest is the encouragement of habits of saving among the school children of the town, enlisting them in the Thrift Army of America, whose ranks are constantly enlarging among the school children through the special attention given to it by the bank officials. The bank has adopted the policy of paying dividends quarterly on savings deposits, a practice which has been greeted with approval by its depositors.

The Dime Savings bank recorded an epochal event in its history in the past year by moving into its newly erected bank building on Broadway on Aug. 22 from the location on Main street which it had occupied since 1874. This change in location has been followed by a remarkable growth in the business of the bank, savings account increasing in a large number, with a corresponding increase in deposits which have grown from $4,227,396.33 at the end of 1926 to $4,841,988.06 with 8,107 deposit accounts. Reuben S. Bartlett is president of the bank and its vice president and treasurer is Frank L. Woodard, one of the veterans in the banking business in Norwich.

The Chelsea Savings bank, of which Charles E. Chandler is president and Frank Hompstead secretary and treasurer, has continued the record of growth which has been a distinguishing feature of its history for the past five years. The number of depositors increased to $19,499 and deposits from $14,099,626.60 to $15,080,262.30. Vacation clubs and Christmas clubs have been conducted with singular success and interest and when the Christmas club this year distributed $82,000 to 1,800 members it made a new record for this department of teh bank's activities.

New London Banking Shows Substantial Gain

While the past year has not been one of great satisfaction to business men in New London, the banks have shown a very substantial gain in deposits over a year ago. It is the source of wonder to many as to where the money comes from which goes to build up our banking institutions. The summer season which usually brings a very large increase to the population of New London was a poor one because of the weather and while the industries of the town have had a fair year it has not been up to expectations. Except for being the center of the army, navy and coast guard activities it is probable that New London would have had a rather depressing year. Savings bank deposits have increased approximately one and one-half millions and there has been substantial gain in the assets of the commercial banks.

The year has shown some changes in the personnel of the boards of directors of the various banks. The Union Bank & Trust company lost by death, James Bathgate, a retired manufacturer. The Winthrop Trust company lost one of its vice presidents, Frank J. Howell, a retired businessman, and also the following directors: Homer K. Brooke and H. D. Barrows.

The three Christmas clubs distributed nearly $350,000 in the first week of December which should have a very noticeable effect upon the cash drawers of the merchants selling Christmas goods, although a substantial part of the money accumulated through the Christmas clubs is used for purposes other than gift buying.

A development of the year has been the active organization of the bank employes in a sort of athletic association which has made for a friendly feeling between the banks.

The new counter installed early in the year by the Mariners Savings bank has proved a great success and is being copied by many banks in New England. This style of counter has caused an innovation in bank equipment development.

While it has nothing to do with banking one of the interesting places to visit in New London today is the exhibit room of the Mariners Savings bank where a large number of whaling relics and pictures, ship models and whaling implements have been collected and permanently displayed. This bank was founded by men identified with the whaling industry and it is fitting that it should be the depository of the whaling relics commemorative to the days when New London was second to New Bedford in importance in the whaling industry.

The establishment of the Atlantic Coast Fisheries plant at Groton promises to be a valuable addition to the industries of the town and there is the probability of one and possibly two more substantial industries being founded during the coming year.

Danielson Bank Resources Gained In Past Year

If the growth of bank resources in Danielson is a fair basis of measuring such a thing, there has been a very material amount of prosperity in Danielson during 1927, and in the territory for which Danielson is the banking center.

These Danielson bank resources have grown between $900,000 and $1,000,000 during the last twelve months, and that is no mean gain considering the population Danielson's banks serve.

It may be regarded as pointing to the steady employment of thousands of people who do business here, to the fact that they have a considerable margin of surplus over their needs for necessaries and their indulgence in luxuries, as well as to profitable activity in trade and commerce. Though depending largely on the successful operation of numerous textile plants for a high percentage of its prosperity, Danielson and the surrounding territory has not done so badly financially in a year when the textile business in New England has been figuratively swimming against the tide, and struggling hard to keep afloat. In review, it may be said that 1927 will, considered with many other years one can recall, rate a fairly good year. One may say that it was a far better year than any previous, to the World war, but that gigantic struggle and the amazing amount of business it created and the money it turned loose, set an altogether different standard of measuring business than existed prior to 1914. If the business of 1927 had been experienced in Danielson in 1910, for instance, picking a year at random, it would have been called a bonanza year. But today it has to stand comparison with 1916, 1917 and 1918, and that's a supreme test, for money flowed like water in those years, flowed like it probably never will again unless some other world-wide jubilee of Mars gets going.

A significant thing is that the close to a million dollar gain by Danielson's banks this year is largely in savings accounts. Of course, the banks have done a profitable business and have in each instances made substantial increases in their reserves, but the bulk of the gain is in savings and belongs to the depositors.

One finds the Windham County National bank of Danielson with a gain in assets of well over $400,000 during 1927. One finds also that this institution has increased its surplus by $75,000, to a total of $275,000, which insures additional security for its depositors. One finds again that the total resources of this bank are now, for the first time in the more than a century of its history, above the $4,200,000 mark. Its closely affiliated Killingly Trust company has increased its resources by about $45,000 during 1927, bringing them to $280,000. Incidentally, the Windham County National bank, sharing its prosperity with its depositors in its savings department, paid interest at the rate of five per cent. per annum during the last six months of 1927.

Rounding out its first full year in its enlarged banking quarters, The Danielson Trust company, the junior commercial bank of Danielson, did exceptionally well. During the closing days of 1927, its total resources were $1,668,000, this representing a gain of $258,734.42 during the year.

Practically all of the year's gain was with excellent earnings that helped in the savings department of the Trust company, but the bank, on its own account, had a very prosperous year, fortify its already strong position. This bank has found itself more conveniently situated to handle its business this year, because of doubling the size of its banking quarters and providing facilities for its force and its patrons that its growth demanded.

Doing an exclusively savings account banking business, The Brooklyn Savings bank had a nice business during 1927, increasing its deposits by $200,000. This bank, with resources in the vicinity of $5,000,000, and with thousands of depositors representative of every community for miles around has grown to such an extent that its present quarters have proved inadequate, and it is to have a fine new banking home in 1928.

DIFFICULT INDUSTRIAL YEAR IN THE TERRITORY AROUND DANIELSON

as everywhere else in the east in 1927, through general conditions. New transportation lines, affording quick and reasonably cheap transportation to nearby cities, have been one factor in slowing up retail trade in the trading centers of Windham county. Fear of wage cuts—which never came, generally,—has been another bothersome factor. The feverish desire to own and operate a motor car has not done general trade any good, for hundreds of cars are being paid for by really poor people on the installment plan. But one cannot tell a man what to do with his money, and it wouldn't do one any good if he did.

For another thing, there are good students of things economic, who assert that there are altogether too many stores—many more stores than are really needed in about every line of merchandising. Again this is unfortunate, but something that nothing can be done about. Everyone has the right to enter into trade and strive to prosper. If they guess wrong, it is not the other fellow's funeral.

Insofar as general employment conditions are concerned, they have been excellent in Danielson and vicinity during 1927. May they be as good in the year that is born today.

Willimantic Experienced Decrease in Mill Work

The past year in Willimantic manufacturing fell short of the year before, showing the employment of about 2,245 in the mills, wages of $2,577,437 and value of product $8,246,750. In the preceding year these items had been 2,469 employes, $2,696,946 in wages and $9,407,577 in value of manufactured product.

Silk and velvet mills reported a somewhat larger business than in 1926 as they had 350 employes, $508,000 in wages and $2,160,000 in product value, which was a gain over the 1926 figures of 340 employes, $485,000 in wages and $2,625,000 in product. But to the closing of an important cotton goods mill, this item dropped to the zero point, where it had shown 150 employes, $140,000 in wages and $260,000 in product value in 1926. In machinery and foundry work there was much the same in one year as the other on the showing of 136 employes, $180,890 in wages and $383,546 in product as against 141 employes, $167,011 in wages and $372,577 in product in 1926. In various lines of manufacturing in the miscellaneous classification there was a decrease on the showing of 1,759 employes, with $1,888,547 in wages and $5,703,204 in product as compared with the 1926 figures of 1,868 employes, $1,904,935 in wages and $6,150,000 in value of product.

New London Manufacturing Lines Slackened Somewhat

New London's business year in manufacturing lines showed smaller in 1927 than the year that preceded it. Approximately 4,380 hands were employed, the total in wages was $5,114,620 and the value of product $15,202,875. In 1926 there were 4,659 employes, for whom $5,564,887 in wages were paid out and the product value was $16,942,430.

In the line of boilers and iron work there were 40 employes, $50,250 in wages and $125,000 in product, which in the preceding year were 98 employes, $105,210 in wages and $270,000 in value of product. Machinery and marine work in the past year gave employment to 1,670 with wages of $2,325,000 and product of $4,684,875, as compared with 1,715 employes, $2,255,000 in wages and $5,186,850 in product in 1926. In the lines of metal and iron work there were 370 employes, $485,000 in wages and $1,406,000 in product as contrasted with 367 employes, $486,000 in wages and $1,445,000 in product in the preceding year.

In the textile lines, the mills making silk products gave employment to 1,545, with wages of $1,507,000 and product of $6,605,000, where these figures for 1926 were 1,619 employes, $1,561,000 in wages and $7,553,000 in product value.

Cotton mills gave employment to 90, disbursed wages of $100,000 and had product of $600,000, which exceeded the figures of 180 employes, $195,000 in wages and $780,000 in product value in 1926. Woolen goods manufacturers maintained a normal business year with the employment of 35 hands, wages of $30,300 and value of product of $120,000.

In miscellaneous lines of manufacturing the year was about at the average, showing 630 employed, wages of $617,070 and product of $1,662,000, erage, showing 620 employed, wages of $662,667 and product of $1,707,580 in 1926.

Argentina is the best barrel customer of the United States, buying $3,169,508 worth of the $10,203,125 worth of barrels exported last year. Canada ranks second best, while the United Kingdom is a poor third.

Putnam Industry Had Good Average Year

Putnam's active industrial concerns experienced an average good year in 1927, something of a gain over 1926, recording a wage disbursement of $2,000,000 with $6,900,000 in value of product as contrasted with $1,830,000 in wages and $6,140,000 in product in 1926.

Among the cotton mills, the payroll distribution was $1,250,000 and the value of product $3,200,000 as compared with $1,100,000 in wages and $2,600,000 in product value in the preceding year. Silk mills increased the wages of $310,000 and product of $1,400,000 exceeding the figures of 1926 when wages were $295,000 and values of product $875,000, while the woolen mills showed $195,000 in wages and $850,00 in product value as against $230,000 in wages and $1,070,000 in product in the preceding year.

Manufacturing industries in miscellaneous lines indicated $245,000 in wages and $1,450,000 in value of product, which had been $255,000 in wages and $1,595,000 in product value in 1926.

Willimantic Looks Forward To Banner Year In 1928

Surveying business in Willimantic, particularly in retail lines, during the past twelve months one finds a year of at least keeping up, or, as in many cases of going ahead. This is indeed encouraging. However, there are without doubt much Bigger and better things just around the corner. A newly reorganized chamber of commerce is now an assured certainty. Willimantic is to have a full-time, full-fledged, well equipped commerce chamber with an executive secretary on the job at all times. An intensive campaign has just been completed to put this splendid work into actual motion. It has been financed, well financed, by Willimantic corporations and individuals. The budget asked for has been over-subscribed. It represents an accomplishment to be proud of. It marks the turning point, if you please, in a steady, healthy upward trend toward a bigger and better Willimantic, toward increased volume of business, toward a banner year in 1928.

LOOK UPON 1927 AS STEPPING STONE TO FURTHER ADVANCEMENT IN 1928

Leaders of Business, Social and Civic Organizations Are Enlisted To Foster the Spirit of Progress In Eastern Connecticut Communities—Call For Co-operation of Every Individual To Reach the Goal of High Achievements In the Present Year.

The twelve months of 1927 were stepping stones in the pathway to better things in the year to come for the communities of Norwich, New London, Willimantic, Danielson, Putnam, and their surrounding territories. This is the optimistic note which pervades the thought of the leaders of business, civic, and social organizations as they review the past year and look out upon the year just opening.

Setting the goal of higher achievements to be reached in 1928, these leaders stress the importance of co-operation towards this end and the development of a community spirit which will enlist every individual and every organization in whole-hearted encouragement and effort that shall infuse the whole of eastern Connecticut with the spirit of progress.

Aiming Towards Community Betterment in Norwich

Continuing its endeavor toward community betterment, and believing that membership meetings are of value in its progress, these monthly gatherings of the chamber of commerce have been carried on. Good attendance has been the rule, and there is evidence of increasing interest in the important and instructive subjects brought before these meetings. We have been more active in our cooperation with the Connecticut Chamber of Commerce and have continued our representation at the New England Council. These are intangible, but none the less valuable means for advancing the interests of Norwich.

The credit bureau established last year is operating very satisfactorily, and under its competent management is rendering an increasingly valuable service. The Merchants association has become affiliated with the chamber and now functions as its merchants' bureau. This is of considerable advantage to all concerned and brings about a closer and more desirable relationship.

Work on deepening and widening the Thames river channel will be started as early as weather conditions permit. This is a result of the splendid efforts put forward last year by members of this chamber. It will make a great improvement in our water transportation facilities.

During the latter part of the year we were faced with the need of securing a new secretary, but have been fortunate in securing a man of such ability and experience as will continue to advance our work and aims.

ent along industrial lines, some items of which are still under negotiation. This work has involved the securing of new industries and also certain aid to existing industries. A matter of leading importance along this line was the investigation of the value of an industrial survey. It was decided that this work should be undertaken and the survey is now being made. When completed it will be of very great value in that it will show what we now have, where we are lacking, and along what lines we should endeavor to proceed. If it is put to proper use, the report of this survey will be the most valuable document ever written so far as the physical progress of Norwich is concerned.

A very successful membership campaign was put on in the fall, during which we not only increased the number of members by a good figure, but also raised an amount of money slightly in excess of the goal fixed. A result more important than either of these items, however, lies in the quickened and increased interest aroused in the community by the manner in which the campaign was conducted. This will be of great help in carrying forward our present program and thus become of lasting value to Norwich.

A detailed list of our activities would be of little interest and small value. The real accomplishment is reflected in that better understanding of community problems, that greater willingness to help solve them, and in that growing faith in Norwich and in each other which cannot help but make this a better place in which to live. To that end we not only hope for but expect to have the whole-hearted support of the people of Norwich.

H. D. LARRABEE, President,

Norwich Rotary Fosters Many Worthy Projects

Rotary—He profits most who serves best.

Objects of Rotary—To encourage and foster;

(a) The ideal of SERVICE as the basis of all worthy enterprise.

(b) High ethical standards in business and professions.

(c) The application of the ideal of service by every Rotarian to his personal, business and community life.

(d) The development of acquaintance as an opportunity for service.

(e) The recognition of the worthiness of all useful occupations and the dignifying by each Rotarian of his occupation as an opportunity to serve society.

(f) The advancement of understanding, good-will and international peace through a world fellowship of business and professional men united in the Rotary ideal of service.

The first Rotary club was started in Chicago by Paul Harris in February, 1905. The Norwich Rotary club, No. 875, I. A. of R. C., was organized Mar. 26, 1920. To date there are over 2,700 Rotary clubs in 43 countries with a membership of over 135,000 business and professional men.

The officers and directors of the Norwich Rotary club for 1927-1928 are: Dr. Clarence A. Spear, president; James E. Roantree, vice president; Edward W. Jewett, secretary; Henry S. Lyon, treasurer; Alex McNicol, sergeant-at-arms.

Directors—Judge Nelson J. Ayling, Arthur M. Brown, Dr. Hugh B. Campbell, Joseph W. Curtis, Edwin A. Harris, Edward W. Jewett, James E. Roantree, Dr. Clarence A. Spear.

DR. CLARENCE A. SPEAR
President.

Campbell, J. Nelson Weymouth, Edwin A. Harris.

In the past eight years the Rotary club has fostered many worthy projects, especially pertaining to boys. This is one of the club's special objects. In 1922 the John Blackmar fund was started and through the club's efforts and donations from people interested in boys' work this fund has grown to over $7,500.

Rotary has done good work and will continue to do so.

CLARENCE A. SPEAR,
President,
Rotary Club of Norwich.

Norwich Lions Club Promotes Civic Works

As the end of the year draws near, it brings to our mind a keener appreciation of our friends and associates who have helped up in our undertakings.

During the year 1927, the Lions club have given their time and services to promote civic undertakings for the betterment of our city.

The less fortunate were not forgotten. They were cared for by the club in a great many different ways.

The Lions club will always bear in mind its obligations to its nation, state and community, and to give their loyalty in word, act and deed, and will ever strive to aid its fellowmen by giving its sympathy to those in distress, its aid to the weak and substance to the needy.

It is the desire of the club to express to the Norwich Bulletin and Norwich citizens its best wishes for a Happy and Prosperous New Year.

W. R. TRISBIE, President,
Norwich Lions Club.

Norwich Women Organized for Helpful Cooperation

The Norwich Woman's City club, not yet a year old, and how it has grown and developed in that short period and it is the sincere hope of its members that it, like the many large men's organizations of the city, may prove its value and worth.

Six courageous women started it

MISS MARION L. BISHOP,
President.

From six it grew to fifty and from fifty to its six hundred members of today with a waiting list, for it has to be limited because suitable quarters for a larger club cannot yet be procured.

Just what is the purpose of the club? First to give as many women of Norwich as possible, from all quarters of the city, the opportunity of becoming better acquainted with each other and each others' interests. It is true that "To work together, first you should play together." So we play together with the idea in view of working together for the good of our city and town.

We have now an organized group of women who discuss local problems trying to get all sides of questions, becoming more intelligent, and then because of the broader outlook being able to stand with other clubs and organizations of the city in the endeavor to accomplish worth while things.

This year has brought to our women Dr. Thomas Van Ness telling of incidents in Peking and Nanking, and Dr. Charles Steisle with his wide outlook on international problems, a ship model exhibit, primarily for boys and the Puppeteers with its appeal to all children as well as grown-ups, current events for the club members, the beginnings of a fine woman's chorus under the direction of Dr. J. L. Erb as well as many outside and local speakers for small groups meeting the varied interests of the members. With this type of program we are endeavoring to attain our ideal.

MARION LEE BISHOP, President.

Records Accomplishments In New London in 1927

The closing of the year of 1927 affords us the opportunity of giving an account of our stewardship. While the grim reaper is making his last stand for this year before turning over his accounts to the new born 1928, we look back over those days which have afforded us so many pleasures and point to jobs well done.

Before the year was well under way, a silver lining appeared in an industrial cloud which has since shown itself in the form of the newly organized Atlantic Coast Fisheries company. Just how much the chamber of commerce had to do with bringing in this industry is a matter of record. The facts are on the table. They are here and that is an achievement for the industrial committee.

According to regular custom, the annual election of directors was held on April 1st. This brought in several new men and a change of management for the office. New thought followed these changes. Several departments not heretofore connected with this organiaztion were set up. In order to find new and better ways of performing our duties, chairmen selected from the board of directors championed each of these committees.

May we here point to the achievements of the retail merchants' division? Never before in this city have the merchants been so fully organized as at the present time. Lines of demarkation have completely disappeared. The entire down town section works and thinks as a unit. Nearly 200 retail merchants today are members of the division. In order that these men might extend credit safely and wisely, a retail credit clearance bureau was set up which at the present time contains nearly 20,000 individual ratings, controlled and managed by a full time operator. Several merchants' activities have been carried on throughout the past summer with both pleasure and profit to the merchants. The latest achievement of this division is the holiday decorations of the entire downtown section, which brought in visitors from surrounding towns and added many dollars to the coffers of the merchants.

The publicity committee of the chamber has kept the public well informed on the activities of the organization. Visitors' cards naming the points of interest within the city were distributed to motorists as they entered the city. Pamphlets discriptive of the city, its advantages, industrial, business and residential, were also furnished by this same department, many of which have been mailed out to points away from here and hundreds of others given to visitors as they entered the city. A splendid souvenir book containing many beautiful views and discriptive matter of this historic region was also printed and made available for distribution through many sources. Splendid comment has reached us, both at home and elsewhere, as a result of this fine medium of publicity.

EARLE W. STAMM,
President.

The efforts of the membership division too are quite noteworthy. From a very humble beginning in April our membership at the present time stands practically double over what it was at that time.

Transportation is another matter which demands considerable of our attention. A committee set up by the board of directors for the purpose of handling questions of this nature is functioning in a most splendid manner. Reduction of rates affecting considerable savings to certain industries are a matter of record to the credit of those good workers. Many hours, yea, many weeks of research have already been expended in order to secure data necessary in establishing the fact that New London is the logical western terminus of the Blue Ribbon line and many more hours of time and a vast amount of money are still necessary before this line will become a reality.

The importance of the industrial committee can hardly be estimated. A group of workers, representing the Lions, Rotary, real estate board and chamber of commerce to-day are collecting facts necessary for the successful prosecution of an intelligent industrial promotion program. This building division is divided into three separate units: the building division, charged with the responsibility of listing available factory buildings in the city, together with all information concerning it; the land and summer hotel division, listing available sites in the city and its environs will tell us a most interesting story before summer comes. Always a matter of importance in any development is finance. The third division of the industrial bureau is the financial group, who will inform us in a reasonable time just how far the citizenry of New London cares to go in promoting industry for this vicinity.

The federal building committee, too, has given us considerable of their valuable time. The day is coming when New London must have a new post office. Facts and figures are now available and more will follow, which must be presented to the authorities at Washington before we can establish more claim for a new building.

All of these departments and bureaus of the local chamber are now fully organized and operating. The old saying that Rome was not built in a day applies now as well as ever. Consistent, conscientous planning is necessary, not only by members of the chamber of commerce, but by every thinking man and woman in the community, if we are to grow and prosper.

And now before the city takes off its holiday dress of beautiful colored lights, so graciously furnished by our municipal leaders and gets back to solemn business, let us once more look over our deeds of the past year with the pleasure of a job well done, resolving to avoid past mistakes and justify our existence by faithfully performing the tasks set before us.

May the New London chamber of commerce, its officers and its members, extend to all a happy and prosperous New Year.

EARLE W. STAMM, President,
New London Chamber of Commerce.

Business Women's Club For Mutual Helpfulness

The Business and Professional Women's club is less than a year old, having been organized in March, 1927. The purpose of the club is primarily to promote better acquaintance and mutual helpfulness among business and professional women of the city. One luncheon meeting and one dinner meeting is held each month. At luncheon meetings different club members have spoken on some phase of their own work or on some subject in which they are especially interested. At the dinner meetings there has been either an outside speaker or they have been devoted to social activities.

At present there are 80 members sharing the friendship the club offers. We should like to take this opportunity offered to us by The Bulletin to extend to the other organizations and activities of the city our best wishes for happy and prosperous days throughout the year.

LUCK B. ABBOTT, President.

Year Memorable and Prophetic for Willimantic

The year just closing has been a memorable and a prophetic one for the city of Willimantic, for the city has come to know itself better. It has seen itself in a new light and a new setting. The natural center of interest for a large surrounding territory, Willimantic is the hub of a great wheel and can function only as its spokes and the sections of its felloe are strong. They have sensed the wheel as a whole. They have caught the significance of this Rotary symbol of service, and have gained a new vision, a new faith in the bigger and more inclusive Willimantic. They have learned to look out and not in, up and not down, and have gained an outlook and a confidence that are inspiring to each and every open-minded man and woman in the city.

The school center for several towns, the transportation center by road and by rail from all directions, the trade center for a large territory, Willimantic has an opportunity for service and self service that is prophetic of a rich and satisfying series of new years.

As each of the surrounding sections grows in spirit and in fact, Willimantics grows. Willington, with its ever increasing attractiveness as a town, Andover, with its new library, Mansfield with its new library and with the beautiful new church at Storrs, are, by their growth, their progress, and their evidences of richer living for their people symbolic of the new era that is rapidly making the Wheel of Willimantic a real wheel—strong, well knit, and turning with new ease on an axle of good understanding, of mutual interest.

Truly the new year promises for Willimantic greater strength, greater solidarity, greater satisfactions for its people, and a greater extension through a wider community of the spirit of service exemplified in its service clubs.

RICHARD E. DODGE, Pres.
Willimantic Rotary Club.

OLD STOCKING SHOP AT NORWICH TOWN MAKES ILLUSTRATION FOR BULLETIN'S SOUVENIR CALENDAR

Back in the old days when stockings were real honest-to-goodness components of the dress of men and women designed to protect against the rigors of New England climate instead of the present day filmy creations of silk whose chief accomplishment is in decorative lines, among the industries of Norwich Town was a stocking weaving shop, which is made the subject of the picture for the souvenir calendar with the New Year's edition of The Bulletin.

The old stocking shop was a small, gambrel-roofed house, which in its earliest days was painted red and was referred to as the "red shop". At the time it was torn down, the faint outline of a stocking could still be seen upon the door.

The old stocking shop had for its neighbor on the south the home lot and residence of John Reynolds, one of the original settlers in 1659, the original house still standing and being now the home of Mrs. Gardiner Greene. On the north side of the shop was the home lot of Thomas Bliss, another one of the original settlers, where now stands the residence of Mrs. Martha A. Geer at 334 Washington street.

With the uncertainty characteristic of old time spelling, the name of the stocking shop proprietor is variously given as Barral, Barrel, Baral and Bariel. He was a Frenchman, as his name indicates, and to that fact is ascribed the origin of the name of Lafayette street, which was originally known as Mill lane for many years. General Lafayette called on the stocking shop proprietor when he was living on Mill lane, where in 1785 Barral had built the residence at what was known for many years as the Hunt greenhouses. To commemorate the visit of the famous French general the name of Mill lane was subsequently changed to Lafayette street, it is believed.

Barrall had left Norwich about 1795 for Northampton, Mass., but in 1793, William Cox, another stocking weaver, was occupying the shop. It is said that the shop was at one time used as a turning shop by Elias Bliss and also by the firm of John and Consider Sterry and Epaphras Porter as the printing office for their paper, "The True Republican". This, Miss Perkins says, must have been between 1804 and 1807. At the death of John Bliss in 1809, the "red shop" and garden became the property of his son William and the shop was converted into a house which was sold by William to Elias Bliss in 1826. George Bliss taught school there in the winter of that year. This old building was for many years occupied by the Lowrey family before it was eventually pulled down.

Willimantic Has Advanced In Year Just Past

Willimantic has advanced during the last year. Also there has been a steady advancement for the past 25 years. Comparisons are sometimes made between the Willimantic of today and 25 or 30 years ago. See what we have today. A paved Main street from the business portion to the state highway. Fine schools, the equal of any in the state, those belonging to the town of a value that couldn't be replaced at a million and a half dollars. Modern and up-to-date fire department and apparatus. A new modern up-to-date hotel known throughout New England and the east for its service and the courtesy of the management.

Hundreds of new homes and business blocks that have been erected and that are now in the process of building, which, together with the patriotic spirit of our merchants, make our Main street one of the most attractive in the state. If some outsider or local kicker tells you otherwise you know he is inerror for there may be three or four better in the state but the great majority are not one-half as good.

Twenty-five years ago Willimantic had a grand list of slightly over four million dollars, with exempt property such as schools and churches, etc, of about three hundred thousand dollars. Today we have a grand list of over eighteen million dollars, nearly five times as much with exempt property of four million dollars.

And so we can go on and cite examples of the steady advancement of the city with answers complete to all the knockers who speak without information.

Willimantic proposes to take its place with the increasing prosperity of eastern Connecticut. With that in view our chamber of commerce an institution that has always stood for Willimantic's growth has re-organized and local people to the number of about 500 have donated or invested during the recent drive of the chamber of commerce about ten thousand dollars to promote the future growth this campaign we expect to see in 1928 of our city and town. As the result of a decided advancement in the city's prosperity. The city will have to go some to equal its average record of the past 25 years (statements of the knockers to the contrary notwithstanding).

The chamber of commerce expects the backing of the several thousand people who live here and who did not assist it in its efforts for our city. I predict for 1928 the greatest advancement in our history.

FRANK P. FENTON, President,
Willimantic Chamber of Commerce.

SECRETARY HOOVER SEES FORCES OF STABILITY DOMINANT IN BUSINESS

An answer to the usual annual request of the press for a statement of prospects requires a short catalogue of the economic forces which dominate the business situation at our entry into the New Year, says Herbert Hoover, secretary of commerce.

The more general of these forces of course, include the credit situation, the degree of accumulated stocks of goods or speculation in them, the size of the crops, the rate of wages, the outlook in labor relations and employment, the prospects of foreign trade and to these also need be added the particular forces in motion in the different major industries.

Upon these points it may be said that there is an ample supply of credits at low rates; the somewhat larger stock of goods which were accumulated during the summer are being reduced; there is no consequential speculation in commodities; the crops have been abundant; wages are at a high level; we are recovering from some partial unemployment, especially in the automobile industry. There is peace in most sections of the labor world except bituminous coal; there is more peace in the international world than at any time since the war; the foreign world is recovering its economic strength and buying power, therefore, our foreign trade is steadily increasing. The phenomena usually accredited as premonitory of a slump are therefore absent.

During the past year there have been important shifts in our own economic world which have an important bearing upon the future. While the average wholesale price of all commodities at about 50 per cent above pre-war is today the same as a year ago, yet if we divide them into agricultural and non-agricultural goods, it will be found that the average price of non-agricultural products has fallen in the twelve months from about 60 per cent above pre-war to 51 per cent pre-war; while the average of agricultural products at central markets has risen from about 35 per cent above pre-war to about 52 per cent above pre-war; however, prices on the farm show only a rise of from about 30 per cent above to about 39 per cent above pre-war. Manufacture and distribution have by savings and diminished profits accommodated themselves to this situation of decreasing prices without reduction in the average level of wages and therefore in the national buying power. But the great extent to which industry has accommodated itself to lower prices by decreased costs makes for a sounder condition for the ensuing year. Despite decreasing prices, production and consumption of manufactured commodities have been maintained upon a high level, as shown by car-loadings of class of goods, which have been about equal to those of last year.

As to particular industries, agriculture, textiles, bituminous coal and some metals—still lag behind the others. The contracts let for future execution in the construction industries are at as high a level as at this time a year ago.

Taken in a broad sense we enter the New Year with the forces of stability dominant in the business world.

YE OLDE AVERY TAVERN

HISTORICAL WILLIMANTIC BUILDING DATES BACK BEYOND THE REVOLUTION

In Early Years Was Known As Perkins' Inn—Contains Extensive Collection of Antiques and Curios Made by Present Owner — Souvenirs of John L. Sullivan and From Mr. Tanner's Two Trips Abroad.

Probably the oldest and most historical of buildings in Willimantic is the old Avery Tavern on West Main street now occupied as a home by Oscar O. Tanner, who served the city as mayor in the years 1898-99 and again in 1904-'05 and who gained wide reputation in past years as a sportsman and boxing promoter. The old tavern, erected beyond the recollection of the oldest living inhabitants of the town, is rich in historical lore and has been made by Mr. Tanner a veritable museum of antiques and interesting collections. The building is a two and one half story brick structure. Although original throughout, it has weathered the years well and remains in excellent condition. It was built prior to the Revolution and for many years was known as Perkins' Inn. Several noted patriots are known to have stopped there. At other times the house was occupied by the Hoxie family and the Avery's. It was purchased from the Hoxie's by Charles Holbrook of this city who in turn sold it to Mr. Tanner.

Other than installing electric lights and modern necessities, Mr. Tanner has not violated the antiquity of the house. The 13 rooms are heavily stocked with a rare collection that covers a wide field of antiques and curios. There are paintings and etchings in delicate colors including a series of scenic sketches by George Waters of this city and paintings by Henry T. Gavitt, a former local resident Gavitt was well known as a fresco and uncle of ex-Mayor Tanner. Mr. and landscape artist. In a collection of fighting implements representing weapons used in almost every nation of the universe there is a bowie-knife used by Colonel "Jack" Chimm bearing six notches.

Mr. Tanner prizes highly two autographed photographs of John L. Sullivan presented him by the greatest of fighting champions on his visit here as guest of the fight promoter on February 20, 1904. In a large array of hand-carved canes there is one carved by John Spencer of this city which has a very distinct replica of Sullivan. On the cane appear the names of the champion's opponents in his more important battles during his twelve year championship, tracing his career to his fight with Corbett.

Ancient highboys, Windsor chairs and gateleg tables are to be found in several of the rooms. There are many souvenirs from London and other parts of Great Britain which were collected by Mr. Tanner on two extended trips abroad. "These are my pets," said the old sportsman as he led his visitor into a room gay with photographs, etchings and paintings of the more famous boxers of the passing generation. During his active years Mr. Tanner promoted several boxing exhibitions here and in other cities. He was a lover of all sports, principally of boxing, horse racing and baseball and in 1894 was manager of a Willimantic team of champions.

Oscar O. Tanner will observe his 70th birthday on April 4, 1928. He came to Willimantic many years ago after having charge of the collection department of the Boyle Bros., installment house in Boston, Mass. It is noted that in both of his elections to the city mayoralty he carried all of the wards, thus establishing an enviable record. He now lives in retirement at the old tavern and finds expression for the undying fires of the sportsman by keeping in constant touch with the many sports of today through the newspapers columns. His two hobbies are his collections and several prize roosters. While he spends his declining years in the quietude of his interesting residence he is remembered as a good fellow and one of the most popular and successful heads of the city government.

MANY MILESTONES IN THE ONWARD PROGRESS OF NORWICH, 1659--1928

A town is something more than a set of statistics showing bank clearances, retail trade, real estate transactions, output of manufactures and such-like information, important though it all is. A town is also a spiritual achievement. Its citizens proclaim the character and its institutions show forth the thoughts of the preceding generations. In the events which are brought to mind by the dates listed below, you have a picture of Norwich as it has been from the beginning and as it therefore must necessarily be now. By the works of 1659 shall ye know 1928; and by the works of 1928 shall future generations know, not us, but themselves.

The list of dates and events is not complete, but it is representative. The thinker, the doer, the poet, the politician, the inventor, the manufacturer, most of all the philanthropist—who in the same benign person combines the dreamer with the man of action—each type is there. The rotten egg of Norwich is there too—and a rottener one never hatched. The industries, the roads, the parks, bridges, newspapers, financial and educational institutions, transportation lines, suburbs, public utilities—they're all there. For good or for ill, the heart of Norwich history is in the terse entries listed herewith:

1660—John Elderkin appointed town miller.
1660—Norwich is settled.
1694—Shipbuilding begun.
1694—Highway is opened from Norwich town to the Landing.
1700—First sawmill built.
1729—Big freshet.
1729—Commons at Norwich Town and Bean Hill established.
1760-1800—Various settlements in Ohio, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Vermont and New Hampshire made from Norwich.
1766—Cutlery manufacture established.
1766—Pottery established at Bean Hill.
1770—Christopher Leffingwell's chocolate mill in operation.
1771—First wharf bridge over the Yantic built.
1773—First newspaper, the Norwich Packet, established.
1775-6—Washington a visitor.
1782—Postoffice is established.
1784—Norwich is chartered as a city.
1790—Weekly Register, later renamed the Norwich Courier, established.
1791—Lydia Huntley (Sigourney) born, author, educator.
1792—Turnpike, first in United States opened in New London.

EXPENDED $1,332,468 IN HIGHWAY WORK IN EASTERN CONNECTICUT TOWNS

State Department Improved Over 33 Miles of Road In New London and Windham Counties In 1927—Work Done On Numerous Bridges As Well As Roads — Two Big Pieces of Work Were On Norwich-New London Road and North Woodstock Road To Massachusetts State Line.

Road improvements and the construction of numerous new bridges were included in the state highway department work in eastern Connecticut during 1927, calling for a total expenditure of $1,332,468.36 which was somewhat less than the sum of $1,450,740.52 expended in the preceding year. The total mileage covered was close to 34 miles which also fell short of the total of 39¾ miles in 1926. All this work has been carried on under the supervision of the Norwich office of Division Engineer John Smith. Improved motoring conditions and greater safety for the traveling public are aimed at in all the changes and improvements made by the state highway department whose service to the traveling public is such an important contribution to the comfort and convenience of the communities between which the roads serve as connecting links.

The largest contract of the year was the improvement of about 4 1-3 miles on Norwich-New London highway southerly from Mohegan hill down through Uncasville and to Jerome's corner, where a splendid concrete road was laid. Two other big contracts were in Windham county, one consisting of nearly four miles macadam highway on the Scotland-Canterbury road and the other a macadam highway in the town of Woodstock running to the Massachusetts state line, a little over two miles. Still another important piece of construction extended through Windham and Tolland counties on the Mansfield-Phoenixville road where bituminous macadam was laid for a distance of over ten miles.

Bridge work included the beginning of putting in a new concrete bridge over Poquetanuck cove on the Military highway and bridges at Pachaug brook, Voluntown, Flat Rock landing, East Lyme, Golden Spur, Waterford and East Lyme, Blackwell brook in the town of Brooklyn, Natchaug river, Chaplin, Little river, Canterbury, Moosup river, Sterling and Little river, Putnam.

The appended table gives a summary of the work by the state highway department in the year:

Opportunities To Make Incoming Year Better

The Willimantic Exchange club looks forward to the new year with gladness because life is so good, and with zeal because there are so many opportunities to make it better.

Life is good. The old year has given to the new year the kingdom of a wonderful world. These neighbors of ours, God bless them, friends that encompass us on every hand, even stranger friends who greet us from the invisible air, how they all contribute to the joy and splendor of living. Can this be the same world where the cave man waged his lonely battle, where torture and human sacrifices were pleasing to men and God? Surely to this new year the Magi bring all the victories of a million years of human struggle—and the greatest of these is good will. Life is good.

Likewise, life is a glorious adventure, because a new way of making it better is being revealed to us. The increase in our problems and powers has forced us to take counsel together each seeking to call forth the wisdom of the other rather than to impose the opinion of himself. As a result, we are learning that the greatest joy and zeal of living are to be found in the harmonious fellowship of differing minds. To lay aside our suspicions and bigotries and to make ourselves fit for this fellowship must be our first achievement if we are to be worthy citizens in the kingdom of the new year.

To have a part in developing this kind of citizenship and in launching it into effective action is the controlling purpose of the Exchange club for the new year. May each of us develop a larger appreciation of the usefulness of others, learn to live together better, to think without bias, to work for community welfare without thought of personal glory or material reward; and may we so order our lives that we will develop the useful habits necessary to propel these good resolutions from the shore of idle dreams out into the sea of active human service.

Gain Substantial Although Not Up to Expectations—Improvements Made in Post Office Building—New Burglar Proof Safe to be Provided.

There was an increase in 1927 in the receipts of the Norwich post office over the calendar year 1926, when the receipts were more than $120,000, and while the gain was not as large as had been expected, it was a substantial increase. It is believed by the local postal authorities that a number of merchants did a good part of their mail advertising through out of town firms and the postage, accordingly, went to the office where the matter was mailed. However, as conditions exist, the local office compares very favorably with other offices, since a number show a decrease.

One branch of the business, the C. O. D. division, has had a marked increase. This also represents a large amount of money expended out of town. The number of depositors and amount deposited in the postal savings division shows no increase, this probably being due to the small rate of interest paid.

There have been no changes in the personnel of the office during the year, with Postmaster Casper K. Bailey and his efficient staff continuing its record of faithful and obliging service to the public. Extensive repairs have been made to the building. These include renewal of the entire plumbing system, the old iron pipes being replaced with brass, giving a much better flow of water and a new hot water tank has been installed. Several new large lights, each of 200 K. W. power, have taken the place of smaller ones in the workroom, which gives much better satisfaction and does not put so much strain on the eyes of the employes as under the old lights. The ceilings and walls have been prepared for a new coat of paint, which will probably be put on this spring.

A new three-ton burglar proof safe has been ordered and will be placed in one of the vaults. This will enable thepostmaster to keep a larger supply of stamps on hand at all times.

TWO EASTERN CONNECTICUT COUNTIES HAD AN ACTIVE YEAR IN BUILDING

two new ward buildings at the Norwich State hospital, each to have capacity for about 150 patients, one to be for men and the other for women of the convalescent type. The men's ward is located at the south end of the grounds back of the baseball field and the other is in the women's section of the hospital ground. Work on one of the wards is about at the half way point and the other has just been begun. On each ward the general contract was for $259,000 with $40,000 for plumbing and heating. The present registration of patients at the institution is over 2,150 and these two new wards will give accommodation for over 250 more.

Dwellings Were Leaders In New London Building

Building work in New London in 1927 exceeded the mark of the previous year, according to the estimates made on building permits issued through the office of William Gunn, Jr., the building inspector. The number of permits was about the same in each year, 549 in 1927 and two less in 1926, but the amount was $524,425 greater in 1927 than in the year before on the showing of a total of $1,801,240 and $1,276,815 respectively.

New dwellings were the largest item of construction, numbering 123 for a valuation of $1,172,900 which compared with 127 for $730,140 in the year before. Buildings for industrial and mercantile uses were shown at 46 and an estimated expenditure of $123,575 which was less than in 1926 when the amount was $297,700 and the number 31. Construction of new garages dropped off somewhat as the number was 174 and the valuation $117,900 as compared with 206 for $114,600 in the preceding year. Permits for additions and alterations went considerably ahead of 1926 on the showing of 206 for $375,865 as compared with 183 for $334,675 in 1926.

	Permits	Amount

Building in Willimantic On the Upward Trend

Recovering from a slump in 1926 when Willimantic underwent a severe relapse of its local industrial strife in 1925 and a reaction to the country-wide depression of that time,building activities climbed steadily back to normalcy in 1927. Estimates of building expenditures as shown on the building permits issued during the year by Fire Chief Henry J. Kelley in his capacity as building inspector, show a total of $302,355 expended on a total number of 75 permits. While the number of permits is lower, as compared with 93 in 1926, 120 in 1925, 123 in 1924 and 146 in 1923, the costs are greater than the 1926 figure of $272,010, by $91,345.

The year 1925 continues as the high year of building with a total of $637,970. Consideration is made, however, that that year was unusual inasmuch as two permits for amounts totalling $287,000 were issued in 1925 for the construction of the Nathan Hale hotel and the Elks' home, both of which were completed in 1926. The total estimate for 1927 is substantially brought up with a permit for an $180,000 addition to the Windham street school by the state board of education, the permit having been issued October 13, and the building nearing completion at this time. The next largest amount was for $30,000 to construct the Hall block on Main street with dimensions of 88 by 110 feet. The block, now almost ready for occupancy, is a one-story brick and stone structure with ornamental front and houses two large stores. Ranking next is a $15,000 expenditure to repair and remodel the Wood block on Union street by the owners, Samuel Eisenberg of this city and Morris Brown of Rockville. The block was gutted by fire last spring. There are six permits under the heading of mercantile houses in which are located seven stores, one gasoline station and one lunch cart. The new school addition, under state supervision, will make of the Windham street school one of the most attractive and complete grade schools in the county. The addition includes a spacious gymnasium, auditorium, eight standard grade rooms, offices, lavatories, etc., and it is built on a large plot of land allowong for beautiful grounds and ample playroom.

With mercantile houses leading at a cost of $53,000 new dwellings rank next at $43,100. There were nine permits for new houses, all but three being of the bungalow or cottage type and the total representing the addition of 12 tenements to the city's housing capacity which at the beginning of the New Year consists of 1959 dwellings containing 2853 tenements. In 1926 over 30 tenements were added to the housing capacity through the building of 21 residences. The tendency toward bungalow and cottages is a continuance of a condition which prevailed here in 1926, and which has resulted in the extensive development of residential sites in a notable expansion program which started some four years ago. The item of alterations and additions shows the low figures of $12,705, as compared to $79,925 in 1926.

The construction of private garages boomed with the result that 34 garages containing 79 stalls were erected during the year. The cost of these, however, was only $11,650, as compared to the cost of $12,035 in 1926 to erect 28 garages with a capacity of 71 stalls, possibly indicating a decrease in building costs. The average cost per stall of garages approved by the building inspector during the year was $116. The following comparative figures show the rise and fall of the building operations since 1923: 1923—$600,000. 1924—$330,000. 1925—$637,970. 1926—$212,010.

A greatly enlarged Killingly High school, the work not completed until January of 1927, and a new business block—the Dowe building—completed in December, 1927, are the outstanding features of building work in Danielson during the year just closed.

Killingly High school now has accommodations for 500 pupils and has an estimated replacement value of nearly $400,000. Wings added at the north and south side of the structure at a cost of $150,000 have made possible the expansion of the school's curriculum, domestic science courses having been added during the past year. There is also a separate department for those studying in the agricultural course, which has become an important feature of the work of the schools. The additions also provide space for a beautiful auditorium seating about 600 people and a large gymnasium, where physical culture classes and the athletic teams are active throughout the school months of the year.

The new Dowe building arose on the site of the old Dowe building as though brought into existence by a magician's wand. It was mid-September of the year just closed when John M. Dowe announced one day that he had decided to tear down the old Dowe building, in which the business he is conducting was established by his grandfather, in 1860, and to replace it with a modern brick structure.

Forthwith, the work was started and rushed so rapidly that the Dowe business was in the new building the first week in December. The present Dowe building is a two-story brick structure situated in the very heart of Danielson's business section and is a fine addition to the business buildings in its vicinity. It has a frontage of about 40 feet on Main street. On the street level it provides two stores, one of which is occupied by the Dowe business, the other by an Economy store. The upper floor will be given over exclusively to offices, which are rented and will be occupied during January of 1928.

In the closing month of the year work was started by LaBelle and Page, contractors, on a planing mill and stockhouse that is to occupy a site on Railroad street, about opposite Oak street. In the last week of 1927 excavators were at work on the excavation for the foundations of this building, which is to be 100 feet in length and 40 in width and of fireproof construction. It is located close to a siding of the N. Y., N. H. and H. railroad, giving the firm an arrangement for rapid unloading of lumber and other supplies consigned to it.

Extensive remodeling work was done late in the year by Peter Jodoin on a combination business and apartment block he owns at the corner of Main and Union streets. This week was nearing completion as the year came to a close, and is complete on the lower floor now occupied wholly by the A. and P.

A number of new homes were completed in Danielson during 1927, particularly fine ones being those built for A. A. Bonneville, and for Joseph LaBelle, both of these places being on Broad street, not distant from Carter street. Mr. LaBelle durlig the year also erected a cottage on Carter street and remodeled into a fine home the property he owns at the corner of Broad and Carter streets.

A late fall project will eventually give Danielson a new machine shop, on East Franklin street. It is to be constructed by Norman J. Ross and is expected to be completed early in the new year.

Two important building projects for 1928 were announced late in the year. One of these announcements was by The Brooklyn Savings bank of Danielson, which has purchased a site at the northeast corner of Main and Academy streets on which to erect a new banking house that will cost not less than $100,000, with its interior equipment. Various plans for the new bank are now being considered by the officers and trustees of the bank.

All the structures at present on the site where the new bank is to stand are to be torn down. The bank's property purchase extends from Academy street to the public library. Removal of the buildings to be razed will start on or soon after March 1.

Directly opposite the new bank building, at the northwest corner of Main and Academy streets, a new two-story business and apartment block is to be erected in the spring of 1928, for D. Blumenthal, it was announced last fall. This structure is to be a fine one, with several stores on the ground floor and apartments on the second floor. Tentative sketches for this block have already been drawn.

Men in the building trades have been kept regularly busy throughout the greater part of 1927. It has been what may be safely called a good year for these artisans, and contractors say they can keep busy right through the present winter if favored with reasonably good weather.

Important Property Transfers.

Important real estate transactions of the year in Danielson in addition to those connected with the sale of property for the new Brooklyn bank and the Blumenthal block include the purchase by Herbert J. Barnett of the large business block fronting the square at the railroad station and running along Mechanic street to the central telephone office building. Mr. Barnett took the property over from the estate of C. H. Pellett a few weeks ago. Another important transaction was the purchase of Richard D. Banigan from Herbert J. Barnett of the property fronting Railroad square, between the W. A. Burrows and Eli J. Dagenais property and extending through to Water street. Still another involved the taking over by Decor Grenion of an important parcel of real estate on Furnace street, where the Kennedy stable was located for so many years. In December a valuable property owned by the Palace laundry company fronting on Center and School streets, was sold to the Modern laundry, which was engaged in general repairs and improvements to the property as the year was coming to a close.

Putnam Business Block and Trade School Addition

The building activities in Putnam during 1927 were not very great as compared with former years. In the business section the Seder block has just been completed at a cost of $100,000, but this is the only building of any size. The Bradley theatre was remodeled and improved at a considerable outlay.

The addition to the state trade school on Providence street was made this year at a cost of $35,000 and as much more for the equipment. This practically doubles the floor capacity. The school now has an enrollment including the evening classes of more than 500.

During the four preceding years the Putnam Savings bank, the Stoumbelis block, the Seder block adjoining it, afterwards bought by the Putnam Theatres corporation, were put up and the Putnam Inn was remodeled and enlarged.

The building occupied by the Bugbee department store was remodeled after the fire which practically destroyed it, and the Elks' block was remodeled.

During the early part of 1927 the O'Leary property was bought by the Cargill Trust company on which it purposes to erect a modern banking home. Whether that will be done during 1928 or not has not been announced.

Two Jewett City Mills Build Important Additions

The two largest building features in Jewett City during the year have been done at the Ninigret Co. mills and at the Aspinock bleachery. At the Ninigret mills a 200 by 60 foot brick addition one story in height has been built. This makes that particular part of the mill 180 by 210 feet. Warping and twisting is to be done in the new addition. The machinery will arrive in about a month. A new chimney at the Aspinock bleachery has been completed in record time. It is 250 feet high, being 100 feet higher than the former chimney. It is 20 feet in diameter at the base and ten feet at the top on the inside.

A new concrete and steel boiler house is in process of construction. It will hold two large automatic boilers which will be in the second story of the building. Parking sheds which will accommodate 70 automobiles have recently been completed on the bleachery grounds.

Several new residences have been built by Charles King, Victor Dobolek and Michael Zoldak on Ashland street, John Adam Medick on Hawkins Hill, Mr. Dennis on Taylor Hill, and the house occupied by William Broadfoot on East Main street. Ashland Cotton Co. has greatly improved the club house by an addition of four living rooms for the use of the welfare supervisor and the nurse, Mr. and Mrs. P. W. Chase. Also one-quarter of a mile of cement walk has been laid on Ashland street. The power plant at Hopeville has been increased in size this year.

CLUB WORK WITH BOYS AND GIRLS OF COUNTY WAS STARTED IN PAST YEAR

on. The squash seed was put in envelopes, three seeds in each, and given out that way. The object of this was to see who could grow the greatest total weight of squash from three seed. The potatoes were weighed out in two pounds lots and given out to see who could grow the greatest total weight of potatoes from two pounds of seed.

The season was very unfavorable for gardens but the youngsters were not discouraged and when the fair came around 46 of the Griswold boys and girls exhibited. The squash and potatoes were weighed on the fair grounds and the premiums paid. The Pachaug fair authorities were generous in their praise of the work by the youngsters and probably this work will be carried on another year.

One youngster raised a little over a bushel of potatoes from two pounds of seed; the high total weight from three squash seed was close to 70 pounds.

Dairy.

The first dairy club in the county was organized in Lebanon, May 26. This club has 24 members and is under the leadership of Elmer Geer and Russell Waldo. When the club organized its members owned only five purebreds, at the present time they have 11. This club sent 12 more on the annual two-day judging trip and had four of the six men who represented the county in the state judging contest. Two of the members of this club went to the national dairy show, one representing 4-H club work and the other on the Smith Hughes judging team. The club exhibited five animals at the county fair and sent a judging team of ten boys to judge dairy at the county fair. They also sent a demonstration team to the state contest.

The second dairy club in the county was organized November 17th. This club is known as the Out-to-Win Dairy club and is located in Waterford. George Wood, one of the two old dairy club boys in the county is their local leader.

We have prospects for a couple more dairy clubs.

Poultry.

When club work started in May we did not have any poultry clubs. At the present time we have three clubs with an enrollment of 26 boys and girls. We also have 12 boys and girls carrying on individual projects. Our three clubs are Red and White Poultry club of Stonington, Cut-Cut-Cu-Dacket club of Hanover, Wehava Poultry club of Lebanon.

Several of the boys in these clubs exhibited at local and the county fair this fall winning many premiums. There were also eight of them in the poultry judging contest at the county fair. The boys had 34 pens at the county fair.

There were several prospective club members waiting to buy baby chicks and then go into club work.

In order to stimulate interest in poultry club work, W. W. Service of Preston gave a trio of White Leghorns to the boys showing the best pen of mature leghorns at the county fair. The Cummings brothers won this trio. H. J. Larkham did the same thing for Rhode Island Reds and that pen was won by Bernard Crandall.

The Campbell Grain company offered a beautiful silver loving cup to the boy having the largest and best exhibit of poultry at North Stonington fair. Donald Chappell was the winner.

Foods.

The club work in this county starting at the time it did made it advisable to start canning club work as a means of making contacts for permanent food clubs. This was done with five canning clubs resulting in the towns of Lebanon, two; Stonington, Waterford and Hanover.

Although our program in home-making work places food club work first we have not, as yet, been able to do much along this line. We have one cooking club of 15 members which was only recently organized. This club is located in Pachaug and is under the leadership of Miss Marjorie Brewster.

There were 30 girls enrolled in food club work. They preserved 305 quarts and exhibited about 220 quarts at local and the county fair. One girl, who did not have the use of her legs, preserved over 150 pints of fruit and vegetables. I consider this a remarkable piece of work; this girl received many premiums at the state fair. Charlotte Babbitt, one of our canning club girls, who went to Chicago to enter the National Health contest, representing Connecticut, will also, barring time conflictions, enter the canning contest there. There was considerable high grade work done but next year I look for better work and completed records.

Nutrition.

We have recently formed three health clubs in a like number of schools. At present the boys and girls are keeping health food score cards on themselves and improving many other health habits.

Clothing.

Clothing club work is the only organized club work carried on in this county before May 15th. At that time we had three clothing clubs having a total membership of 30 girls. These clubs are Franklin Thimble Wearers of North Franklin, Jolly Cookies and So-ers of Gales Ferry, Happy Workers of Salem.

While all the clubs have done creditable work the outstanding work has been accomplished by the Franklin Thimble Wearers. This club, under the leadership of Mrs. Marjorie Ayer, has been carrying on a second year clothing program. The club had 17 members last year, 16 of whom received achievement certificates; the remaining one girl being away most of the year consequently did not complete her work. They not only completed their requirements but 12 of the girls formed new health habits. I simply cannot resist the temptation of giving you a summary of the work completed by this club:

Gave seven demonstrations; held a local exhibit; held an achievement program; made 48 dresses or coats; made 85 undergarments; improved 17 bedrooms; mended 320 articles; had difference between value and cost of articles made of nearly $100; furnished half expenses to send six members to junior short course; sent three members to state round-up; sent 16 members to county round-up; furnished dinner for the eastern Connecticut Poultrymen association annual meeting; sent five members out at different times with county club leader to help stimulate an interest in club work in other towns; held a club field day and several club picnics; exhibited at three fairs winning many premiums.

There is no doubt but what this club is one of the best clubs in the state and much of the credit for the success of this club should go to their leader, Mrs. Marjorie Ayer, whose exceptional leadership qualities and untiring efforts have made it possible for the club to do such good work.

The outstanding accomplishments of the Jolly Cookies and So-ers of Gales Ferry are sending every member of the club to junior short course; increasing the membership from six to 13; sending 13 to county round-up.

Our outlook for the next year is very bright. We have recently increased our clothing club enrollment from 30 to 100. We now have 10 clubs instead of three and have prospects for more. While we had three clubs exhibiting and holding achievement programs this year, next year we hope to have at least 12 and possibly more.

Beekeeping.

There were two club boys in the county who had bees and kept records on them. These boys received about 150 lbs. of honey from three colonies.

One of the boys, Stuart Babcock, exhibited at four fairs winning twenty firsts, three seconds and one third in competition with adults at all but one of the fairs. Stuart plans to increase the number of colonies next spring and go into bee club work in earnest.

Community Activities.

This county sent forty-three boys and girls to Junior Short Course held at Storrs. This is the largest number ever going from this county. The local fairs and the county fair received over two hundred entries from the club boys and girls of the county. Club Night in Lebanon sponsored by the Lebanon Dairy Club, found 130 club youngsters and interested adults attending.

Our First New London County Round-Up arranged for the purpose of stimulating more county spirit and for the purpose of getting the youngsters acquainted with one another found a little over 100 boys and girls attending.

Outlook and Recommendations.

The outlook for 4-H Club work in this county at the present time is very good. At the present time there are twenty-six clubs and we are constantly receiving requests for information about junior work.

Our program for the coming year calls for the organization of dairy and poultry clubs wherever it is advisable to form such a club. Also for food and clothing clubs. We are especially anxious to form food clubs wherever there seems to be a desire for such. Our plans also call for limited organization of health and garden clubs as well as sheep, swine, livestock, etc., where there is a genuine desire for such.

finishing furniture and considerable has been done.

Health.

Lectures and demonstrations have been given in the health project to adult and junior groups. These lectures and demonstrations were given on posture and headache, care of feet, hair, skin and nails, over and under weight and winter without colds. They were in Poquonock Bridge, Norwich Town, Lebanon, Mystic, North Stonington, Poquetanuck, Hanover, Groton, Ledyard, Leffingwell, Jewett City, Stonington.

In all thirty-five talks and demonstrations were given in sixteen communities. Many of the women and girls are demonstrating the use of these subjects by using them. The women are reporting smaller waistlines, better digestion and more comfortable feet because of the use of exercises. The demonstrations on care of the hair, skin and nails have been popular because few of the country women ever get to a beauty parlor and have not had the opportunity to learn how to do these things and yet their hands need more care because of the hard work which they do.

Home Grounds.

Only one group was assisted in this project this year. This group was in Jewett City and asked for help on planting about their homes and on flower gardens.

One woman reported this spring that she became interested in planting about her home after hearing Mrs. B. T. Avery give her little talk at one of the annual meetings three or four years ago on what she had done to make the grounds about her own home more attractive. Since that time this woman has set twenty odd evergreens about the foundation of her place, has put in a privet hedge at the edge of her back yard to hide a wood shed and chicken coops, has seen that the yard was kept mown, added a perennial garden on two sides of this yard to which she is adding things each year as she can.

MRS. ROBYSON'S REPORT FOR THE FINAL MONTHS

Mrs. Robyson's report for the work since the first of August is in part as follows:

Of the twenty-one townships in New London county, work is being carried on in fourteen regularly and occasionally in one other, representing twenty-eight groups, namely:

Lebanon, Goshen Hill and Lebanon street; Franklin; Griswold, Jewett City and Pachaug; North Stonington; Stonington, Pawcatuck, Wequetequock; Groton, Old Mystic, Mystic; Waterford, Gilead and Jordon; Lyme, Hamburg, Walnut Hill, Flanders; Salem; Bozrah, Bozrah street, Leffingwell; Norwich Town, Scotland road, Wauwecus Hill; Preston, Preston City, Poquetanuck; Ledyard, Cider Hill, Gales Ferry; Montville; Sprague, and occasional work in Hanover.

The subject matter taken up in September was largely food preservation, canning and jelly making with the test for pectin. The theoretical phase of this was the need of vegetables in the diet and the value of conserving farm products for the pantry shelf in canning and a family budget compiled showing a tabulation as to quantity and variety of fruits and vegetables needed to carry families of various sizes through the year and give to them the adequate diet needed. Some canning ran into October followed with meal cookery. In many instances the pressure cooker was demonstrated for canning and meal cookery showing economy of time, labor and money. Much interest has been shown in the use of the pressure cooker especially since it has been found that by placing the order through the farm bureau they could be purchased at practically half price. A pressure cooker has been purchased by the farm bureau for use in demonstrating.

Demonstration on Old Hens.

One interesting demonstration on meal cookery in pressure cooker was the cooking of two nine-year-old hens with vegetables and a Thanksgiving steamed pudding all done at once in an hour's time. The nine-year-old hens were brought by one of the members to be a test of the pressure cooker for tough meat cookery. The only regret of the group was that the chickens were not taken out at 40 minutes in place of at 60 when the pudding was done as the meat fell from the bones when served.

Other phases of work in October and November were the demonstrations and making of Christmas suggestions and all groups have asked and most of them had the making of felt hats and some wheel trays have been made. Since August two commercial demonstrators have demonstrated in the country. Miss Glynn from the Singer Sewing Machine company demonstrated the use of machine attachments and Miss Foster from the Colgate company the cleansing of fine textiles.

Three of the specialists have also conducted work. Miss Macdonald in health, Miss Van Cleef in clothing, and Mrs. Dakin in foods.

Plans For Next Year.

Work planned for the balance of this year and the coming year will carry on these same subjects in food and nutrition. Clothing and health and some work in various kinds of handiwork will be done, also interior decoration, room improvement and there have been requests for beautification of home grounds which will be taken up in the spring. The campaign started last year for water in the home still continues. Also considerable interest has been expressed for an exhibit at the county fair next fall to be extensively educational and have enough friendly rivalry between communities to promote interest and a large attendance.

VARNUM'S TOWERS
ON THE SHEA PLACE, IN FRANKLIN, NEAR YANTIC

ECCENTRIC CAPT. VARNUM LEFT HIS MONUMENT IN "THE TOWERS" ON FRANKLIN FARM NEAR YANTIC

Where Capt. William Varnum came from when he became a resident of Franklin many years ago seems to have remained pretty much of a mystery while he was a resident here, but at any rate he left an enduring monument there in the two stone towers at the top of the rocky bluff overlooking the Yantic valley and the Norwich-Willimantic road, where it approaches the bridge to the village of Yantic.

Tradition has it that he had sailed the seven seas and visited all parts of the world before he finally settled down on the farm in Franklin for the rest of his life and died there in the first week of January, 1879, being buried in Yantic cemetery, this city. Then it was disclosed that he had been born in Essex, Mass., 69 years ago, but no record of his parentage or ancestry is given in the Franklin vital statistics. His wife who was Mary Ann Brewster, daughter of William Brewster and Eunice Brown, residents of Bozrah, lived for 26 years after her husband's death and died at the age of 95 on Jan. 14, 1905 at the Sheltering Arms. She is also buried in the Yantic cemetery lot.

Tradition also has it that Capt. Varnum expected the tower plot to be the burial place for himself and his wife, but this expectation was never realized.

Capt. Varnum is remembered as an eccentric character, a little, old, stooped-over figure of a man, who lived with his wife in a small white house on the site now occupied by the residence of M. J. and A. E. Shea, present owners of the old Varnum farm, which includes the precipitous rocky promontory on which the towers stand. The little plateau where the towers are built has frequently been a favorite spot for picnics, but of late years Mr. Shea has been obliged to forbid this privilege to picnic parties because of acts of thoughtlessness and vandalism which even threatened to demolish the towers themselves.

These two tapering stone towers, each about 15 feet tall, occupy a commanding point in a comparatively small walled-in space on the top of the 60-foot rocky eminence, which has a perpendicular front facing the Yantic valley and the road, but is reached by a winding path from the site of the old captain's house down by the roadside. In his day, the old Hyde tavern was his neighbor at no great distance away on the other side of the road and it is related that Capt. Varnum spent much of his time there, carrying the mail for the tavern and acting as messenger and general handy man around the place. His wife was a seamstress among the principal families of Yantic and Bozrah and the captain did a little farming, so that they managed to get along and meet their simple wants.

One of the whims of the eccentric old sea captain was to build the two stone pyramidal shaped towers on top of the bluff. They were erected in a good sized plot, which he enclosed with stone walls, cleared the ground of trees, laid out flower beds planted with rose bushes and decorative shrubs and also fashioned the bed of what might serve as a shallow moat or trout pool, enclosed in stone walls. In spite of the elevation, there is always some water to be found there. Completing the landscape effect, Capt. Varnum set out three Norway spruces at the rear of the plot two of which are now standing, handsome trees of majestic height and spread of branches, but the central one was leveled and killed by a bolt of lightning several years ago.

With what an incredible amount of hand labor the erection of the towers was accomplished, when they were built probably 70 or more years ago, may be realized when it is mentioned that the captain is reported to have gathered all the stones for the towers on the slopes of the bluff and carried them up the hill in a bushel basket. Many of the larger stones used in the lower section of the towers are manifestly too large to have been so handled, but were probably gathered on the top of the bluff or from the fields nearby; however, there are thousands of the smaller stones, and probably the greater number used in the whole work, which could have been handled by the captain in his bushel basket as he toiled day after day to complete his curious plan. Somewhere in the course of his travels it is believed he had seen the beautiful landscape gardening of the countries of the Old World, and he was endeavoring to reproduce something that had fired itself in his own mind.

When the work was done, Capt. Varnum had erected the two stone towers standing about 50 feet apart, each about 15 feet high, with rectangular bases of rather irregular measurement, between 10 and 11 feet on one side and 8 and 9 feet on the other. All the stone used was selected to have flat faces and sides, no round stones being used, and all were carefully matched and fitted in to make a very workmanlike job of the completed structures. The stones vary in size from small ones only a few inches thick to those of much larger dimensions. The base of each tower runs up about five and a half feet high, where the top forms a shelf, and the central portion of the tower is set in from this end runs up about 10 feet more.

Cedar boughs were set into the stones at intervals to form a stairway by which the top could be reached, and on the top of one of the towers was a rustic railing around the edge and a flagpole set in the middle.

From the flagpole tower flew a large American flag which was presented to Capt. Varnum by William Converse, a well known resident of Norwich at one time and later of the town of Franklin. As long as he was able, Capt. Varnum never failed to keep the flag flying, climbing up the hill and to the top of the tower to unfurl the flag in the morning and taking it in at sunset.

Before the death of the captain's widow, the Varnum farm, with the tower lot, was sold to James Mackey about 1880, who occupied the place until 1889 when he sold it to Michael Shea. The old Varnum house by the roadside was torn down in 1900 and the Shea residence was erected on the site.

NEW YORK—(AP)— The campaign of 1927 on the fields of sport, passing in review, scintillates with the greatest array of individual performances since athletics began their "boom" era five years ago.

It has been a season of astonishing spectacles, of record-smashing crowds in boxing and football, of revolutionary upsets and sensational team triumphs but the achievements which chiefly attract the eye are those of Bustlin' Babe Ruth in baseball, of robot-like Rene Lacoste and poker-faced Helen Wills in tennis, of the wizard Bobby Jones in golf, the dashing Tommy Hitchcock in polo, the resourceful gentleman of the ring, Gene Tunney, and the soaring son of Yale, Sabin Carr, new pole-vaulting king.

Not since Red Grange and Paavo Nurmi stirred the world of sports with their fleet and elusive footwork has there been any set of individual feats to match the output of this 1927 galaxy of performers, record-breakers and champions. Among them it would be difficult to single out any one or two achievements that topped or outshone the rest. They were all great.

Ruth, for instance, came along to turn in probably his greatest year, shattering his six-year-old home run record as he outslugged his team-mate, Lou Gehrig, and leading the Yankee attack that crushed all American league opposition besides overwhelming the Pirates in the world's series.

The tennis-stroking master, Lacoste, was the central figure in France's great tennis thrust that ended America's seven-year hold on the Davis cup, besides lifting the singles crown of the United States for the second straight year. Equally spectacular was the home-bred of America's own, Helen Wills, who swept aside all opposition in women's tennis ranks and scaled the heights vacated by Suzanne Lenglen.

Jones Strokes Way to Two Titles.

Accustomed as the golf world has been to the shot-making genius of Bobby Jones, it thrilled to see him rise to fresh heights by winning the British open championship for the second straight year and then mow down all rivals in a match to the national amateur championship for the third time in four years.

Boxing's greatest crowd, around 145,000 who also paid $2,650,000 to make up a record-breaking "gate," saw Gene Tunney save his heavyweight crown only after a close call in his second battle with Jack Dempsey. It took a sensational rally, one of the greatest come-backs of the year in any arena, for Tunney to beat back the scowling Dempsey after being floored in the seventh round for the historic "long count," an episode that also added a long and heated controversy to the season's fistic furor.

It will be many moons, likewise, before polo followers forget the whirling, dashing play of Tommy Hitchcock, astride his piebald pony, Tobiana, as he led America's "Big Four" to victory over Great Britain in the colorful international cup classic at Meadow Brook. Or before the track and field world forgets the astonishing figure of the young man from Dubuque, Sabin Carr, as this sinewy son of Yale attained new world's pole records, scaling the almost unbelievable height of fourteen feet at the Intercollegiate championships.

These were the feats around which the main sagas were snug, the performances that embellished one of the greatest of all competitive campaigns.

The sweep of France's Davis cup team, reaching its main objective in the dramatic overthrow of the veteran American combinations, Tilden and Johnston, the mighty march of the New York Yankees in baseball's realm to the lyrical notes of the Ruth-Gehrig home run serenade, were the outstanding team accomplishments of the year.

Soldiers Field Scene of Two Greatest Spectacles

From the spectacular viewpoint the second Dempsey-Tunney scrap and the Southern California-Notre Dame football fracas, both on the same battleground, Chicago's Soldier Field, topped anything else. Both were record-breakers. The big fight failed to draw its anticipated $3,000,000 but it was well beyond anything previous in the history of boxing or any other sport. Later in the year, Notre Dame's close victory over Southern California was witnessed by 113,000 customers, breaking the football record set by the Army-Navy battle of 1926. Thus, the now-historic Soldier Field has the distinction of being the magnet on three occasions within a year for crowds well in excess of 100,000.

The year produced no such cataclysmic series of upsets as those of 1926, when Nurmi, Johnston, Jones and Dempsey were toppled at one time or another, but there were enough reversals to make it interesting. Bobby Jones himself was knocked off the American Open throne, although he came back in a blaze of titular glory. Football champions of 1926 were strewn all over the gridiron.

Rowing dynasties tottered when Harvard beat Yale for the first time in seven years in the New London classic, after which Columbia's youngsters outstroked the best the East and West had to offer in winning the Intercollegiate varsity four mile race at Poughkeepsie. These were two of the biggest and most thrilling upsets of the entire year.

BASEBALL

Not since the palmy days of the old Baltimore Orioles, Athletics or Cubs has any team risen to such dominating heights as the New York Yankees did in 1927. Packing an unprecedented punch, with the greatest long-distance hitting pair of all time in Babe Ruth and Gehrig, the Yankees won the American league pennant with ridiculous ease and set the Pirates down in the world's series in four straight games. The Yankees have now won five pennants in seven years, and the main debate for 1928 is over the question of just how they may be stopped.

Ruth and Gehrig put on a private duel and kept up general interest, even though the pennant race was declared "no contest." It was nip and tuck in the titanic home run tussle between the Yankee pair until September, when the veteran Bambino shook off his rival and set up a new record of 60 circuit clouts. This was one more than the mark set by the Babe in 1921. Gehrig finished with 47.

The remarkable "Waner Act" was the chief feature of the Pirate comeback in the National league, which in sharp contrast with its sister circuit, witnessed a spectacular four-cornered flag hunt that wasn't decided until the day before the season closed. The Pirates, groggy from the terrific pace, just managed to stagger in ahead of the St. Louis Cardinals, 1926 world's champions. The Chicago Cubs wilted after setting a good share of the mid-season pace. The Giants were the fourth contending club.

Paul Waner, batting king of the league in his second season, and his younger brother, Lloyd, a sensation in his first year under the big top, were the vital cogs in the Pirate machine. Harry Heilmann, veteran Detroit outfielder, returned to the American league batting record of landing on top every other year. Harry's streak now has run through 1921-23-25-27.

Wholesale player shake-ups topped off the playing season. Walter Johnson, after 21 straight years with Washington, went to the minors to manage the Newark Internationals for 1928. Ty Cobb was released by the Athletics. Kiki Cuyler, Pirate storm-center, went to the Cubs. George Sisler was sold for only about $25,000 to Washington as the Browns put on a house-cleaning. Harry Manush, 1926 batting champion, was traded to St. Louis along with Lu Blue for Van Gilder and Rice.

Toledo, under the guidance of the veteran Casey Stengel, won its first American association pennant and trounced Buffalo, International league champions, in the Little World's Series.

BOXING

The biggest spectacles and some of the biggest "squawks" of all time featured the fistic year. All indoor records for attendance and receipts were shattered when close to 19,000 paid $201,000 to see Jim Maloney beat Jack Delaney at Madison Square Garden in one of the year's biggest upsets. All outdoor marks went by the board for the second straight year when the Dempsey-Tunney encore drew 145,000 fans to Soldier Field, Chicago, and gate receipts that Tex Rickard placed at $2,650,000.

The big scrap fell below expectations of a $3,000,000 "house," but exceeded expectations in the amount of controversy provoked by the "long count" over Tunney in the seventh round. Dempsey partisans raised a terrific "squawk" but its only effect has been to stir up the ballyhoo for a third title bout between Gene and Jack.

Disputes were numerous over titles as well as decisions. The voluntary retirement of two champions, Fidel Labarba among the flyweights and Jack Delaney as light heavyweight king, complicated matters. The scramble was still on at the close of the year for the flyweight title, with Johnny McCoy, Frenchy Belanger and Izzy Schwartz in the lead. Tommy Loughran won the light heavyweight laurels by defeating Jimmy Slattery. The featherweight division also lacked a titleholder for the second straight year, the outstanding claimants being Benny Bass and Tony Canzoneri.

Mickey Walker went abroad to beat Tommy Milligan and retain his middleweight supremacy. Joe Dundee dethroned Pete Latzo as welter champion. Bud Taylor succeeded to the bantam throne, vacated by Charley (Phil) Rosenberg. Tod Morgan kept the junior lightweight title in spite of difficulties. Sammy Mandell, lightweight king, did not choose to take any risks.

FOOTBALL

Shattered attendance records and blasted title hopes marked the gridiron trail of 1927. Crowds that reached a climax with the throng of 113,000 at the Southern California-Notre Dame game in Chicago came out to see the favorites and champions knocked right and left. Not one of the undefeated group of 1926 survived the melee, and some of them, such as Alabama, Brown, Lafayette and the Navy, went skidding sharply down the scale. Georgia, after winning nine games in a row, was bumped off by Georgia Tech. Such strong teams as Notre Dame, Yale, Pittsburgh, Illinois Minnesota, Southern California, Texas Aggies, Missouri, Nebraska and others all had at least one bad day, when they either met defeat or were unexpectedly tied.

The suddenly discovered ineligibility of Bruce Caldwell, Yale's great halfback, on the eve of the Princeton game provided an additional sensation. As a post-season climax, the Army and Navy, temporarily at least, broke off relations over eligibility diffences.

TRACK

Pole vault supremacy, held by the sensational Norwegian, Charley Hoff for nearly five years, returned to the United States in 1927 on the winged flights of Sabin W. Carr of Yale. Carr set a new indoor world's record of 13 feet, 9¼ inches in February and then eclipsed all marks by soaring 14 feet in the intercollegiate championships in May. His feats were easily the high spot of a track and field season that saw some sterling sprint performances by the Southern California flier, Charley Borah, and Chet Bowman; a record-smashing 440-yard hurdle performance by Johnny Gibson and a series of brilliant indoor races by Lloyd Hahn.

Hahn, representing the Boston A. A., was undefeated on the boards, breaking three records and coming within one-fifth second of the mile record when he beat Edvin Wide, the Swedish schoolmaster, in 4:12 1-5 at Madison Square Garden.

Giving the Pacific coast colleges their sixth victory in seven years, Stanford's athletes won the I. C. A. A. A. A. championships, displacing Southern California. The Illinois A. C. won the National A. A. U. championships at Lincoln, Neb.

GOLF

After the glittering finish he put on by winning the British Open and National Amateur championships it was a golf puzzle to discover how Bobby Jones failed to top the National Open field, as well. Bobby was unaccountably off form at Oakmont, where he was below anything he has ever shown in the open tournament, but otherwise he was the master shot-maker, sweeping everything before him. They were epic touches, his record-breaking 285 at St. Andrews and his march through the field at Minikahda, where he beat Chick Evans in the final after George Von Elm, 1926 king, fell by the wayside. For five successive years Jones now has held at least one national championship. He won two in 1926 and 1927.

Tommy Armour and Walter Hagen set off the remaining fireworks on the links. The silent Scot came through to win the Open at Oakmont, beating "Lighthorse Harry" Cooper in the play-off, and also took the Canadian Open from a strong field. Sir Walter made golf history when he captured the Professional Golfers' Association championship for the fifth time and fourth year in a row at Dallas. Hagen also captained the American professional team that swamped British rivals in the Ryder cup matches.

The French and British women's championship, Mile. Thion de la Chaume, failed in an attempt to add the American crown to her laurels. This emblem was taken westward by Mrs. Miriam Burns Horn of Kansas City, Mo., victor over Maureen Orcott in the finals.

ROWING

Columbia and Harvard eight-oared varsity crews provided the main thrills and upsets among the sweep-swingers, as the big regattas of the year witnessed the over-throw of Yale, Washington and the Navy, the "Big Three" of the intercollegiate seas for six previous years. Columbia's young crew, including six sophomores and coached by "Young Dick" Glendon, beat Washington in the big race at Poughkeepsie, with the favorite Navy crew finishing fourth, behind California. At New London, Harvard outrowed Yale for the first time since 1920. Cambridge made it four straight over Oxford in the English college classic.

Joe Wright, Jr., strapping son of the noted Canadian coach, was the outstanding sculler of the year. Only an accident near the finish of the final for the Diamond Sculls prevented him from winning this British Henley classic and making a clean sweep of the major events. He won the national singels and set a new world's record for the quarter-mile dash of 1:12 2-5.

SWIMMING

The cradles of swimming skill, Illinois Athletic Club and Women's Swimming Association of New York, kept up their high standards in 1927. Johnny Weissmuller, supreme at short distance events for the seventh consecutive year, led the Illinois A. C. team to victory in the men's senior championships. In the women's division there was little or no opposition to the Metropolitan mermaids, who not only made a clean sweep of the championships, but shattered records in every little event. A total of 127 records were broken during the year, 71 by women and 56 by men.

Succeeding Gertrude Ederle as free-style queen, Martha Norelius captured five national titles and cracked 10 records, one of the greatest all-around performances in swimming history.

English Channel swimming attempts five of which succeeded in 1926, dwindled in the year just closed, aided by Dr. Dorothy Cochrane Logan's famous "hoax" crossing. George Young, youthful Canadian, won the Catalina Channel swim off the Pacific Coast in dramatic fashion, but was unable to repeat in the $50,000 Toronto marathon, held in his honor in August. This was won by the German baker, Vierkotter.

TENNIS

The seven-year-old American Davis Cup dynasty, established in 1920 and maintained by "Bill Bill" Tilden and "Little Bill" Johnston, toppled in the year's outstanding tennis event.

France's challengers in their third challenge round bid for the famous team trophy broke through the gallant defense of the American veterans on the final day, when Rene Lacoste beat Tilden and Henri Cochet repulsed Johnston's rally. Tilden set out to bear the main burden, aided by Francis T. Hunter, and for two days displayed some of the most brilliant tennis of his career. His stamina was unequaled to the three-day task, however, and he collapsed after figuring in two challenge round victories. Subsequently "Big Bill" was defeated again by Lacoste for the American singles title, giving the youthful French ace undisputed sway as the world's No. 1 player for the second straight year.

While Tilden's come-back failed and Johnston slipped backward, complete supremacy in women's tennis returned to America under the leadership of Helen Wills. The California girl, playing greater tennis than ever in her come-back, was undefeated as she swept through the Wimbledon as well as national championships. She conquered the Spanish star, Senorita de Alvarez, in the Wimbledon final and turned back the youthful challenge of the 16-year-old English girl, "Beaming Betty" Nuthall, in the final round at Forest Hills. Miss Nuthall's play in her first American appearances was a sensation, however, and indicated she may be the one to threaten the reign of Queen Helen.

America, with Mrs. Molla Mallory sharing the main defense with Miss Wills in the singles, retained the Wightman Cup in the series with the British team.

It was a paradox that Americans won more titles abroad than at home. Tilden was beaten in both of his main objectives abroad, losing to Lacoste in the French finals at St. Cloud and put out of the Wimbledon singles by Cochet in the semi-finals. But "Big Bill," along with Frank Hunter, Miss Wills and Elizabeth Ryan, helped win four of the five Wimbledon finals.

RIVERVIEW CLUB CAPTURES STATE BASEBALL TITLE FOR SECOND YEAR

The semi-pro baseball title for the second year went to the Riverview club of the Norwich State hospital. Riverview started toward its second title under the management of Paul Zemke, who had led the team to the peak in 1926, but early in the season the club was turned over to Joe Hamil. Under Hamil's able guidance the club continued its march for the eastern Connecticut pennant which culminated the the victory over Jim Troland's Martlfts in as colorful a baseball series as has ever been seen in Norwich.

Series were played with all the leading teams in Connecticut and in a schedule of 44 games Riverview won 37 and lost 6, a record that no team in the state can boast. A record of this magnitude gained for Riverview the recognition of state championship in semi-pro baseball. Riverview kept practically the same team during the entire season with the possible exception of the infield where several changes were made, especially at first and third base. The first base position gave Manager Hamil the most trouble. Adam Dugas, a youngster was tried out early in the season, but gave way to Zelike, who played a number games. Then Tommy Sipples was tried and Manager Hamil himself took a turn at the initial sack. Third base was guarded in the early season by Jack Sank and then turned over to the capable hands of Christy, who proved to be one of the best third sackers ever to wear a Riverview uniform.

JOSEPH HAMIL

The pitching burdens were borne for the greater part by Tony West and Lefty Dugas, although a number of recruits were given a try early in the season. Johnny Tillman along with Joe Faber were imported to play in the Taftville series at the close of the season, Tillman duplicating his feat of 1926 in winning two straight on successive days. Faber played first base.

The keystone combination of Liberty and Normandin was hard to beat and this pair performed brilliantly the entire season. Joe Belair did the catching. In the outfield were Harry Mills, Dinty Moore and Lefty Dugas, making a trio of hard-hitting boys.

Only two teams challenged Riverview's supremacy, these being Moosup Town team and Taftville, both falling before the onslaught of the Riverview club in late season series. Taftville put up the strongest fight with a team of Eastern leaguers and although taking two straight they dropped the next three to Riverview. This series topped any baseball spectacle yet seen in Norwich, with Jim Troland writing his name in baseball history. The season's records—

Plainfield Pros Held Sway In Basketball

Outside of the scholastic basketball during the year the Plainfield Pros held absolute sway in the eastern part of Connecticut and their title to champions of professional basketball was slear although disputed by the Taftville Celtics in a late season series. Plainfield romped through all opposition with the exception of the Boston Whirlwinds and the Purple Collegians of Worcester. Included among their victims were some of the strongest basketball quintets in the state and their record placed them next to the New Britain team which was accorded the state title.

In Mondi Normandin, Dissinger, Stavinitsky, Norris, Madden and Benson Plainfield had a very formidable array of basketball talent. This team playing all the season developed into a fast combination that attracted state-wide attention. Stavinitsky attracted such a favorable comment that at the beginning of the state league in November he was signed by the Meriden Endees. Whitey Bernot and Brusso, formerly of the Purple Collegians, have been added to the roster of the Pros.

The climax of the season was the winning of the series with the Taftwinning of the series with the Taftville Celtics although the Celtics used practically the entire Boston Whirlwind team. To close the season the Pros stacked up against the world's champions, the Original Celtics, in which the champions won but not without plenty of opposition.

Grandchamp Bound Over

Frederick J. Grandchamp, 18-year-old Montville youth, driver of the automobile which crashed into one occupied by William and James Towart, brothers of New York, on Mohegan hill on the night of Dec. 10, resulting in the death of William Towart and the blinding of Kenneth LaFlamme, 14-year-old Montville boy, was bound over to the January term of the criminal superior court by Justice of the Peace A. Y. Miller, before whom he was arraigned in Montville on a charge of manslaughter.

All E. C. High Schools Had Good Records in 1927

Eastern Connecticut High schools which would aslo include Westerly, of Rhode Island, enjoyed success in athletics throughout the year. Although a general falling off was noticed in football still each school has its "big" sport and some two. High schools of this section made their athletic presence known thoroughly the past year.

More honors than in a number of years came to eastern Connecticut schools during the year. In addition to the Academy's state title in baseball, Windham was accorded the right to participate in the Yale tourney in basketball, contesting for the state title. New London Bulkeley had a baseball team that was above the average of state schools while Westerly was named champs of Rhode Island.

In basketball, Windham was best, with the Academy in second place, Chapman Tech third and Stonington fourth.

In baseball, the Academy was first with Westerly second and Bulkeley a close third, Stonington ranked fourth with Chapman Tech and Windham about on an even basis.

In football, Stonington had the best record for an eastern Connecticut title. She confined practically all her efforts to this section. Had she played stronger teams as did Bulkeley, Windham and the Academy, she might not have had such a strong record, but as things were, Stonington must be named the best in eastern Connecticut. The Academy was second with Windham third, Bulkeley fourth, Westerly fifth and Chapman Tech sixth.

Basketball is just getting underway and to date Stonington with one victory in one start, has the lead. However, little of a definite nature can be gleaned from the work of teams in the present court season to date.

Among the smaller high schools, Putnam seemed to stand out for yearly work. Tourtellote High, of North Grosvenordale won the state basketball title for Class D schools at the Storrs tournament. Plainfield had a fighting football team but lightness in weight hurt their chances considerably. Bacon Academy of Colchester had a strong basketball team with a record that sent it to the tournament at Storrs. Killingly High of Danielson did well in its own class and with Billy Schofield, former Connecticut Aggie athlete, now in charge, things look bright. Wheeler High school of North Stonington, a smaller school than the rest in this section, played second teams and in tennis was strong.

The Eastern Connecticut-Western Rhode Island Interscholastic Athletic council continued to operate, although in but one sport was it at full membership, four teams. Its members were Westerly High, Stonington High, Chapman Tech and Norwich Free Academy. The feature of this league's activitiy during the year was the post season baseball championship game in which the Academy defeated Westerly and permanently secured a large trophy for winning the league title for three consecutive seasons. The basketball title, seemingly won by the Academy, was not awarded because of alleged violation of amateur rules.

Prospects for the coming year are bright with all teams seemingly strong in basketball, the Academy and Bulkeley good in baseball and most of the teams having capable material ready for football.

Action Aplenty In Norwich Basketball

Norwich basketball during the year was confined solely to the Y. M. C. A. gym where the Academy, City League, C. F. C. and Y Seniors provided the action. Basketball, however, enjoyed its most successful year in Norwich in many years.

The Y Seniors, also coached by William C. McKean, physical instructor of the Y and Academy mentor, had a successful year, finishing up by winning the championship of the City league that was conducted during the latter part of the season.

The C. F. C. campained among the state's amateur with equal success winning 17 and losing 17. They are again in the midst of a basketball season and are doing very well again for 1927-28, and will probably establish even a better record than they did in 1926-27.

The Y Emps also played and claimed the eastern Connecticut junior championship. Likewise, they are going well this year.

The Academy and Y Seniors have not yet opened their seasons.

ACADEMY ATHLETIC TEAMS ENJOY SUCCESSFUL SEASONS DURING 1927

Baseball Team Wins First State Title in Over 15 Years—Eastern Connecticut Interscholastic League Title Captured By Basketball Quintet—Tennis Team Takes Title For Sixth Consecutive Year.

Academy athletics during the year continue to bask in the warm, bright rays of success although slightly shadowed at times by clouds of injury and inexperience.

The local high school's athletic fortunes which had been steadily mounting during the last couple of years reached their zenith with the 1927 baseball campaign when for the first time in 16 years, in any sport, a state championship came to the Red and White.

EARLE E. BRIGHAM
Coach of Academy Nine

There wasn't a sport during the year that could not be classified as successful. Basketball in its first year, was more successful, even though the squad lost more games than it won. In baseball the state championship which came to the Red and White for the first time in nearly a decade was well earned. In football, although tied by Bulkeley and beaten by Stonington, the campaign was no failure. In track, the locals did well, winning a dual meet, with Chapman Tech, for the first time in six years while in cross-country, the squad won every dual meet, the only black mark being that of fininshing third in a field of four in the interscholastics. In tennis, the Red and White continued its supremacy over eastern Connecticut, claiming titular honors, for the fifth consecutive year.

BASEBALL

Baseball again established the best record of any sport for the year. The Red and White nine, coached by Earle E. Brigham and captained by Lloyd C. Jarvis, pitcher-outfielder, won 16 games and lost but 2. The nine scored 165 runs against opponent's 66. The team did not start so impressively, although in their early games they were hardly threatened. The first defeat came at the hands of New Haven Hillhouse by a 3 to 1 score. The local team had its "off" day that time, the winners being presented all their runs on errors. The team then picked itself up and started again, soon swinging back into real devastating stride until Westerly came here and inflicted the other defeat. Errors and bad judgment proved the Red and White's undoing in this game.

The features of the year were the wins over Warren Harding High of Bridgeport here Memorial Day, 4 to 3, that carried with it a definite and valid claim to the Connecticut scholastic title, two wins over Bulkeley, traditional rival, the first time this had been accomplished in six years, the winning of the Eastern Connecticut and Western Rhode Island Interscholastic league championship by a victory over Westerly in a post-season game and finally a no-hit, no-run decision over New Britain.

The Harding game was played before what was considered the largest crowd ever to witness an Academy athletic contest, some 6,000 jamming every available vantage point. Harding was undefeated when they laced up their shoes for this game and for the entire season this was their only setback. They were complete master of western and central Connecticut, even defeating, badly, Hillhouse, only Connecticut club to win over N. F. A. This Harding-N. F. A. game was really a test of east and west. The two victories over the Orange and Black of Bulkeley came after the most thrilling up-hill battles ever staged between these deadly rivals, in the game at the campus the Academy was five runs in the rear and won 6 to 5 while at New London Bulkeley at one time held a five run lead but a 7-run rally in the eighth inning finally netted an 11 to 10 win. The wins over Westerly (two in three games) also really carried with them the championship of southern New England for Westerly was afterwards declared champs of Rhode Island. Three pitchers worked against the vaunted New Britain nine and allowed them nary a run or hit. Other wins of importance were gained over Wilby of Waterbury, Weaver of Hartford, Torrington most by large scores, besides those over local teams. Morris (Mace) Goldblatt, catcher and veteran of three years was elected to captain the 1928 nine.

FOOTBALL.

It was a close race between football and basketball as to which drew the most attention or which was most successful. Football will be taken up first because of the newness of basketball at the school. Age before beauty, they say. The grid aggregation went through a fairly successful campaign, winning five, losing three and tying one. The 6-6 tie with New London Bulkeley, ancient rival, detracted greatly from the season's being declared one of real success. The team scored 82 points and 72 points were yielded. The defeat by Stonington, the first in six years, also hurt a bit, although in this game there was some excuse, injuries to three regulars proved an insurmountable handicap. In the Bulkeley game there was no excuse. The other defeat, to Warren Harding High of Bridgeport, was really no bad stigma for the Presidents were afterward generally acclaimed as state champs. Features of the season were wins over Windham, Wilby of Waterbury, and Torrington while Chapman Tech and Westerly also fell. The Windham decision was the biggest boost for the Red and White, it being the Willimantic club's first loss to an eastern Connecticut high school in five years and the Academy's first win over Windham in six. Courtland Whitney was coach and John Marks captain. Aimee (Buck) LaCroix end and veteran of two years was elected to captain the 1928 eleven.

BASKETBALL.

Basketball had its first year at the local school during the season of 1926-27 and although the team lost more games than it won and was outscored by over 100 points still the campaign can be tagged a success.

The team started well, meeting local independent teams for the most part in the first month and winning three and losing two. However, after New Year's they hit the high schools and lost six straight before winning from Stonington. After this game again the team seemed to slow up but again came up with the Kingswood game which was lost by a close margin. The next game, Putnam was a victory, the next a defeat from Torrington and then all the rest were victories and glorious, hard-earned ones, too. The last four games showed that the club had the old fighting spirit, the quintet grappling stubbornly all the way.

The team was generally adjudged the best in the eastern Connecticut-Western Rhode Island Interscholastic league but because of a technality was not officially awarded the trophy. However, a local merchant presented one instead during the Weaver-N. F. A baseball game and things probably were alright.

Features of the season were the wins over Stonington (twice), Bulkeley of Hartford, Chapman Tech and Bulkeley, the Academy's ancient rival.

Raymond Terrington, forward was captain and William C. McKean coached the team and to him much credit is due. James Kelly, guard, was elected to captain the 1928 quintet.

Recapitulation — Won 8; lost 13. Points scored 485; opponents' points 610.

OTHER SPORTS.

There were three other sports officially recognized at the school, tennis, track and cross-country and although they were not so well known, still successful seasons were turned in. The tennis team retained its eastern Connecticut championship for the fifth consecutive year. This year the racquet-wielders branched out a bit in their activities, meeting some strong teams of New England and that is the reason that the won and lost percentage is not so high. However, the Red and White still holds sway away over its own section. Features were wins over Chapman Tech. John Williams was coach and Cassidy Driscoll captain.

Track enjoyed its most successful campaign in many years. This sport long dormant, or near so, at the school was successfully revived by Coach Matthew Sheridan and, considering the available material, the season's record is good. Chapman Tech was downed in a dual meet and that was the bright light of the year for it was the Academy's first track victory in nearly five years. Arthur Armstrong was captain and he added up many points for the squad.

In cross-country the team won every dual meet but finished third in the Interscholastic run. Features were the wins over New London Bulkeley, Westerly and Stonington. Paul Holdridge was captain and Matthew Sheridan coach.

Leaving for Europe in Spring

Rev. Edwin Bradford Robinson, D. D., and Mrs. Robinson, of Holyoke Mass., formerly of Lisbon, are planning to leave in the spring for two month's trip in Europe.

At the White House today the President and Mrs. Coolidge will hold the customary New Year's Day reception to official Washington and to the general public.

POETRY

A New Year

A New Year's gift, a calendar—it hangs
A sheaf of leaves, each day a white, clean square,
And I, a pilgrim, moving down the way
To live them there.

The winter days are maps of gleaming fields:
Unbroken stretches for my pilgrim feet.
(God, may I come to where Love's fire burns, Steadfast and sweet).

The spring days are closed gardens hedged in green
Where I shall walk new paths of keen delight.
(God, as the old brown earth keeps faith, help me Keep my faith bright).

The summer days are there to lead me on Down little beckoning paths that twist and wind.
(God, may Hope wait at every blossoming turn
My feet shall find).

The autumn days are tipped with light and flame;
The pressed wine of the gold and scarlet years.
(Should some gray day among them sadden me,
God, dry my tears).

And I, a pilgrim, moving down the way
To meet them there.

—By Grace Noll Crowell in the Delineator.

Roll Out, O Song

Roll, out, O song to God!
Move on, ye throngs of men!
Chances and changes come and go:
God changeth not! Amen.
And on the throngs of men
On worrying care and strife,
Sinks down, as if from angel tongues,
The word of hope and life.

Down in the darksome ways
And worrying whirl of life
Sinks, like a strain of vesper-song,
The thought of His great strife
Who, of the virgin born,
Made all our chains his own,
And broke them with His own right arm
Nor left us more alone.

Amid the weak, one strong,
Amid the fallen, one true,
Amid all change, one changeless thing
One hope we never shall rue.
In whose sight all is now,
In whose love all is best;
The things of this world pass away—
Come, let us in Him rest.
Amen.

—Frank Sewall.

SEARCH FOR MISSING GIRL BRINGS WORD OF SIX CASES

WESTERLY, R. I., Jan. 1.—Active work in the searching the waters of the Pawcatuck river for the body of a girl, reported as washed over the Stillmanville dam at an early hour Thursday afternoon, was resumed shortly after 3 p. m. Sunday. Albert F. Lawton, residing at 110 West Broad street, Pawcatuck, reported to Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown, that he saw the body pass under the Stillmanville bridge as he crossed it to the Connecticut side of the Pawcatuck river. Search was made by the Westerly police, members of the Watch Hill Coast Guard and numerous other persons until dark Thursday night. The search continued Friday.

Capt. Amos E. Broadmeadow, keeper of the Watch Hill Coast Guard station and a crew of five surfmen took the Watch Hill station breeches-buoy together with the rigging to the property of the Fisk Rubber company in the Westerly side of the Stillmanville dam. A coast guardsman took a light line across the bridge to the Connecticut side where it was carried to the top of the one-story addition to the brick mill adjoining. A hawser was drawn across and made fast to iron piping. Before this the hawser was received through the breeches-buoy block and both ends of the hawser made fast stretching across the turbulent river waters just below the dam. Lines were secured to each side of the buoy for its operation back and forth across the river. Assisting the coastguardsmen were gathered Sunday afternoon Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown, Police Patrolmen Robert M Kessel, George L. Madison and Frank E. Knight.

When everything was in readiness, Capt. Broadmeadow thrust his boot legs through the breeches-buoy and the start across stream begun. Not ten feet from the Rhode Island river bank the sagging line dipped and the coast guard captain was wet through up to his armpits. Boots filled with water and were nearly dragged off by the river current before the opposite mill building was reached, where he clambered out. Chief Brown escorted Capt. Broadmeadow to the Westerly side of the river, where in the mill building his wet clothing was removed.

Operations were suspended temporarily until a large hawser could be secured from the Watch Hill Coast Guard station and river work continued. Strong river current increased by Saturday's heavy rainfal., prevented the successful use of any boat below the dam. The Westerly authorities are of the opinion that the body is held in the whirlpool just below the dam or caught in jagged rock on the river bottom. From the breeches-buoy they hope to grapple and bring to the surface, or satisfy themselves that no body is lodged there.

There have been reported to Chief Brown more than six cases of missing girls, among them being two from Arctic, R. I., one from Woonsocket, also one from Marlboro, Mass., Dia Duhamel, 17, who left home in September, 1927.

Mary Bekizuk, a 16 year old Polish girl, residing on Fairview avenue, off John street, was reported Thursday as absent from her home by her sister, Mrs. Thomas Saddow of John street. Recently employed in the textile plant of the George C. Moore company, about the 7th of December she was thought to have gone to Stonington to visit a relative. Friday it was learned that she was not there and search was extended to New London Saturday where her people and Polis Officer Robert M. Kessel passed a day in fruitless search. The first of last October Miss Bekisuk figured in an attempted assault case on John street, when she was the complaining witness against Nicholas Diganci of Canal street. When the case came to trial Diganci was found guilty and sentenced by Judge Oliver H. Williams to one year in Providence county jail. On appeal, Diganic in Washington county superior court, received a deferred sentence. Since this episode Chief Brown reports that the girl seldom left home unaccompanied.

The new year was ushered in at Westerly with watch and prayer meetings. At Christ Episcopal church the chimes were played shortly before midnight. Grace Methodist church and Broad Street Christian church and the People's Mission in Pawcatuck held services. Westerly and Pawcatuck inns reported reservations made for New Year's parties, chiefly by people from out of town. Many Westerly people motored to inns, roadhouses, restaurants and city hotels, where they watched the old year out and new year in. Through traffic by automobiles was heavy, there being noted the new auto plates of New Jersey, New York, Connecticut and Massachusetts or more distant states. Westbound New Haven express trains were operated in several sections. The New England Coach Line of through busses from Boston to New York operated eight or ten motor busses through Westerly. A New Eng and line Pierce-Arrow bus on Broad street sustained a brokentransmission, as it was about to cross the Pawcatuck river bridge. Baggage and passengers were transferred to a coach ahead. A truck of the New England company towed the damaged bus back to Boston Sunday morning.

MANAGER ORDERED TO COURT—THEATRE PROGRAM TOO LATE

WESTERLY, R. I., Jan. 1.—Chief Brown, accompanied by Westerly police officers on Saturday night visited dance halls, amusements places and other establishments usually operated until an early morning hour. At the state armory on Dixon street the Battery E management was notified by Chief Brown to have the dancing stopped at midnight Saturday. Other officers visited Westerly restaurants, directing them to close at the town ordinance hour of 1 a. m. exactly. Barber shops were instructed to close and where customers remained to have the window shades drawn.

At the United theater on Canal street, Manager John Finley had advertised an eight act vadueville extra show beginning at 11.30 p. m. Rumors spread about town that the town council or police committee had met on Saturday to take measures for stopping the entertainment program. A crowd collected outside the theater entrance to await developments. At 12.10 a. m. Chief Brown and Officer Norman entered the theater, sought out Manager Finley and a summons was served upon him to appear at the regular session of the third district court before Judge Oliver H. Williams Briday morning next to answer to a charge of infraction of the state statute governing shows and exhibitions.

The Sabbath school of Pawcatuck Seventh-day Baptist church held its Christmas festival Sunday night. Supper was served in the vestry to members of the school and congregation at 6 o'clock and was followed by a program in the auditorium. The distribution of gifts and candy followed.

At the People's Mission in Pawcatuck Saturday night there gathered over a hundred children, their parents and friends of the mission for the Christmas party. A big Christmas tree was lighted and Santa Claus, Howard Martin of Potter Hill, appeared and distributed candy and oranges to every child in the school and audience. Mrs. Alexander Smith and teachers of the school were in charge.

She has been a popular nurse and is a member of the D. A. R. After a motor trip, Mr. and Mrs. Bailey will reside in Stanton Lane, West Mystic.

NOANK

The auxiliary members gave their brother firemen a time Friday night at their rooms on Cedar street. A large Christmas tree was decorated gayly. At the base was the American flag. Red firemen's lanterns were hanging from the branches. Each person was asked to bring a ten-cent present. After the short program, the assembly lined up, 50 strong, and with Foreman Albert Banks in the lead, marched around the room for ten minutes as the piano was played. Mrs. H. H. Park gave out the presents to everyone. Opening them was like taking your grandmother to a circus, for some funny presents the smoke-eaters sure had. A box as high as the piano held only a 10-cent flute, etc., John Camerey sang "Where is My Reindeer Which was lost at West View?" Arthur De Bealsi told about hanging up his hock at a firemen's tree in Little Rock, Ark., and finding a nozzle and a red hat in it. After there was a lunch of sandwiches, cake, cheese-bits and coffee. It was a real night for the fire-fighters and their auxiliary.

Twenty-five basket ball fans attended the game between the Shamrock team and the M. I. team of New London, in Columbia hall Friday evening. It was some battle.

Frank Carpenter's dog stretch ran away from his home on Elm street Friday morning to where his master was working in the school yard. About 10 o'clock, a large touring car came by and two more dogs and Stretch went after the auto. The wheel ran over Carpenter's dog which got too close and was killed outright on East Main street. His master was sorry to lose the dog which was being trained and was a real pet. It was three years old and was half bloodhound. The dog's mother was killed after Stretch was born, so Mr. Carpenter brought the puppy up on a bottle. The driver stopped and asked if there was any damages, but Mr. Carpenter told him no, as it was the dog's fault. Many more dogs, he claims, will follow Stretch's trail if they don't break the habit of chasing automobiles.

Jake MacMahon was coming from New London to his home Thursday evening when the fog was so thick that he could not see his hand in front of im. Jake thought he was making the turn from Groton to Midway, but took the wrong one. He thought he was near Noank, and was in search of his house, stopping the car to let the party out who was in the auto for Noank, but found he had the wrong house and discovered he was in Center Groton. Trying again, he was about three hours on the road. It was 1 o'clock Friday morning when he saw Night Cop Elmer Baker walking his beat on Elm street. Then he knew he was in Noank. It took him four hours and 30 minutes from New London the first time that he ever got lost with an auto in the fog.

Cam Carson was in Charlestown, R. I. Friday.

An extension course for teachers will be conducted at Poquonnoc next month. Four local school teachers have signed up for the course. It will be held weekly every Tuesday, and every session will last one and a half hours for 15 weeks. Dr. Raymond Mosher, of the New Haven Normal school, under the joint auspices of the New Haven school and department of education of Yale University, will give the course, also will instruct the teachers in methods of teaching in elementary schools. This course will be a step toward the bachelor of arts degree and will help out those who could not attend the summer school. The course is not compulsory.

A GENERAL FEELING OF ASSURANCE NOW PREVAILS IN COMMERCIAL CIRCLES

NEW YORKK, Jan. 1—(AP)—Contemplation of 1928 prospects occupied the minds 23545thbusinessuoquietDz me the minds of American business men during the mid-holiday week. A general feeling seemed to prevade comerdial circles that, barring unforeseen developments, recent predictions of a prosperous year wauld be carried out.

Meanwhile, there were a few tangible indications of reviving industry. Steel in particular, felt the impetus of increasing orders. Buying of rails continued by the large transportation systems, which also came into the market for locomotives and equipments, benefiting not only the steel trade but the railway equipment industry. Last minute purchases of cars were sufficiently large to carry this year's total slightly above the record for 1926.

Automobile makers also have increased their buying of pig iron, which is regarded as a forerunner of increasing production. At the moment, however, the automotive industry was quiet due to the taking of inventories and preparing for the 1928 schedule. Reports of an impending price war have been revived, accompanying preliminary announcements of new price lists to be made known by manufacturers of some low-priced cars early this year. In this connection, also, there are reports of huge advertising campaigns now in course of preparation. Although opinion appeared to differ on the record made by the 1927 holiday trade, the majority report indicated larger buying than in the preceding December. Extremes of weather early in the month proved a complicating factor in the wearing apparel trade, which ordinarily is at its best in the closing weeks of a year. The textile field reported some favorable developments, and a gradual stiffening of prices.

The continued shrinking of car loadings caused no acute uneasiness, as traffic movements in late December are expected to fall off. Merchandise loading and shipments of grain were somewhat above the figures for the corresponding weeks of 1926.

In the crops divison, winter wheat, was variously reported benefited and retarded by weather conditions, rain and snow being welcome in Kansas and northern Texas, while extreme cold further north had a retarding effect.

A hardening of call money rates was regarded as entirely seasonal, and due to heavy demand for funds at the year's end. Apprehensions of a general stiffening of time money charges going this year were abandoned when it was pointed out that the huge supply of gold held on deposit here could be reduced by perhaps a billion dollars without a serious drain on the credit reservoir. Gold shipments continued during the week, consignments going to France, Holland and Latin America. The recent flow to Canada, however, was reversed, about $3,500,000 coming back to this marke with the lowering of Canadian exhange to a discount.

Bank clearings in the abbreviated week were about 23 per cent. below the figures for the week befor, but a shad above the corresponding period of the preceding year.

NEW YORK, Jan. 1.—(AP)—Wall street begins the new year in the stock market with the average of 20 leading industrial issues, compiled by the Associated Press, at 187.17, a new high record for all time, and nearly 45 points above the level at the close of last year. The average of 20 leading rails closed at 146.86, compared with the high of 152.95 a few months ago, and 126.75, the final figure of 1926.

The new stock of Pressed Steel Car company, resulting from the recent three for one split-up, is expected to be admitted to trading on the New York Stock echange on Tuesday.

Business in the financial district will be at a standstill tomorrow through observance of the New Year holiday. The stock exchange, curb market, cotton exchange, all other securitie sand commodities markets and the banks will be closed.

RULES FOR YOUNG WRITERS

3—Short and pointed articles will be given preference. Do not use over 250 words.

4—Original stories or letters only will be used.

5—Write your name, age and address plainly at the bottom of the story.

POETRY FOR THE WIDE-AWAKES

The Best Things.

I said it in the meadow path,
I said it on the mountain stairs—
The best things any mortal hath
Are those which every mortal shares.

The air we breathe, the sky, the breeze,
The light without us and within—
Life with its unlocked treasuries,
God's riches—are for all to win.

The grass is softer to my tread,
For rest it gives unnumbered feet;
Sweeter to me the wild rose red,
Because she makes the whole world sweet.

Into your heavenly loneliness
Ye welcome me, O solemn peaks!
And me in every guest you bless,
Who reverently your mystery seeks.

Rich by my brethren's poverty—
Such wealth were hideous! I am blest
Only in what they share with me.
In what I share with all the rest.

And up the radiant peopled way,
That opens into worlds unknown,
It will be life's delight to say:
"Heaven is not heaven for me alone."
—Lucy Larcom.

His Way.

You said if you but knew
What was God's will you gladly would it do,
Yet, when one said to you, "Your duty's here!"
You said, "What right has she to interfere!"
Yet this was how He showed
His will for you.

You said if you could see
What was God's plan for you, how glad you'd be!
But when you found His plan meant grief and woe;
Meant others lifted up, while you stayed low,
You said, "This cannot be
His plan for me!"

You said if you could feel
God's hand was guiding you through woe or weal,
Nothing would matter—anything you'd bear!
Trust Him; and at the end you shall declare
How lovingly with you
The Lord did deal.
—Mary E. Tongue, in Girl's Own Paper.

Life.

Within my hands I hold a flame—
A torch—a star—a twinkling light—
Companioned by it whence I came
I bear it ever, day and night.

Its rays stream down like golden rain
Upon the tortuous road before,
On sharp-edged stones that show a stain
From feet that trod this path of yore.

And if I raise my torch, I see
That beauty in the hedges grows—
The crimson foxglove bows to me,
The bluebell beckons, and the rose.

But when aloft I hold my light,
It meets the stars—with them to blend
And form a beam so wondrous bright
That it shall reach my journey's end.
—Ivy Clementi in Girl's Own Paper.

UNCLE JED'S TALK TO THE WIDEAKAKES.

How do you treat your fellow passengers on the street cars members of the Wideawake page? Here is a public conveyance which conveys a large majority of strangers and in which a person judges the breeding of another. A good test of our good breeding is found in our treatment of strangers—in order to be truly courteous one must be courteous to all. It does not make any difference whether or not we expect to see the person again.

In the street car courtesy can be shown to the conductor, who is a person subject of considerable annoyance and sometimes is abrupt to his passengers. Always help in every way to assist the conductor—do not try to heap more trouble upon his shoulders. Be sure to have the right change ready, if possible, and if you do not have the change do not try to give him your coin or bill before he gets to you. But do not try to delay the conductor, paying your fare at the proper time and without annoyance.

In getting on the trolley always remember to be courteous to the old, assisting them onto the trolley and to a seat, if there is a vacant one. In taking your seat bear in mind to be considerate of your fellow passenger. If, in the summer time, and he has a window open do not request him to close it if it does not agree with you, but take another seat that is vacant. In this case priority rules.

If there are no seats in the trolley seek a place that does not inconvenience the other passengers or the conductor. A good place to stand is under the straps, which are suspended from the ceiling and are put there for the convenience of the passengers. Do not use more than one strap as other passengers in the trolley may wish to use one of them and is trying to get along without any.

LETTERS WRITTEN BY WIDE-AWAKES

My Hunting Trip.

Dear Uncle Jed—As I am very interested to write to you, I am going to tell you about my nice hunting trip. Sunday my brother Nicholas and I decided to go hunting. We started out from home and went half a mile into the woods. On the way we saw the ground covered with evergreens. I said, "Let us stop and pick some evergreens for Christmas." We did not go any farther because we wanted to make beautiful wreaths for Christmas. Nicholas said "?" have a bag full. That is plenty." After the bag was full, we left it in the same place.

We went to find some "princess-pine." We walked and walked until we came to some princess pine. We stopped to pick some. After we got enough we started back to the evergreens that we picked. While we were coming back we saw a little rabbit carrying six leaves to make its home. When he saw us he dropped the leaves and ran into a hole. We went over where the rabbit dropped the leaves and brought them near the fence and left them near the hole. Then we went to get the bag full of evergreens. But when we got to the place the bag of evergreens were not there. We did not bother to pick any more because it was too late. We went home and said good night to the little frightened rabbit.

Our Pet Dog.

Dear Uncle Jed—I am going to tell you about "our pet dog."

Last Saturday afternoon my father brought home a small Collie dog for my sister's Christmas present. His name is Teddie and is always playing with our toes. He pulled off one of my tassels on my house slipper. He is six weeks old. I like him very much.

RITA BERARD, Age 12.

Dear Uncle Jed: I have not written to the Wide Awake page for some time and would like to tell you about the Christmas party we held at our house. They were fifteen boys and girls present and all had an enjoyable time. We played games, such as pinning the tail on the donkey, drop the kerchief and blind man's buff. After the games light refreshments were served, followed by the presentation of gifts, all present being remembered. All were sorry that Uncue Jed could not be present. I will write again telling you about the gifts I received at Christmas.

CECELIA BROWNING, Aged 12.

DINNER IN THE WOODS.

Dear Uncle Jed: It has been quite a little while since I have written to you and the Wide Awake circle. So I thought I would tell you about an afternoon after school hours.

It was one Thursday afternoon when there was a teachers' meeting; so school let out at half past twelve. There were about seventeen girls going home the same way.

On our way home we saw a beautiful little grove of pines. So we went in this little grove. We had not had our dinner so the four largest girls got all the sandwiches and cake and passed it around to the little children. I was among the four largest girls, so I helped also.

When we got through our dinner it was half past one. Then we played games and had a pleasant afternoon. When we went home it was about three o'clock. I hope that the Wide Awake Circle have enjoyed afternoons in a grove of pines.

DORIS EILEEN NEWMAN, Age 11.

LIKES TO READ.

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the first time I have written to the Wide Awakes, but it will not be the last time, as I would like to receive one of your books. I am 11 years old and am in the fifth grade. I like to read books and am often found by my mother with a book in my hands. Doing odd jobs for my mother comes before reading and I often help her with the chores. I like to help my mother and often wonder if the members of the Wide Awake page feel the same way. I will close now wishing all the members of the Wide Awake page and Uncle Jed a Happy New Year.

JACK M'CORMICK, Age 11.
Montville.

Training Myself.

Dear Uncle Jed:—Last summer vacation my cousin came to our house to stay with us. Every day he would call me and say, "let us have a fight." We put on our boxing gloves and both commenced to fight. I never knew how to fight as I though I couldn't and that's what was the matter with me. The first thing I knew I was knocked out. This happened to me every time we fought.

One morning I got up early and went to the road, filled a bag of sand and tied it on a low branch of a tree. I put on my boxing gloves and started to punch the bag as hard as I could. When the bag came toward me I dodged. I continued this for one week. When I was perfectly sure that I could stand for myself I asked my cousin if he would try again. He certainly did. We no sooner began to fight than to my surprise I saw him lying on the ground. I'm pretty sure I can defend myself against my cousin now, and maybe some of the Wideawakes, too.

I'm not trying to boast, but you Wideawake readers just try to do what I did and see if you get the same results.

NUNZIA JACARUSI.

The Cat and the Mouse.

Dear Uncle Jed:—This is the second time I have written to you. I hope you and the Wideawakes will enjoy my story.

I have a cat. He is yellow and white. One day while he was down cellar we saw a mouse. We called him and he saw the mouse. The mouse ran everywhere. At last the cat caught it.

IRENE ALLARD, Age 9.
Plainfield, Conn.

My Accident.

Dear Uncle Jed:—I will write and tell you about my accident.

While I was playing hide-and-seek, I was running across the road and a bicycle was coming which knocked me down. I struck my head on the curb of the sidewalk.

The doctor came and took three stitches in my forehead and I was told to be very careful. It didn't heal up well and my face swelled about twice its size.

In the end I had scarlet fever and I was in the house six weeks; not only one, but my sisters and brothers as well.

Hoping you like my letter and wishing you a joyful Christmas.

The white gift service was held in Clara Hall Memorial church Christmas Sunday, when every class in the Sunday school and all organizations presented slips or gifts telling where they were to be sent.

Dr. Harry Allen of Hartford, who is seriously ill at the Hartford hospital is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Allen of this town.

JEWETT CITY

CONGREGATIONAL ROLL CALL ATTENDED BY NEARLY SIXTY

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, Jan. 1—The annual New Year's gathering, roll call and business meeting were combined in one evening at the Congregational church, New Year's eve. In spite of the rain nearly sixty were present. Seldom has the vestry been so attractive. The tables were arranged in a hollow square, and quantities of brilliant natural poinsettias adorned them. Lighted candles, amid ferns, primroses, cinnerarias, lilies of the valley, with sprays of hemlock were also employed as decorations. In the center of the square stood a white-draped table on which were three sets of candelabra holding lighted red candles. Red carnations and poinsettias on desk and piano completed the artistic effect. A supper of cold meat, macaroni, salad, jelly, rolls, cup cakes and chocolate candy were served. Tea was poured by Mrs. Andrew McNicol, Mrs. F. E. Robinson, Mrs. E. A. Faust, Mrs. L. G. Buckingham, Mrs. F. D. Ballou, and Mrs. W. A. Richardson. They were assisted by Misses Christine Marshall, Priscilla Goodenough, Olga Zegeer, Isabel Marshall, Bessie Thompson, Virginia Goodenough and Clara Richardson. The supper arrangements were in charge of Mrs. Andrew McNicol.

Roll call followed the supper, Clerk Alex McNicol calling the names of the members of the church. Many absent members sent written responses.

The annual business meeting followed, conducted by the pastor, Rev. G. F. Goodenough. He gave a comprehensive report of the work accomplished this year. He has made four hundred calls during the year. Reports for the Ladies' society were given by Mrs. F. E. Robinson, Mrs. C. D. Wolf reading the statement of the treasurer, Mrs. Walter Marshall for the Missionary society by Mrs. Robinson for Miss Helen Hull, the choir by Mrs. E. H. Hiscox, and the Sunday school and the church by the clerk. The officers elected are: Clerk, Alex McNicol; trustee for three years, F. E. Robinson; deacon for three years, L. G. Buckingham; deaconness for two years, Mrs. J. C. Hawkins; auditor, Alex McNicol; tresaurer, F. E. Robinson; assistant treasurer, L. G. Buckingham; auditor of envelopes, Earl Robinson; members from the church on the standing committee, Mrs. F. E. Robinson, Mrs. L. G. Buckingham, Mrs. C. D. Wolf.

MR. AND MRS. N. J. BABCOCK MARK GOLDEN ANNIVERSARY

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, Jan. 1—Mr. and Mrs. N. J. Babcock noted their fiftieth wedding anniversary Saturday with a family party. Four generations were represented. Mr. and Mrs. Babcock, Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Cook and ten months old daughter, all of East Killingly. Mr. and Mrs. Adelbert Babcock and son of Jewett City were also in the family circle. They received $82.50 in money, besides flowers and cards. Eccleston class and Whatsoever circle of The King's Daughters gave them gold pieces and flowers. Mr. and Mrs. Babcock were married in Jewett City, December 31st, 1877 by Rev. Ralph H. Bolles and have lived here always. Mrs. Babcock was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Jeffrey. In Mr. Babcock's younger days he was second hand in the carding room in Slater mills. Mrs. Babcock is a past noble grand of Ruthie Rebekah lodge, chaplain of the American Legion auxiliary, a past warden of the N. E. O. P., a member of Faith chapter, O. E. S., the W. R. C., and D. of V. of Norwich and a member of the Baptist church and its organizations.

MARRIED 62 YEARS—TOWN'S LAST C. W. VETERAN

JEWETT CITY, Jan. 1—Mr. and Mrs. George Lindell celebrated the sixty-second anniversary of their marriage by keeping open house for relatives and friends Sunday. A roast turkey dinner was served and visiting relatives brought refreshments. They were remembered with several gift pieces and many other gifts. Mr. and Mrs. Lindell were married Dec. 31, 1865 in Centerville, R. I., by Rev. John Brayton. Mr. Lindell was born May 31, 1847 in Coventry, R. I., and Mrs. Lindell who was Louise Webster, was born in South Kingston, Oct. 13, 1847. They have lived in Lisbon, but for several years have owned a home on Pachaug road. Mr. Lindell served in the Civil war in Second company, R. I., volunteers. He is the only surviving Civil war veteran in the town of Griswold. They have four children, Mrs. Willis F. Nelson, Portland, Me., George Lindell Uxbridge, Mass., Mrs. Ernest Blake, West Warwick, R. I., Mrs. William Phillips, Lisbon and Herbert Lindell, Glasgo and Walter Lindell, Holyoke. They have 22 grandchildren and five great grand children.

Over thirty friends came to congratulate Mr. and Mrs. Lindell coming from Portland, Me., Uxbridge, Mass., East Greenwich, Wickford, West Warwick and Davisville, R. I., Putnam, Columbia, Glasgo, Lisbon and Jewett City.

The executive board of Jewett City chapter, American Red Cross, met last week and appointed committees. The home service chairman is Dr. G. H. Jennings and secretary, Miss Katherin Barnett; production committee, Mrs. F. I. Ray and Mrs. Alice Anthony; traveler's aid, Miss Katherine Barnett; publicity, Mrs. E. H. Hiscox; nursing activities, Miss Margery Leyden; auditors, W. T. Crumb and Thomas Barnett. It was voted to appropriate toward the support of the town nurse any sum to the amount of five hundred dollars, if necessary. A vacancy occurring on the board by the election of Miss Margaret Driscoll, treasurer, Miss Rosanna DesJardines was elected a member of the board. The chairman of the roll call reported $944.93 as the final report.

This (Monday) evening at the Baptist church, the roll call and New Yead gatreding will take place. Attractive programs, refreshments and a general good time are expected.

Two important caucuses are in the offing for the coming week, to put officers in election for the January borough election. This year a warden is to be elected, also both a democratic and republican burgess, and the clerk and treasurer. The lat Matthew J. Geary, succeeded himself two years ago as the democratic warden, his name appearing on both tickets. This year the selection of new borough officials promises some interest in the caucuses, which same has been sorely lacking, even to the extent, that a year ago the republicans held no caucus, and the republican ticket was made up by the republican borough committee.

Local motor vehicle operators who were out Friday night, after ten o'clock, told of the extreme difficulty they experienced in keeping in the road, and avoiding colliding with approaching machines. On the Norwich road, just below Round Hill and on the Voluntown route in the hollow west of Glasgo corner, solid walls of fog were reported. One driver near the Pachaug cemetery, found it necessary to pull out of the road for a time for the sake of safety to allow a heavy truck to pass.

Officer Veigard shot a bull dog to put it out of misery Sunday afternoon. The dog was run over by Andrew Willett of Norwich, as he was driving over the state road near St. Mary's school. The animal had no collar or tag. Sunday morning about quarter past four it followed Officer Veglard from the vicinity of Green avenue to his home on North Main street, leading the officer to believe it was a lost dog.

COLCHESTER

At a special town meeting held in Grange hall during the past week the proposition for the sum of $500 asked for to be expended on what is known as the West road was turned down by the tax-payers. After much discussion another vote was taken by ballot. First Selectman C. A. Kramer reported that about $300 had already been spent on this piece of road. It is impossible to do any more work on the road this year unless another appropriation is made.

Mrs. Charles Taylor has returned from spending the holidays with her daughter, Mrs. James Madden, in Westfield, Mass.

St. Mary's basketball team of South Manchester defeated Colchester team in a fast game Wednesday evening in New Park hall 35 to 24. Sweet was the most effective player on the local team and Norris and House on the South Manchester's.

The Christmas party of the Baptist church was held in the church Wednesday from 4 to 6. A large tree laden with gifts for the young people was the feature. Cake, candy, fruit and ice cream were served. There was a large gathering of the members of the church.

Sanford Tew of Salem was a caller in town Thursday.

Wooster lodge No. 10 F. & A. M., held a special meeting in Masonic hall Friday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. James S. Case were in Norwich Friday.

The teacher was giving her class their first lesson in fractions. "Helen," she said, "if a mince pie were on your dinner table and your mother asked you if you would have a third or a fourth, what would you say?"

"A fourth," said Helen.

Some of the children tittered, and the teacher asked, "Why would you have a fourth?"

"Because," said Helen, "I don't like mince pie."—Pathfinder.

Whatever your conception of happiness, may the New Year realize it for you. In some measure, may we help you

The happiness we ask of the New Year is to be of greater service to our customers and friends.

As the new year will be judged, so will we—by what the days bring to you. May 1928 be the best ever.

THE BOSTON STORE TELEPHONE 21 NORWICH, CONN.

The Great January Sale

Wednesday, the 4th

Tuesday's papers will carry a full announcement of the sale, giving in detail the many special values that will be offered

Alterations

We are now having extensive alterations made, by which we hope to greatly improve the appearance and facilities of this store. We hope to make shopping easier and more pleasant for our customers. We hope to institute economies that will enable us to sell for less at fair profit to ourselves. These alterations will necessitate department changes — some will have more space — some less — because of this you will find many very special values on sale at very much below usual prices.

You can save money at this sale!

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theatre

Today is the opening day of the vaudeville and picture policy that has been adopted in an effort to meet with the approval of local theatregoers. An especially selected vaudeville program of five headline acts has been booked for the opening occasion. The feature picture attraction is a story founded on Beatrice Fairfax's advice column, called "The Lovelorn". Sally O'Neil and her sister Molly O'Day have the feminine leads while Larry Kent plays the hero role.

Sparkling with the modernism of the younger generation and tugging at the heartstrings with its tragedies of youth, it tells the story of two sisters, one an especially frivolous girl who scorns her flashy suitor; and the other a more demure character, who has long loved the boy in secret. He turns to the quiet one for consolation. As their wedding approaches, the bride-to-be, believing that he still loves her sister, brings about an exciting climax that shows the young man up for what he really is and solves the love problem for her and her sister.

Featured on the vaudeville stage are Wyeth's Lads and Lassies. This act has been appearing before the vaudeville public for more than fifteen years, playing all the vaudeville theatres in the country during that time. "A Day in Scotland" is the title to the act and playing the pipes is the least of their offering. Other headliners include Bader and Ross in a clever comedy skit, Mack and Tivoli with their vehicle "A Divorce", Beth Marsh, the popular song-bird and The Youngers in an artistic posing presentation.

Breed Theatre

Kipling's "Take me somewhere east of Suez, where the best is like the worst, where there ain't no Ten Commandments, and a man can raise a thirst," might well have been sung of old San Francisco's Chinatown and Barbary Coast and it is these regions that Warner Bros. recreate for us in the thrilling and uncannily realistic "Old San Francisco," starring Dolores Costello and featuring Warner Oland.

Alan Crosland, who won such high acclaim for his direction of "Don Juan" and "When a Man Loves," has added materially to his reputation in "Old San Francisco."

The story has to do with a Spanish heiress who is kidnapped by a half-caste boss of the underworld and offered for sale in a subterranean auction room dim with the fumes of the poppy and garish with teak and sandalwood and gilded dragons. There is a burning story of love an unselfish devotion and the climax, one of the most terrific ever pictured, is the "great fire" which ended the sway of the underworld.

This is a bare outline of a story which flames with passionate reality, and with terror and beauty. The photography is marvelous and the impression one takes away from the theatre, is that of having really been an eye witness of the last days of San Francisco's vanished underworld.

Dolores Costello is exquisitely beautiful, as she always is, and interprets the great emotional role with consummate art. Warner Oland as the boss gives splendid support. Take a trip to "Old San Francisco," at the Breed today and Tuesday.

Palace Theatre

Uncanny, creepy, weirdly mysterious, "London After Midnight," one of the greatest mystery dramas Lon Chaney has ever appeared in, will be shown at the Palace theatre. It is a Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture, written and directed by Tod Browning, responsible for these other Chaney successes, "The Unholy Three," "The Road to Mandalay" and "The Unknown."

Fascinating with its theme of hypnotism, its delving into the supernatural and the spirit world, this film employs enough mystery to chill the blood of the spectator and yet rivet the eye and attention in a breathless interest. The story is one of a baffling murder which draws the attention of Scotland Yard. Chaney takes the part of a master detective. In solving the mystery he discovers that the murderer is guilty of a former crime, a five-year-old death that had been announced as suicide. How he makes the criminal confess and how he discovers that both murders were love crimes, committed because of the passion of an old man for a young and beautiful girl, supply enough thrills for several rattling good dramas.

Chaney is supported by Marceline Day, Conrad Nagel, Henry B. Walthall, Polly Moran and Claude King.

Strand Theatre

Mother is a masterpiece of mighty human drama, the fascinating story of an American family and of the mother love and sacrifice that kept it from crashing on the rocks of prosperity. A mother's heart as it has never before been revealed on the screen—the supreme achievement of that greatest of all interpreters—Belle Bennett. The boundless story of a love that gave—but never asked! A drama of motherhood and the age of jazz, suggested by Kathleen Norris' famous novel. In the supporting cast are Crawford Kent and Mabel Julienne Scott.

Watery Gravy is a complete story of our weekly series and it is interesting from beginning to end. We also show a very funny comedy that you will enjoy.

We will have special holiday music by the Strand orchestra under the leadership of Prof. Herbert Rich.

New Motor Program

Will Rogers, Fred Stone, Paul Whiteman and Al Jolson in four different corners of America will be broadcast to the entire United States by Dodge Brothers for one hour, ten-thirty to eleven thirty, on January fourth in what is the greatest mechanical achievement in radio telephony ever attempted and probably the costliest radio program yet given. The program utilizing the facilities of the National Broadcasting company and American Telephone and Telegraph company will be the initial step by Dodge Brothers in an extensive advertising program, heralding the Victory, a new six cylinder motor car embodying entirely new principles of motor construction, it was announced today by Dodge Brothers, Inc., of Detroit.

Will Rogers, as master of ceremonies, will broadcast from Hollywood, California, Fred Stone from Chicago, Paul Whiteman and his band from New York and Al Jolson from New Orleans in a linkup of 33 broadcasting stations made possible by most intricate engineering with special telephonic circuits and the use of over 12,000 miles of telephone wire. From an engineering standpoint, according to officials of the American Telephone and Telegraph company, the feat entails the overcoming of tremendous difficulties. Three transcontinental circuits will be utilized, one to serve the 33 broadcasting stations, one to transmit the programs of the various performers to New York where in turn they will be distributed to the broadcasting station circuit, and the third to be used for emergency purposes in case weather conditions affect the second circuit. Hundreds of engineers will be at work on these three lines, both prior to and during the broadcasting. Over 200 men operating broadcasting stations in the hookup will be at work at stations throughout the country. Running parallel with the broadcasting circuits will be thousands of miles of wire lines utilizing telegraphic communications in order to transmit orders to engineers at work along the circuit. Over 30,000,000 people scattered throughout the United States will tune in on this program, according to the estimate of M. H. Anylesworth, president of the National Broadcasting Company, who stated this event would place the entire nation in a sense in one radio studio. "The four corners of the United States will be a broadcasting studio," said Mr. Anylesworth.

Mr. Rogers, from one corner in Hollywood, will step before the microphone upon hearing his introduction from New York via the loud speaker. His voice travels by special telephonic circuits from California to New York where it enters the telephonic circuit of the broadcasting stations. In a fraction of a second his voice comes back to him via the air from a local California broadcasting station. The same is applicable to Mr. Jolson in New Orleans, who immediately following his introduction by Mr. Rogers from California, which Jolson hears from a nearby receiving set, begins his performance which travels over thousands of miles of special telephonic circuits and comes back to him via the local broadcasting station almost immediately. So the program will be followed out.

The user car seems to a world problem. Polish motorists are abandoning the custom of selling their old cars only to their friends; the friends are becoming rich enough to buy new machines. Dealers in Bolivia have refused to accept "trade-ins" on new cars and the government has 15 old vehicles it would like to sell at any price. Egyptian dealers have organized a used car sales company to handle all such machines. Roumania once was a good used car market, but now motorists wish the latest types and improvements.

BURNED JENNINGS SCHOOL GROUNDS MAY BE FIREHOUSE SITE, NEW LONDON

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 1—New London lost by fire Saturday one of its school buildings although the structure destroyed was not of the expensive type, when flames razed the Jennings school, a three story wooden building on Colt street, west of the state armory, together with its entire equipment. The loss is about $11,500, fully covered by insurance.

The building was erected about 60 years ago and for many years was used for the education of children prior to their advancing to the grammar school grade. Of late it has been used as a night school for adults.

The fire was discovered 5 o'clock by a milkman, who in passing the building noticed flames leaping from the roof. He went to the corner of Colt and Truman streets and sent in an alarm from Box 33. Deputy Chief Calvin Edmunds and the Thomas Hose, Northwest Hose companies and the Nameaug and Niagara Engine companies and Allen Hook and Ladder companies answered the call. When the firemen arrived the entire upper stories of the building were a mass of flame for a strong wind caused the fire to burn with great rapidity. A second alarm was sounded, bringing additional fire apparatus and several streams of water were poured upon the flames, which had made their way throughout the structure and it was only after two hours and a half of battling with the fire that it was extinguished.

City Manager William A. Holt said that it was very doubtful whether another school would be erected. The building, which was of wooden construction is within the fire limits.

The fire opens up a site for the proposed central fire station if the city should decide to erect such a building that will accommodate two or more companies and their apparatus. It is understood that the board of education will look for the paying of the insurance to be used for school purposes, but that will be decided by the city council which has precedence over the board of education on the approval of appropriations.

The year just passed has brought an unusual number of fires, but they have not been attended by very heavy losses.

PROMINENT ITALIAN CITIZEN IS PAID FINAL HONOR

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 1—The funeral of Genaro DeLuca, was held Saturday morning at 9 o'clock at St. Joseph's church and was attended by many mourners, including a delegation of members of the Christopher Columbus society and Fraternal Order of Eagles. High mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. William C. Fitzsimmons. As a waiting hymn Edward F. Murray sang, "One Sweetly Solemn Though." Members of the Christopher Columbus society acted as bearers. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

SHEEHAN'S GLIB TONGUE TALKS HIM INTO JAIL

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 1—George (Cowboy) Sheehan, West High street, former local preliminary fighter, battled with his tongue in the police court Saturday so strenuously that he talked himself into a stiff fine and jail sentence, when presented with Joseph Magrino, 773 Bank street on charges of breach of teh peace and intoxication. Sheehan was fined $50 and costs. The charge against Magrino was nolled. Sheehan's fine and sentence will cause him to perform work at the county jail about 10 weeks for he was unable to pay his fine. Sheehan and Magrino met on Bank street Christmas morning about 4 o'clock. They had been celebrating by drinking and a fight resulted and which started through Sheehan's aggressive conduct. On the witness stand Saturday, Sheehan in explaining to the court what happened that brought him into the clutches of the law, used all the slang phrases at his command and he had plenty of them. He told and gave an exhibition of how he landed several "passes" on Magrino's "bugle" and to having feinted and "ducked" Magrino's rushes and finally making a pass that carried with it sufficient power to send Magrino sprawling on the sidewalk. To inquiry of the court as to what vocation he was following, Sheehan said that he had a position in Springfield, Mass., that paid him a good salary and the employment was such that it could only be performed by a man of prowess. Judge Victor Prince brought Sheehan's talk to an end when the court infor ed Sheehan that the former would now make a "pass" and it was then that the fine and sentence was meted out. Sheehan pleaded for leniency, saying that he had but 17 "bucks."

MILITARY FUNERAL RITES FOR CHARLES H. SIZER

NEW LONDON, Jan. 1—The funeral services for Charles H. Sizer, Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock at his residence, 119 Howard street, were attended by a large gathering, including the 192nd company, C. A. C., also a delegation of members of Niagara Engine company. The services were conducted by Rev. Chester H. Howe, pastor of the First Baptist church. Mr. Sizer was buried in his military uniform and the casket on a caisson was accompanied to Jordan cemetery by the 192nd Co., and company band. At the grave a volley was fired and taps sounded.

As the funeral procession moved through Bank street in the rain there was patkon in the devotion of the organizations to their departed comrade, the military escort, in particular, being very impressive.

Emily A., infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Picelli, died Friday night at the residence of her parents, 300 Mitchell street, Groton. The funeral was held Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock and burial was in St. Mary's cemetery, in this city.

The funeral of Charles L. Williams, formerly employed by the Corticelli Silk company, who died at his residence in Brooklyn, N. Y., was held Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock at 48 Shapley street. The services were conducted by Rev. Joseph A. Elder. Relatives acted as bearers. Burial was in Jordan cemetery.

Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock, at his residence, 25 Grove street the funeral of Charles Minson was attended by a large assemblage of mourners. The services were conducted by Rev. George R. Atha, pastor of Groton Heights Baptist church and by W. W. Perkins Post, G. A. R., of which organization Mr. Minson was one of the few surviving members. The bearers were members of Niagara Engine company, as Mr. Minson was its oldest member. Burial was in Flanders cemetery, East Lyme.

Friday night, while Desk Sergeant William T. Babcock's automobile was parked in the street a thief went to it and stole a radiator cap and a motor meter. Patrol Officer Clarence Martin was assigned to the case, but he failed to ascertain the identity of the thief.

Theodore Constantine, of Rosemary street, was in the police court Saturday charged with violation of the dog law, being arrested by Dog Warden John Sweeny. The case was continued to Jan. 7th. Two cases of intoxication were also heard: each offender was fined $5, but execution of the sentence was suspended.

The continued case of Joseph (Soldier) Wilson, Albert E. LaCicero, submarine base sailor; Ethel Schutte, 22, 119 Golden street, waitress and married and Harriet Jerrolds, 26, also a waitress and married, of 125 Bank street, charged with lascivious carriage, was disposed of in the police court Saturday. The charges against Wilson and LaCicero were nolled and the young women were ordered to leave the city before the passing of the old year, which they did and were glad of the opportunity to do so instead of going to jail.

Elmer E. and Annie Kenneson have sold a one-third interest in the Ken-Hill Manufacturing company, Central avenue, to Freeman Kenneson and Max Underhill.

Lucy R. McArdle has sold a house and lot on School street to John Sikora. Sikora has quit claimed the deed to his wife.

The New Year was welcomed last midnight as usual with merry-making at the hotels and road houses, as well as in private families and clubs, also with the blowing of whistles and the ringing of church bells. At the road houses the jubilant continued to make merry until daylight today. Dancing, eating and drinking comprised the form of pleasure enjoyed by the several hundred of men and women, many from Norwich, Westerly, Willimantic and Mystic. The gatherings were kept merry by an unlimited supply of spirits brought by patrons and judging from the liberal supply of wet goods one would never even imagine that this was an age of prohibition. There were no serious automobile accidents although with a dense fog prevailing during the early hours of the night it was strange that collisions did not occur.

Edward Daly escaped from Norwich State hospital this afternoon and the police of this city have been requested to maintain a watch for him. Daly is described as being 18, about five feet nine inches in height and weighs about 170 pounds. When he escaped Daly wore a dark suit, cap, blue sweater and new shoes.

The restaurant on Main street, owned by Alvin Harper and George Tashash, was burglarized Saturday night. Harper and Tashash closed the place for the night but returned two hours afterwards to find that thieves had been there. Harper and Tashash reported the robbery to the police, claiming that $35 had been stolen. The partners said that they left the restaurant shortly after 3 o'clock and returned there about 4 o'clock when they discovered that entrance had been gained by forcing a window and that the money, which they had left in the cash register, had been stolen

Edward Sullivan, of this city, was arrested in Waterford Saturday night by Constable Chester H. Brigham charged with breach of the peace. He was brought to New London and locked up at police headquarters. Sullivan will be in the Waterford town court Monday afternoon.

Four cases of intoxication will be included in the business transacted in the police court tomorrow, for that number of prisoners were arrested Saturday night, the only arrests made.

ANTICIPATES GOOD YEAR FOR NEW LONDON CITIZENS

Upon the dawn of 1928 and the passing of 1927, it affords me a pleasure to extend to the citizens of New London my best wishes for a happy and prosperous New Year.

Looking back upon the year 1927, we have things in common to be thankful for.

New London has held its own in matters of progress. The city has developed and expanded in many respects, numerous homes have been constructed and are occupied by the owners, our industries seem to prosper and expand, affording employment to a large number. The prospects for the New Year seem even brighter. The inspiration and sentiment that New London is about to come into its own, as evidenced by the interest and activity of its citizens, meets the best wishes of the undersigned for a happy and prosperous year to each individual.

JAMES A. MAY,
Mayor of the city of New London.

JUDGE FINDS ERROR IN JURY'S VERDICT

In a decision filed with the clerk of the superior court in this city Judge John R. Booth has ordered that the verdict of $2,650 returned several weeks ago in favor of Mrs. Elizabeth Morris, No. 73 McKinley avenue, against Morris J., and Lucy Anderson, husband and wife, also of this city, be set aside unless a remittitur of $116.70 be filed by counsel for Mrs. Morris on or before January 10th. Judge Booth says in his decision:

"Viewed in its most favorable light the evidence on the subject of damages in the above case produces the amount of $2,533.30. The jury in awarding a verdict of $2,650 undoubtedly either erroneously included the sum of $116.70 therein, which was not within the evidence, or erred in the matter of their computation. In either event the plaintiff is not entitled to the full amount of said verdict and the same should be set aside, unless a remittitur of $116.70 be filed. It is therefore ordered that said verdict be set aside unless the above mentioned remittitur is filed on or before Jan. 10, 1928, and that if said remittitur be filed on or before said date, then the motion to set aside said verdict is denied."

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Hutchinson of Fourteenth street have as their guests Thomas Hutchinson of Boston.

TAFTVILLE

Once again the T. G. A. club scored a triumph with their annual minstrel and dance at Parish hall, when "A Night in a Tea Garden" was given on Thursday evening. The stage was transformed into a beautiful garden scene with hanging lantern and flowery trellises in the foreground, while the rear wall and sides were black and gold hangings, lending a real oriental atmosphere.

Miss Lulu Greenwood, the Chinese idol, held her motionless pose for nearly two hours.

The following soloists were again well received and graciously responded to the demand for encores:

Opening chorus, Ching Chong, Broken Hearted, Henry Reardon; Oriental dance, Anna Yargeau and Loretta Sullivan; The Hours I Spent With You, Delores Legare; Who's That Knocking at My Door, Ernest Gilman; Yesterday, Theo Allard; Annabelle Lee, Eddie Hamil; Chong, Louis Grover; I'm Gonna Dance With de Guy Wot Brung Me, Izola Blanchard; She Don Wanna, Max Brokowski; Just a Memory, Betty Newton; Charmaine, Josephine Dempsey; Let the End of the World Come Tomorrow, William Shannon; Oriental Moonlight, Gertrude Hathaway; The World is Waiting for Your Answer, Ray Cote; My Blue Heaven, John Kelly; So Long, Oolong, Anna Yargeau and entire company.

The comedians were Miss Izola Blanchard, Eddie Hamil, Henry Reardon, Arthur Shadlock and Ernest Gilman. The chorus comprised the Misses Della Parquette, Beatrice Krajewsky, Pauline Hastler, Georgette Gregory, Jeanette Archambeault, Loretta Sullivan, Irene Cassavant, Lucy Couture, Yvonne Yargeau, Alice Archambeault and Susette Mentaz.

Athur Allard had charge of coda. Arthur Roy was in the box office. The electrical effects were by Romeo Kane; James Hanlon, stage manager, Bill Dougherty, director assisted by Louis Grover, musical director Dave Lyons.

Raymond Yerrington returns today to Springfield college after spending the holidays at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Yerrington of South Second avenue.

Mrs. Samuel Rabb and infant son Samuel John, have returned to Manchester, after spending a week at Mrs. Rabb's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Crowe of South A street.

Robert Schmidt took as his topic "What Are the Values of Daily Devotions?" when he led the Young People's meeting at the Taftville Congregational church Sunday evening.

Miss Sallie Grant of the Haverhill General hospital, Haverhill, Mass., is the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter S. Grant of the Canterbury turnpike.

MR. AND MRS. C. H. BARROWS OBSERVE FIFTIETH WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Barrows celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary Sunday at their home, No. 45 Main street. Throughout the day they were heartily congratulated by their many friends, including members of the Central Baptist church and of the Gleaners class of the church, of which Mrs. Barrows is a member. Mr. and Mrs. Barrows attended services at the church Sunday morning and among the gifts received by them was a beautiful basket of fruit.

Mr. Barrows, who is 75 years old, was born in Richford, Vermont, on Dec. 7, 1852 and is the son of Peter and Eliza Lamora Barrows. He lived in Vermont until he was 23 years old, when he came to this state, residing for a number of years in Lebanon and Norwich. Mr. Barrows was a carpenter, but retired from active work about a year and a half ago.

Mrs. Barrows, who is 70 years old, was born in Bozrah, on Dec. 25, 1857, the daughter of William P. and Abbie Hatch Miner and was educated in the public schools of the town. Mr. and Mrs. Barrows were married in Lebanon, on Jan. 1, 1877, at the home of the bridegroom by Rev. George Pryor. They were attended by William Maynard and Miss Delia Barrows, Mr. Barrows sister, and later Mr. and Mrs. Barrows were the attendants at their wedding, which also took place in Lebanon. Mr. and Mrs. Barrows continued to make their home in Lebanon for about ten years and then came to Norwich.

Mr. and Mrs. Barrows have three children, two sons, Burton W. Barrows of Dunham street and William P. Barrows of New York, who is manager of a vaudeville show, and a daughter, Miss Lottie B. Barrows of New York. There is one grand daughter, Miss Luella Barrows of Dunham street.

LARGE AUDIENCE AT Y. M. C. A. SERVICE SUNDAY

The largest Sunday audience thus far this season attended the Sunday afternoon service at the local Y. M. C. A.. It was necessary to provide several dozen extra chairs, and some people stood through the service.

The opening exercise consisted of the singing from the screen of "Rock of Ages," and "The Battle Hymn of the Republic"; also scripture reading and prayer. The moving pictures included two reels picturing the Bible narrative of "Noah and the Flood" which were true to the Bible history of the event. Following this, the two reel feature story, "Disposing of Mother", was shown. The story told of a mother whose married children, each wanted mother to live with them, evidently for the work they could get out of her. The mother stated that she had noticed for a long time that they had been planning to "dispose" of mother, but that she could dispose of herself, and she did so by starting a business of her own which became very lucrative, after which the whole family came together and lived happily.

Between the reels Secretary Edwin Hill spoke in part as follows: "We are saying to each other, "A Happy New Year", and the question arises how can we have a happy year in 1928. You will recall that Jesus, the Christ said on one occasion, speaking of himself, "I am the way, the truth and the life." We must recognize the truth of this claim of our Lord. If we retain our selfishness, we will not have a truly happy new year, for Jesus, who is the way, was in all of his relationships, the opposite of selfishness, for he said that he came not to ministered unto but to minister, and he gave his life a ransom for a lost world.

No son or daughter of the many here can have a happy year if they disregard home authority, or neglect to love and honor their fathers or mothers. We see in the picture how the question of disposing of mother arose, and many times it seems as though married sons and daughters do not care to have their aged parents with them, especially unless they can use them to good advantage. Let us resolve this New Year's day that so far as we can we will give of our loving service to others, and more especially to those who are less fortunate than we are; this will help us to have a genuinely happy new year, which I bespeak for every one here". Hugh Kinder furnished very appropriate music for the moving pictures.

KNIGHTS OF PYTHIAS WELCOME THE NEW YEAR

With nearly 150 present, Wauregan lodge, No. 6, Knights of Pythias, held its fifth annual New Year's eve banquet and celebration Saturday night at Spruce lodge, Fitchville. Edward T. Connelly and a trio entertained with vocal selections and a splendid programme was given by entertainers from the Clement bureau, Hartford.

At 11 o'clock a full course dinner was served and was concluded at 12 o'clock when the New Year was enthusiastically greeted. Dancing was enjoyed throughout the evening. Dr. S. M. Goldberg was chairman of the committee in charge and was assisted by Rudolph Henschel, Morris Epstein, Eugene Lackenbach, Charles Jacobson, Earl Taggart, Joseph M. Lehn and Abner W. Schwartz.

Trolley Car Left Rails

At 12.30 o'clock Saturday afternoon a large one man trolley car went off the tracks in front of the Mohican company store on Main street. The accident was said to have been caused by the slippery conditions of the rails.

BUILDING FOR ETERNITY FATHER REILLY'S THEME

Crowds and sermons, music and lights are good; but the real test of the vigor of faith in any Catholic parish is the number regularly receiving the sacraments. It must have ben very satisfying to Rt. Rev. Msgr. M. H. May, rector of St. Patrick's church and shepherd of over 4,000 souls, on New Year's day, as he assisted Rev. Myles P. Galvin in giving holy communion at the 9 o'clock mass to hundreds who had been to confession the day and evening before.

This was the fourth service of the morning. At 5:30 Monsignor May had read low mass, at 7:30 Rev. John J. Rielly offered the Holy Cacrifice of the mass and gave communion to a great number, including the Children of Mary, Miss Loretta Bellefleur president. Father Reilly also read mass as usual for the Italian parishioners in the basement chapel at 8:15, preaching a New Year sermon. He was the preacher again at 9.

"We have not here a lasting city, but we seek one that is to come" was the text which he developed, after he had read the gospel for the Sunday, the Feast of the circumcision of Our Lord, Luke 2. 21. For the rector and his two assistants Father Reilly wished the congregation a happy, holy and prosperous New Year, expressing also their appreciation of the generous Christmas offering. This latter, he said, was an evidence of the people's good will toward, love for and confidence in their priests.

On the threshold of another year, given another lease of life, another stretch of time, realizing through the familiar expression, "Happy New Year" that something has come to an end, and something else has begun, the eloquent young preacher hoped his auditors were not in the class of those who have too much time, a surplus of it, are perplexed how to dispose of their hours. It will not always be thus. He described the condition of the dying—the final instant, when there is no other breath, no other gasp, no other moment. Why then, he asked, cheapen these precious moments, which have such value for eternity?

The parish of St. Patrick's has had five funerals in seven days, six sudden deaths in a short time. The Angel of Death is no respecter of persons. Many who were in the congregation on New Year's day in 1927 are missing from their places. Every Catholic knows that it is the business of his life to save his soul. The business man who neglects his books is headed for financial ruin. Those persons who neglect the business of their souls are in line for spiritual ruin. Begin today to take spiritual inventory, he advised; today is yours—you may have no tomorrow; tomorrow is the Lord's.

"We have not here a lasting city." Some mortals instead of seeking to build for eternity appear to be building solely for pleasure. Such live but for self-indulgence, animal tendencies, pagan practices, the ruin of individuals or nations. Inventory, inspection, scrutiny of souls, of ideals, he advised at this beginning of another year deepening the conviction that we belong to God alone, are Christ's and that Christ is God. A telling illustration was a picture of the battlefields of France as they appeared to the desparing people who returned to them after the war—finding desolation where had stood cities, homes of people in wealth, in prosperity and hope. We have no lasting city—but must seek one that is to come.

Organist Henry J. LaFontaine directed the Junior choir in a beautiful service of Christmas hymns, The Angels' Song, Oh, Little Town of Bethlehem, Silent Night, and following communion the ever majestic "Adeste, Fideles", which the children sang in its English translation.

High mass at 10:30, sung by Rev. Father Galvin, was followed by Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament.

OVER 2,000 CHILDREN AT THEATRE PARTY

Over 2000 Norwich children attended the theatre party given by the Norwich Lions club Saturday morning at the Palace theatre and thoroughly enjoyed the program arranged for their entertainment. The first number was a comedy followed by an address of welcome by Max Hanover, who, at the conclusion, of his talk, introduced Jack Fink, manager of the theatre. Mr. Fink was given three cheers as was also the Lions club. After the feature picture, A Kiss from Cinderella, a photograph was taken of the children and this will be sent to the Lions International to be published in the Lions magazine. Candy was distributed to the children. The committee in charge comprised Max Hanover, chairman; William R. Frisbie, Louis M. Crandall, Abner W. Schwartz, J. B. Caron, Earl Taggart, Edward Carpenter, Dr. K. K. Markoff and Rudolph Henschel.

FINED FOR FAILURE TO GRANT RIGHT OF WAY

Pleading guilty to failure to grant the right of way, Harry Goldblatt of Baltic, was fined $10 and costs in the city court Saturday morning. He was also fined $3 for not having his registration with him at the time of the accident whichresulted in his appearance in court.

About 3 o'clock Friday afternoon, Goldblatt's machine, a Ford coupe, was involved in a headon collision near the Ponemah mills, Taftville, with a Reo truck owned by the Eastern Connecticut Power Co. Goldblatt was passing a trolley car at the time and his attention was momentarily drawn to a person he recognized on the trolley car. His machine swerved and crashed into the truck, which was driven by Lawrence Bogue of Laurel Hill. Both machines were damaged and Goldblatt received a cut on his chin.

MRS. KENNETH GALE CUT IN FLORIDA ACCIDENT

Friends of Mrs. Julia C. Gale, widow of Burton B. Gale, a nurse who makes her home with her sister, Mrs. Walter C. Foster, No. 16 Union street, Norwich, have been greatly concerned over the condition of her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Kenneth Gale, of Portland, Me., who was injured in an automobile accident Christmas eve.

Shortly after Thanksgiving, Mrs. Gale, Mrs. Kenneth Gale and the latter's children Kenneth, Jr., and Lorraine, left Norwich in Mrs. Julia Gale's car for Hialeah, Fla., Mrs. Gale, the nurse was caring for a case and Christmas eve her daughter-in-law drove in the former's car to bring her home. She was run into by a seven-passenger New York car, the four occupants of which are in a hospital seriously injured, Mrs. Kenneth Gale had her cheek cut, four stitches being required to close the gash; her eye and one lung continue to bleed at the hospital where she is still being treated. It was by a mere fortunate chance that she did not have her children with her. The two machines were wrecked.

Young Mrs. Gale's husband died about a year ago, at Westbrook, Me. The elder Mrs. Gale has been a widow for twelve years; three of her four sons are living; two in Vermont, the third being Julian B. Gale, of 161 Franklin street, Norwich, a fireman at the Norwich Central fire station.

LIGHTING OF CHRISTMAS WREATH, TRINITY M. E. CHURCH

The lighting of the Christmas wreath, an annual event at Trinity M. E. church, took place Sunday evening at the church. There was a large congregation at the attractive service.

The church was in darkness with the exception of the lighted candles carried by the 24 girls, who participated in the programme. As they proceeded to the altar, Hark the Herald Angels Sing, was rendered. Each girl lighted one of the candles on the altar. While lighting the wreath a verse of scripture was repeated by each girl. As they left the altar the girls sang Joy to the World. Mrs. E. M. Newbury was in charge of the service.

Preceding the lighting of the wreath an illustrated lecture on the Northern part of Africa was given by Rev. J. Harlow Graham, pastor of the church. His talk dwelt with the work being executed by the Methodist Foreign Missionary society and other societies in teaching christianity to the people of northern Africa and how they are accepting it. Christmas carols were sung and a vocal solo, My Task, was given by Mrs. Walter M. Buckingham.

ENTERTAINMENT AT NEW YEAR'S CARD PARTY

Mr. and Mrs. Clifford C. Oat entertained at a New Year's card party Saturday evening at their home at East Great Plain. Four tables of pinochle were in play. The prizes were won by Mr. and Mrs. Myles E. Standish, Mrs. Benjamin Mellor and Earle H. Christman. Dainty refreshments were served by the hostess, assisted by her cousin, Mrs. Louis L. Lougee.

Served Fine Supper

As is the custom the last Saturday of each month, The Daughters of Union Veterans served a baked bean and salad supper Saturday from 5 to 7, at Buckingham Memorial. Mrs. D. Louisa Atterbury was chairman, having the assistance of an able committee. The table decorations were Christmas runners in scarlet, and the appetizing meal was finely prepared and served.

EAGLES INITIATED CLASS OF 15 CANDIDATES

A class of 15 candidates was initiated New Year's eve by Norwich aerie, No. 367, F. O. E., at the Eagles' home. The initiation ceremony was performed by the local degree team. Following the initiation there was a roast pig supper in the banquet hall. Among those present was William F. Kelly, of the Eagles' organization department, of Naugatuck. Three exhibition bouts brought the entertainment to a close.

The committee in charge comprised Timothy Fields, William R. Hastedt, E. J. Mullins. The regular meeting of the aerie will be held this (Monday) evening at which time the various committees will outline their work for the remainder of the present term. The committee in charge of the arrangements for the state convention of the order which is to be held here in June, will also consider preliminary plans for the entertainment of the delegates.

Foresters Have Ladies Night

Ladies night was observed Friday evening by the members of the Foresters club, their wives and friends, 16 tables of pinochle and 16 of whist being played. The prize winners were: Pinochle, Mrs. Herring, Mrs. Manning, Harry Carbray and Frank Roarke; whist, Mrs. Lavalle, Mrs. Watters and Mr. Rich. Dancing was enjoyed from 9 to midnight, music being furnished by the Mohegan orchestra. Refreshments were served. The arrangements committee comprised Henry Congdon, Henry Clement, Elroy Bolduc, M. Duggan and C. Lasch.

NORWICH TOWN

Mrs. William H. Tague, of McClellen avenue, Norwich Town, a patient at Backus hospital for the past few weeks, was reported Sunday as resting very comfortably. For the third time Sunday morning at 11 o'clock, Mrs. Tague received a blood transfusion, to give her vitality and build up her strength preparatory to a surgical operation. The blood was furnished by Mrs. Tague's sons, of Westfield, Mass. The first transfusion, December 18th and the third, January 1st, were furnished by George A. Tague, while the second transfusion, December 24th, was furnished by William C. Tague. Each time more than a pint of blood was received by Mrs. Tague, and this she has thus far retained very satisfactorily. Up to the present time, George Tague has given more than a quare of blood, that his mother's condition might be benefited.

The Christian Endeavor society of the First Methodist Episcopal church, held a business meeting Friday evening in the vestry. The retiring president, Mrs. Richard Carter, presided, and the pastor, Rev. Albert E. Whitten offered prayer. At the meeting in November, the following officers were nominated by ballot and they were elected at the meeting Friday evening: President, Miss Effie Ladd; vice president, Miss Doris Rose; secretary, Miss Ruth Lathrop; treasurer, LeRoy Miner. Committees chairmen: Prayer meeting, Mrs. William Weaver; lookout, Miss Florence M. Bennett; music, Miss Beulah Rogers; social, Mrs. John Rogers; missionary, Mrs. Lewis Aldrich; flower, Miss Muriel Rose.

In presenting her annual report, Mrs. May Rollins, matron at Johnson home says:

January, 1927—Loyal Circle of the King's Daughters furnished their room with three new shades at the windows, also a stand cover, and dresser cover. They remembered the members of the household in their room at Easter and Christmas. Home chapter gave fifteen dollars toward a new bed for Comfort circle room, also two pair of draperies for the new reception parlor. For Christmas gave a large assortment of dishes for the dining room. Mrs. Benjamin S. Palmer gave two bushels of apples, Mrs. John Trankla a beautiful basket of flowers, Thomas Bachelier a kind neighbor sent three bushels of apples.

February—Mrs. Edward A. Smith of Fair Acres, Mystic, brought to the home a large basket of cookies and cakes, also boxes filled with candies and flowers for valentines. Mrs. Jarvis Baker sent canned fruit, grape juice and two bushels of Bartlett pears for canning.

March—Eupheminan circle, K. D, members kindly sent to their rooms a bedspread, two sheets, six towels, six face cloths, four pillow covers. These were much appreciated.

April—Mrs. Kampf sent several cans of fruit.

May—Grace circle, Feb. 17 17 gave the members of the home a dinner party and entertainment, also in May sent to the home two dozen dinner napkins.

June—Mr. and Mrs. Edwin A. Tracy of Scotland road presented the home a large gas range which was needed.

August—James Kless presented huckleberries, also Mrs. Risley blackberries.

November—Mrs. Frink of Town street sent apples twice. Oliver L. Johnson, our president, on Thanksgiving sent a 21-pound turkey and cranberries.

December—Mrs. Clark of Maplewood sent fruit cake for Christmas. Mrs. Wm. W. Beckwith remembered the home with cranberries and sugar. Miss Mary Porteous donated a large basket of oranges. As usual Powers Bros. generously sent a large can of oysters.

Thanks are extended the Bulletin and Record offices for the daily papers, also to Mrs. Gillen for Ladies' Home Journal.

To Home chapter of King's Daughters we must extend our heartfelt thanks for their faithfulness to Johnson home. Also to the house committee Mrs. Phoebe Lewis, Mrs. Herbert R. Branche, and Mrs. Eugene Saunders. Special gratitude is due these for so faithfully performing their duties when called upon. Mrs. Rollins is expressing thanks to everyone who has tried to help the home in any way both the members of the home, and friends outside. Also for the thoughtfulness of the directors of the Johnson home for the many improvements they have added to make the work easier in the past year.

Thanks are also due Dr. Emma Dunham for flowers; also to Mrs. James Maher (Beatrice Ashe) of New London.

AMERICAN PLAN FOR A NEW PEACE TREATY WITH FRANCE

Proposals Have Been Placed Before the French Government in Alternative Form—The Root Arbitration Treaty Will Expire February 27—The Proposals Will Include the Arbitration Proviso, With a Preamble That Includes a Declaration Against War.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 2—(AP)—American proposals in connection with the projected new peace treaty with France to take the place of the Root arbitration pact which expires February 27 have been placed before the French government in alternative form.

Whether the result of the conversations and exchanges of memoranda will result in a single treaty or in two separate pacts supplementary to each other depends presumably on French study of the American suggestions.

In view of the fact that these suggestions were put in definite form and transmitted through the French embassy after Secretary Kellogg had discussed the situation with the entire membership of the senate foreign relations committee, it is assumed by officials here that the proposals already have a considerable degree of senate sanction.

The conversations between Secretary Kellogg and Ambassador Claudel are now known to have led to two different proposals as to ways and means of tightening up diplomatic machinery for preserving peace. They also have made it clear that the Washington government is planning to follow up the conclusion of the new peace treaty or treaties with France by making over its arbitration agreements with other countries on the model of the new Franco-American commitments as the other Root treaties expire.

In the event that the original Briand proposal for a treaty with the United States to outlaw war is followed closely, the Washington attitude is that a multi-lateral covenant to be signed ultimately by other than the two powers now concerned might be framed. It would be of a general character, however, and amount to a joint policy declaration by the signatory powers against war. In view of constitutional limitations in this country, however, such as the reservation to congress alone of war making powers, no way appears open to include in a treaty of this character definite commitments not to resort to war under any circumstances.

That circumstance inclines the Washington viewpoint to favor a revision and strengthening of the Root treaty so as to include a policy declaration against war in the preamble. The succeeding articles of the treaty, however, would reenact the commitments to submit to arbitration at the Hague disputes of every character which could not otherwise be settled and which did not involve:

(2)—Questions which involve the interests of a third power.

(3)—Questions growing out of the maintenance by the United States of the Monroe doctrine.

To supplement and further strengthen and at the same time make even more elastic and workable the original Root arbitration treaty, the American plan includes a new element in the form of a reference to possible conciliation of disputes, or attempted conciliation, as a preliminary step to formal arbitration. In effect, this proposal would interlock with the arbitration treaty although not by specific reference, the existing Bryan conciliation treaty with France. The proposal is based on the generally accepted view that in many cases of international dispute where the question is not of a purely judicial character, examination by a joint commission of a fact finding nature frequently would make arbitration unnecessary.

BRITISH WATCHING FRANCO-AMERICAN NEGOTIATIONS

LONDON, Jan. 2.—(AP)—The progress of negotiations for a Franco-American pact outlawing war is being watched in official circles here with great interest in anticipation of the possibility that Great Britain and other nations will be invited to join later.

The official attitude is that any any suggestion for British adherence would receive a favorable consideration from the government, but there is no desire to pledge in advance the British attitude before the actual terms of the pact are known or whether other nations would be willing to adhere.

It was stated today that the government as yet has no official knowledge of the contents of the draft pact and officials are reluctant to accept as authoritative press versions which have been cabled from the United States.

MRS. LINDBERGH HAS COMPLETED HER FLIGHT

DETROIT, Jan. 2.—(AP)—Smiling happily despite the trying experiences of the last three days when snow and storm twice forced the Ford monoplane in which she was a passenger to earth, Mrs. Evangeline L. Lindbergh stepped from the ship's cabin at the Ford airport here this afternoon completing an epochal round trip flight to the capital city of Mexico.

The giant plane dropped gently to the landing field to taxi into the hangar from which the flight started two weeks ago. Mrs. Lindbergh apparently unaffected by her holiday trip by air to visit her famous son, Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh in Mexico City, left the airport quietly in an automobile to rest before returning to her tasks as a teacher in the Case Technical high school here.

Included in the party besides Mr. and Mrs. William B. Stout, were Mrs. John A. Collins, Stanley Copeland, Ford representative in Mexico; Harry Brooks, pilot, and Harry L. Russell, mechanic.

REDUCTION IN PRODUCTION OF ANTHRACITE COAL IN 1927

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 2.—(AP)—Production of anthracite coal fell off more than 3,000,000 tons, or 5.5 per cent in 1927, the output last year, based on official figures to the middle of December and estimated tonnages for the remainder of the year, having been approximately 72,000,000 tons against 75,390,000 in 1926.

In making these figures public tonight, the anthracite bureau of information said that of the factors entering into this reduction in production, weather conditions were the most important.

"For the ten years preceding 1927, including the two abnormal war years, 1917 and 1918, and the abnormal strike years of 1922 and 1925," said the bureau, "average anthracite shipments were 65,671,043 tons. Shipments for the year just ended were therefore about 3.5 per cent below the ten year average and about 5.5 per cent below th 1926 record."

Total commercial production—that is production less the coal consumed at the mines for power—was given as approximately gross 66,000,000 in 1927, compared with 69,648,000 the previous year. Shipments to markets outside the region last year aggregated 63,600,000 gross tons against 67,248,346 in 1926. The largest shipments on record were 1918 when 76,207,687 tons were sent out of the region.

FAILS TO SWIM THE STRAIT OF GIBRALTAR

TANGIER, Morocco, Jan. 2.—(AP)—The Strait of Gibraltar has beaten Miss Mercedes Gleitz, London typist and swimmer, a second time but only after a fine attempt which took her within approximately a mile of the Spanish shore after setting out from the African coast early this morning.

The young woman was forced to abandon the 27-mile swimming attempt after 12 hours in the water. When she gave up news from Miss Millie Hudson, another London typist who entered the water in a rival attempt, was still awaited. The two young women set out from different points on the southern shore.

British consular representatives accompanied both young women in their attempts to conquer the treacherous Strait of Gibraltar.

TESTING PULVERIZED COAL AS FUEL FOR SHIPS

NEW YORK, Jan. 2—(AP)—Completing the first test by the United States shipping board of pulverized coal as a fuel for ships, the freighter Mercer today reached Quarantine yesterday reached Quarantine two days ahead of its schedule on a round trip between New York and Rotterdam.

On the westward trip, the Mercer took the southern course, about 1,000 miles longer than that on which it made the voyage to Rotterdam. The scheduled round trip time was 18 days. The Mercer required 16. Three representatives of the fuel conservation division of the shipping board were on the mercer on the return trip.

LIBERATION OF 250,000 NEGRO SLAVES AT FREETOWN, AFRICA

FREETOWN, Sierra Leone, Africa, Jan. 2.—(AP)—The Uncle Toms, Mammys, and Topsys of the Sierra Leone Protectorate could all call their bodies their own today as they began work with the opening of the new year.

Nearly 250,000 Negro domestic slaves were delivered from bondage yesterday by decree and today were on a basis of political equality with their former masters.

Lady Simon, wife of Sir John Simon, the distinguished British liberal statesman, is given credit for disclosing to the outside world conditions existing in the protectorate and making an ardent plea which brought the emancipation of the slaves.

Many of the older freed men and women won't live to know much of the fruits of freedom but thousands of others, young and just beginning life, have new vistas opened to them. Emancipation did not evoke any demonstration. Indeed, their release is not yet fully understood by many of these simple and ignorant blacks. They are rather bewildered by the sudden change.

Comparatively few of the former slaves have left their former masters and it is probable that many of them never will depart unless they are subjected to cruelty but will continue to work as free men and women for those who formerly claimed their labor without pay.

It is said that in many cases the former slaves will have little difficulty in getting grants of land from their old masters. In some districts, however, numerous applications have already been received for new employment by slaves who are dissatisfied or fell the urge to tackle the world on their own account.

The question of what, if anything, will be done in regard to compensation of the former slave holders is not yet settled.

ROUGH SEAS AND COLD WEATHER HALT SALVAGE

PROVINCETOWN, Mass., Jan. 2.—(AP)—Rough seas and freezing temperatures halted the work of salvaging the sunken submarine S-4 today, but the crews of the salvage vessels were not idle. With the promise of better weather conditions tomorrow, officers directing the work continued the preparation of the necessary equipment and the training of divers. Tonight the wind was dying down and the temperature was rising slowly.

While the salvage fleet hugged Provincetown harbor for shelter from the bitter cold and inhispitable seas, officials of the naval board of inuiry which will open at the Boston navy yard on Wednesday came here to make a preliminary study. Lieut. Commander Leslie Bratton, who will act as judge advocate at the inuiry, and Lieut. Commander C. H. Dunbar, his assistant, spent four hours on the submarine tender Bushnell and the mine sweeper Falcon, lining up those who will appear at witnesses.

BUCHAREST, Rumania, Jan. 2—(AP)—Foreign Minister Nicholas Titlescu left today for San Remo, Italy, for a health cure. He will be away a couple of months and will visit Rome, Berlin, Paris, and perhaps London.

VIENNA, Jan. 2—(AP)—A dispatch to Den Morgen from the frontier station and machine guns smuggled into Hun- of St. Gothard says that several thousgary from Italy this morning under a false declaration is causing great excitement throughout Syria.

FREIBURG, Germany, Jan. 2—(AP)—The rejuvenating method of Dr. Serge Voronoff by the transplantation of monkey glands was stated to be impracticable by a report by Dr. Hoffmeister, first assistant to Prof. Erich Lexer, chief of the University hospital after an investigation carried out at the suggestion of German scientific circles.

COLD THE CAUSE OF MORE THAN TWO SCORE DEATHS

CHICAGO, Jan. 2—(AP)—Bitter cold which has overspread the middle west from the Rocky mountains to the Great Lakes region, will probably continue for another 24 hours, weather forecasts indicated tonight.

A little relief was promised for some time tomorrow when more snow is expected to pile still higher the drifts that have blocked traffic and caused heavy damage to transportation facilities.

Today the cold wave, most severe in the middle and northwest, had spread east to the Atlantic seaboard and south to Florida, the Pacific slope being the only region to escape.

More than two score deaths attributed to the cold had been reported, 25 of them from Chicago while in the northwest where the temperatures ranged from zero to 15 and 20 below, huge snow drifts blocked roads and handicapped railway traffic.

Bismarck, N. D., today boasted a reading of 34 degrees below zero while at Chicago it was six below according to the weather bureau but many suburbs reported 15 and 17 degrees below. Since the cold wave struck Saturday, three train wrecks have been attributed to it, with a loss of four lives and a toll of more than 50 injured, two of them at Chicago and one at Mt. Vernon, Ill. Two persons were dead and property damage of more than $300,000 was caused in half a dozen fires in Iowa cities over the week end, part of the blazes being attributed to faulty heating equipment overtaxed by the cold.

THREE MEN FOUND FROZEN TO DEATH IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, Jan. 2—(AP)—Three men were found frozen to death today in the city's first real cold wave of the winter.

The thermometer dropped to 11 degrees above zero at 5 o'clock this morning but after that rose steadily, passing the 20 degree mark at noon and climbing as the day passed.

Free lodging houses were taxed to capacity with almost 1,000 persons seeking beds last night, and preparations were made to handle like numbers tonight. Liners arriving today steamed up the harbor with their superstructure coated in thick ice.

The men found dead, two in door ways and one on a park bench, were a gateman at Bellevue hospital, an unidentified white man and a Negro.

ZERO WEATHER IN NEW HAMPSHIRE AND VERMONT

BOSTON, Jan. 2—(AP)—The cold wave which blew into New England with the New Year was somewhat intensified tonight, bringing to many sections the lowest temperatures of the winter. In northern Vermont and New Hampshire the mercury crossed the zero mark for the first time this season. Although no record was set by the chilly blast which blew in from the west yesterday, the sudden drop in temperature within a few hours caused widespread discomfort. When the new year opened in Boston the thermometers marked 58 degrees, one of the highest marks on record for the hour. The following 12 hours saw a drop of nearly 20 degrees and at 8 o'clock this morning the temperature was 15 degrees, the second lowest reading this winter.

THREE PERSONS KILLED IN COLLISION OF STREET CARS

MARIETTA, Ga., Jan. 2—(AP)—A head-on collision of two interurban electric cars, attributed indirectly to the freezing weather, killed three persons and injured 12 others near here today.

The crash occurred on a sharp curve near Glover's station when a northbound car, carrying passengers, ran past a signal light into a block on which an empty car was being deadhead into Atlanta.

An official report from the Georgia Power company, operators of the line, said that the signal light apparently failed to work because of the freeze up and that brakes on the north-bound car also failed because of the cold. The empty car was standing still when the crash came, the motorman having applied his brakes on hearing the approach of the other car.

OBITUARY

Miss Emily Stevens

NEW YORK, Jan. 2—(AP)—Miss Emily Stevens, who began a notable stage career at the age of 15 under the tutelage of her aunt, Minnie Maddern Fiske, died today in her West Side apartment after a sudden attack of illness. Assitant Medical Examiner Miles said that death probably was caused by an overdose of medicinal narcotics.

Miss Stevens was born in New York 42 years ago, the daughter of Emma Maddern, actress, and Robert E. Stevens, theatrical producer. She made her stage debut in Mrs. Fiske's company, with which she played many notable parts in the next eight years.

Among the better known vehicles of Miss Stevens' success were "The Unchastened Woman," "The Boss," Theatre Guild Productions, "The Sporting Thing to Do," "Today," and more recently, Ibsen play revivals.

Charles M. Kittle.

CHICAGO, Jan. 2.—(AP)—Charles M. Kittle, who began a railroad career at the age of 14 as a water boy for a section gang, finally becoming senior vice president of the Illinois Central railroad, and later president of Sears, Roebuck & Company, died here today after an illness of two weeks.

Mr. Kittle at the time he entered the Illinois Central system in 1924 was one of the youngest railroad executives in the country and was only 57 years old when he died. The story of his life reads like that of a boy hero of a Horatio Alger book.

Col. Lindbergh May Fly to South America

Is Considering to Include Colombia and Venezuela in Tour—Being Feted in San Salvador.

SAN SALVADOR, Salvador, Jan. 2—(AP)—Colonel Lindbergh has under consideration an extension of his Central American tour to include Colombia and Venezuela, but will not make a decision until he reaches Panama.

The flyer from the United States told correspondents today he had made no definite plans in this respect, but acknowledged that they were under consideration.

Receptions and official ceremonies took up Lindbergh's time today. President Romero Bosque pinned a commemorative gold medal upon him at a reception at the national palace. Members of the cabinet, the diplomatic and consulate corps, and others high public officials were present at these ceremonies.

On the way to the palace the streets were lined with some 10,000 persons who flocked to view the private citizen who is honored here as a special ambassador of the United States. News and news reel photographers had their cameras trained upon him at points all along the route to get every detail of his progress. Overhead a squadron of Salvadorean airplanes performed evolutions in friendly demonstration for the visiting flyer.

Other entertainments in his honor today were at the American legation and at the San Salvador Country club.

Lindbergh expects to hop off tomorrow morning between 11 and 12 for Tegucigalpa, Honduras, where he will be only a short distance from the Nicaraguan border. (Fighting between American marines and Nicaraguan rebels of the past few days is just over the border and Lindbergh probably will fly almost directly over the scene of the fighting when he leaves Tecucigalpa for Managua, probably Thursday.)

PROBABLE FATE OF THE AMPHIBIAN PLANE DAWN

PORTLAND, Me., Jan. 2—(AP)—Audible evidence of an aerial tragedy which remained inaudible was offered by the crew of the schooner Rose Anne Belliveau here today as an explanation of the fate of Mrs. Frances W. Grayson's plane, the Dawn and its four passengers.

Although the narrators were positive they heard a plane's motors above the howl of the gale and the splash of its plunge into the sea on the night of December 23, they had not told the story during five days in port at Salem, Mass. They had learned of the disappearance of the plane on its attempted flight from New York to Harbor Grace, N. F., through their radio receiving set soon after the sounds were heard.

Since the night on which they had heard the sounds which they attributed to a forced landing of amphibian, that area has been searched by a private plane hired by Mrs. Gertrude Goldsborough, wife of Navigator Brice Goldsborough of the crew and by the navy dirigible Los Angeles. While the Belliveau lay at Salem, two navy and three coast guard destroyers were making a vain search requiring days over the Sable Island district where a supposed radio message from the Dawn had been intercepted.

The story of the schooner's crew was told by the captain. Called on deck, during a howling northwester and heavy seas, shortly after 7.30 o'clock, on the night of December 23, when his vessel was at a point 18 miles northwest of Nauset Beach light on Cape Cod, Captain R. V. Comeau first distinguished faint sounds that he positively identified as those of airplane motors. These sounds came to an abrupt ending within ten minutes when a heavy splash was heard.

Captain Comeau stated that while only a staunch vessel could have battled against the seas at that tmie, he made an attempt to "hang around" with the Belliveau, a Nova Scotian three master on its way up the coast, to Portland. Prior to his arrival here yesterday, he had put into port at Salem, Mass., where the Belliveau remained for five days before proceeding.

FLOOD CONDITIONS IN MANY PARTS OF ENGLAND

LONDON, Jan. 2—(AP)—A great thaw which released Great Britain today from the chains of snow and ice which have been holding her, tonight had produced flood conditions in many parts of England where heavy rainfalls accompanied "the big melt."

In the valleys of the Thames, Severn and Trent, distressing conditions already have been reported and many streams have burst their banks under the pressure of the accumulated waters.

Rain has been falling for almost 24 hours in the London district and the snow, which for a week interfered with traffic, quickly disappeared as the temperature rose from 20 to 40 degrees.

The changed conditions brought relief to a number of remote villages which were snowbound and without their usual daily supplies while many villages thus were released from their snow-bound conditions others, especially along river banks, were distressed by overflows and rain which was general throughout England.

ARRAIGNMENT OF HICKMAN IS SCHEDULED FOR TODAY

The county grand jury was to consider data tomorrow in connection with the slaying of C. Ivy Thoms, druggist, slain in a hold-up admitted by Mickman and an accomplice, Welby Hunt, 16. Suspicious circumstances concerning the death of R. A. Driscoll, step-grandfather of Hunt, also occupied the authorities.

Already twice delayed on requests of the defense to avail more time to prepare its case, the hearing tomorrow was xpected to furnish the start of the legal fight by Jerome Walsh, Hickman's counsel, to save his client on the plea of insanity.

BUILDING PURCHASED FOR HOME OF N. Y. SUN

NEW YORK, Jan. 2—(AP)—The building at 280 Broadway in which A. T. Stewart had his first great New York department store has been acquired by William T. DeWart, president of the Sun, for the permanent home of the paper.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 2.—(AP)—Philadelphia's Mummers had a hard time of it today celebrating the coming of the New Year.

In the coldest weather ever experienced by the "shooters," six thousand members of the New Year's club marched, danced, cavoted and struggled up Broad street and out the parkway in the teeth of a bitterly cold wind, while tens of thousands of spectators blue nosed and red cheeked stood shivering along the route watching the antics of the revelers.

Despite the low temperature which averaged 17 degrees above zero, the celebration was a success, not much as for numbers but for its colorfulness, originality of costumes and burlesques.

The Mummers' parade, an institution that began in Philadelphia many years ago when small groups of men met and "shot" out the old year and celebrated the coming of the new, was divided into three general divisions, the fancy clubs, comic clums and string bands.

The fancy division lived up to its reputation as a colorful procession the captain of every club in this division carried a cape more than 100 feet long. One cape stretched out for 180 feet in five sections designed to give the impression of a golden sunburst. Its hues of white and gold were reflected in the costumes of 52 pages required to carry the lengthy train.

The kings and queens and princes, clowns and jockeys were also arrayed in gorgeous costumes.

The comic section burlesqued many events of the year of 1927. Lindbergh's flight to Paris, Ruth Elder's attempt to cross the Atlantic, and many events of a local character were humorously depicted by floats or other means.

There were about 100 impersonators of female characters in the parade and most of them suffered from the cold. A group of seven, who appeared in scanty clothes in depicting flappers were barred from the parade only to be arrested when they reappeared when the procession started.

The first prize for fancy clubs, $1,700, was won by the William J. Funston New Year's association, and the second prize $1,500 went to the Lobster New Year's association.

The League Island club won the first prize of $1,700 for comic clubs and the second prize of $1,500 to the Frank A. Collins club.

The Hegeman string band won the first prizes of $1,100 in the music divisions and the Wildwood, N. J., string band took the second prize of $900.

There were many prizes for best dressed fancy captain and most comic captain, and other individual awards, Philadelphia city council having appropriated $25,000 in prize money.

SOCIALIST INDUCTED AS MAYOR OF READING, PA.

READING, Pa., Jan. 2.—(AP)—A man who didn't know when he was defeated today became mayor, when J. Henry Stump, four times candidate of the socialist party, was inducted into office and Reading became the first American city ever to come under the control of a socialist regime.

Stump, who last fall was elected by the largest majority ever given a candidate for mayor of this city, took along with him into office James H. Maurer, president of the Pennsylvania Federation of Labor, and George W. Snyder, a piano tuner, as councilmen, and Walter J. Hollinger, controller, all socialists. Charles H. Kershner, democrat, and the only old party acndidate to be elected, took the oath as city treasurer. He was the victor in a recount which followed the official tabulation, defeating William C. Hoverter, by a narrow margin.

$6,000 IN REWARDS OFFERED FOR ARREST OF BOMBERS

SCRANTON, Pa., Jan. 2.—(AP)—Spurred on by the offer of city and county officials of $6,000 in rewards for information leading to the arrest of the bombers, state troopers, city detectives and county authorities today renewed their efforts to apprehend those responsible for the dynamiting Saturday night of the plant of the Scranton Sun, local afternoon paper.

THE PATROL BOAT CG-148 WAS DISABLED OFF BLOCK ISLAND

BLOCK ISLAND, R. I., Jan. 2—(AP)—The 75-foot patrol boat CG-148 was disabled this afternoon while several miles off New Harbor by an explosion in the engine room. Motor Machinist Kenneth Leland, of Kalamazoo, Mich., was seriously injured. The 125 foot patrol boat Nemeha responded to a call for aid from the CG-148 and towed her into New Harbor where she was found to have a damaged hull. The Nemeha transfered the injured coast guardsman to the Lawrence Memorial hospital, New London. A board of inquiry wil investigate the explosion tomorrow.

DR. M'MILLAN MAINTAINS HIS DENIAL OF MURDER

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 2.—(AP)—Days of steady grilling and the revelation of a mass of evidence against him failed late today to break the denial of Dr. Charles M. McMillan that he killed Mrs. Amelia Appleby, widow of a wealthy Chicagoan.

To every fresh inquiry and at every new clue unearthed the 57-year-old doctor reiterated his statement "I did not kill her."

Held without bail in the county jail awaiting the district attorney's effort tomorrow to obtain a murder indictment against him, the physician accused of killing Mrs. Appleby, sewing her body in a sack and dumping it at the roadside in San Bernando valley admitted that women "always had been a stumbling block" for him.

LA GUARDIA PASSENGER ON THE SUBMARINE S-8

BOSTON, Jan. 2.—(AP)—With Congressman Fiorello H. La Guardia, of New York, as passenger, the submarine S-8, sister ship of the ill-fated S-4 which was sunk off Provincetown December 17, was on its way tonight from New London, Conn., to this city. The congressman is making the cruise in order to obtain first hand information as to the equipment and handling of submarines.

NICARAGUAN REBELS HAVE BEEN DRIVEN TO MOUNTAINS

Total American Losses in Two Clashes Were 6 Killed and 28 Wounded—The Rebel Casualties Are Unknown—Preparations Are Now Going on to Crush the Insurgents Who Are Hidden in the Almost Inaccessible Strongholds of Mountains

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, Jan. 2.—(AP)—American marine reinforcements pushing through the rocky fastnesses of northern Nicaragua to support a detachment that captured Quilali last Friday after a sanguinary battle, clashed with rebel forces yesterday and drove the rebels to the mountains.

The American casualties were one killed and five wounded. The rebel casualties could not be determined as the rebels carried their dead and wouned with them to save them from vultures.

The total American losses in the fierce fighting which marked Friday's and yesterday's clashes were 6 dead and 28 wounded with the rebel losses much higher but not definitely known.

The American reinforcements reached their comrades at Quilali, which was formerly the rebel headquarters, and preparations are now going on to concentrate American columns at that place to crush the insurgents who are hidden in the almost inaccessible strongholds of the region.

First Sergeant Thomas G. Bruce, United States marine corps, and lately a lieutenant in the Nicaraguan national guard, was killed in yesterday's clash. His home was in Philadelphia.

Lieutenant Merton A. Richal, of Wisconsin, was seriously wounded. Four other marines also were wounded, but their names had not been reported here today.

Lieutenant Merton Ames Richal is listed in the navy register. He was born in Wisconsin, accepted his commission from Minnesota and has been a lieutenant since February 4, 1913.)

The American force, which was a joint combat patrol including members of the Nicaraguan national guard, was en route from Telpaneca to reinforce the garrison which captured Quilali, the rebel stronghold, on Friday, the patrol encountered part of the forces of the rebel general Sandino near Sapotilla ridge which is four miles from Quilali. There were about 400 men in the insurgent force and a sharp skirmish followed.

After desperate fighting the rebels were defeated and fled into the thick forests of the mountains near the Honduran border. The American patrol, which was under the command of Lieutenant Richal, then pushed on to Quilali to reinforce their comrades. With them they carried supplies and amunition, thus completing their mission successfully.

Marine plans, which have been playing an active part in the fighting with the Sandino rebels, assisted in the attack and met with fire from anti-aircraft guns manned by the rebels who have been showing greater cohesion than hitherto. The rebels are armed with rifles and machine guns and it is regarded as virtually certain here that Sandino is receiving outside aid.

Friday's battle was over a tortuous trail leading to Quilali, and the rebels, apparently warned by spies, stubbornly defended the position from the heavily timbered mountains, it was only after the most determined kind of fighting that they were driven from the trail and the town captured.

The loss of Quilali forced Sandino to shift his headquarters to El Chipote, 18 miles from Quilali. El Chipote is near the Coco river which offers a means of escape should the rebel leader be hard pressed since the stream flows through an unexplored wilderness.

Captain Richard Livingston, of Philadelphia, who was wounded by a bomb splinter in Friday's engagement, is reported to have improved and is expected to be back on duty within a few weeks.

An airplane returning from Ocotal today brought the remainder of the list of those slightly wounded in Friday's battle. Six seriously wounded and two officers slightly wounded were named in a list received yesterday.

Paul H. Huska, of Torrington, Conn., was among twelve who were slightly injured.

Captain Livingston, among the seriously injured, had his left elbow shattered by a rifle or machine gun fire. All of the wounded are reported doing well.

Most of the injuries were caused by bursting bombs, hand grenades, and other explosives. It has been learned that these bombs and grenades were of "home manufacture" prepared by Sandino's men with dynamite seized from an American mine at San Albino.

The marines are waiting for the trails in the region of Quilali and El Chipote in the eastern part of Nueva Segovia to dry up before beginning a drive on Sandino. During the rainy season the region is almost impassable. The dry season began in December and the marines immediately prepared pack trains at Matagalpa and started the long overland trip to Quilali.

Sandino, variously classified as a rebel, outlaw, and bandit, is regarded by many of the peons of the region as a martyr to his country, although he has been repudiated by leaders of the liberal party, and it is believed that spies among these peons informed him of the progress of the marines.

The Quilali region is very rough, mountainous, and covered with heavy undergrowth. Sandino established his defenses three miles southeast of Quilali, placing his men at strategic points on the hills overlooking the trail followed by Captain Livingston's patrol. When the marines and national guardsmen approached Sandino's men began firing with rifles, machine guns, and small artillery. They also threw bombs and hand grenades filled with glass and nails.

The marines returned the fire but were at a decided disadvantage due to their location in valleys and ravines and the necessity for protecting mules and pack train.

Colonel Louis Mason Gulick, commander of the marines in Nicaragua, said the march on Quilali was part of a policy of taking over as many towns as possible, leaving Sandino without a town as headquarters. The rebels fought desperately to keep the marines out of Quilali because of its strategic importance.

Sunday's battle was in the nature of a counter attack, the rebels believing the marine garrison at Quilali could not receive reinforcements from Telpaneca in time. It took place shortly before the arrival of a reinforcing combat patrol.

Sergeant Bruce, killed in Sunday's battle, displayed great heroism at Ocotal last July when a handful of marines and guardsmen administered a crushing defeat to Sandino's forces. Colonel Gulick said today that Bruce was a wonderful soldier, one of the best he had.

Communicating with Nueva Segovia, the battle region, is almost entirely by airplane. Four or five machines are sent to Ocotal from Managua every morning and return in the early evening with news from the garrisons of the vicinity.

CALL FOR HOSPITAL SUPPLIES AND REINFORCEMENTS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 2—(AP)—An urgent need for hospital supplies and reinforcements was expressed in a radio message received tonight at the navy department from marine corps headquarters at Telpaneca, Nic., from which place the marine detachment which participated in yesterday's battle departed.

The communication was the department's first official word of yesterday's fighting, in which one marine was killed, another seriously wounded and three others slightly hurt. It asked that hospital supplies be rushed to Telpaneca by airplane.

It said further that the marines had taken up a position, which would be maintained, although the detachment was "urgently in need of reinforcements."

MARINE CORPS PLANES BOMBED REBEL FORCES

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, Jan. 2—(AP)—Rebel forces under General Augustino Sandino were bombed by American marine corps airplanes today.

Major R. W. Rowell led the attack from the air, and reported to Colonel Louis Mason Gulick, commander of the marines in Nicaragua, that several direct hits were made with the bombs, undoubtedly causing numerous casualties.

WHITE HOUSE RECEPTION WAS A BRILLIANT AFFAIR

WASHINGTON, Jan. 2.—(AP)—In keeping with a tradition as old as the United States itself, New Year's was observed at the white house today when President and Mrs. Coolidge exchanged the season's greetings with more than 3,000 diplomats, officials of the government and Washington citizens.

Two divisions of the Marine band clad in bright red coats and blue trousers played briskly in the foyer of the executive mansion as the long line filed by the President and Mrs. Coolidge who stood in the blue room. When the last well wisher had gone the president and his staff walked outside in the near zero weather to pose for pictures and wave a greeting to the crowd assembled at the north portico.

In spite of the cold weather, the number that shook hands with Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge today was slightly more than a year ago. The exact number received was 3,201, which was 198 more than last year. It was a merry, jostling crowd that passed down the long red-carpeted hall through the state dining room into the blue room.

Precedents were followed carefully, especially in the morning when the President and Mrs. Coolidge welcomed the diplomatic corps, members of the cabinet and other government officials. Promptly at 11 o'clock the delicately wrought iron gate to the main staircase swung open as the band played "Hail to the Chief" and Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge, followed by cabinet members and their wives descended and took their places in the blue room.

With the band playing appropriate seasonal airs, members of the diplomatic corps in brilliant colored costumes and gold braid were received. They were led by Sir Esme Howard as dean of the diplomatic corps, who brought the season's greetings from King George of England.

CUTTING UNDECIDED ABOUT ALIGNMENT IN THE SENATE

EAST LAS VEGAS, N. M., Jan. 2—(AP)—Senator Bronson Cutting, independent republican, who is en route to Washington as the appointee of Governor R. C. Dillon to succeed the late Senator A. A. Jones of New Mexico, said here today he had not decided how he would align himself in the senate.

"I cannot make any definite pledges," Senator Cutting said. "I do not know the situation in Washington. You have heard it said there is a strategic position for the senator from New Mexico. But you also know that in strategy there must be politics and maneuvering and the old time senators are at a great advantage in that."

Senator Cutting concluded his brief interview by saying: "New Mexico seems to have been the step-child of the nation for 85 years. The governors sent here were trouble makers that the east wanted to be rid of and they did not trouble themselves to understand or aid the territory. It is now up to the federal government to make up in the next few years for the neglect shown New Mexico in the past 85 years."

MISSING AVIATOR AND HIS AIRPLANE SAFE

DUBOIS, Pa., Jan. 2—(AP)—Harry C. Smith, Cleveland-New York air mail pilot, who disappeared early last night while flying over western Pennsylvania, was found today in the wilds of the so-called "Hunters Paradise" of Clearfield county. He was unhurt and his plane was undamaged. The airman reported to the postmaster at Curwensville late today and his presence there led to circulation of erroneous reports that a second plane had been forced down.

POETRY

Ballade

So often, in this season of good cheer,
Of festive holly-wreath and mistletoe,
Across the gulf that widens year by year
Between the present and the long-ago
Pass unexpected greetings to and fro.
How pleasant (such remembrance deemed at end).

To welcome with responsive heart aglow
The card of some almost forgotten friend!
We muse on what has brought past memories near,
Made him determine thus to let us know
That still there beats for us a heart sincere,
Though dim the picture of the past may grow,
As ever far apart life's currents flow,
Such Christmas greetings joy to Yuletime lend;
And oft is cherished more than word will show
The card of some forgotten friend!

Before its message mists of memory clear
And old-time paths through distant vistas show.
Elusive nymphs of by-gone days appear
And on our thoughts their freshened garlands throw,
A different charm from gifts our friends bestow
Upon us in return for gifts we send
Has this remembrance from the long ago,
The card of some almost forgotten friend.

Envoi

Friends, though the joys of Christmas soon must go
And soon our days assume life's steady trend,
May each still treasure in the afterglow
The card of some almost forgotten friend!
—Gretchen Gibson, in Vancouver Province.

A Woman's Prayer

Lord of the simple folk who toil and pray,
Before me lies a long and busy day—
Thou who are too a worker here, lean low

I shall remember then that God does heed
The sparrow's fall and every human need,
And that Thy Kingdom is not far away
But close beside me where the children play.

As on the hillside Jesus stood to break
The loaves and fishes for the hungry's sake,
So on my table may I gladly spread
For my beloved ones their daily bread.

If in the maze of things I should find cause
To fear or fret—dear Lord, let me but pause,
And know Thy power encircles me around,
Then shall the place I stand be holy ground.
—Blanche Balesco in The Christian Science Monitor.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

Teacher—What was the Tower of Babel?

Prep—Wasn't that where Solomon kept his 500 wives?—Detroit News.

"Do you forgive your enemies?"

"I do," answered Sen. Sorghum, "if they can show me that they have votes enough to make it worth while trying to bargain."—Washington Star.

Norton—"Did the noise we made worry your folks when I brought you home last night?"

Pansy—"Oh, no! It was the silence."—Pathfinder.

Judge—Have you anything to offer to the court before sentence is passed on you?

Prisoner—No, judge. I had $10, but my lawyer took that.—Presbyterian Advance.

"I think I'd better get up and give that old lady my seat," said the sheik to his sheba.

"Oh, be your age," she snapped. "Don't you know no man under sixty ever bothers about that gallantry stuff any more?"—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Mrs. Teller—Mrs. Watts always asks the price of everything.

Mrs. Teller—She wanted to know how much I paid for this dress.

Mrs. Asker—Such inquisitiveness! How much did you tell her?—Pathfinder.

"I am not well doctor."

"How do you live?"

"Like any other poor dog—I work like a horse all day, I am always ravenous as a wolf, then I am as tired as a dog and sleep like a bear."

"You had better consult a veterinary surgeon."—Der Gemutliche Sachse, Leipzig.

KALEIDOSCOPE

English in 11 lessons so equipped 20 Paris policemen that they answered 850 questions in the new language. This encouraging result caused the prefect, Jean Chappe, to order 350 more of his force to go to the school. Frenchmen who have adventured abroad suggest that a notebook and pencil will help out the officers for they have found it simpler in England and America to write their questions rather than wrestle with the foreign accent.

Ohio's old town of Schoenbrunn, two miles southeast of Cleveland, is the state's newest village as well for it now has one house which is more than it has had in more than a century. This structure is a copy of the log cabin built by the Rev. David Zeisberger, Moravian missionary, who founded the settlement May 3, 1772. By August of that year, Schoenbrunn became a thriving settlement of some 60 houses of hewn timber. Then the site was lost for 146 years, being discovered in 1923 by excavation.

George Eliot's grave has been visited this year by many American visitors to England. The novelist, who died in 1890, is buried in Highgate cemetery, a fact unknown to most of her own country people. Her grave was overgrown with weeds and left untended for years until recently two women from Baltimore paid to have it re-soiled and planted with flowers. Americans in fact, are the principal pilgrims to honor the great novelist. Many of them pluck a flower or leaf and carry it in their guidebooks as a souvenir of their visit.

INGROWN NAIL

Turns Right Out Itself

A few drops of "Outgro" in the crevice of the ingrowing nail reduces inflammation and pain and so toughens the tender, sensitive skin underneath the toe nail, that it can not penetrate the flesh, and the nail turns naturally outward almost over night.

"Outgro" is a harmless antiseptic manufactured for chiropodists. However, anyone can buy from the drug store a tiny bottle containing directions.

SEVERAL LARGE REALTY SALES IN PAST YEAR

WILLIMANTIC, Jan. 3.—Four important business blocks on Main street changed hands during the past year. The Hayden block otherwise known as the Marble front building with a frontage of 56 feet, was sold for $50,000 by Hyman Rosenberg, of Lowell, Mass., to Henry Wolfson, of New York. The Holmes block in the heart of the business section was sold by Sydney B. Ailing, of Westerly, R. I., to Frank P. Lombardo, of this city. The sale price was about $63,000. Earlier in the year the Commercial Block near Lincoln square was sold to Fanny M. Lehrman of this city by Fred and Gertrude Turner Hortense T. Parke, of this city, and Adelbert T. Towbridge, of Chaplin. The purchase price was approximately $30,000. The most recent sale was the Hibberd block, formerly the Turner property, by Water H. Hibberd, to Louis Joseloff, of West Hartford.

Considerable land which it is proposed to use for an addition to St. Joseph's hospital building was added to the holdings of St. Joseph's Catholic corporation on Jackson street through the purchase of land and buildings from Frank Armosiewicz. The sum of $10,000 was paid for this property. Among the more important residences which changed hands during the year was the Estella Young place on Windham road sold to Henry R. Woodward, the Peter J. Hinds residence, also on Windham road, to the American Thread company, and a cottage on Lebanon avenue sold to May C. Gaucher, wife of Attorney Harry S. Gaucher, by Florence A. Southward and William A. Summer.

There was heavy buying in building lots, much being in developments at The Ridges, off Ash street and Prospect Park. Several acres of the Buck estate lying between High, Walnut and North streets were disposed of in parcels by the heirs, George E. Buck, Frank L. Alpaugh, Clifford J. Alpaugh, Allen B. Lincoln and Eliza L. Brown, of Providence. Purchasers of the estate were made by George H. Arnold, Owen O'Neill Ellery and Effie M. Weeks and John E. Harvey. On the North Windham-Windham Center back road over 15 acres of land underwent rapid transfers of ownership. The property was sold by William P. Hungerford to Harry S. Bond, of Hartford, who sold it to Charles R. and Edythe H. Godyear, of North Windham. The latter in turn sold it to George F. Burns of East Hartford. Probably the most important lease filed during the year at the office of Town Clerk Frank P. Fenton is that for the three-story manufacturing plant on Valley street from Dwight W. and C. Howard Chaffee to Charles H. Weare, of Troy, N. Y. Records of the sale of the entire equipment for the manufacture of twine, fishing line, etc., by the Chaffees to Mr. Weare are on file.

FINED AND JAILED FOR DRIVING ILLEGAL CAR

WILLIMANTIC, Jan. 2.—Clifford Leigh, 28, of Mansfield, was fined $100 and cost amounting to $116.77 and given a ten-day jail sentence, at a session of the town court Saturday evening when he was arraigned on charges of driving a car with mutilated motor number s and failure to have an operator's license. Leigh was arrested by Officer Stevens. He was driving a Ford car and the motor number was found to have been tampered with and did not correspond with the number appearing on the registration of the car. The case was heard by Justice of the Peace Albert M. Gilman of Coventry and prosecuted by Grand Juror Carleton P. King.

JEWETT CITY

BOROUGH'S 1927 FIRE LOSS WAS KEPT DOWN TO $9,950

JEWETT CITY, Jan. 3.—During the year 1927, the A. A. Young, Jr., fire company responded to 22 alarms, five of which were outside the borough limits, in these last mentioned cases, such assistance was rendered as seemed judicious without leaving any section of the borough unprotected. The loss within the borough was $9,950, which for the period of three years makes the borough's loss, $33,215, with the record of every fire having been kept to the building where it started. This speaks well, and then some, for the skill of the local smoke-eaters.

The list follows:

MAKING BIG ICE CAKES A STUNT WHILE YOU WAIT

JEWETT CITY, Jan. 2.—The cold wave struck this town with a whir Sunday night, the glass reading 12 degrees above at 5 o'clock Monday morning, a drop of 30 degrees in 12 hours.

Although the Ashland pond has been all frozen over, yet the main channel were through Saturday and was open from the dam to the bridge Sunday. This evening the ice has closed in again, giving the third promise this season of a harvest. Shea Bros. were doing an altogether unusual stunt on Monday, when they were supplying the local markets with 12-inch ice cut in 1922, also with 12-inch ice cut last month. Lest any seem skeptical on the last cutting, it is explained that four-inch ice was cut after the freeze two weeks ago, and the cakes were placed in a long row on the top of the ice which had been sluiced with water. The next day the cakes having frozen solidly together, 8-inch ice was cut, and put on top. The day following the cutting measured plumb 12 inches, fine and clear. Shea Bros. have remaining 30 tons of the harvest of 1922 in one of the four big houses.

Mrs. H. E. Paul has had as New Year's guests Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Strickland and children of Middletown, Mr. and Mrs. John Cheney and Mr. and Mrs. James Gallow of Moosup.

Mrs. Michael Hopkins died at her home on Hill street Monday morning after a week's illness with pneumonia. Mrs. Hopkins was born in Ireland, but has lived in Jewett City practically all her life. She was the daughter of Patrick and Rose Cunningham. She has been employed in the Ashland Cotton Co. mills up to the beginning of her illness, most of the time since she has lived here. She is survived by a daughter, Mrs. George Gill, and by two grandchildren. She leaves a sister, Mrs. Mrs. May Healy, and a nephew in Pawtucket. Her husband died 11 years ago.

Mrs. Amos G. Main, who has been visiting her sister, Mrs. Walter I. Johnson, has returned to her home at Gales Ferry.

James Thornton, who has been superintendent of the color department at the Glasgo Finishing company's plant, has resigned and has returned to the Bellefont plant, near Providence. His department gave him a wrist watch in remembrance of their friendly business relations. He is to be succeeded his brother, William Thornton.

Yuletide decorations in home windows have been more general than on previous holidays. Hundreds of wreaths and poinsettia sprays, with here and there small springs of silver leaves and knots of scarlet ribbon comprise the attractive displays.

GROTON

One hundred and twenty-five children, pupils in the Sunday school of the Sacred Heart church, were guests of the Ladies' Aid society of the church the other afternoon in the church hall. A program of instrumental music and singing was presented by Charles Ladden, Philip Bergeron, Rita Richards and Marion Andriola. Chorus singing was enjoyed.

A Christmas tree was a feature and each child was presented a gift. Refreshments were served.

MYSTIC

Funeral services for Mrs. Phoebe Denison Ford, 87, were held at the old Denison homestead, the home of her niece, Mrs. Annie Denison Gates, in the Pequotsepos district, Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth, of New London, assisted by Rev. Charles F. Eldredge, of Niantic, conducted the services. There were beautiful floral emblems. The bearers were Justin W. Denison, Oliver Denison, Seth N. Williams, Noyes Palmer, Horace Frink and Manning Miner. Burial was in Elm Grove cemetery. Mrs. Ford was the last of the seven children of Oliver Denison and Nancy D. Noyes. She was born in the house where the funeral was held, May 30, 1840, and lived there until a few years ago when she came to Mystic to live, and her niece, Mrs. Gates, bought the homestead. She united with the Road Congregational church in her youth and was an active member until recent years when she was unable to attend. She was a kind neighbor, ever ready to perform a good deed.

Mrs. V. Herbert Lamb, Mr. and Mrs. Seymour A. Stoddard attended the funeral of Mrs. Lillian A. Slocum in New London Sunday afternoon.

One case of scarlet fever has developed in Old Mystic. The child has been taken to a New London hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Purdy returned Sunday to Whitman, Mass., after a visit with local relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Adrian O'Neal, of New York, were week-end guests at their home here.

The Ladies' Aid society of the Old Mystic Baptist church is to meet with Mrs. Charles Burdick, Wednesday afternoon.

A daughter has been born to Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Marshall, of Providence. Mr. Marshall is a nephew of H. B. and S. S. MacKenzie, of Mystic.

William L. Main has sold the house at No. 10 Pearl street, which he recently bought of Manuel Sylvia, to Clark H. Brown, of 12 Pearl street.

The Ladies' Aid society of St. Patrick's church is to meet Wednesday evening in the assembly hall of the church.

Miss Marguerite Downing, of Narragansett Pier, has been a guest of Miss Margaret Duhaime.

The public school will resume sessions this (Tuesday) morning after the holiday recess.

WHAT NEW ENGLAND REVEALED

Senator Capper of Kansas has been making an automobile trip through New England. We don't suppose he covered it thoroughly but he covered several hundred miles according to his reference to it in his Capper's Weekly and in view of what has been said, what exists to be talked about and the efforts which are being put forth in behalf of New England agriculture it cannot help being noted that he did not find evidences that the soil of New England was so worn out as to be unprofitable. He saw "very few abandoned farms," he noted that the farmhouses were in a better state of repair and the farms were much better kept up as a rule than those in Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Missouri and Kansas.

In other words he came into New England and found conditions better than he had anticipated. He was prepared to see something else. He doesn't say that he didn't see abandoned farms but those he did see were few in number, but from what he did see he got the impression that New England farmers are prosperous.

But he even went further than that He not only saw where New England was not as bad as some have been inclined to paint it but he found where it was even better on the average than the newer midwest.

He said, in fact: "In fruit growing, New England certainly has us outclassed. They grow better fruit no doubt because they give their orchards, vineyards and berry bushes better care—and I imagine it pays." This not only indicates what is being done but the opportunities for doing more in this direction, even as is frequently urged.

But when the senator from Kansas says, "The journey has given me a better idea than I ever had before of the historic beginnings of our republic and of its stupendous growth, resources and power." It might be a good thing if more senators more Kansans, more from the other parts of the country got in touch with what New England is doing and what it can do. If advertising New England will encourage more to do as Senator Capper did, to see what he did and to feel about it as he did let the advertising go forth liberally. New England certainly advertises itself if it is given a chance.

LIGHTS OR WALKS FOR PEDESTRIANS

Because of accidents which appear, to be entirely unnecessary, occurring in highways, much thought is naturally given to means of prevention.

After it has been realized that a little more care on the part of those involved might easily have eliminated any mixup, it is inevitable that there be consideration given to the maintenance of better warnings or to providing a walk at the side of the road for pedestrians which would take them out of the road where traffic and speed are increasing each year.

It is not infrequent that persons walking along the side of a good road in the evening are struck by autos with fatal or serious results and in many of the instances the driver makes a successful getaway. Such accidents arouse much indignation and the proper punishment of the guilty is demanded, but the difficulty lies in locating the guilty driver.

Because it is recognized that the pedestrian has a right to a part of the highway, and it is known that he is going to make use of the hard surfaced roadway whenever possible, the suggestion has been made that he should carry a light of some character for his own protection. That would give warning to drivers. Even the wearing of a reflector would help some but it would not be visible at as many agles.

Another method of relieving the situation would be the construction of a sidewalk for the use of these walkers. This suggestion has been advocated following an accident in Rhode Island where one man was killed and the other perhaps fatally injured. This doesn't mean that walks should be built along all new highways going through the country, but where they go through villages and thickly settled suburbs, for with attractive road surfaces it can hardly be expected that the pedestrian is going to walk in the rough. Then there would be raised the question as to whether the state, the town or the particular community should bear the expense, but with pedestrians carrying lights, even though they did use the road, there would be no excuse for running them down.

PASTE THIS IN YOUR GARAGE

The winter season is young yet. There will be a number of weeks when it will be much more comfortable to work on automobiles inside the garage than outside, and for the same reason there will be a strong temptation to do this, even if the engine is to be run, while the doors are kept closed.

In too many instances there is the inclination to yield to personal comfort through protection from the cold before giving thought to the real danger that is involved.

Already this year an Amherst college student was found unconscious beside the automobile on which he had been working. He had closed the doors and started the engine. In due time, which wasn't very long, he was overcome by the deadly monoxide gas. Only because his continued absence causing his brother to investigate is he alive today to tell of his experience. Through the use of a lung motor for an hour signs of life were detected and he was snatched from the brink of the grave. He has been through an experience which he is not likely to repeat intentionally.

Quite the same as a burned child avoids the fire, those who escape after such experiences are strong advocates of personal protection and make sure that there is plenty of fresh air in their garages when they work on their cars. But it ought to be apparent to every automobile owner and driver long before this that no such chances should be taken. Many have been killed through the lack of precaution and an apparent forgetfulness of the fact that what has happened to others threatens them under similar circumstances.

There's no doubt but what plenty of warning has been given. No more effective demonstration ought to be desired than the frequent instances of those put to sleep forever and the many others who come so close to it that there's an equally effective warning. If there is any danger that you are likely to forget it just paste this up in your garage where it can be a constant reminder to you and yours. There's no use in augmenting the too long list of needless deaths.

WHERE DELAY IS DESIRABLE

Great as is the desire for tax reduction and great as is the desire to get the matter settled and out of the way before the jam of the closing days of the session, there is general endorsement being given to the idea of delaying action in the senate on the revenue bill until such a time as conditions will make better judgment possible.

It is perfectly evident that we cannot have our cake and eat it. Congress cannot proceed to cut right and left for the purpose of lowering the federal taxes and yet provide for sufficient revenue to run the government and meet the appropriations that are yet to be made.

No one knows definitely what congress is going to do. It faces large outlays. There are several matters before it that will call for unusual appropriations. They need to and will be met, but how it is done will have its influence upon what can be done in the way of tax reduction. That will be better revealed by waiting, especially as there has been a disposition shown to disregard the advice of the treasury department.

Furthermore, through such a delay as has been proposed, it is going to be possible to get a better idea of what the first quarter of the new year is going to produce in the way of new revenue. That cannot be entirely disregarded. Perhaps it ought not to be left entirely to estimates.

We can go ahead blindly, raise havoc by unwise action and regret it when it is too late. On the other hand we can proceed with caution, get a better understanding of what can be done by what there is to do with and avoid trouble through delay. We cannot spend our revenue, make a heavy cut in taxes and escape a deficit. We can meet requirements and still make a tax reduction if we keep within bounds.

TO ENCOURAGE SHIPPING

Under a bill which is to be introduced in the senate at the request of shipping interests provision would be made for a large compensation for the carrying of foreign mail by American steamships. The idea would be to make more and easy business for the American merchant vessels and to stimulate the construction of new and faster ships.

American ships are not carrying the bulk of the foreign mail. Only about a sixth of it goes in American bottoms because they do not possess the necessary speed, and without such help they are not disposed to enter into competition with foreign vessels.

If they could get the mail carrying contracts they would construct and maintain ships that would meet requirements and thus bolster up the merchant marine for service in the time of peace and be the more available and desirable for service in case of war.

This is of course only another one of the subsidy plans which congress has from time to time been asked to approve. It is in keeping with the method that is employed by the British. This would be sufficient in the eyes of the mayor of Chicago to kill it but congressional condemnation isn't usually based upon any such reason, although the idea of a subsidy never has made much of an impression upon congress. That, of course, doesn't mean that it never will.

WASHINGTON AFFAIRS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 2 — Even though aspirants for the presidency continue to fight shy of open declarations of candidacy, the crop of vice presidential possibilities grows each week, and New England seems to be in the spot light for that position. Assuming Hoover will be the successful candidate at the convention, thus throwing the vice presidency to the east, Col. Tilson, republican floor leader has at this moment the strongest backing, as far as can be ascertained. His splendid leadership of the house, his tact, forceful insistence of party loyalty has given him opportunity and experience in public affairs, that but few other "mentioned" possess. It is also whispered here that Tilson may be the chosen one for the position of permanent chairman of the republican national convention at Kansas City in June, but thus far Mr. Tilson has made no move to bring the chairmanship his way. That he is one of the finest presiding officers in the country is acknowledged by men of both major political parties, and he is eminently qualified for the chairmanship, whether or not he desires the position.

Another man in the New England delegation, much talked of for the convention chairmanship, is Senator Moses of New Hampshire, now president pro tempore of the senate. Like Tilson, Moses is one of the most efficient presiding officers in the country. His methods savor more of the iron hand, than do those of Tilson, but both Tilson and Moses have the ability to preside with firmness, tact and discretion, and are equal to meeting any circumstances that may arise to throw the senate, the house or a national convention into rank confusion and disorder. Either man would be a great credit to New England in the position of permanent chairman, and it is likely one or the other will be named.

Connecticut created a sensation in Washington police circles the last day of the old year, by dropping into their hands a shop-lifter who gloried in the fact that he had "given the police something to do." It was Richards A. Rice of New Haven, 73 years old, who was caught in the act, arrested and then told the police that he had taken up shop-lifting as a pastime, and in revenge for the loss last year through theft, of a diamond ring and $500 in cash. Rice said he didn't need the thing he took, and that seemed true for he had on his person more than $300, and was living at one of the hotels in this city, while spending a few days here on his way to Florida. He willingly told the police and even showed pride in the matter, where he had other goods taken in the same way.

Except for that incident and the great question of diversion of the tributary streams of the Connecticut by Massachusetts actions, Connecticut has not been in the limelight during the holiday season.

With the convening of congress on Wednesday, legislation affecting that state will be resumed. On Tuesday, the attorney general of Connecticut will file in the U. S. supreme court, a motion to bring a suit in equity regarding the diversion of the Ware and Swift rivers in Massachusetts, but which flow into the Connecticut.

Perhaps dolls have gone out of fashion with extremely modern youngsters, but not so with grown-ups. This was pretty clearly shown the past week when a typical Japanese "Feast of the Dolls" was reproduced by visiting Japanese and attended by diplomats of high degree from all over the world. Seventeen "art dolls," each valued at $200 including their large and varied wardrobes, were presented to the children of the United States, by children of Japan as evidence of good will. The presentation was made by little Miss Matsudaira, the 12 year old daughter of the Japanese ambassador, and the dolls were accepted by little Jane Davis, the 10 year old daughter of Secretary of Labor Davis. This ceremony took place in the National theater with the U. S. Marine band furnishing the music. The scene was a remarkable one, not only for the presence of "notables" but for the sentiment it portrayed. Each doll is about 30 inches tall, wonderfully dressed in full native Japanese costume made of rich brocades. A complete set of baggage comes with each doll, also a full set of furniture, all patterned after the most approved Japanese models.

Forty-one other dolls will arrive later via the Panama canal. The collection will be distributed among various museums throughout the country.

Senator Bingham presided at the joint banquet given here last week by the American Historical association and the American Political Science association.

Congressman and Mrs. Freeman will return here from their Florida trip on [illegible] gressman, will come to Washington after Tuesday.

Mrs. John Q. Tilson, wife of the congressman, will come to Washington after the holidays season, to be with Col. Tilson for the remainder of the social season this year has but a short run, as Lent comes in February 22nd and puts an end to many of the larger social festivities, though dinners run their usual hectic course, and take on added impetus, as dances go out under the Lenten ban.

Washington has been shrouded in heavy fogs much of the past week. "I can't even see the buildings across the narrow street" is heard on every side, and automobiles have carried head lights in full blaze many of the days.

Democrats have lost a seat and a sure vote in the senate through the death of Senator Jones of New Mexico, democrat and the appointment of Bronson Cutting to fill the vacancy, nominally a republican. Mr. Cutting has a record of somewhat vacillating partisanship, and people here are wondering if it will prove that though the democrats have lost the seat have the republicans gained a vote?

Practically all New England streams important from a flood menace standing will be included in comprehensive surveys which will be made by army engineers in the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1928, is stated by Gen. Deakyne, acting chief of engineers. Mrs. Rogers, member of congress from the fifth Massachusetts district has been pressing such action and was today informed by the board of engineers that the work has been authorized but must wait an appropriation from congress before it can be begun. The sum needed as the minimum is $1,500,000, but an additional $500,000 was asked for. The work will be started as soon as the next river and harbor bill is passed by congress. Gen. Deakyne states special attention will be paid the recently flooded and endangered districts of New England.

Dr. Remsen D. Bird, president of Occidental College, born in New York city, 40 years ago today.

Lee S. Overman, United States senator from North Carolina, born at Salisbury, N. C., 74 years ago today.

Maiden Lane in New York is so named from the fact that it once followed the course of a stream in which the Dutch girls washed clothes.

THE MEMORY GARDEN

Mrs. Fuller rose slowly from the flower-bed over which she had been bending and stood rubbing the dry earth from her fingers while she looked across the street where teachers and pupils were leaving the high school building at the close of the afternoon session. The young people came along the brick walks in twos and threes, chattering and laughing. Now and then one strolled across the campus reading from an open book or dropped down to rest a few moments on one of the many stone seats to enjoy the shade of the large elm trees.

Mrs. Fuller's attention seemed fixed on a young man who was walking alone.

"Something wrong" she murmured. "Something wrong."

"What's the matter, mother?" inquired her husband teasingly from his seat on the porch. "Didn't that last slip you stuck down live?"

"Oh, the plants are doing well enough. It's the folks that worry me." She gave her hands a final brush to clear them of the last particles of earth and seated herself in a low rocker near her husband.

"It's Mr. Cross and Miss Lane. You know how devoted they were last spring? I haven't seen them together this fall and the schoolgirls tell me they hardly speak to each other. It just makes me sick."

"There, there, mother, you can't settle young people's differences. Let them alone. They'll make it up."

"I don't know. Sometimes little quarrels are never made up. I only wish I could bring them together somehow. They care for each other, I know. I've watched them many times. She hasn't been over here to see us this fall. I imagine she would feel more unhappy if she came, now that they have quarreled."

* * *

"Neither has been here. I used to enjoy the young fellow. He never seemed to think it a waste of time to play a game of croquet with an old codger like me."

"There she comes now. I'm going to hail her."

"Be careful, mother. Be careful."

Mrs. Fuller descended the steps and waved energetically to a good-looking young woman who was crossing the street.

"Come over," she called. "I haven't had a visit with you this fall and I miss you dreadfully."

"I've missed you too, but you know first days are busy ones. Tonight I felt so tired I thought I would go home and rest, but now that I am here I think a visit will help me more than a nap. How's the memory garden? Won't you tell me about it?"

"It isn't very full this year. I dug all these shrubs out and moved them. They were growing so large they were crowding out the later plantings."

"Usually the new memories crowd out the old," commended Miss Lane almost bitterly. They had approached a round bed filled with many different varieties of flowers planned in a way that could never be in any stretch of imagination called artistic, but the earth was free from weeds and freshly cultivated.

"All these shrubs along the side fence were started here, I brought that bridal wreath from my sister's home in Ohio five years ago. The flowering quince my brother sent me from Iowa, and so on all along the fence, but here are my newest memories. See these sweet violets? My niece sent them to me from Alabama. Pa and I are going to move them to a cold frame and I'll sell bunches in the spring and give the money to missions."

"I'll be a steady customer," said Miss Lane as she searched among the dark green leaves for a stray blossom.

* * *

"These geraniums Mrs. Thomas gave me for winter blossomsers. They are all ready to lift into pots. Mrs. Bronson brought me the lemon verbena from her daughter's over at the county seat. The periwinkle was given me by an old lady who never had anything else in her garden. All these glads will blossom next year."

For several moments Miss Lane's eyes had been fixed on a rose with a dark red blossom crowning its short growth. She seemed to only half hear what was being said as Mrs. Fuller rambled on about the subject nearest her heart.

"Some old ladies crochet, some piece quilts, some embroider or make hooked rugs, but I have my flowers and I love this spot here most of all," and she began stirring the earth with her finger as she watched her guest out of the corner of her eye.

"The rose?" Miss Lane asked. "Where did you get it? Each plant seems to have a story and it revives a pleasant memory for me. Certainly it has one."

A sly little smile crossed the old lady's face. "I'm not surprised that it looks friendly to you. Don't you remember you called on me when I was ill last Valentine's day and you had a box of roses? You gave me one with a pretty little speech about good friends. I rooted it, and here it is."

Miss Lane stared at the rose while the tears stood in her eyes. She well remembered how happy she had been that day with her box of red roses. The card had said, "My love is like a red, red rose," and the handwriting was so familiar that no name was necessary. And now it was all over. Just a rather foolish quarrel at first, but time had widened the breach until it seemed reconciliation was impossible. There was just one small consolation. He seemed as unhappy as she herself was, so he must have cared, too. As she thought all this over a tear rolled down and dropped off her cheek. Mrs. Fuller, pretending not to see, stood up briskly.

"Come in. I made fresh rolls today and we'll have supper. A cup of tea will rest you."

Miss Lane surreptitiously dabbed her eyes and silently followed while Mr. Fuller smiled behind his evening paper. "It takes mother to manage flowers and girls," he thought.

After the meal they washed and put away the old-fashioned china, then went to the porch, where Mr. Fuller had preceded them. Miss Lane's face grew scarlet as she saw him standing by the memory garden talking to a young man who listened with respectful attention.

"Just been telling Mr. Cross about these flowers, mother. Isn't that the rose that Miss Lane gave you?"

"Yes. Don't you like roses, Mr. Cross?" and she told the story again Mr. Cross made some appropriate remark while Miss Lane, who had collected her books from the step where she had left them murmured that she must go.

"I'm afraid it's a little too dark for us to have that game tonight Mr. Fuller, I'll came back earlier some evening. May I accompany you, Miss Lane?" he inquired with his most professional air.

Whatever her answer was no one ever knew, she least of all, but he interrupted it to his own satisfaction and they disappeared in the twilight while the old couple smiled at each other like two happy kittens with canary feathers on their whiskers. The next afternoon Mrs. Fuller, digging in her precious garden, saw two smiling young people approaching her across the lawn.

"We've come to tell you and Mr. Fuller that we are to be married next spring," said the girl.

"And it was your memory garden that brought us to our senses," added the man. "And next spring we want to start one ourselves from the bridal bouquet, but we want a slip from the red rose to plant in the middle."

"I'll root it for you," said Mrs. Fuller. "Now you and pa go along and have a game and Miss Lane and I will get supper."—Detroit News.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

One of Miss Armstrong's Pupils.

Mr. Editor: Sorry I am late in getting this off but hope I will get next week's paper. There is a shut-in next door from Connecticut, so I give her my paper to read.

Was glad to read the praise given Miss Armstrong last week, as she was one of my first teachers in 1861 or 62. Yes, I am over 70. I have a book, "The Pirates," by Capt. Charles Johnson, reprinted by R. Hubbard in 1814. It is very interesting. My uncle bought it in 1839 as his name and the date are in it. It was first printed in London.

I enjoy reading the Social Corner very much.

The Christmas Tree Crop.

Mr Editor: Allow me to thank you for your sane editorial on Christmas trees. Like you and a great majority of the public the American Tree association has no more sympathy for the Christmas tree thief than for any other phase of thievery.

Thousands of farmers are awakening to the possibility of a Christmas tree crop every year. We should have a crop of these trees just as we should have an annual crop of other kinds of trees.

Trees at retail are comparatively expensive. The seasonal demand is sure and good. When such conditions prevail in any business line there is incentive to produce. Christmas trees can be farmed as a crop and produced at a neat profit. Such a proposition provides a profitable adjunct to the farm, a useful way of putting otherwise loafing acres to work.

There are millions of acres of idle land in the United States which could be put to work growing the trees that help to make Christmas happy. A forest of Christmas trees is thinned out, if cut properly, much the same as a garden is weeded. This method gives the plants a chance.

Energy used in condemning the practice of using Christmas trees might be employed better in urging planting and proper cutting of the trees. Of course the topping of large trees to obtain the petty crown should be outlawed.

Now let us turn the thought of the nation to the living Christmas tree either for a community or for the individual. There is an idea that is growing throughout the country.

With the season's greetings to you and all your readers.

CHARLES LATHROP PACK.

The Lynching Record.

Mr. Editor: I send you the following concerning lynchings for the past year as compiled by Tuskegee institute in the department of records and research. I find there were 16 persons lynched in 1927. This is 14 less than the number, 30, for 1926, 1 less than the number, 17, for 1925, the same number, 16, as for 1924, and 17 less than the number, 33, for 1923. Twelve of the persons lynched were taken from the hands of the law, 6 from jails and 6 from officers of the law outside of jails. Four of the persons were burned to death, two were put to death and then their bodies burned.

There were 42 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Eight of these were in northern states and 34 in southern states. In 24 of the cases the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In 18 other instances armed force was used to repel the would be lynchers. Sixty-eight persons, 15 white and 53 Negroes were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

All of the persons lynched were Negroes. The offenses charged were: Murder, 7; attempted murder, 2; rape, 2; attempted rape, 3; improper conduct, 1; charge not reported, 1.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: Arkansas, 3; Kentucky, 1; Louisiana, 1; Mississippi, 7; Missouri, 1; Tennessee, 2; Texas 1.

Yours very truly,
R. R. MOTON, Principal.

YOUR HEALTH

MAKE 1928 A HEALTH YEAR.

By Franklin Martin, M. D., Chicago, President, Gorgas Memorial.

(The following is one of a series of articles prepared under the direction of the Gorgas Memorial as part of its better health and longer life program. President Coolidge is the honorary president of the Memorial, which has been organized and endowed by prominent doctors and laymen throughout the country to perpetuate the work of the late Major-General Gorgas in preventing unnecessary illness. Headquarters of the Gorgas Memorial are at 400 North Michigan avenue, Chicago.)

While we are busy making resolutions for the new year it is well to take stock of our health assets and determine just what we should do to insure our personal health happiness and prosperity in the 12 months just ahead of us.

Early estimates and figures from health organizations show a steady trend downward in mortality rates. Tuberculosis is being beaten back. Diabetes and other ailments were not so dangerous in 1927 as formerly. The wastage of mother and child life was less. Continued scientific research in the cause and the prevention of disease, plus a continuous health education campaign have been contributing factors in the 1927 record. Today the 'tired business man' and the boy and girl in school are learning more about personal health.

And while the merchant is counting his canned goods and figuring his merchandise stocks, there is the need for every man and woman in this country to seek expert aid in striking a health balance. Go to the family physician and get his appraisal. Help make him a friend in health as well as a friend when sickness comes.

How is your exercise balance sheet? Does your food intake represent a balanced diet? Are you in the 'red' so far as overwork is concerned? Do you lack recreation assets? Have you health liabilities as a result of bad habits, and lack of proper and systematic rest? In what department should you expand? Where should you cut down?

Individual co-operation with scientific methods, particularly along preventive lines, will do wonders for 1928 health statistics. We are after the 'one person in three' who needs care and advice right now. We want that person to travel on the 'well' track. And we want the 'two out of three' to keep well, which means the maintenance of good health habits for the year. We have gone far in 1927; but we must have more team work new and raise our health rate for the new year.

Some distinguished Americans have queer hobbies, but not queerer than the hobby of Lord Listowel's eldest son, who is a skilled embroiderer, or that of Lord Ancaster, who makes his own socks.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Lee S. Overman, who today enters upon his seventy-fifth year, is rounding out a quarter of a century of continuous service as United States senator from North Carolina. Senator Overman is a native of the state he represents, a lawyer by profession, and also a bank and railway president. He began his political career forty-five years ago when he went to the lower house of the North Carolina legislature, and at intervals was re-elected up to 1900, in 1893 serving as speaker. In 1895 he began to aspire to federal office, a result he accomplished three years later when he was sent to the United States senate. He has been regularly re-elected and is placed until 1933. Senator Overman's interest in education has been pronounced, and he has served as trustee of several of the leading colleges of his state.

CREOMULSION
FOR THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON

Mother! Do You Know the Danger of that Cough or Cold?

Mother, if the youngsters play hard and "take cold," if for any of a dozen other reasons they get "sick with a cold," stop it as fast as you can. Don't let it hang on. Colds that stay and stay, too often lead into pneumonia or flu or chronic bronchial trouble. Too often a cold leads into a fatal complication.

If any of your youngsters develop a cough or a cold that hangs on, use sensible precautions immediately and give them Creomulsion. Help their strong, youthful bodies to fight coughs and colds with Creomulsion. It is pleasant, easy to take.

Creomulsion is an old remedy now. Millions know its merits and like it. We guarantee that it will relieve stubborn coughs and colds, if you follow directions, or we'll refund your money.

Mr. Haynes was employed as a mechanic by his father, Thomas L. Haynes, who conducts a garage at Old Lyme. He was born in Taunton, Mass., in 1904, and removed to Old Lyme during boyhood with his parents. He was among the most popular of the younger men in Old Lyme, and was very active in fraternal circles.

He was married two years ago to Doris Dibble of Old Lyme who survives him.

WEDDINGS.

Rosen—Zief.

At the Brothers of Joseph synagogue Sunday evening, William Rosen, of Stonington, son of Ruben and the late Mrs. Rosen, and Miss Sarah Lena Zief, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Moses Zief of No. 20 Forest street, were united in marriage by Rabbi Samuel Jacobson. Many relatives and friends of the couple were present.

The maid of honor was Miss Estelle Newman, of Brooklyn, N. Y., a cousin of the bride and Carl Rosen, brother of the groom, was the best man. The bridesmaids were the Misses Mary Rosen and Lena Rosen, sisters of the groom, and Charles and Irving Schwartz, cousins of the groom, of the Bronx, N. Y., were the ushers.

The bride was charmingly gowned in georgette, trimmed with lace and wore a veil caught with orange blossoms and rhinestones. The maid of honor wore a gown of poudre blue with flesh georgette, and carried pink tea roses. Miss Lee Rosen wore a gown of rose with a black tulle veil and carried red roses. Miss Mary Rosen wore a gown of orchid satin and carried yellow tea roses. The bride received numerous gifts.

After the wedding ceremony there was a reception at Talmud Torah hall with over 150 guests present, some coming from New York, New London, New Haven, Stonington, Worcester and New Jersey. Refreshments were served and the Ideal Radio orchestra furnished music for the dancing.

Later in the evening Mr. and Mrs. Rosen left for a wedding trip to Atlantic City and Washington, D. C. After February 1st Mr. and Mrs. Rosen will be at home in a newly furnished home in Stonington. Mr. Rosen is a clothing merchant.

SUITS FOR $60,000 FOR DEATH OF FOUR

WORCESTER, Mass., Jan. 2—The death in an automobile accident in Oxford, Nov. 19, of four young men, three of them residents of Thompson, Conn., has resulted in suits for $15,000 each being brought in superior court here against Eugene Jackson, colored chauffeur in the employ of Samuel Conant, wealthy Dudley Hill resident it became known today.

Jackson is being held in the Worcester county jail on criminal charges growing out of the accident, and the case is expected to be presented to the grand jury, which convenes Monday, Jan. 16 for its first sitting of the new year.

Ovila Forgit of Rochdale, as administrator of the estate of his son, Arthur T. Forgit of Thompson, Conn., seeks damages of $15,000 from Jackson for the death of his son. Mr. Forgit has also been appointed as administrator of the estates of Walter S. Henries, Jr., and Shava Condos, also of Thompson, Conn., and has sued for $15,000 to recover for each of these deaths.

The fourth action is by Emma Barry, the wife and administratrix of the estate of Frederick Barry, 40, of Oxford, one of those killed outright in the crash.

Forgit and Barry were crack amateur baseball players and have played in most of the towns in Worcester county and the northern part of Connecticut. Henries was associated with them in business in Quinebaug, where Forgit was proprietor of a store. Condos was a member of the senior class of the North Grosvenordale high school. Forgit was a World war veteran.

Forgit and Barry were killed outright. The other two died the same day at Worcester city hospital. The defendant, Jackson, is alleged by the police to have been operating the automobile.

CHRISTMAS TREE SOCIAL GIVEN FOR CHOIR BOYS

The choir boys of Christ Episcopal church were entertained Monday afternoon at a Christmas tree social by the Misses Osgood at their home, No. 1 Rockwell street. The boys played games and enjoyed a delightful afternoon. Gifts were distributed to the boys from the prettily decorated tree.

FRED G. PROTHERO
Elected Monarch

Nemrod Grotto, M. O. V. P. E. R., held its annual meeting Monday evening in Grotto hall on Broadway with Monarch Everett S. Peckham presiding at the well attended meeting. The reports of the secretary and treasurer showed that the Grotto had had a successful year in which there had been a healthy growth in the membership and the interest in the Grotto activities had been well sustained.

Officers were elected as follows: Monarch, Fred G. Prothero; chief justice, Henry F. Gee; master of ceremonies, Herbert R. Hoffman; treasurer (re-elected) Arthur E. Story; secretary (re-elected) George N. Chappell; venerable prophet, Alfred Linderson; trustee for three years, Past Monarch Edmund Hindle.

The newly elected officers were duly installed by Past Monarch Peckham as grand monarch, assisted by Past Monarch Herman Stelzner as grand marshal.

A rising vote of thanks was given to Past Monarch Peckham for the successful year under his administration and he was presented a past monarch's jewel by Past Monarch Stelzner and a past monarch's fez by Secretary Chappell. Mr. Peckham responded briefly, thanking the members cordially for the loyal support they had given his office during the year.

Mr. Prothero, the newly elected monarch, announced that the appointive officers would be named at the next meeting at which time they will be duly installed and an outline of the Grotto programme for the year will be given.

Sandwiches, coffee and cigars were served at the social hour which followed the business meeting.

FIRST CONG. CHURCH HOLDS ANNUAL MEETING

About 200 attended the annual parish supper of the First Congregational church, Monday evening at 6.30 in the chapel at Norwich Town. Previous to the supper served under the direction of Mrs. Dwight W. Avery, one verse of "Blest Be the Tie That Binds" was sung, Herbert L. Yerrington playing the accompaniment.

Rev. Charles C. Reeves upon invitation of the church pastor, Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey, said grace. The menu consisted of beef loaf, cold tongue, escalloped potatoes, pickles, rolls, a variety of cake, coffee, also apples and grapes. The room was lighted by red candles arranged at either end of the tables. A brief interval was devoted to music, with violin solos by Miss Margaret Connolly, Miss Marjorie Merry accompanying at the piano, and songs by Miss Ruth Sterry, with her sister, Miss Louise Sterry at the piano.

This was followed by the annual church business meeting, with election of officers and committees to serve during 1923, some extending for a longer period. Rev. Mr. Bailey opened the meeting with prayer, after which the clerk, Herbert L. Yerrington submitted his annual report, as did also Henry F. Frazier, treasurer on benevolence.

The election of officers resulted in the following re-elections: Clerk, Herbert L. Yerrington; treasurer of benevolence, Harry T. Frazier; deacon for six years, John L. Browning; member of the standing committee for three years, Mrs. Charles E. Reeves; chairman of the board of ushers, Geo. F. Hyde. For the committee on reception and welcoming, some who were new members elected follows: Mrs. Frank E. Sterry, Mrs. Sarah W. Chapin, Clyde M. Beebe, John L. Browning, Theodore Sterry and Ralph H. Marsh. Delegates appointed to the New London Association of Congregational Churches and Ministers were Mrs Clyde M. Beebe, Mrs. Frank S. Avery and Herbert L. Yerrington.

The projects of the First Congregational church for 1928 include the following: Hospital at Ahmednagar, India, salary of Miss Gertrude S. Avery, Rev. Edward H. Smith, China, Miss McClure and Miss Cushman, Colibran, Colorado, superintendency of southern states, Miss Beebe, Athens, Alabama, Piedmont college, salary of Miss Hartig, fund for ministers, and Boston Seamen's Friend society.

A letter from a former pastor for many years, Rev. Charles A. Northrop, who now is on the Pacific coast, was read by Clerk Yerrington.

Rev. Mr. Bailey also read two letters to be forwarded to sick members of the parish and a vote was taken for Clerk Yerrington to send New Year greetings to several shut-in members.

Upon motion of Deacon Henry T. Frazier a rising vote of thanks was given the committee assisting Mrs. Avery on the elaborate menu which included the following: Mrs. Walter Hitchon, Jr., Mrs. Donald Brigham, Mrs. Lovelock Holm, Mrs. John Browning, Mrs. Carlos Ricker, Mrs. Frederick Ross, Mrs. Marcus Grady, Mrs. Ronald Nelson, Mrs. Elton Odgers, Mrs. Burton Johnson, Mrs. Philip B. Whaley and the Misses Louise Bailey, Ida Beebe, Elizabeth Avery, Bernice Underwood and Mabel Covigeux. A company of young men who poured coffee included Arthur Avery, Reginald Avery, Burton Johnson, Crosby Peck and Carl and Ernest Wyland. The coffee was donated by James M. Young and La Valley and Birdsie contributed the sugar.

CIVIL WAR VETERAN DIES IN OLD LYME

Richard B. Daniels, 82, a veteran of the Civil war, was found dead in bed at his home in Old Lyme Sunday morning. His death was due to heart trouble, from which he had been suffering for many months.

Members of the household heard him walk about in his room at 4:30 o'clock in the morning. At nine o'clock his grandson, Earl Lyons, went to his room and found him dead.

Mr. Daniels was a native and lifelong resident of Old Lyme. However, he was at Greenport, Suffolk county, N. Y., when the call for volunteers was sounded at the beginning of the Civil war. He enlisted there as a volunteer from Old Saybrook, Nov. 19, 1861, and was mustered in the following day. He was assigned to Company K, 11th regiment infantry. The regiment, one of the best parade regiments in the Union armies, first was assigned to General Burnside's expedition, but later was transferred to the Army of the Potomac. The regiment experienced its severest fighting at Fredericksburg and Antietam.

Mr. Daniels was mustered out at Hartford, Dec. 21, 1865.

The death of Mr. Daniels leaves one living veteran of the Civil War in Old Lyme, Edward Stanton.

Mr. Daniels is survived by two sons, William Daniels of New London, and Arthur Daniels of Old Lyme; four daughters, Mrs. Rose Bump and Mrs. Kitty Goss of New London and Mrs. Nellie Newman and Mrs. Grace Ferris of Stamford. He also leaves 14 grandchildren and six great grandchildren.

S-4 RESCUE WORK MAKES DELAY FOR SUBMARINES

The departure of the submarine division of the eastern scouting fleet of the navy has been postponed from Wednesday until Jan. 18 because of the interruption in plans for the winter cruise to Guantanamo, Cuba, by the sinking of the S-4, it was announced Monday at the submarine base at Groton.

The delay affects approximately 1,500 men attached to all of the ships of the Fourth division, all but one of the Third division, consisting of the tender Camden, flagship of the control force, the mine squadron ships Lark and Mallard, the submarine rescue ship Falcon, and the tender Bushnell, all of which are under command of Rear Admiral Frank H. Brumby, commandant of the control force, who is in direct charge of the salvage operations being carried on in connection with the S-4.

Preparations for the cruise have been going on for the past three weeks and practically all of the submarines which were to sail from New London on the cruise, besides the tender Camden, are now tied up at the submarine base undergoing extensive overhauling of rigging and equipment preparatory to the three months' cruise.

The many submarines have all been gone over carefully, all equipment tested, and everything put shipshape for the cruise. Included in the submarines which will make the trip are the S-9, S-10, S-11, S-12, S-13 sister ships of the ill-fated S-4.

Preparatory to the date of departure all officers and men were granted leave of absence for 10 days, practically half of the personnel being gone at one time. These leaves were arranged for over the holidays to give all possible a chance to be home for Christmas and New Year's day. Monday and Tuesday the last of those on leave were to return.

The other vessels originally assigned to make the cruise, including the battleships Wyoming, Arkansas, Florida and Utah, will assemble off the Virginia Capes on Jan. 7, as previously planned, and will start the cruise as scheduled, to be joined later by the submarine division.

MADE RECORD TIME ON STATE TREASURER'S REPORT

By reason of the accounting system on the accrual basis that was put into operation this year by the new commission on finance and control appointed by Gov. John H. Trumbull under authorization by the 1927 general assembly, the actual condition of the state treasury for the year 1927 was known at noon Saturday.

In past years the reports of the various departments at the close of the calendar year, which is not the end of the state's fiscal year, were obtained from each department by representatives of the press, while this year the reports were obtained from each department direct, by the new commission and the actual financial condition of the state treasury was almost immediately known.

The annual report of State Treasurer Ernest E. Rogers is compiled at the end of the state's fiscal year, as are the reports of the various other state departments. Under the new arrangement, devised by the new commission on finance and control, it is possible to ascertain the status of the state's finances at any time and with little difficulty.

This report, made public at 12.55 on Saturday afternoon, showed that receipts from all sources for the year totaled $20,141,865.30 and receipts for December reached $2,789,073.76. The actual available cash balance in the state treasury at the close of business was $8,768,541.96, which represents an increase of over $750,000 during the past six months. At the close of business on June 30, the actual cash balance was $8,018,520.07 giving the difference representative of the exact gain, of $750,321.89. Of the total cash balance on hand $8,720,639.61 represents all public expenditure funds and $41,202.35 the working capital funds. At the close of business June 30, the former fund was $7,967,327.29 and the latter placed at $51,192.78.

This is the first time in the history of the state that its exact financial condition could be ascertained so soon. In less than a half-hour after the books were closed at noon Saturday the total receipts were known and in exactly 55 minutes the entire financial sheet was available.

Customarily, these figures, under the former accounting system on the paid-out basis, were not available for three weeks at least, and in many instances they were then not reliable. This condition came to the attention of the appropriations committee of the state legislature when inquiries at the treasurer's and comptroller's offices failed to reveal the actual financial condition of the state, only estimates being available. As a result, John Wadhams spent two weeks in an effort to find out the desired information, and even then his figures, because of the system, were not considered absolutely reliable.

As a result the department of finance and control was set up under Commissioner Edward F. Hall as the first step towards the reorganization of the bookkeeping and accounting methods as practiced by the state. There was strenuous opposition encountered at the time, principally because of the many new accounting forms that were necessary for the system. The entire system went into effect for the first time during November and on Dec. 1 the first statement of the department was issued.

INSTRUCTS MOTORISTS TO WATCH LIGHTING EQUIPMENT

Instructions for every day care of automobile lighting equipment, the proper maintenance of which is required by law, are contained in the January bulletin of the state motor vehicle department in an article written by Deputy Commissioner Malcolm D. Rudd. Only a minimum expenditure of time and effort is necessary, the article says provided this be constant and not merely occasional, to secure proper functioning, with a negligible margin of failure.

Deputy Commissioner Rudd finds it matter for regret that there is an increasing number of owners and drivers of cars who are capable of manual operation but who appear neither to know or care much about the mechanical equipment of the machines which they drive.

His article points out that it is not only an absolute necessity that there be proper maintenance of motor vehicle lighting equipment but that it is the special duty of every car owner to cooperate in making these devices efficient for use at all times. It is not sufficient to reason that a headlamp is just a part of a car like a lot of other parts which came with it, he says nor is it correct to assume that the light is efficient when it lights up the road for the driver, regardless of how it may affect "the other fellow." This attitude, he finds is all wrong and if it persists to any marked degree there is not likely to be any appreciable lessening of the glare nuisance.

"The direct result of delinquency in this matter," the article says "is the exploiting of necessary devices such as frosted and colored bulbs, metal shutters and deflectors or visors of various kinds, for the express purpose of making the legitimate adjustment of the approved headlight unnecessary. Or to put it another way the inventor of this type of compensating device pre-supposes that motorists lack intelligence and consequently must be supplied with a foolproof contraption to save them mental effort."

Descriptions of the proper methods of adjustment to secure the correct focus for lamps and the maximum of efficiency are made a part of the article. Added instructions are given as to the care of equipment with the final admonition to the "careful motorist to see to it that bulbs are not worn out and that two new spare bulbs are carried at all times for replacement in case of failure."

Deputy Commissioner Rudd finds that driving with only one headlamp lighted is inexcusable and the just cause of criticism at all times. "Any driver," he says "who has not sufficient visual acuteness to detect the absence of one of his lights, should equip his lamps with "tell-tales" or detectors, and then he will instantly know of failures."

Advice is also given against the use of "mixed lights," that is an approved lens or reflector of one kind in one headlamp and another approved type in the other. "It is possible," the article says that such a combination will give passable service, but it need hardly be said that identical equipment for the pair of headlamps on any one car is what the law and regulations contemplate."

SECURES CONTROL OF GROTON-STONINGTON TRACTION

Having purchased the majority of the first mortgage bonds of the Groton and Stonington Traction company and shares of stock from more than 75 per cent of the stockholders, F. E. Kingston & Co., of Hartford, took over control of the road on Saturday.

With the sale of the bonds and stocks, came the resignation of P. LeRoy Harwood, as a director and treasurer, and also the resignations of Lucius E. Whiton, of New London, and Clarence Thompson, of New Haven, as directors.

Two years ago the Groton & Stonington Traction Co. was organized, when the Groton & Stonington Street Railway Co. defaulted its bonds. A stockholders' protective committee consisting of Mr. Harwood, Mr. Whiton, Mr. Thompson and C. Royce Boss, of Norwich, was formed at the time.

Originally the Groton & Stonington Street Railway Co. owned the line from the ferry landing in Groton to Westerly, while the Groton Stonington Traction Co owned that part of the line from the Groton ferry landing to New London. With the reorganization under the name of the Groton & Stonington Traction Co., both lines were consolidated.

New first mortgage bonds in the amount of $250,000 were issued and each stockholder who originally held a $1,000 bond received a new $500 first mortgage bond and 10 shares of stock, which represented 51 percent of the original stock, which amounted to $500,000.

Recently the stockholders' protective committee was apprised of the fact that Kingston & Co. would give $425 per bond, the 10 shares of stock to be included. The committee advised its stockholders to sell and most of them so agreed, the sale being consummated Saturday.

The committee, in negotiating the sale, effected therein a clause to the effect that those stockholders who have not as yet consented to sell if they finally decide to do so.

So far as is known this was the most successful sale of any reorganized trolley line in the state. Several of the companies did not realize a cent on their first mortgage bonds.

F. E. Kingston & Co. owns the bus line from New London to Saybrook and the Shore Line Electric Railway Co., which operates trolleys from Saybrook to New Haven.

There will be no change in the officials of the operating departments of the company so far as can be learned at present.

VIOLINIST AND PIANIST GIVE DELIGHTFUL PROGRAM

Two local musicians, Berton Frank Noyes, violinist and Joseph B. Downes, pianist, were on the program for the January meeting of the Norwich Music association Monday evening at Slater hall annex. Henry La Fontaine was the accompanist.

The work of the two soloists was of outstanding merit and the well attended meeting of the association indicated its pleasure by spontaneous applause to which each player responder with an encore number after his final number.

Mr. Noyes opened the evening with two selections: Walther's Prize Song, from Die Meistersinger (Wagner-Wilhelmj) and Romantische Stucke (Dvorak). These were followed by a MacDowell group by Mr. Downes, who played Idylle, Op. 39, No. 7, Alla Tarantelli, Op. 39, No. 2, Etude, Op. 39, No. 3 and Schattentanz, Op. 39, No. 8.

Mr. Noyes appeared again in a Handel number, giving the adagio and allegro from Sonata in D major, in which he continued the good impression he had made at the opening of the program, and Mr. Downes gave two particularly interesting numbers with Romance (Sibelius) and La Regatta Venetiana (Liszt), for which he gave as an encore The Crapshooters by Eastwood Lane.

Mr. Noyes concluded the evening with a modern group of four numbers which were especially pleasing and included Londonderry Air (Kreisler), Chansonnette (Bass), Chant (White) and From the Canebrake (Gardner).

ALL-HELLER FIVE HAS EASY TIME TRIMMING ACADEMY INDEPENDENTS

The All-Hellers again made their Norwich invasion a success but this year they didn't apply the defeat with anywhere near as much of impressiveness as in 1927. They won, 37 to 13, to be sure but a make-shift Academy Independents team, assembled only for this occasion, gave them a tough run until the last quarter when the Willimantic boys drew away to really assure victory. It was a highly interesting game that a good sized crowd saw with both teams showing good defense work, particularly.

Although the first three quarters the locals gave the highly heralded brother-act plenty of competition in contrast to the walkaway that last year's game was right from the start. Either the Hellers have deteriorated or the Academy is much better than last year and we think the latter fact is the case.

The Hellers led all the way but never by more than seven points through the first two and one-half of the third quarters. The end of the first quarter left the score at 9 to 5, the second at 14 to 7 and mid-third period at 16 to 9. At this time, a couple nice shots by Eddie Nichols pushed the Heller total up a few points and at the finish of the third quarter the Willimantic boys had a 21 to 9 lead.

Sam Heller and Eddie Nichols led the winners in scoring and also in real fine play. This Heller, who is regular forward in the Brown varsity did most of the dribbling for the visitors, and his work in this line was a big factor in the win. Hymie, the star all-round athlete of the family, also was good. For the locals Ray Yerrington and Jim Kelly were best. Yerrington led the scorers and also played a good floor game while Kelly's guarding was a feature. Fagan, a newcomer, showed real ability on the floor, and although he made a few mistakes, he looks like a big asset to the Academy for their season.

Hymie Heller opened the scoring after a half minute of play when he broke away from Kelly, cut in nicely and dropped one through as clean as a whistle. Yerrington, however, came a goodly share of the length of the floor to even the score right afterwards. Abe Heller sent two fouls through and Buck LaCroix converted one in the immediate future. Fouls by Hy and Sam and a field goal by Max sent the Hellers ahead 8 to 2 before Viau sank a field goal as the quarter ended.

The second quarter was mainly of defensive play. Yerrington converted a foul to make it 6 to 9 but field goals by Hy and a foul throw by Sam put the Hellers in a safe lead again before Yerrington scored on another foul. Sam ended the quarter with a field goal.

The third quarter, as was stated, was close until midway when the Hellers drew away a little bit and then they finally uncorked a real punch in the last period.

ACADEMY BRIEFS

If yesterday's game can be taken as any indication then old N. F. A. is to have a good basketball team this year.

With school opening Wednesday there is little time to prepare.

Suits will be handed out probably Thursday.

LOCAL BOY WINS HIS FIGHT BY KNOCKOUT

PITTSFIELD, Mass., Jan. 2.—(AP)—Tracey Ferguson, of Northford, Conn., defeated Kid Decker, of Housatonic, in a 10-round bout here today. Ferguson lost a decision to Decker here several weeks ago.

Al Beauregard, of Taftville, Conn., won a technical knockout over Paul Demers of New Bedford in a scheduled eight round bout. Demers failed to answer the bell in the fifth. Pancho Villa, of New Bedford, won the decision from Young Duquette, of Pittsfield in six rounds.

SHARKEY HARD AT WORK TRAINING FOR HEENEY

BOSTON, Jan. 2.—(AP)—Double holidays mean nothing to a boxer in training. While most normal human beings today took advantage of an extra 24 hours to recover from welcoming 1928, Jack Sharkey, Boston heavyweight title contender, stepped his training schedule into high gear as he swung into the final two weeks of preparation for his bout with Tom Heeney in New York on January 13.

Before breakfast this morning he plodded his usual five miles around the Chestnut Hill reservoir beside his home while the thermometer flirted with the zero mark and a 30 mile northwest wind whipped across the steely blue expanse of ice and water.

Before supper time he boxed 12 rounds with four sparring partners, skipped rope, danced, punched bags and was patted, rubbed and kneaded by his gym handlers. The day ended with an athlete's bed time. The program was the same yesterday and will be the same tomorrow.

From present indications the Boston fighter will step into the ring four or five pounds heavier than in any previous match of his career. He scales about 198 now and does not expect to be below 195 when he weighs in. His usual fighting weight has ranged between 190 and 192.

Neither Sharkey or Johnny Buckley, his manager, bothers to answer inquiries about the famous injured hand any longer. The pronouncement of several physicians that the injured member is again in perfect shape is earnestly seconded by several of last week's sparring partners and the only doubt, according to Buckley, "seems to be concentrated a couple of hundred miles away in New York—there isn't any here."

Sharkey will do practically all of his training here and does not plan to leave for New York until a few days before the fight, probably on the ninth or tenth.

PLAINFIELD PROS FACE TOUGH TEAM IN RENAISSANCE

The Plainfield Pros have a splendid opportunity to enroll their names in the basketball "Hall of Fame" by defeating the Renaissance Five, world colored champions, at the Community House at Plainfield tomorrow night. The New York quintet is one of the greatest combinations now playing the chalked court game and a victory for Salisbury's men would be a real feather in the Plainfield cap.

The prowess of the colored team is well known in basketball circles throughout the country. Some of the best teams have fell before the highly developed attack of these negro performers. The Renaissance team numbers among its victims this season, the original Celtics, generally recognized as the champions of the world.

It is a fast well founded team that the Pros will have to contend with Wednesday night. The fans delight in seeing a scoring machine in action and the Negroes' greatest advantage lies in their ability to hoop them in from almost anywhere within a prescribed radius of the basket. But the Harlem five relies for the most part onitspassing to get in under the hoop and in meeting the Pros they will be contending with another aggregation which specializes in the passing game.

OLYMPIC SKATING TEAM OFF FOR NORWAY

CHICAGO, Jan. 2.—(AP)—The advance guard of America's Olympic athletes, the skating team, left here tonight on their way to Pittsburgh and New York to sail for Norway where they will be guests and pupils at the Oslo A. A. for three weeks, training for the winter Olympic sports which start at St. Moritz, Switzerland, Feb. 12.

The Norwegian invitation extended by Sigurd Roll, former consul, for three weeks of practice was accepted by managers of the American skating team, as it will give the Americans a chance to get accustomed to the European methods in skating races.

The American representatives are Irwin Jaffe of New York, Valentine Hills of Utica, N. Y., German Perleberg of Cleveland, and Eddie Murphy and O'Neill Farrell of Chicago. Oscar Hanson and George Lloyd, trainers, both of Chicago, accompanied the team, which will give an exhibition at Duquesne Gardens in Pittsburgh Tuesday and then continue to New York to board the Oscar II or Norway.

AGEE WINS 10-MILE ANNUAL STREET RACE

BALTIMORE, Jan. 2.—(AP)—Running in the clodest weather of the winter, William Agee, of Baltimore, won the annual New Year's day 10-mile street race of the Emorywood Athletic club in 54 minutes 26 1-5 seconds. He was well ahead of M. A. Aubrey, Millrose A. A., New York, who made the distance in 58 minutes nine seconds.

The wintry blasts caused 12 of the 43 entrants to scratch, while four of the runners failed to finish. The streets were dry.

Mike Lynch, an old time marathon star of Washington, took thirteenth place, and Emil Sternsdorff, Emorywood runner, though suffering from frost bitten feet, managed to complete the course in twenty sixth position.

PETROLLE SCORED TECHNICAL KAYO OVER DE MARCO

FARGO, N. D., Jan. 2.—(AP)—Billy Petrolle, the Fargo express, was awarded a technical knockout decision over Cuddy De Marco, of Pittsburgh when the latter refused to answer the bell for the seventh of a scheduled 10-round contest here today.

In the fifth round De Marco fell out of the ring after missing a hard right swing and he apparently injured his back in the fall. He finished the round and after being examined by a doctor came back for the sixth. Petrolle pounded him viciously in this session and De Marco was weak when he returned to his corner. After a conference the sponge was tossed in.

TUNNEY OFF FOR GOTHAM AFTER SPARRING MATES

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Jan. 2.—(AP)—Gene Tunney, world's heavyweight champion, left here today for a short visit to New ork after telling friends he intended to return with sparring partners to begin training for his next bout.

He had nothing to say concerning a probable opponent for the fight.

Tunney has been resting here for two or three weeks, without a regular training program except daily sojourns on the golf links and in the surf. He went to New York to attend the "champion's banquet" at Madison Square Garden the night of January 4.

TRIPLE TIE RESULTS IN SOCCER LEAGUE

NEW YORK, Jan. 2.—(AP)—Boston held to a 2-all draw by Fall River at Tiverton, R. I., today thereby creating a triple tie for first place in the American league soccer championship race. The tie relegated Boston to the same standing as Bethlehem and New Bedford with a single game left for each of the teams to play over the next week end which closes the first half of the competition.

Under the new arrangement, the victor in the current schedule will meet the winner of the next half of play for the soccer banner.

In the event all the contending clubs come out of their next encounter on a like basis, it will call for playoffs to decide the champion of the present campaign.

New Bedford opposes the Giants here next Saturday and on the following day Bethlehem faces the Giants here also. Boston winds up against Newark at Newark on Sunday. New Bedford's match with the Giants is the replay of a protested game.

	G.	W.	L.	D.	P.	Pct.
New Bedford	28	17	4	7	41	.732
Boston	28	17	4	7	41	.732
Bethlehem	28	18	5	5	41	.732

PAULINO POUNDS LESTER INTO SUBMISSION IN SEVENTH

NEWARK, N. J., Jan. 2—(AP)—Paulino Uzcudun, Basque heavyweight, opened his barnstorming tour through the country with a seven round technical knockout of Pat Lester, giant Texan, in a scheduled ten round match before 6,000 fans in the Newark armory this afternoon. Uzcudun scaled 200 pounds, Lester 238.

The Spaniard belted Lester around at will from the start, flooring him in the first round and again in the seventh when the Texan's seconds threw in a towel into the ring to save Lester further punishment.

Paulino had no difficulty hitting Lester but was unable to keep him on the floor for ten seconds. The huge southerner fought back gamely, despite heavy body punishment and constant hammering about the head, and several times brought the Spaniard up short with ponderous uppercuts.

STAMFORD NOSES OUT PITT, 7 TO 6 IN THIRD QUARTER TO WIN BATTLE OF ROSES

(By Russell Newland, Associated Press Sports Writer.)

ROSE BOWL, PASADENA, Cal., Jan. 2.—(AP)—In a glorious finale to an up and down season, Stanford's Cardinals trampled over the great Pittsburgh team to win the annual east-west Tournament of Roses football game today, 7 to 6.

A colorful throng of 45,000 spectators saw the Cards make a thrilling comeback in the third period after a heart rending "break" had set them on the short end of a 6-0 count. A fumble by Wilton of Stanford was picked up by Hagan and the stocky Panther half-back rushed 10 yards to plant his cleats in Stanford scoring turf.

Lashed into fury by the sudden reverse, and after they had outplayed their rivals for two periods, the Cards threw everything into one great offensive. A 31-yard pass by Hoffman which fell into Worden's waiting arms, paved the way. On the 29-yard line, line play after line play, with Hoffman carrying the oval almost continuously brought Stanford two yards from the goal.

A fumbled ball brought groans, then cheers from the Cardinal rooting section. Hoffman's short pass was caught then dropped by Simms, but little Frank Wilton, whose bobble earlier in the period had resulted in the Pittsburgh touchdown, snatched up the ball and dashed three yards across the goal line. Hoffman's successful try for the extra point was the margin of victory. With the minutes slipping away, Pittsburgh made one smashing effort and the sky was filled with passes that either fell too far ahead of receivers, or were knocked down by Cardinal hands.

The central figure in today's gridiron drama was Coach "Pop" Warner of Stanford. The strategy of the master was pitted against that of the former pupil. Eleven years ago Jock Sutherland, Panther coach, was a star player under "Pop" when the latter directed the destinies of the eastern university.

Big "Bill" Hoffman, Stanford fullback, was the outstanding player in the smashing windup that turned back an eleven that had been undefeated during the season until today. Pittsburgh shared with Yale the mythical eastern championship.

Hoffman cracked the vaunted Panther line almost every time he carried the ball. And the big Card fullback was called on steadily. Eighty-eight yards from scrimmage followed his efforts while nearly all passing and punting duties fell to him.

Gibby Welch, Pitt's All-American half-back, was a tower of strength for his alma mater, but Stanford had been coached to watch the stocky half-back who made eastern grid circles buzz this season.

Welch broke away several times for runs that totaled 50 yards. But 18 yards was his best individual effort, while Booth, fullback, and another famed eastern warrior, was held to 30 yards total.

Stanford bested its rival in yards gained from scrimmage. The Cardinals reeled off a total of 154 against 139 yards for Pittsburgh. Stanford crashed through for 14 first downs. Pittsburgh turned in half that many, Warner's men also had an edge in the passing honors, completing three out of ten for a total of 32 yards gain, while the Panthers tried the air 11 times, completing two for 22 yards total.

Punting honors went to Pittsburgh. Hagan booted the oval for an average of 51 yards, while Hoffman's average was 47 yards.

The Panthers were penalized seven times for a total setback of 65 yards, Stanford four times cost it 35 yards.

Summary:

Score by periods—

Pittsburgh	0	0	6	0	—6
Stanford	0	0	7	0	—7

Pittsburgh scoring: Touchdown, Hagan.

RUBY REFEREE IS MOBBED BY CROWD

PARIS, Jan. 2—(AP)—Scotland today defeated France 15 to 6 in an international rugby match in which the baiting of officials reached heights hitherto unknown in France. Harold McGrath of Ireland, the referee, escaped uninjured only under the protection of 500 policemen.

Last year's international rugby match in Colombes stadium, which was between France and Ireland, was the scene of such alleged unsportsmanlike conduct that it was thought possible Ireland might ask the International Rugby union to expel France. The Irish team defeated the French players 8 to 3 and the fans invaded the field to get at the referee R. L. Scott of Scotland, who was saved from severe manhandling only after police had interfered.

Colombes Olympic stadium, which proved amply vast for the 1924 games in which 45 nations were engaged, proved inadequate today to accommodate the gerat crowd desirous of attending. There were about 60,000 spectators, with at least 5,000 turned away, and most of the spectators mourned, wailed and booed the defeat of the French team.

GORMAN RETAINS HIS MID-ATLANTIC STATES TITLE

NEWBURGH, N. Y., Jan. 2.—(AP)—Charles I. Gorman of St. John, N. B., successfully defended hfis Middle Atlantic speed skating championship today at the annual events held on Grange Lake rolling up 90 points in the men's senior contests.

Gorman won the 220-yard men's championship with a time of 19 4-5 seconds. Irving Jaffe of the Iceland Skating club, New York, was second and Eddie Searles, also of Iceland was third.

Gorman also captured the men's 440-yard and 880-yard championships. In the 440, Gorman covered the distance in 47 seconds and his time in the 880-yard sprint was 1:53 2-5.

In the women's events, Miss Margaret McBride of the Toronto Speed Skating club carried off premier honors with a score of 70 points.

Detroit Franchise Cancelled.

DETROIT, Jan. 2.—(AP)—Officials of the Olympic sports arena here tonight announced cancellation of the franchise of the Detroit Cardinals in the American Professional Basketball league.

The announcement said the team failed to draw sufficient crowds to warrant monopolizing the arena on nights when home games are scheduled. The contracts of all players were nullified and the men are at liberty to sign with any other team.

BASS GETS REFEREE'S VERDICT OVER PETE NEBO

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 2—(AP)—Benny Bass, featherweight champion, today won the referee's decision in his scheduled ten round bout with Pete Nebo, New York, after the judges had disagreed.

Bass weighed 127 1-2 pounds and Nebo 127 3-4. There were howls as Frank McCracken, the referee, decided in favor of the Philadelphia fighter.

Bass did not fight with his usual vigor and precision. After a cautious start Nebo woke to the attack in the fouth round and from then until the finish showed little fear of Bass' punching.

The decision met with disapproval. Al Voice, who favored Nebo, gave him the edge in four rounds while he gave three for the champion and called the others even.

The other judge, Lee Cole, gave the bout a draw.

Tedler weighed 151 pounds and McFarland 146.

HARKO WINS DECISION OVER JACKSON AT PHILLY

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 2.—(AP)—Johnny Harko, clever featherweight from Manchester, N. H., won the referee's decision over Al Jackson of Scranton in the 10-round feature bout at the Cambria A. C. today. Referee Grimson gave the bout to Harko after the judges disagreed. Harko weighed 126 pounds, Jackson 124 1-2.

In the semi-windup Mickey Martell knocked out Harry Garson in the third round of a scheduled eight-round encounter. Both are from Philadelphia. Martell weighed 147 and Larson 129.

Tom McConagy, 122, Philadelphia, won the decision over Clifck Emmons, 123, Trenton, N. J., in six rounds.

JUSTICE F. WINS FEATURE AT NEW ORLEANS OPENING

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 2—(AP)—Justice F., owned by William Daniel, Jockey A. Pascuing up, won the $5,000 added New Year's Day handicap, feature of the inaugural card at the Fair Grounds track here today. Fly Hawk, Ruane and Saxon came in next in the order named.

Arabian, War Eagle and Almandel also ran.

The race was a mile and a sixteenth. Justice F., negotiated the distance in 1:46 2-5.

The winner rewarded his backers with $3.40 for a $2 mutuel ticket to win, $2.64 to place and $2.12 to show. Fly Hawk paid $8.02 to place and $4.78 to show. Ruane paid $5.52 to show.

Chaney Outboxes Mendosa.

CHICAGO, Jan. 2.—(AP)—Joe Chaney of Baltimore, outboxed Ralph Mendosa, of Chicago, in an eight round feature bout on a holiday card here today. Each weighed 120 pounds. Henry Leonard, of South Chicago beat Paul Allen, former University of Illinois boxer, in the other eight rounder. They scale 130 pounds.

Jack McCarthy of Chicago and Billy Showers of St. Paul boxed a six round draw. Showers was apparently the more skilful boxer, but the judges called the match even, though the crowd did not seem to agree. They were welterweights.

Kelly Gets Verdict

SCRANTON, Pa., Jan. 2.—(AP)—Billy Kelly of ths city was awarded the judges decision over Blas Rodriguez, Mexican flyweight and bantamweight champion this afternoon in a furious ten round battle. Kelly weighed 113, and Rodriguez 112 1-4.

In a semi-final of si rounds, Tommy Gerrity, of this city, defeated Teddy Seidman of California.

Sangor Outpoints Zwick

MILWAUKEE, Jan. 2.—(AP)—Joey Sangor of Milwaukee outpointed Phil Zwick of Cleveland, in a fast ten round bout here today. Despite Zwick's advantage in height and reach, Sangor had the best of the milling throughout. Sangor weighed 125 3-4 and Zwick 121 1-4. Joey Thomas of Oshkosh, Wis., outpointed Frankie Van of Cleveland a six round preliminary.

Sekyra Knocks Out Vidabeck

DAYTON, Ohio, Jan. 2.—(AP)—Joe Sekyra, Dayton heavyweight contender, knocked out Billy Vidabeck, Bayonne, N. J., in the third round of a scheduled ten round bout here today. Sekyra weighed 177 pounds and Vidabeck 175.

Rosenbloom Has Edge On Schoell.

Carter Beats Goodman.

Davies Beats Burlie

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 2.—(AP)—Willie Davies, Pennsylvania flyweight champion, won an eight round decision from Alec Burlie of Toronto, here today. Davies' speed and two-handed punching offset Burlie's body punching tactics and sport critics gave Davies five of the eight rounds. Davies weighed 113 and the Canadian 114.

The Month In The Skies

January: The Dog Star

The January heavens offer a good view of Sirius, the dog star. In the astral setting pictured above it is viewed in the southeast, where it rises in the evening.

By ROBERT H. BAKER

(Professor of Astronomy, University of Illinois)

URBANA, Ill. Jan. 2—(AP)—Sirius, the Dog Star, brightest of the stars, is now visible throughout the night. On Jan. 1 it rises about 7 o'clock in the evening in the southeast, slightly to the left of the point where the sun rises.

It is readily located by following the line of Orion's belt downward. With Betelgeuse, the bright red star in Orion, and the Procyon, the Little Dog Star to the left, Sirius completes a conspicuous equilateral triangle.

When it is near the horizon the Dog Star is a specially spectacular object; for as it twinkles, it flashes prismatic colors. This effect, more noticeable some nights than others, is produced by our atmosphere.

The Dog Star derives its name from the constellation Canis Major, the Great Dog, whose stars are mostly below Sirius. Dog days occur at the time of the year, about August 1 in our latitudes, when this bright star rises at sunrise.

Venus, Jupiter and sometimes Mars are more conspicuous than Sirius. They are planets, not stars at all; they are brighter because they are nearer.

Jupiter is now in the southwest in the evening, while Venus may be seen in the east before dawn.

If all the stars were brought as close to us as the sun, Sirius would appear 26 times brighter than the sun, but it would be outshone by some of the other stars. Its superiority in our skies is owing to its nearness.

Sirius is in fact one of the nearest stars. Its light requires only eight years to reach the earth. In miles the distance amounts to 47 millions of millions. But there are things in the heavens a million times more remote.

Sirius is attended by a faint telescopic companion at a distance from it 20 times our distance from the sun, and revolving about it once in 50 years. It was discovered before it was seen by the wavy motion it gave to Sirius.

This companion star recently became famous, for it proved to be 2,000 times more dense than platinum. Although it contains as much material as the sun, it is no larger than one of the planets.

Matter ordinarily could not be compressed to such density. But at the very high temperature of this star the atoms, which resemble minute solar systems, are torn to pieces, so that nothing but a chaotic mass of electrons and protons remains; and these are so small that the tremendous compression is possible. At least, this is the current idea.

This unusual star provides one of the very few available tests of Einstein's theory. A noticeable displacement of its spectrum toward the red, which the theory predicts in this case, is actually observed. Many astronomers regard it as striking evidence in favor of relativity principles.

TAFTVILLE CRESCENTS SWAMP AETNA FIRE

The Taftville Crescents finally got that desired win last night at Parish hall, defeating a team from Hartford billed as the Aetna Fire Five, that could offer but spasmodic opposition and then when these attacks came on they were only a mild form. The score was 60 to 25, the Parish hall boys having a big edge all the way. It was a mild game with the Hartford team seemingly unwilling to mix it at all.

Leading at the half by a 31 to 13 score, the Crescents did even a little better in the last 20 minutes. Brown, C. P. C. star, made his first appearance with the "big fellows" and got off creditably. He led the winners in scoring with nine baskets, while his general all-round play was also of a high order. Mondi Normandin, Harris and Pingree also were way up in the scoring, totaling 12 points each. In fact, every one of the Taftville crew looked especially good, although the frail defense that the Insurance city team offered must be taken into consideration.

Hubian led the losers in scoring with eight points.

Next Tuesday evening the Danielson Town team comes to Parish hall for the second edition of their series with the Crescents. Danielson won the first time but only after throwing back a strong Taftville attack in the second half. That was Taftville's first game of the season and this time things may be different.

May your pleasures be many and golden . . . for 1928

What does "Happy New Year" mean? Just this: Getting rid of old discomforts and finding new pleasures.

Gone will be the old throat discomfort from his smoking . . . the throat-scratch and the tongue-burn.

Found will be a new measure of cigarette enjoyment.

A cigarette he can smoke in any number, day and night with maximum pleasure and no penalty.

By resolving to switch to this new-type cigarette, he'll turn over a new leaf . . .

. . . by turning up the best leaf that ever went into a cigarette.

DANIELSON

SUPT. MORIN TALKS OF PROSPECTS OF LOCAL MILLS

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Jan. 2—As the year opens there are 300 employes in the new mill of the Connecticut Mills company at Albany-Decatur, Ala., and these workers, producing tire fabric, are getting out 30,000 pounds each week. As production increases it will eventually reach a maximum of 120,000 pounds per week, and there will be 800 hands employed, this contemplating a night as well as a day force of workers.

President Obadiah Butler and Supt. Amos Morin, who are here for the holiday season, are returning to Alabama Wednesday. Mr. Butler has been at the new plant a great deal during its construction and equipment through the past year, and Mr. Morin has been in the south steadily for months past.

Asked today as to the future of the Danielson plant of the company, Mr. Morin pointed out several factors that enter into the possibility of keeping it actively operating. These largely pertain to operating cost. If the mills here, which make no yarn, always having bought it, can obtain it at lower prices than are now being paid, that would be one thing aiding toward the continued operation of the local plant.

Another consideration is that pertaining to wages, and still another has to do with working hours. Mr. Morin expressed his confidence today that New England need not lose more of its textile manufacturing industries to the south if there could be some understanding betwen mill executives and their operatives as to cutting down production costs in the north, which are materially higher than in the south, this difference representing proposition whether a plant can be operated at a profit or not.

Mr. Morin is not an advocate of lower wages except as a very last necessity. He believes that conferences between mill heads and their workers might, after all the facts are before them, lead to some agreement mutually satisfactory. If, for instance, Mr. Morin points out, more output could be obtained in a given period of working hours than is now being obtained, that would help a great deal. Lengthening of working hours would also contribute to the end sought—the preservation of its active textile plants to New England.

In a situation such as now exists for manufacturers of tire fabric, the north has practically no chance at all against southern competition. To alter that situation will require drastic readjustments. What the nature of these would be might be arrived at through such conferences as have herein been mentioned. Mr. Morin hopes that some arrangements like that may be brought about. He believes if it had been done several years ago many plants now operating in southern states would have remained in New England. There is still time to save many others from going south.

A Sunday review of the hanging of Oliver Watkins, back in 1831, possesses peculiar interest for Danielson and Brooklyn because of the fact that his execution took place on a knoll about two and a half miles west of here, in the town of Brooklyn and just off where the present state highway runs along.

Watkins was executed for the murder of his wife, it being charged he had strangled her to death, on March 2, 1831. This was the last public hanging in Connecticut.

An account of his death that has recently appeared in published form, has revived interest in the case. It is related that as many as 20,000 people from far and near assembled to witness the hanging. The account runs on to indicate that a great many who came could not quite control themselves because of the horror they were to witness, and there were those who proceeded to fortify themselves with rum, at three cents a glass, which buyers of present day bootleg at 50 cents "a shot" will allow was reasonably cheap.

The arrangements were that the trap should be sprung as the clergyman who offered the prayer just prior to the hanging pronounced "Amen." As the word was spoken, many turned and fled, having lost whatever curiosity they possessed or courage that brought them to see a human being launched into eternity.

Watkins married Rosanna Adams in Sterling in 1816, when he was 23 years of age. It was for her death that he paid with his own life, though it has always been held that much of the evidence against him was purely circumstantial.

John Doloff was elected superintendent of the Nazarene Sunday school during the Sunday school hour yesterday. Doman Edwards was named as assistant superintendent, Amelia C. Gallup as secretary and George H. Miner as treasurer. Esther Ware and Marian Gallup were respectively named as pianist and organist. The list of teachers is as follows: Ladies Bible class, Kent A. Darbie; adult girls' class, Mrs. Kent A. Darbie; girls' class, Mrs George H. Miner; Men's Bible class, Rev. A. E. Gallup; married woman's class, Percy Hammond; primary, Celia Gallup, Mrs. John Doloff; cradle roll, Esther Ware.

Ice from Maine is now going into refrigerators in Danielson homes. Carloads of it are being shipped in here from northern New England because of the exhaustion of the local supply. A full supply of ice was harvested here last winter, but it has proved to be an inadequate amount to last out against the vagaries of a December that has just belied its record for cold weather. During the fall some ice was sold out of Danielson to help supply Putnam and Dayville, stocks in these places having become exhausted. Ordinarily, this would have made no difference here, as there is usually ample new ice by January 1. This year is the exception. However, January was promising today to do something that will quickly remedy the situation.

In discussing the particular thing that is to be written about here, the name of the injured young woman cannot appear, by the very nature of the subject. It has to do with a vile rumor that has been going about town for more than a fortnight and has caused no end of scandal. To set the matter at rest and to establish beyond all doubt that there was no basis at all for the story, Prosecuting Attorney Arthur G. Bill has been checking the matter up and it also has been investigated by state officers from the Danielson barracks. They found not a shred of truth for the malicious story that involved a young woman and her father, and this is written to still, insofar as may be possible the further spreading of the rumor. There is, it is now pointed out, the danger of legal action against any one who may in the future repeat the tale.

Manager F. E. Colvin of the Quinebaug company and of the Wauregan company stores, with Mrs. Colvin, is to leave here Tuesday for St. Petersburg, Fla., for a stay of three months. This is to be Mr. Colvin's first extended vacation in 25 years. During his absence, A. M. Tracy, foreman at the Wauregan company store, will be acting manager of both that store and the Quinebaug store.

Giving Danielson a sample of the kind of weather the west has been experiencing the past few days, a cold wave, riding on the wings of a gale, sent the mercury down to five degrees above zero this morning, the coldest of the winter in Danielson.

Beginning this week the Pastor's library at the Congregational church is to be open Tuesday evenings, with a member of the committee in charge. Church members and their friends have been invited to take advantage of the opportunity to read the books.

James R. Walsh, as president, and Clifford H. Starkweather, as secretary, have given notice that when the annual meeting of the Danielson Building and Loan association is held later in the month two amendments to the by-laws will be up for consideration, one of these providing that there shall be no subscription fee charged for shares of the association.

There was no session of the town court today, but one is scheduled for Tuesday, when a case involving a violation of the automobile regulations will be considered.

Practically no attempt has been made hereabouts to operate motor vehicles carrying last year's registrations. Indications are that a great many people—more than ever before—took time by the forelock in 1927, and sent their registrations in early.

There was heavy travel on the motor coach lines through Danielson again today, as the returning tide of travelers headed for their homes—and business.

Reports from various departments will be given when the first quarterly business meeting of the Baptist church is held next Thursday evening.

Members of the G. A. R., Sons of Veterans and Daughters of Veterans have been invited to attend, on Wednesday evening, the installation of newly elected officers of McGregor, Woman's Relief corps.

This week's Tuesday evening prayer meeting of the Nazarene church is to be held with Mr. and Mrs. Grant Jessup, at Killingly Center.

Members of the Westfield club have their January meeting scheduled for Friday evening of this week.

The New Year's meeting of the Killingly Woman's club at the Parish house of the Westfield Congregational church this afternoon was a delightful affair. A special feature was the musical numbers by the Flagg Instrumental quartet.

Many a fan sat in on a football game via radio here in Danielson this afternoon, the rose bowl contest between Pittsburgh and Stanford at Pasadena, Cal.

PUTNAM

AMERICAN LEGION MEMBERSHIP DRIVE OPENS AT PUTNAM

PUTNAM, Jan. 2—Plans have been perfected by Oscar Swanson post, American Legion, of North Grosvenordale and today opened a membership campaign. A committee has been appointed to investigate the cases of all of those who are not enrolled as members of the post who reside within the town limits of Thompson and to have their names presented for entrance in the organization. The committee in charge of the drive includes Phillip L. Duhamel, Patrick Malloy, Philip Crotau, N. Verne Rawson, Norbert Blaine, Ernest Barrette, F. A. Pelletier, L. Blanchard and Edward Rawson. The Oscar Swanson post is among the most active organizations of its kind in the state.

The Tourtelotte Memorial high school basketball team will meet the Putnam High team at Tourtelotte sometime during this month in what is expected to be one of the fastest in the season. The Tourtelotte teams have not as yet been defeated.

A meeting of the Missionary society of Thompson will be held Wednesday afternoon of this week at the home of Mrs. Arthur Mills. Mrs. Richard Barton will give readings.

Plans are rapidly going forward for the skating carnival to be held on Perry's pond, just off Grove street on January 6 and 7. The events are in charge of the Putnam branch of the Y. M. C. A. The time for entrance has been extended to Wednesday, January 4 and a large number of entries is anticipated. There are events for all ages, boys and girls and men and women. The ice is again in good condition and the pond is again filled with skaters.

Today has been generally celebrated as the holiday. Stores and banks have suspended business for the day and holiday programs have been given at the theater with vaudeville programs. Town, rural and parochial schools begin their winter term and students of the various colleges, who have been spending the holidays at home are leaving today for their school work.

The marriage was celebrated this morning at St. Joseph's church in North Grosvenordale, of Miss Bertha Duquette, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Duquette and Alphonse Roy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alphonse Roy. Rev. C. H. Mathieu, pastor of the church officiating at the nuptial mass. Following the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride's parents. After a wedding trip to Boston and New York, Mr. and Mrs. Roy will make their home at North Grosvenordale.

In keeping with the state campaign to prevent diptheria in the schools, Dr. G. T. Lamarche, the school physician assisted by Miss Viola Snyder, the school nurse, will again administer the toxin anti-toxin treatment to the school children of both the public and parochial schools at the beginning of the winter sessions this week.

It must be understood that the inoculation with the toxin anti-toxin is not compulsory, but parents are urged to sign the notices sent out and allow their children to take the treatment. This movement is sponsored by the state board of health and it is believed that within a few years all fear of an epidemic of diphtheria will have passed out of existence if parents will permit their children to subject themselves to the preventive treatment.

At one minute past 12 o'clock Sunday night, a special New Year's show was offered by the management at the Bradley theater. There were eight acts of vaudeville and two two reel comedies especially selected for the occasion. Before the show was over noise-makers were distributed to the audience and a good time was enjoyed by all.

The regular meeting of St. Philip's guild will be held Tuesday evening, January 3, at the home of Mrs. Leonard Mellor, Grove street. The annual meeting will also be held, reports will be read for the past year and officers will be elected for the coming year.

Wilfred Blain of Danielson who was recently convicted of driving while under the influence of liquor in the Putnam city court has had his license revoked by the state motor vehicle department.

G. Melvin Stevens, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Stevens of East Thompson, was operated upon this morning for appendicitis at the Day Kimball hospital. It is expected that he will make a good recovery.

Miss Bakewell of Lowell, Mass., has been the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Bell of King street over the holiday. Miss Bakewell was formerly on the nursing staff at the Day Kimball hospital.

Miss Virginia White of Norwich has been visiting her aunt, Mrs. John Whalen, of Bellevue street.

Miss Mary White of Springfield spent the week end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Michael White on Eden street.

Mrs. Fred W. Prince and little daughter, Eleanor, have returned from a visit with Mrs. Prince's parents at Milford, Mass.

Miss Muriel Grosvenor who has been spending the holidays with her parents at Malden, Mass., has returned to spend the rest of the winter with her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Omer J. Milot, Fremont street.

Miss Eleanor Murphy, a teacher in the high school at Torrington, who has been spending the holidays with her mother, Mrs. Catherine Murphy of Sunnyside Heights has returned to her school duties.

James Weeks of Attleboro, Mass., has been the guest of his father, James Weeks of Pomfret street.

Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Faucher and two children and Miss Antoinette Jolie have returned from a visit with friends in Woonsocket.

WESTERLY

MASONIC CLUB PRESIDENT IS FRANCIS G. HASWELL

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., Jan. 3—Francis G. Haswell was elected president of Westerly Masonic club, No. 176, at the seventh annual meeting called to order by President Farquhar Smith in the club club rooms on High street Monday evening. Reports from the secretary, treasurer and standing committee showed the club to be prospering. Other officers elected were: Vice president, Clifford T. Barber; secretary, Albert E. Barber; treasurer, Lewis Stanton; directors for three years, Leonard L. Hiscox, Samuel Counsell; auditing committee, Horace E. Burdick, W. Russell Dower.

These officers were named the first of December by a nominating committee, Byron C. Taylor, Elisha C. Burdick, John R. Oppy, Ernest H. Ozanne and Fred W. Lueck.

At the close of the business session refreshments were served. Cards, pool, billiards and a social hour followed.

President-elect Haswell holds membership in Franklin lodge, No. 20, F. and A. M., Palmer chapter, No. 23, R. A. M., of Pawcatuck, Narragansett commandery, No. 27, K. T., and Palestine Temple, A. A. O. N. M. S. of Providence.

SEARCH FOR GIRL'S BODY CONTINUED THROUGH MONDAY

On Monday morning trips were made out over the whirlpool just below the fall and the river bed carefully gone over with a grappling iron, fastened to a long pole. The bitter cold wind and weather of Sunday and Monday made the work particularly arduous. Patrolman Robert M. Kessell, detailed by Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown on the case of missing 16-year-old Mary Bekizuk, a Polish girl unaccounted for who left her Westerly home on Fairview avenue Dec. 7th last, continued a fruitless search among her relatives and friends Monday.

The Seagraves pumper of Westerly Fire department was called to Ashaway Sunday night about 6:30 for a stubborn chimney fire in the house near the Four-Corners filling station of James Hurst. The contents of the booster tank were poured into the chimney by hose taken up lad s already on the roof. While the Westerly firemen were at Ashaway, a call was reported as received from Fred S. Binns, in White Rock, also outside the present Westerly Fire district. Engineer Pasetti was later sent to investigate a chimney fire there, the call having first been mistaken for a second call to the Ashaway fire.

The Young People's fellowship of Christ Episcopal church held its annual election Sunday evening when plans were made for the new year and officers were elected as follows: President, Harry Buckley; vice president, Jack Stenhouse; secretary, Helen Doney; treasurer, Edwina Matthews; entertainment committee, William Morey, Edwina Matthews, Eleanor Mackenzie and George Kent; advisory board, Mrs. Fred Lueck, Mrs. Charles E. Larkin, Mrs. Abel C. Loudon and Mrs. James Rose; representatives on parish council, William McShane and Maurice Kent; publicity committee, Rev. G. Edgar Tobin. The Fellowship is to have a New Year's party at the home of Miss Helen Doney, Thursday evening.

Edward Burke, 80, former Pawcatuck resident, died Monday morning at his home in Edgewood, R. I. Mr. Burke with his family moved to Edgewood about 15 years ago. Surviving him are four daughters, Mrs. John Ahern, Mrs. P. P. Curran, Mrs. Michael Spellman and Miss Lena Burke, and three sons, Dr. Edward Burke, Dr. William Burke and John Burke, all of Providence.

Miss Grace Bromley and John Hosick were married Saturday afternoon, Dec. 31, at 79 Mechanic street. The ceremony was performed at 4 o'clock by Rev. Luther G. Coburn, pastor of Pawcatuck Congregational church. They will reside in Westerly.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick S. Opie left Sunday night on the Everglades express for their winter home near Daytona, Fla.

Senator Howard E. Thorp, Representatives John D. Nichols and Clifford W. Campbel of the town of Westerly leave today (Tuesday) for Providence to be-gin their legislative duties in the Rhode Island general assembly.

Charles A. Dionne, Jr., while visiting over the holiday week end with friends in Lowell, Mass., was taken ill, being obliged to remain there.

Miss Elizabeth J. Clemens, clerk at the Westerly freight station, left town Monday morning to visit Providence friends.

Mrs. T. Connore and daughter, Mary, of Pawcatuck were called to Newark, N. J., Sunday by the sudden illness of Edwin R. Connors while on a holiday vacation visit in New Jersey. At the Newark hospital where he was taken when threatened with pleur-pneumonia, an improvement was noted in his condition Monday.

Ulic Burke of Carolina, has returned home from New London.

With the mercury below the 10-degree mark, an extra chill was given observers in the early morning when David K. Hoxsie, having donned a straw sailor hat motored to Westerly post office from his home in Canonchet, in an open touring car.

David Mitchell of New London was the guest of Westerly relatives Monday.

Henry L. Burdick was a business caller in Boston the past week end.

Delmore Kinney returned Monday morning to Providence after a week end stay with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph H. Kinney.

WESTMINISTER

The large and handsome tree for the church school entertainment was in place Christmas day. At the morning worship a paraphrased account was given of the annuncination, birth, and attendant circumstances of the birth of John the Baptist and that of Jesus Christ, and the mission of each.

At 7:30 p. m. a public meeting was held in the church under the auspices of the Lawyers' League of the 15 Churches of Plainfield and vicinity. Many of those in Plainfield belong to the C. E. of the Congregational church, and this body had charge at Westminster. Its president, Alfred Royle led the meeting with the topic, What Does Christmas Mean to the World? George Inglis led the singing.

Westminster Hill school had its entertainment Thursday evening with a large number of relatives and friends present, and a delegation from Gayhead district. A varied program of great interest, including two well-given plays, was presented. Then Santa Claus entered, at first putting the children through a brief oral examination in spelling, arithmetic and geography, to the delight of all. As a reward he distributed the contents of his baskets of gifts.

The Westminster church school entertainment was held on Tuesday evening. Following was the program: Overture, by the Wibberly quintet; Welcome, Violet Helstrom; Song (the Shepherds, St. Luke 2:8-4, school; song, Joy to the World, accompanied by the quintet; prayer, Malcomb R. Wibberly; Is There Any Santa Claus? Jennie Deltack; Santa Is Coming, Anna and Olga Deltack; song, It Came Upon the Midnight Clear, quintet accompaniment; The Cripp'e Doll's Story, Arline Green in costume; The Message of Christmas, Clara Green; song, Dear Old Santa, the Deltack Twins, Jennie and Helen; Christmas Day, Clara Green; Hurrah for Christmas, Harry Helstrom; On Christmas Eve, Helen Deltack; play, Squire Hawley, presented by pupils of Westminster Hill school; song, December, Helen Deltack; Useful Things and Clothes, Victor MacLeod; Proved at Last, Eddie Newton; My Say, Clifford Green; Christmas Lullaby, Arline Green; A visit from St. Nicholas, Olga Deltack; reading, My Little Girl's Prayer, Irene Raitala; a plea for 30,000 homeless, countryless children, read from the local paper by the superintendent; offering for the Near East orphans; music, quintet; recitation, Christmas Night, Lillian Green. A letter from Santa Claus was read, in which he stated that his many engagements in the homes, schools and churches of Canterbury and elsewhere, had wearied him greatly, and he would be unable to appear that night. He had sent his gifts which were to be distributed by John Deltack. Each child also had a box of candy. Among those present was a large delegation from the Plains.

Earle MacLeod, who visited at his home over Christmas, has returned to his work in Jersey City in the Western Electric Co.

Fillmore Sage, whose family were former owners of the Olsen place, now of Norwich, was present Tuesday evening.

Miss Nellie Colburn, who is assisting at the Kilpatrick's in South Canterbury, was a guest of her parents for the week-end and Christmas.

Amos Bridge's Sons completed their road contract here in time to release their men for the holidays. Some state work is yet to be completed and local men will do it, under State Inspector J. Diffly.

Work on the Little River bridge is expected to be suspended for a time on account of the weather. As there is an awkward little turn and detour at this point, large trucks will be wary of this road until the bridge is completed.

James Gardiner, who was a guest of his mother and brothers for several days, left Sunday for Philadelphia where his company is located.

Mrs. Shorter and Mrs. Meads are gaining slowly. They have had grip and bronchitis.

Mrs. George Mooney has also had an attack. Her husband, now teaming in Providence, visited her last Sunday. She will join him in Providence when able to do so with their grandson, Charlie Oakes.

The first 1928 meeting of Pouell Union, Canterbury W. C. T. U. is to be at Westminster parsonage Jan. 12 at 3 p. m.

At Christmas one youngster claims to have seen Santa thirteen times. All in one season!

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theatre.

Fantastic shadows, weird apparitions, and the gruesome denizens of the Great Beyond—these are the background for one of the strangest roles an actor has ever been called upon to play—Lon Chaney's part in London After Midnight, which will be shown for the last times at the Palace theatre today.

The Man of a Thousand Faces plays a Scotland Yard detective, detailed to ferret out a strange plot cloaked behind the shadows of a haunted English manor house. A student of hypnotism and other modern sciences, he pits this strange art against the grim spectres and other superstitious beliefs; and solves a mystery that, when the supernatural is explained away, is a very remarkable scientific exposition of the craft of the modern investigator of crime. It is the last word in detective stories. Chaney has a role that keeps the audience in breathless suspense until the amazing solution at the close of the picture. Marceline Day makes a very charming heroine, and Conrad Nagel a romantic lover for her, while Henry B. Walthall does a splendid bit of character acting as Sir James, about whom the plot revolves.

On Wednesday and Thursday a double feature program will be the attraction. Claire Windsor and John Bowen will be seen in The Opening Night, a refreshing drama of love and devotion, and George O'Hara will be featured in Yours to Command, a rollicking, speed-packed, comedy-romance spiced with humor, action and youth.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Breed Theatre.

Dolores Costello, star of "Old San Francisco," the Warner Bros. extended run production, which closes tonight at the Breed theatre, was born in New York, the daughter of Maurice Costello, old time screen idol. Educated at home by private tutors, she later posed for the artist, James Montgomery Flagg, and then with her sister, Helene, joined the George White "Scandals." Her first screen role was in "The Sea Beast." This was followed by "Mannequin," "Bride of the Storm," "The Little Irish Girl," "The Third Degree," "A Million Bid" and "When a Man Loves."

"Old San Francisco" is a thrilling melodrama of the colorful days before the "great fire" when the glamorous City of the Golden Gate had a Barbary Coast, known as "the mile of hell," and a Chinatown which burrowed deep in the earth and hid a thousand gruesome secrets.

Broadway Theatre.

That the management of the Broadway theatre has made no mistake in changing the vaudeville policy to the Broadway was conclusively demonstrated yesterday by the evident enjoyment received by the capacity audiences and the complimentary remarks on all sides regarding the show.

In reviewing the show it is a difficult problem to hit on one act that pleased more than the others but it seemed that Wyeths Lads and Lassies in their routine of Scotch comedy, singing, bagpipe playing received the greatest applause for their efforts. Another act that scored a tremendous hit was Mack and Tivoli in a comedy act with a divorce plot attached to it. Bader and Ross proved highly entertaining with their amusing skit. Beth Marsh, a pretty miss, delighted the patrons with her routine of songs and the manner in which she sings them. Opening the program, The Yongers present an artistic posing specialty that received a good share of the much desired applause.

The Lovelorn is the feature picture selected for screen entertainment with Sally O'Neil, Molly O'Day and Larry Kent in the featured roles. The play is founded on Beatrice Fairfax's newspaper column Advice to the Love Lorn and tells the story of two sisters both in love with the same man. One of the girls is a frivolous type and the other one quiet and demure. The story is really interesting, cleverly portrayed and is apt to bring home striking memories to many seeing it.

NOANK

The All-Irish basketball team, of Mystic, which is in line for the junior championship of eastern Connecticut came down to this village and played the fast going Scouts team who are also out for that championship, in the Town Hall Saturday night. This was the second game in the series. A good sized crowd watched the battle for the Scouts have a good team. Timer G. Patterson's whistle was heard and the fighting Irish men soon got on the scoring side, as Red Trant put in a long shot. But Smiley Buddington, a heavy guard and the best one on the Scouts team was there all the time and sure kept him from getting the ball in the hoop. Noank's young soldiers had a hard job with the guards on the Irish team for they were out to win. The fighting Irishmen were ahead at the end of the first quarter, 6 to 2. In the second quarter the Scouts were trying to find the hoop, but the ball would not go in for their old rivals were passing the ball, taking short shots and making good their shots. Lightning Walsh brought the fans to their feet with an overhand shot pass to the center and Spark Clark for the Scouts was guarding him. The first half ended as Fatty Rathbun read the tally—All Irish 11, Scouts 5.

The third quarter saw many thrills as Midget D. Roberston sank one field goal and a foul so Spark Clark, Scouts center with a mean left tap got a field goal. Snappy Donahue, the heavy boy of Gene Tunney build and a strong right hand, pushed in the ball from under the gallery into the hoop for the Mystic team as the whistle ended the third quarter, All Irish 13, Scouts 10. In the final quarter the fans saw the fireworks. Many fouls on both sides as Lanky Chesebro's floor work and handling the ball. The score was a tie 13-13. If a 12-inch run was fired 25 in the hall there could not have been so much noise as from the cheering sections and the All Irish had a chance to put the game on ice, shooting fouls, but Lightning Walsh's eye was off with 50 seconds to play. Lanky Chesebro got a foul that won the game for the Scouts. Score Scouts 16, All Irish 13. Chesebro was the star of the evening for Noank, credited with 7 points; Midget Roberston 8 points for All Irish. Red Trant who plays from the floor was well covered, but got 5 points, while Walsh had 5 points. Snappy Donahue made 5 points. Referee, McKnight; scorer, Fatty Rathbun; timer, Balerstraccl. Attendance 85. The series is a tie one. A coin will be tossed this week to decide where the third game is to be played.

When the clock struck 12 Saturday night, the old year went out with a rush and New Year 1928 was welcomed in by the village. The church bells rang, also the school bell and fifty were singing "God Bye '27, Hello 1928." A dance was held until 1 o'clock.

The Sunday school classes at St. Joseph's church had a Christmas tree Sunday afternoon. The church hall was well filled and a short program was carried out by the children. Then Santa Claus came, and reaching the tree, gave each a present. Santa was Herbert Ellis. A bag of candy was given each one also.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Strand Theatre.

"Mother" is suggested by Kathleen Norris' story. It is a most human document of a typical American family. Belle Bennett, the typical American middle class mother in this picture portrays a Spartan type, not the whining sort, but rather the sort of mother that forces a smile while her heart is on the point of breaking. Crawford Kent, William Bakewell and Joyce Coad compose the family group and Sam Allen, Mabel Julienne Scott and Charlotte Stevens are prominent in the supporting cast.

Watery Gravy is a complete show of our weekly series. We also show a delightfully funny comedy.

Shadow The Weasel Goes Hunting

Who does upon himself depend
Is independent to the end.
—Shadow the Weasel.

Shadow the Weasel, slim, trim, all in white save for the tip of his tail, which was inky black, uncurled, yawned, stretched, yawned again, then poked his head outside to look around. "I'm hungry," said Shadow to himself. "I'm hungry, and the thing to do when one is hungry is to get something to eat. Nothing would suit me better than to catch a good, plump wood mouse. The other day I ran across the tracks of Whitefoot the Wood Mouse. I wasn't hungry then, so I didn't bother to follow him up.

"I believe I'll go and look for Striped Chipmunk!"

I'll just run over there now and see what is doing. He gave me the slip a long time ago, but this time he won't get away so easily. I know enough about Whitefoot to know that where I find his tracks I am pretty likely to find his home, for he doesn't travel far from it."

Shadow gave his white coat a shake and bounded out of his hiding place. Had you been there you would have had hard work to follow him with your eyes. He was so white and the ground was so white that the only way you could keep him in sight was to watch that black tip of a tail. He didn't travel in a straight line. He twisted and turned, avoiding trees, slipping under bushes, investigating every little hole in the snow, sniffing at openings in old stumps, running back and forth, always with his keen little eyes glowing fiercely and his wonderful little nose testing every little scent that the Merry Little Breezes brought to him. He seemed to be running aimlessly, but he wasn't. Presently he was over by the very log in which Whitefoot the Wood Mouse had been sitting when Black Pussy the Cat caught him a few days before. Of course, there was no scent remaining there of Whitefoot, but it was here there that Shadow had some time before found tracks of Whitefoot. So now he began to explore that section. What Shadow does he does thoroughly. There wasn't a hiding place of any description that he didn't find and poke his inquisitive little nose into. And so it was that in the course of time he did find Whitefoot's old home. The mouse smell was still there. You should have seen how those eyes of Shadow's glowed as he poked his head into the little entrance in that home. But he did little more than get his head inside. The mouse smell was there, but it was old. Shadow's little nose told him this at once. He knew that it was days since Whitefoot had been in there.

"Huh!" exclaimed Shadow. "Now I wonder what has happened to Whitefoot. Somebody else must have caught him. He wouldn't leave a home like this without mighty good reason, and I am the only good reason I can think of. No one else would be likely to find this home and no one else could get into it if he did find it. If Whitefoot hasn't come back it probably means that he was caught while away from home. Well, there's no use fussing about it. It's a waste of time to look for him anywhere now. Let me see. I believe I'll go look for Striped Chipmunk. He's living somewhere up along the old stonewall. He ought to be asleep now and probably is. If I can find his house I'll get him without the least difficulty."

Shadow wastes no time. No sooner had he made up his mind to go look for Striped Chipmunk than off he started, headed straight for the old stonewall along the Old Orchard. But, though he traveled fast, he continually used that splendid little nose of his. He had no intention of overlooking any meal on the way. So at last he came to the edge of the Green Forest and to the old stonewall that runs along one side of the Old Orchard. He bounded up on the old wall and for a moment sat up in the same way that Happy Jack the Squirrel sits up.

NEW LONDON'S MONDAY OBSERVANCE WAS OF PURITANICAL DECORUM

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 2.—The New Year holiday was more generally observed here today than it has been in years. Nearly all the stores were closed, there was no business done by the banks, and many of the shops were idle. The cold weather kept people generally indoors so the streets were almost deserted. The police officers said the day was the quietest they had known in twelve months. It is possible that the celebraters last night were tired out today and were willing to abstain from activities. There were no out-door sports to call people to them, for ice has not formed yet on ponds and lakes so that there could be skating as a diversion.

P. A. SHERIDAN DEAD— WAS NATIVE OF NORWICH

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 2.—Patrick A. Sheridan, abut 58, a native of Norwich, died yesterday at his home, 121 Broad street, after a lingering illness. Mr. Sheridan had been in ill health for over a year. He is survived by his wife and a daughter, Miss Alice Sheridan. Mr. Sheridan was born on the West Side, Norwich, but has resided in New London for many years. He was employed for several years as conductor by the Connecticut company and at one time was employed by the Travelers Insurance company as its agent here. Later he was a real estate and insurance solicitor, but because of failing health ha had not followed that vocation for some time. He has a number of relatives in Norwich.

BOY FRIEND'S WELCOME PEEVES FATHER OF GIRL

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 2. — Harry Berg, expressman residing at 34 Denison avenue, was in the police court today charged with intoxication and breach of peace upon complaint of his wife. As the incidents that led up to the arrest of Berg were such as should be adjusted satisfactorily by Berg and his wife, the case was continued three months. Berg was arrested Friday night when he went to his home and quarrelled with his wife because of her permitting a young man who is attentive to their daughter to reside there, especially as Mrs. Berg had provided a cot for the young man in the absence of better accommodations. Mrs. Berg made complaint to the police charging her husband with the two alleged offenses and he was arrested by Automobile Patrol Officer Augustus Ray. At police headquarters it was evident that Berg was not intoxicated and he was allowed his liberty, but with the advice of refraining from further altercations with his wife. This he did not heed for Saturday morning he again took his wife to task for allowing the friend of their daughter to reside in the house and another quarrel resulted. Mrs. Berg made a second complaint against her husband and his second arrest in less than 24 hours was made by Automobile Patrol Officer Clarence Martin. When Mrs. Berg took the witness stand in court today it was revealed what the trouble was that brought about the row and Berg's arrest. In reciting the facts relating to the boarder remaining at the Berg house Mrs. Berg referred to him several times as the "boy friend." It is believed that between now and the time when Berg's case comes up in court next March that the husband and wife will have been able to satisfactorily adjust their domestic troubles.

All the other cases presented today were for intoxication Saturday. There were five of them, three civilians and two sailors. One civilian was fined $5 and costs, another was fined $2, but execution of the sentence was suspended and the third civilian was fined $5, as he is an old offender. The two sailors were turned over to the custody of a shore patrol and were taken back to the state pier for discipline.

All trains on the New Haven railroad were well patronized today, mostly by persons returning to business from the holiday recognized as the advent of the new year. Trains were generally made up of additional cars to accommodate the rush. Nothwithstanding the demand for transportation the trains were moved nearly on time. The taxis did good business today for there was a demand for them to get people to and from the station.

The two story wooden building on Pearl street, corner of Union street, owned by Abraham Bronstein of New York, formerly of New London, is being rased for several weeks ago that building, together with several others were condemned by the city council upon recommendation of the building inspector and chief of the fire department, because it was a fre hazard, and after the buildings had been inspected by the members of the council. The removal of the building was ordered, but the owner did not heed the demand that it be rased until today, when workmen started tearing down the delapidated structure. The building for many years was used as a tenement house, but for two years it has not been occupied. It has become out of repair and practically all windows have been demolished by boys. To repair the building would have entailed a large expenditure, if repairs would have been permitted, but because of the decay of the structure and more principally because it was within the fire limits, the only solution of the problem was its condemnation.

The painters who have been repainting the interior of the municipal building will conclude their labors this week for the work is being rushed to completion. The painters were working all day today. The work is now going on in the offices and in the corridor of the first floor.

The temperature tonight is the lowest of the winter thus far as the wind abated the temperature dropped to a point lower than on Sunday.

New London lodge of Elks distributed about 200 baskets of food to the poor at Christmas time and since then has sent out a few more. The distribution this year by the lodge was of more baskets than heretofore. Non-Elks were generous in ther donations for the poor this season, giving with liberal hand through the lodge.

The funeral of Lillian S., wife of Postmaster Walter M. Slocum, 50 Mountain avenue, was held yesterday afternoon at Huntington street Baptist church and was attended by a large concourse of mourners, including delegations from the W. C. T. U. and from other societies of which Mrs. Slocum was a member. The services were conducted by Rev. Arthur F. Wagner. The bearers were Peter Fournier, Daniel W. Darrow and Herbert. Howard, Frank H., and F. Edmund Rogers. Burial was in Jordan cemetery.

The funeral of Mrs. Doro Deep, of 96 Main street, was held at 9 o'clock this morning at St. Mary's Star of the Sea church, a mass of requiem being celebrated by Rev. George Clark. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

Thomas J. McLoughlin, 48, of 29 Colman street, died this morning at Lawrence-Memorial hospital where he had been a patient about a month, a sufferer from heart disease. He is survived by his wife and two sons, Mr. McLoughlin was formerly employed as steward on yachts and was well known. He was a member of Pequot lodge of Odd Fellows.

Mrs. Mary Potki, 45, wife of Ramon Potki, of 38 Eastern avenue, died yesterday at Home Memorial hospital where she had been a patient but a short time.

Mrs. Charles A. Pinney, wife of Captain of Police Pinney was operated upon at Lawrence-Memorial hospital this morning. Her condition this afternoon was reported as encouraging.

George Mace, 85 Elwood street, New York, reported to the police at 2 o'clock this morning that while he was driving his automobile on Bank street between Montauk avenue and Howard street, a brown leather bag that had been on the running board was lost. The bag contained shoes, skates, white sweater and gray cap.

Dennis Patterson, 76 State street, requested the police last night to arrest his brother, Demo, the latter having taken the automobile of the former without the owner's permission. The automobile was parked on State street and when Demo espied it he entered the car and drove away. When the owner went to use the machine it was missing and inquiry revealed that Demo had been seen to drive away with it. Then his arrest was requested, but Demo could not be found by the police. The car was returned to the owner today.

WHEN FIVE SUBS LEAVE BASE $30,000 MONTHLY PAY GOES

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 2—The five submarines which were scheduled to leave port on a cruise of about three months the latter part of this week with Guantanamo, Cuba, their objective port, will not clear from port until the 18th inst. The postponement is made because of the attempt by the navy to raise the submarine S 4 which was sunk off Provincetown, Mass., three weeks ago. The departure of the submarines will be keenly felt by merchantics here for the payroll of the crew of the five boats is about $30,000 per month.

This city has gone into the new year without having incurred any expense to take care of snow. The city has every facility for such work, but there has been no reason to make use of the equipment. Nor have there been any damage suits brought because of accidents that resulted in broken umbs because of falls on icy walks. The charity department has not been called on to furnish aid to needy people either for up to the very last days of the year the weather was comparatively mild and there was some work for those willing to do it. So New London has reason for giving thanks for the happy situation in which it finds herself at the outset of the new year. There may be three months of severe weather ahead but that need not cause worry until it gets here.

Policewoman Jane Cassidy is off duty, being confined to her home on Franklin street by illness for several days.

Patrolman James McKenna reported at police headquarters this afternoon that a Ford sedan, 1927 model and carrying Connecticut markers, 118997 was disabled on Alewife avenue because of a demolished wheel and that the auto had been in the highway the entire day. A service garage car was used to take the car away so that it would not continue to block traffic.

Funeral services for Mrs. Margaret Beckwith, widow of David Beckwith were held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at the residence of Courtland R. Darrow, in Waterford. Rev. Edward S. Knapp, pastor of the Jordan Baptist church conducted the services. The bearers were William Hendrickson, Courtland R. Darrow, Archie Beckwith and Malcolm Keeney.

Mrs. Hattie Turner, 59, widow of G. W. Turner, formerly of New London, died last week at her home in Sedan, Kan. Mrs. Turner is survived by a brother, J. C. Avery, of Sedan. She was a member of the Second Congregational church in this city.

The meeting of the city council was not held this evening because of the holiday. City Clerk Julian D. Moran, however, because of the charter provision went to the council chamber at 8 o'clock and had the pleasure of listening to his voice as he called the roll with all the members present. The absence of a quorum automatically caused the meeting to adjourn to tomorrow night.

Mrs. John Maturi and infant daughter, of 653 Bank street and Mrs. Lillian Russ, 17 Colman street, patients at Home Memorial hospital, were discharged over the week end.

Paul Denig, of 97 Squire street; Paul Johnson, Groton; Mrs. Charles Menge and infant son, Mystic; Richard Johnson, Groton; Miss Inez Blood, 22 Berkley avenue and Dominick Morisini, Mystic, patients at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, were discharged today.

All the city employes did not enjoy vacations today for the force of drivers of the garbage trucks and the laborers assigned to the task of collecting dry garbage were engaged in that work the entire day. The force also worked Christmas day. Another group of workers today were those employed at the plant of the Whiton Machine company.

NORWICH TOWN

During Sunday morning worship at the First Congregational church the pastor, Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey, spoke on the theme, "Renewals." His text was Romans 12:2, And be not conformed to this World; but be ye transformed by the renewing of your mind, that ye may prove what is that good, and acceptable, and perfect will of God. The sacrament of the Lord's supper was observed following the morning service. "The Value of Daily Devotion," was the theme of the Young People's Christian Endeavor service Sunday evening. The leader was Reginald Avery. At this meeting the annual election took place.

Rev. James Harlow Graham, pastor of Trinity Methodist church, Norwich, gave a very interesting talk at the children's service of Norwich Town Methodist church, Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Twenty-six children and four adults were present. "Getting The Best Out of Life" was the general theme. Rev. Mr. Graham, who held the close attention of his listeners, told the children to get the best of every thing, as they go through life. He questioned them about the larger cities they had visited and of the things and places of significance they had seen. Many responded with satisfactory answers such as Hartford and the capitol; New Haven and Yale college, etc. Rev. Mr. Graham mentioned Paris, France, and its cathedrals, also told a story about a little Saxony boy, which especially helped to develop his subject plainly. Of interest was the story told about Jesus in the Temple at the age of 12. He having sought out the Temple at Jerusalem as the best place (Luke second chapter). The music was in charge of Miss Virginia Ward who played the prelude hymns also the recessional.

At Sunday morning worship, the pastor Rev. Albert E. Whitten, preach- from Jeremiah 2:13 For My people have committed two evils; they have forsaken Me the fountain of living waters, and hewed them out cisterns, broken cisterns, that can hold no water.

Mrs. Lewis Aldrich was in charge of the Methodist Young People's Christian Endeavor service Sunday evening.

For the first time Sunday noon, Lewis Aldrich assumed the duties of superintendent of the Methodist Sunday school to which office he was recently elected, succeeding Frederick H. Bushnell, who has filled this appointment for many years. Mr. Bushnell has been retired with complimentary honors for his faithfulness and devoted service.

New England Industries

Wooden Packing Boxes.

The value of the wooden packing products of New England is about 16 percent of that for the entire United States, and four percent of the product of New England indusyrt a sajlin uct of New England industry as a whole. Census figures show that in 1923 Massachusetts contributed 516 percent of this region's output of wooden packing boxes, New Hampshire 26 1 percent, Maine 13.8 percent and the other three states minor proportions. Annual sales of companies reporting in this survey run from $17,000 to several millions each. An industrial survey conducted by the United States department of commerce in co-operation with the New England council shows that less than seven percent of these concerns have started in business in the last nine years, while the average age of all plants is 33 years. Accessibility of raw materials and nearness to markets were reported as influential factors in the original location of factories in this area. Less than ten percent have established branches. The majority of the producers reporting in this survey state that New England is the chief source of supply for their raw materials.

Control of labor through piece work or incentive methods of wage payment is undveloped in this industry, the average of workers paid by this plan being only eight percent. Seasonal periods of production have been to a great degree overcome; since the fortunes of other industries are directly reflected in those of the box maker, he can diversify his trade among customers having widely varied slack seasons. This method, with manufacturing for stock in unavoidable dull periods, will, it is believed, be a great help in solving the seasonal problem.

Improvements have been reported in many directions, especially in methods of accident prevention. Sales have shown an upward trend since 1921, with the maximum volume in 1923. The majority of sales are made in New England by most of the producers reporting in this survey, who find their chief source of competition in this region.

Approximately 17 percent of the companies report brands or trademarks for their products, while the others report no identification of this kind. The prevailing channel of distribution is direct to the manufacturer-consumer, although a numbers of concerns make use of wholesale houses and commission agents.

NORWICH HOSPITAL PATIENT IS FOUND IN WESTERLY

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., Jan. 2.—Frana Gouia, 45, a Portugese patient at Norwich State hospital, missing for two days, was taken into custody at the Westerly railroad station tonight by Police Lieut. Champlin and Patrolman Leroy Norman. He was locked up at the eWsterly police station. The hospital authorities were notified and will come to Westerly Tuesday and take him back. Suspicion was aroused when he was seen loitering about the station.

House Was Filled With Smoke

The local fire department received its first call of the new year at 11.57 o'clock Monday morning when they were called to the Columbian house, Franklin street, a smoke pipe had become clogged and caused the house to fill with smoke. There was no damage.

Solution of Yesterday's Puzzle

Bigger and Better

See the New Chevrolet now on display!

Today, Chevrolet presents the crowning triumph of sixteen years' continuous progress—a great new automobile so impressive in appearance, performance and staunchness that it marks the opening of a new era of luxurious transportation at low cost.

Built on a 107-inch wheelbase—4 inches longer than before—the Bigger and Better Chevrolet is impressively large, low and racy. Its new Fisher Bodies are finished in new Duco colors and offer rich new upholsteries and handsome appointments. Its improved valve-in-head engine has numerous impressive features such as alloy "invar strut" pistons, hydro-laminated camshaft gears, mushroom type valve tappets, AC oil filter and AC air cleaner. The chassis also has been redesigned. As a result, the new Chevrolet provides delightful smoothness throughout the entire speed range—a wide margin of power for hills—click-of-the-heel acceleration—the ability to maintain 50, 55 and 60 miles an hour without the slightest sense of forcing or fatigue—the safety of four-wheel brakes—the steering ease that can only result from a ball bearing worm and gear steering mechanism—and comfort over all roads at all speeds due to semi-elliptic shock absorber springs—84% of the wheelbase.

Come in—see the car—and learn how Chevrolet has again electrified America by creating a bigger and better motor car and offering it at prices so low as to be actually amazing!

Every feature of advanced design demanded in the finest cars now offered in the New Chevrolet! Read this partial list.

GREENEVILLE

WEDDING

Skoloski-Gay.

A very pretty wedding took place in St. Mary's Memorial church Monday morning at 7 o'clock, when Rev. William A. Keefe, pastor, united in marriage Miss Lola Gay, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Frederick and Nellie Gay, to Peter Skoloski, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Peter Skoloski, of Fall River.

The bride was beautifully gowned in poudre blue crepe romaine and carried a bridal bouquet of pink roses. The bridesmaid was Mrs. Edgar Dupuis, of Moosup, who was attired in cocoa brown crepe romaine gown and carried a bouquet of yellow roses. James Gay, a brother of the bride, acted as best man. After the ceremony, a wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride's aunt, Mrs. Mary Shea, of North Main street. The newly married couple received numerous and useful gifts including silver, checks for substantial sums, cut glass and pieces of furniture. The bride's gift to her maid of honor was a suede bag. The groom's gift to the best man was a gold pen and pencil set. The bride is a graduate of St. Patrick's school. The couple left Monday afternoon on a wedding trip of two weeks in Providence, Newport, Valley Falls and Boston, Mass.

William Higgins has returned to New Haven to resume his studies at Yale college, after spending the recess at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Michael Higgins, of North Main street.

George Swanton has returned to Providence after spending the holidays at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Swanton, of 499 North Main street.

Arthur McGowan has returned to Washington to resume his studies at Georgetown University after spending the holidays at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Michael McGowan, of Higgins avenue.

Many local young people went to Mohegan Park Monday afternoon and evening and enjoyed the winter sport, skating. Ice was in perfect condition owing to the drop in temperature Sunday and Monday.

SECURES DIVORCE AND CUSTODY OF CHILD

On the grounds of desertion, James Morsicata of New London is granted a divorce from Angelina Marion Morsicata of South Manchester, according to a decision handed down by Judge John R. Booth of the superior court and filed Monday with Clerk George E. Parsons. The custody of a minor child is gven to the mother, while another child is given over into the father's custody. The couple was married Oct. 18, 1915, and desertion was alleged since Oct. 25, 1923.

JUDGE GRANTS MOTION FOR PARTICULAR STATEMENT

Judge John R. Booth of the superior court in a decision filed with Clerk George E. Parsons grants a motion for particular statement in the $1,000 civil action brought by Charles E. and Margaret LaBonte of Westerly against John Murphy of the town of Stonington, while a demurrer entered by the plaintiff's counsel to the answer filed by counsel for the defendant, is overruled.

Christmas Music at Hanover

The Christmas music, which was so beautifully rendered Christmas morning, at St. Mary's mission chapel in Hanover, under the direction of the organist, Miss Catherine M. Mahon, was repeated Sunday. The solo parts during the mass were taken by John Papineau.

BIRTHPLACE OF LORENZO DOW IN COVENTRY IS MUCH IN DISPUTE

So many interesting letters and personal interviews have come as the result of an article which appeared some time ago on the life of Lorenzo Dow, that Suzan B. Pendleton has ventured to say a little more on the same subject in the Hartford Times.

To begin with it seems rather conclusively established that the old house, the picture of which was shown in the previous article, is not the actual birthplace of Lorenzo Dow. At the time of the bi-centennial and Old Home week in Coventry this place was placarded as being the birthplace and was so spoken of by a member of the committee in a personal interview with the writer. The look of antiquity, the architecture and general characteristics of the house made it seem likely that it was at least 150 years old, consequently there seemed no reason to doubt the statement.

Arthur P. Dow of the Dow ranches, Sheridan, Wyoming, however, whose youth was spent in Coventry near the old place says that he always heard that the old house where Lorenzo Dow was born went down a good many years ago, before his recollection, and that the house placarded was the Huntington place built on or very near the same site not long afterwards. It was owned and occupied by a Deacon Huntington, a relative of the Dows. Arthur Dow says that he is a descendant of Peletiah Dow and that his great grandfather and Lorenzo's father were brothers.

Dr. Higgins of South Coventry has another theory about the Dow birthplace. He says that Albert P. Woodworth of Coventry told him several years ago that Lorenzo Dow was born in a house on the Bear Swamp road (the house long since gone down) in what is now the town of Andover (set off from Coventry).

But Arthur Dow claims that the Bear Swamp place was never the home of the Dows, but that Clarissa Guild, who married John Dow, Arthur Dow's grandfather, lived there. He thinks Mr. Woodworth has confused the two places. Mrs. W. L. Gammons, of Springfield, Mass., has still another theory. She also lived near the old Huntington place when young and says that she remembers a little structure used as a shop in her day where she was always told Lorenzo Dow was born. This shop was quite near the reputed Dow birthplace as shown in the picture, just a little distance away on same house lot. She says that this shop was at one time used in the manufacture of what were known as "nigger hats." It is explained that in the days before the Civil war many northern farmers or others used to make a cheap hat during the winter months. These hats were sent south and found a ready sale among the negro slaves. Arthur Dow says, "Many a farmer and young man earned many a copper during the winter at that occupation."

But Mr. Dow, though older than Mrs. Gammons, does not remember anything about this so-called "nigger hat" manufactory, though they agree on the site of the Dow birthplace.

Again there are those who still insist that the old Huntington house is the Dow birthplace. This it seems that even the town where Lorenzo Dow was born, to say anything of the exact house, is in dispute. This seems rather amazing as the time has been comparatively short from a historical point of view, 150 years, Oct. 16, 1777.

The old Huntington place, however, is so interesting and venerable and being located in all probability on the site of the Dow birthplace, and formerly owned and occupied by Dow relatives, it would seem well worthy of preservation as a Dow memorial.

Dow's Queer Text

The Rev. T. D. Martin of Hebron says that his grandmother was a personal friend and a great admirer of Lorenzo Dow. Mr. Martin tells a story often quoted but which the writer has never seen in print, of how the preacher, wishing to add his voice in denunciation of the styles of the day in women's hair dressing, announced that he would preach on the subject from a Bible text. A big congregation assembled, curious to know where such a text could be found. Much amusement and possibly some indignation was caused when he gave out as his text the 17th verse, 24th chapter of St. Matthew. However, to suit his convenience, he left off the first five words, leaving as his text "top-not come down." The quotation, it will be remembered, reads, "Let him that is upon the house top not come down." What Lorenzo would think of the present styles in women's hair dressing would be a question, but could he return to life he might be able to find a text to fit the occasion. He could do it if anyone could.

Mrs. Gammons writes that she was told years ago by her mother a tale told the latter by Mrs. Gurley Phelps, late of Andover, it being a bit of lore which the recounter had heard from her uncle, the Rev. John Whittlesey. The story is confirmed by current lore in Salem.

As this story goes, Lorenzo, after the loss of his first wife, told in a public meeting what a helpful consort Peggy had been to him and asked if any woman present would stand up and signify her willingness to take Peggy's place. Thereupon Lucy Dolbeare stood up. But Mrs. Phelps went on to say that it was some time before Lucy could be induced to keep her agreement. However, one night about midnight Lorenzo wrung a consent from her and the couple repaired to the parsonage in Salem where Mr. Whittlesey lived in 1820. Lorenzo agreed to the vows but when Lucy was asked, if she would love, honor and obey, she replied, "I will be a thorn in the flesh and a Satan to buffet him." And she kept her word good. At least so the story teller maintained. It could not have been very long that Lucy Dolbeare kept the anxious bridegroom in suspense as he remained single after the death of his first wife only a few weeks, from Jan. 6, 1820, to April 1 of the same year.

Record of Marriage

The record of the second marriage may be found in the Hebron records but this does not mean that the marriage took place in Hebron. It was something of a custom to record births, marriages and deaths in towns other than the ones in which they occurred, if desirable. For instance, the record of Lorenzo's first marriage is on the Coventry books. This marriage occurred in Weston, N. Y.

A curious incident relating to the Dow traditions is told by Mrs. Francis G. Waldo of Hebron Green. She says she remembers when a small child some seventy years ago visiting the Burroughs Hill cemetery where Peggy Dow is buried. She was taken to the place by her father, James Munroe Dickinson of Marlborough. Mr. Dickinson, through some tin pedlars who had put up for the night with him, heard of a proposed visit to Peggy's grave by a woman spiritualist who had advertised far and near to call up Lorenzo's spirit and cause it to materialize on his first wife's grave.

Calls Dow's Spirit in Vain

The pedlars were all for going to the seance and not wishing to drive there in their cart prevailed upon their host to take them. And little Rosella Dickinson, as Mrs. Waldo then was, must go, too. So Mr. Dickinson hitched up and took them all. Mrs. Waldo retains a vivid impression of the spiritualist, who stook up on the grave leaning on the back of a chair which had been brought out. She went into a trance or appeared to do so and evidently did her best to call the mighty spirit back to the grave, but was unable to do so. She explained her failure by saying that there was too much unbelief. Mrs. Waldo states that there was a large crowd gathered as the interest taken was general over a wide area. Another eye witness of this scene who is still living at Burroughs Hill is Mrs. Amanda Potter. Neither Mrs. Waldo nor Mrs. Potter could remember the name of the spiritualist or where she came from.

Bentley Convert

One of the most famous of Lorenzo Dow's converts in this locality was the well known David Niles Bentley or "Father Bentley" as he was known.

Young Bentley, then only 15 years old, went to a meeting at which Dow preached. This was held in an old wooden building on Water street, in Norwich, in which city Bentley worked. He was in that state of mind known as being "under conviction of sin." Lorenzo Dow was at that time only a few years older than the boy who listened to him, being 23 years of age. David Bentley sat directly behind the preacher, partly concealed by the door. Dow preached graphically on the feelings of a sinner "under strong conviction." As he went on he portrayed the very emotions of the boy's heart. Then suddenly, turning square around, he placed his hand on the lad's head, saying "Young man, is not that true, and can you deny it?"

From this, after weeks of prayer and anguish of spirit came the conversion of young David. He walked nine miles to his parent's home in North Stonington, interrupted his family just as they were ready to sit down to supper, and so earnestly did he present to them the truth as he believed it that the entire family remained up all night and in the morning the supper table remained entirely untouched. He says that in the early morning he walked back to his work, nine miles again, bright as a new smiling shilling after his sleepless night. He began to preach at the age of 16 and with so much vigor that at his first meeting held at his father's house, on Fast Day, in the spring of 1801, two young women were rendered unconscious and one of them remained in that condition until evening when she revived and told of heavenly visions seen in the abnormal state. Father Bentley was not ordained to preach until 1805 and he preached for nearly 70 years. He gave away while living it is estimated at least $70,000 for benevolent purposes. He died in 1884 at the advanced age of 99 years.

Dow Still Remembered.

The name of Lorenzo Dow has seemed like one to conjure with, as almost every person approached has had some bit of lore or some colorful incident to tell.

And what a varied, wonderful life he did lead! Telling of his wanderings at the age of 19, he says in his journal:

"I then returned to my parents after an absence of eight months, having traveled more than 4,000 miles through heat in the valleys (his spelling) the scorching sun beating down, and through cold upon the mountains, and frequently whilst sleeping with a blanket on the floor where I could look up and see the stars through the brick roof, the frost nipping my nose, hands and feet. And from my ears it peeled three times. Traveling through storms of rain and snow, this frequently drifted into banks so that I had no path for miles together and was obliged at times to alight and stamp a way for my horse for some rods. At other times, being engaged for the welfare of souls after preaching in the dark evening would travel the chief part or the whole of the night journies from 20 to 40 miles to get to my next day's appointment, preaching from 10 to 15 times a week and oftentimes no stranger to hunger and thirst in these new countries. And although my trials were great the Lord was still precious to my soul and supported me through."

Penniless on Journey.

On one occasion he set off for England without a cent in his pocket, leaving his companion as he called Peggy in Hebron with his father.

Married Riders.

Miss Adelle White, a sister of Mrs. Potter, tells a story heard by her of Lorenzo's marrying a couple who came along on horseback at night to his home on the Hopevale road, in Hebron. Lorenzo was in bed, but at the summons he arose, opened the window and performed the ceremony then and there, the couple still on horseback.

Miss White has also heard that when Lorenzo was dying he asked to have his body brought to Hebron for burial by the side of his first wife. But the story goes that the second wife delivered the ultimatum that he should be buried where he died in the vicinity of Washington, D. C.

Once when preaching at Chesterfield (probably Connecticut) filling the pulpit for the day, he closed his Bible suddenly and jumped through the open window in the midst of his sermon, his hat grasped in his hand. His astonished congregation, gaping from door and windows beheld him galloping down the road on horseback. He was hastening to keep another engagement.

Crossing the ferry once at "Hartford River" the fare being one cent, the ferry man told him to pay when he could. He had not a cent in his pocket, but went on his way beginning one of his tremendous itineraries through New England, the south and southwest. His congregations numbered from 1,500 to 4,000 or 5,000 in the different places where he preached.

FIRE LOSS $45,095 IN CITY IN PAST YEAR

According to figures announced on Monday by Chief Howard L. Stanton of the local fire department, the fire loss in the city for the year 1927 was $45,095. These figures represent a per capita loss of $1.50 on the estimated population of 30,000. There were 213 alarms. Something less than half of the loss for the year was accounted for by one fire, that at the Thames River Line freight shed and office May 3rd last.

Of the 213 alarms received during the year, 24 came in during the month of December. During the year the fire department assisted at several fires outside the city limits.

HICKMAN HAS ENTERED PLEAS OF NOT GUILTY TO KIDNAPING AND MURDER

Defense Will Contend That the Confessed Kidnaper and Slayer Was Insane When He Abducted and Killed Marian Parker—Judge Carlos Fixed January 25 as the Date of Trial—Counsel For Hickman Had Asked For a 35 Day Continuance, Five Days Over the Legal Limit Fixed by the State Laws.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 3—(AP)—William Edward Hickman, confessed kidnaper and slayer of Marian Parker, will make his fight against the gallows with a plea of insanity.

In superior court here this afternoon Hickman entered pleas of not guilty to charges of murder and kidnaping and coupled with his answer the defense that he was insane when he abducted and killed the 12 year old school girl.

Hickman, escorted from his cell to the court room by guards armed with tear bombs to quell any possible demonstration by a throng of curious, at first pleaded insanity on this murder charge alone, but changed the plea later to cover both accusations. Asked by the court if he knew the insanity plea constituted an admission of the killing, he replied "Yes."

Jerome Walsh, Hickman's youthful attorney, who was hired to defend him by the accused youth's mother, at the opening of the hearing filed an affidavit asking for delay in entering his client's plea, but this was denied. After Hickman pleaded not guilty, Walsh renewed his argument for a delay in the trial, asking a 35-day continuance which is five days over the legal limit fixed by the state laws. The judge then set Jan. 25 as the day.

Hickman was asked by the court if Walsh was his only attorney and he replied, "Yes, your honor."

The accused youth spoke only twice during the short session. Throughout the proceedings he sat beside his lawyer at the counsel table with eyes fixed on the floor.

Behind him, at the rear of the courtroom, was the only representative of the Parker family present, Perry (Bill) Parker, step-brother of the slain girl. He appeared to be under a severe nervous strain, riveting his eyes alternately on the judge and the prisoner.

There was only one delay from the time Hickman was led through heavily guarded corridors to the courtroom until he emerged again on his way back to the county jail. This came during a conference in the judge's chambers between Judge Hardy and Walsh after the latter had asked for a continuance on the plea.

While court recessed, Hickman was taken to the prisoners' room, adjoining the courtroom, and was returned four minutes later when Judge Hardy resumed the bench.

The eighth floor of the hall of justice was crowded with persons seeking admittance to the courtroom, but the heavy squad of guards maintained order.

Rumors that Hickman might seek to escape the death penalty by claiming he was under 18 years of age were set at rest by the procedure he adopted at today's arraignment.

In his affidavit asking for time to find insanity witnesses, Attorney Walsh declared that Hickman, although under 21, is of an age that would permit hanging "to wit, the age of 19 years."

Although Hickman's plea legally leaves the question of his sanity for the court to decide, authorities connected with the case said the whole story of their ruesome crime would be unravelled to the jury in the process of determining the young slayer's sanity.

Attorneys pointed out that the burden of proof in his plea of insanity rests on the defense, the California law holding a presumption of sanity.

Miss Maude Royden, British preacher en route to the United States on the S. S. Aquitania for a lecture tour, denied reports that the Chicago Women's Home Missionary society of the Methodist Episcopal church had cancelled her lecture engagement there because she smokes.

NEW SANITY HEARING HAS BEEN DEMED REMUS

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Jan. 3.—(AP)—George Remus was saved from the Lima insane asylum today only by the prolongation of a writ of habeas corpus hearing until next Thursday.

Holding that a matter of grave public policy was involved, Judge Charles S. Bell of common pleas court said he would need another 48 hours before handing down his decision on the application for the writ. In addition to many citations of precedent given him by Charles H. Elston, counsel for Remus, and Charles P. Taft II, county prosecutor, Judge Bell said that others would be welcomed tomorrow morning.

Remus lost his hope of a new sanity hearing and release on bond when Judge William H. Lueders of the probate court, who last week adjudged Remus insane and dangerous to be at large, denied a petition by Elston. Judge Lueders also refused to further stay of execution of the order committing Remus to Lima.

Elston immediately made the denial of his petition the vehicle for carrying the probate court decision into the court of common pleas on error proceedings.

No matter which way the decision of Judge Bell should go, both sides indicated a further long legal battle was in sight before actual incarceration of the former "king of bootleggers" in the Lima institution.

BREAK IN COLD WAVE IN THE MIDDLE WEST

CHICAGO, Jan. 3.—(AP)—The middle west today obtained some relief from the sub-zero temperature and heavy snowfall that made the double New Year's holiday uncomfortable for revelers.

Generally fair skies prevailed over the Great Lakes and Mississippi valley regions blanketed by snow. Continued clear weather is forecast for Wednesday with a sharply rising temperature, attaining perhaps 20 above zero.

Air mail service and transportation again are at normal, although in places highways are partly blocked by snow.

Discovery of the frozen body of a woman, dead in her home several days, ran the deaths atributed to the cold wave here, to thirty three. The body of an aged unidentified man was found under a drift at Peoria, Ill.

NEW CHARGE IN TEAPOT DOME OIL CONTEMPT CASE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3.—(AP)—Edward J. Kidwell, Jr., who recently wound up his first day's testimony in the Teapot Dome oil contempt case by alleging that the prosecutor had intimidated and threatened him, finished five days on the witness stand today with an additional charge that an assistant district attorney had threatened him with prosecution if he failed to testify that false affidavits were true.

Kidwell made his first charge when testifying as a government witness in the criminal contempt hearing against Harry F. Sinclair, William J. Burns and their four associates.

He asserted that James J. O'Leary, assistant district attorney, had forced him to sign affidavits which he told the prosecutor were untrue.

EXPOSURE CAUSED DEATH OF MRS. AMELIA APPLEBY

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 3.—(AP)—Exposure suffered after she had been thrown into a ditch along the roadway "by an unknown persons" caused the death of Mrs. Amelia Appleby, "sack murder" victim, a coroner's jury decide today.

Trussed in a sack, the body of the wealthy widow was found Dec. 6 near San Fernando, 20 miles northwest of here. Death had resulted from congestion of the lungs due to exposure, said the verdict of the coroner's jury.

Dr. Charles M. McMillan, 57-year-old physician, held as the woman's suspected slayer, refused to testify on advice of counsel. Authorities are investigating his activities in managing Mrs. Appleby's business affairs.

CONGRESS OPENS TODAY FOR A LONG SESSION

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3.—(AP)—With the Christmas vacation over and a "Happy New Year" wished to the folks back home, congress will get down tomorrow to a grind which probably will continue almost to the eve of the republican convention in June.

The house, which before the holiday recess kept to its legislative duties with the faithfulness of a Rhodes scholar at his studies, will start off at noon on an appropriation bill, the second of the session, and the first of the regular annual batch of supply measures for the governmental departments.

In the senate, the first order of business will be the administering of the oath to Bronson M. Cutting, a republican, appointed to fill the vacancy caused by the recent death of Senator Andrieus A. Jones, a democrat, of New Mexico. After that Senator Norris, republican, Nebraska, is expected to call up a resolution proposing the abolition of the short session of congress, frequently referred to as the "lame duck" session.

"PHANTOM STABBER" WAS CHASED BY WOMAN VICTIM

Tonight at 9.47 o'clock a man answering the stabber's description bumped into Mrs. Eleanor Olson, of 6 Grand View terrace on Henry street and stabbed her in the right breast with a sharp instrument. The wound was of the same nature as those inflicted on 25 Bridgeport women.

Mrs. Olson turned and chased her assailant as he fledi through her back yard and two men, neighbors, joined the pursuit, one of them flourishing a revolver. The man escaped. Mrs. Olson gave his description to police and the city is being searched for him.

MINERS SUFFER FOR LACK OF FOOD AND CLOTHING

STEUBENVILLE, O., Jan. 3.—(AP)—One thuosand families of idle coal miners in Jefferson county are suffering for lack of food and clothing, John R. Jones of Bergholz, president of sub-district 4 of the United Mine workers, in an appeal for help declared today.

Most of the sufferers are children, Jones said. He has appointed a committee to receive contributions.

Christmas aid from church societies and other groups was only temporary, he said.

NAVAL VESSEL RESCUED CHILDREN FROM ICE FLOE

WILHELMSHAVEN, Germany, Jan. 3.—(AP)—Seven children adrift on an ice floe were rescued tonight by a naval vessel after being lost for four hours.

The children were playing on the ice off shore when the tide came in breaking off the crust upon which they stood. Their cries of terror brought a rescue party which, however, arrived just in time to see them vanish into the night. For a time there was little hope of saving them.

Perpetual Friendship Overtures to France

Formal Invitation to France to Join the United States in Proposal to Renounce War.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3—(AP)—The formal invitation to France to join the United States in proposing to all the principal powers of the world a multilateral treaty containing a declaration "renouncing war as an instrument of national policy" was made public today by the state department. It was forwarded to Paris Dec. 28 as an elaboration of the original "draft pact of perpetual friendship between France and the United States."

On the same date, the state department transmitted a draft treaty to replace the Root arbitration treaty with France on its expiration Feb. 27. It includes in the preamble a proposed general declaration against resort to war. A copy of this draft has been transmitted to the British and Japanese governments and will be transmitted to every other government with which the United States has a Root arbitration pact. The text of the draft of the revised arbitration treaty was not made public although the American proposals it contains are known in general terms.

Ambassador Claudel called on Secretary Kellogg today to discuss the various peace treaty proposals. It was said at the embassy, however, that he was still unadvised as to the attitude of the French foreign office on the suggestion from Washington that France and the United States lead the way in a world-wide movement to get all nations committed to the anti-war declaration.

The proposal, which is in the nature of a counter suggestion to the French foreign minister's original plan for a bilateral treaty against war between France and the United States, is contained in a note from the state department to the French government, the Briand draft pact, it says, "proposes that the two powers should solemnly declare in the name of their respective peoples that they condemn recourse to war, renounce it as an instrument of their national policy towards each other and agree that a settlement of disputes arising between them, or whatsoever nature or origin they may be, shall never be sought by either party except through Pacific means."

In answer to this suggestion Secretary Kellogg said he had given it careful consideration and warmly reciprocated for the American people the "lofty sentiments of friendship" that had inspired Minister Briand to propose such a treaty.

FRENCH DIPLOMATS STUDY PACT "TO OUTLAW WAR"

PARIS, Jan. 3—(AP)—French diplomatic experts today began examination of the text of an agreement "to outlaw war" proposed by Secretary of State Kellogg. Experts profess the same spirit of optimism with which Foreign Minister Briand originally proposed the treaty.

The reservations set forth in the American state department text were the object of special study as the French are quite agreed on the general idea of th arbitration of all differences and exclusion of any idea of war.

The American text, as published here, created a favorable impression which was modified somewhat by reports from Washington that the American government intends to ask other states to join France in the agreement.

A 42-MILE WIND WITH SNOW STORM IN BUFFALO

BUFFALO, N. Y., Jan. 3.—(AP)—A 42-mile wind off Lake Erie whipped 13 inches of snow over this city today and brought injuries to two persons.

While the wind raged, fire broke out in four homes in Seneca street and drove 20 occupants into the street to face the biting weather.

Thousands were late for work in the morning and street car service, although maintained, was poor all day. Two trolley cars were derailed.

Railroad trans were delayed from 15 minutes to three hours by deep drifts in yards in this city.

The injured, two men, were struck by street cars. Snow was still falling tonight.

Voyage on Sub. S-8 Converts La Guardia

Congressman From New York Has Decided to Abandon Criticism.

BOSTON, Jan. 3—(AP)—Thirty-six hours in a submarine made Congressman Fiorello H. La Guardia, of New York tear up a speech he had written for delivery on the floor of congress, he told newspapermen today when he arrived at the navy yard on the submarine S-8, sister ship of the S-4 which was rammed and sunk by the coast guard destroyer Paulding off Provincetown on December 17.

"I have often criticised the navy, especially for its aviation policies," he said, "but my experience on the S-8 convinced me that the navy has done everything possible in the S-4 disaster.

"I realize now that only by pontoons can the submarine be raised. After inspecting the scene of the disaster I can now believe that derricks and such equipment would have been useless in the attempt to raise the S-4 while the six men of her crew were alive in the torpedo compartment."

The congressman, accompanied by Commander Holbrook Gibson, chief of staff of the submarine control force, boarded the S-8 yesterday at New London. Mr. La Guardia had asked Rear Admiral Frank H. Brumby for an opportunity to obtain a first hand view of the salvage operations at Provincetown and to familiarize himself with submarines.

To entertain his congressional guest, Lieut. Frank E. Worden, commander of the S-8, put his ship through its paces, including one short dive. Mr. La Guardia was greatly impressed and announced that he would try to persuade his colleagues in congress to provide the navy with more modern submarines and give men in the submarine service extra pay for their hazardous duty.

Mr. La Guardia said he ate and slept well on the S-8 but suffered from the intense cold all during the trip, which terminated here this afternoon. He said he conferred with Admiral Brumby and his officers at the scene of the disaster and also talked with the divers who have descended to the sunken submarine.

"Those divers were brave men," said he, "and their officers among the most capable in the navy. Only a miracle could have saved any of the S-4's crew and no miracle hapepned. There has ben much criticism about the equipment the salvage fleet used in attempting to raise the submarine but I know it has been undeserved.

"Congress can't control the elements and it is easier to run a submarine from the house building than it is from the bridge of a submarine."

Mr. La Guardia said that he does not intend to make any speeches about the S-4 disaster but will rise to the navy's defense and answer any unfair attack of "some seagoing congressman" if the need arises on the floor of the house.

WEATHER IS AGAINST SALVAGE OPERATIONS

PROVINCETOWN, Mass., Jan. 3.—(AP)—The piercing chill of the water today forbade resumption of salvage operations on the sunken submarine S-4, although the sea was smooth. Tests made with a "dummy diver" convinced officers in charge of the work that the underwater temperature was too low to permit of divers descending.

The salvage fleet, which had sought shelter in Provincetown harbor from the gales of the week-end, again took up position over the spot where the S-4 went down on December 7 in collision with the coast guard destroyer Paulding but the only activity possible was periodical testing of the water.

The danger to divers from the low temperatures at the ocean floor lies in the danger of the air line valves freezing on the helmet. To determine the probability of this, the dummy diver, which has been given the name of "Jake" on board the mine sweeper Falcone, base of diving operations, is used.

CONFESSED IMPLICATION IN MURDER OF FATHER

ANAHEIM, Calif., Jan. 3.—(AP)—Alvino Pineda confessed to the shireff here today that he and two others killed his father, Juan Pineda, for the $23 the aged man carried and that he took $8 as his share of the loot. The two others named by Pineda were Georganio Avalas and Porfirio Ruan. The elder Pineda was found dead in a ditch Dec. 5.

COLD WEATHER CAUSED DEATH OF SMALL FISH

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla., Jan. 3.—(AP)—Unable to withstand the sudden drop in temperature of the water, resulting from the New Year cold wave, thousands of small fish have died in the Halifax river here.

The surface of the water was literally covered today with the dead and dying mullet and trout that had sought protection from the cold in the shallow coves.

COLONEL LINDBERGH MADE PERFECT LANDING AT TEGUCIGALPA, HONDURAS

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras, Jan. 3—(AP)—The famous "Spirit of St. Louis," emerged from dark clouds and misty rain shortly before two o'clock this afternoon, circled over the Honduran capital, sailed to the Tegucigalpa aviation field and landed exactly in front of the hangar.

Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh arrived at the field from San Salvador at 1:55. Before landing he circled three times over the field in a graceful evolution.

When he stepped out of his veteran flying machine he was welcomed by President Miguel Paz Barahona, Foreign Minister Fausto Davilla, and George T. Summerlin, American minister to Honduras.

After the greeting by the officials, six pretty girls welcomed him with flowers. The mayor of Tegucigalpa then offered him the key to the city.

The American flyer's first words were, "Although it was very cloudy I had a good view of the scenery between here and San Salvador. This is one of the best aviation fields I have seen."

After landing Lindbergh showed great concern for his airplane as the crowd, which had begun gathering shortly after daybreak, was clustering around it at the hangar entrance. Police, however, surrounded the plane and the flyer was satisfied.

Lindbergh then entered an automobile with the three officials who had greeted him and departed for the city amid loud cheers from thousands of throats calling, "Viva, Lindbergh."

On the way to the city a rain of flowers was thrown at him from all houses he passed. The official automobile proceeded under triumphal arches. Once in the capital he went to the American legation for lunch.

Colonel Lindbergh will not fly over the scene of recent fighting between marines and rebels in Nicaragua when he leaves for Managua on the fifth leg of his Central American good will tour, probably Thursday.

"I will go from Tegucigalpa to Leon, Nicaragua, and thence to Managua, but I will not stop at Leon," he said when asked about his route today.

A direct line from Tegucigalpa would carry him over rebel territory, but the line to Leon is some 25 or 30 miles west of where recent fighting has occurred.

U. S. TO INTENSIFY PURSUIT OF NICARAGUAN OUTLAWS

State Department Has Decided to Cooperate Fully and Effectively With Nicaraguan Constabulary—1,000 Additional Marines Have Been Despatched to Cope With the Insurgents—Several Planes Have Wrought Much Destruction in the Ranks of the Rebel

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3— (AP) —A slashing drive to quiet the banditry of Augustino Sandino in Nicaragua will be started soon by the United States marines.

Orders went out today for the immediate dispatch of 1,000 additional marines from the United States to augment the 1,400 already on the ground.

Pursuit of the bandits, however, will not await the arrival of reinforcements from the states. Already blue jackets have been called from the ships in Nicaraguan waters to relieve marines from guard duty so they can take the trail for the Nueva Segovia strongholds of Sandino.

The marines are reported to be thoroughly aroused over the slaying of their comrades in the recent guerilla warfare conducted by the bandits and to be eager to clash with the enemy.

Machinery was put into swift motion at the navy department for a more intensive campaign against Sandino after President Coolidge had gone over with Secretary Wilbur official reports of the recent clashes in which lives of marines were lost.

One battalion of marines was ordered moved from San Diego to the fighting zone and another from Parris Island, S. C., as quickly as transportation can be provided.

From Nicaragua came the word that the commander of the special service squadron had sent today 176 marines in answer to the call for aid from the troops that engaged Sandino. The reinforcements are from the warships Rochester, Galveston and Tulsa, and will be landed at Corinto on the west coast within the next two days.

Brigadier General Logan Feland, commander at Parris Island, and an experienced Nicaraguan campaigner, was orderedt oday to resume command of marine forces in Nicaragua with the assistance of Col. Robert H. Dunlop, of the Quantico, Va., base and Colonel L. M. Gulick, who is now in charge in Nicaragua.

Washington officials are particularly anxious to stamp out the depredations of the dashing Sandino for fear that he might again fan to flame the revolutionary spirit so recently subdued in other parts of Nicaragua. They believe that the conquering of this bandit would restore tranquility before the presidential election, to be supervised by Brigadier General Frank R. McCoy, who is now preparing for an early departure for Nicaragua.

Shortly after the marine orders were issued today the state department declared in a formal statement that the marines were being sent to cooperate with the native constabulary in maintaining order so that a free election might be held and that the administration was prompted by a spirit of friendliness and helpfulness for the southern republic.

TO PUSH CAMPAIGN TO A SUCCESSFUL TERMINATION

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, Jan. 3—(AP)—With promised reinforcements from the United States, and with a column of marines immediately sent forward to strengthen the garrison at Quilali, in the province of Nueva Segovia, now held by U. S. marines and national guardsmen, Colonel Mason Gulick is hopeful of pushing the campaign against the rebels under former Liberal General Sandino, to a successful termination.

The spirit of the marines has been aroused by the recent engagements fought in the territory in which Sandino has well armed contingents. They already, in contact with Americans, have killed half a dozen marines and wounded many others. Notwithstanding hte fact that the marines who set out to drive Sandino out of his stronghold at Quilali succeeded in their task, strong groups of rebels have taken refuge in the forests and must be bombed out. With this object in view several planes have already wrought much destruction in the rebel ranks. Colonel Gulick declared today that the marine columns, with airplane support, had "a splendid day" yesterday. The rebels at various times during the march of marines to reinforce those who had occupied Quilali, attempted to concentrate at several strategic points along the mountainous trail. They met the marines with gunfire, but immediately planes would sweep overhead, dropping bombs and then would swing low and strafe the rebels with machine gun fire.

The outlaw bands scattered, and, it is believed, suffering numerous casualties. So successful was the bombing operations that the rebels failed to inflict any damage to the relief column, which reached Quilali late in the afternoon.

No attempt has been made by Sandino to retake his former stronghold, and it is thought doubtful if he will make such an attempt. He has undoubtedly established headquarters some distance back of the recent engagements, possibly at El Chipote, 18 miles away, where he would have an opportunity if hard pressed to escape into the jungle country.

KILLED WIFE, HER BROTHER, THEN WOUNDED HIMSELF

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Jan. 3—(AP)—A triple tragedy was the culmination of threats made against Mrs. William G. Laprade here this afternoon, when her husband shot and killed his wife, her brother and then fatally wounded himself. Laprade, said to be a deserter from the United States a my, died in Rhode Island hospital a short time after the shooting without regaining consciousness. Mrs. Laprade was shot down in the kitchen of her home at six Hospital street.

Herman E. White, 22, brother of Mrs. Laprade, was instantly killed by a bullet from Laprade's gun after he was pursued and trapped in an attic room of the Hospital street house in the South Providence section. The tragedy was discovered by Blanche White, 15 year old half sister of Mrs. Laprade, who summoned police and physicians. Upon arrival of ambulance surgeons it was stated that both Mrs. Laprade and White were instantly killed.

POSSES ARE HUNTING FOR SLAYER OF PEACE OFFICERS

TENDOY, Idaho, Jan. 3—(AP)—The wide-open hills of the horse prairie country bordering Idaho and Montana were alive tonight with posses engaged in an intensive manhunt for Ben Hamilton, accused slayer of three peace officers who were shot down here late last night.

Reports to the sheriff's office were that Hamilton fired from his cabin and instantly killed Deputy Sheriff Louis Babcock of Tendoy and his two companions, Will Withington and Lem Cummings of Salmon, Idaho. Each victim was marked with a bullet in the head.

FOUND FAMILY LIVING IN TENT IN ZERO WEATHER

EAST LIVERPOOL, Ohio, Jan. 3—(AP)—While zero weather gripped this city today, police found a family of eight living in a tent on a vacant lot.

Fires were burning brightly in two stoves in the tent and Carl Klem said that his wife, himself, and their six children, ranging in age from one to twelve years were comfortable and happy.

Lack of funds forced the family out of their home and into the tent, Klem said. Wood was being used as fuel for the stoves and there was plenty of food, due to the charity of neighbors, he told police.

ENDURANCE RECORD FLIGHT INDEFINITELY POSTPONED

CURTISS FIELD, N. Y., Jan. 3—(AP)—Indefinite postponement of the proposed attempt by Bert Acosta and Emile Burgin, to bring the airplane flight endurance record back to this country, was announced today by Jack Burke, business representative of Acosta.

A physician, Burke said, advised against attempting the flight until Acosta recovered from a mild congestion of the lungs and an infection of the tonsils.

PRISONERS TAKEN FROM JAIL TO BE BAPTIZED

BLOOFSBURG, Pa., Jan. 3.—(AP)—Nine prisoners are to be taken from the county jail here to a local church for baptism.

When Rev. E. C. V. Huffer, pastor of the Christ church conducted Christmas and New Year's services in the jail, the men professed conversion. The minister immediately asked the county judge for baptism order and the district attorney was instructed to prepare one.

The sheriff will take the prisoners who are serving sentences for larceny, non-support, motor law vialtions and operating automobiles while intoxicated, under guard to the church and will return them to their cells after the service.

LEAD MINES IN WISCONSIN ARE TO BE DISMANTLED

PLATTEVILLE, Wis., Jan. 3.—(AP)—Wisconsin's lead mining district which in its heyday was one of the greatest in the country, suffered another blow today with the announcement that the Mineral Point Zinc company, for many years the leading zinc firm in southwestern Wisconsin, is shutting down its mines.

Announcement has been made by the company's main offices at Galena, Illinois, that the mines will be dismantled and holdings of the concern here valued at one time at $20,000,000 will be disposed of. The concern was merged with the New Jersey Zinc Co., a $50,000,000 corporation, after 20 years' operation.

REIMBURSED CLIENTS WHO LOST MONEY ON HIS ADVICE

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 3—(AP)—Two former clients who lost money on account of advice they received from their attorney, Gavin McNab, were reimbursed today by bequests in the will of the noted California attorney which disposed of an estate valued at between $600,000 and $800,000. McNab died last week.

One of the bequests is for $35,000 to Mrs. A. M. Elkins of Pal Alto and the second is for $5,000 to Joseph P. Finnell of San Francisco. The will was filed in the probate court today.

TWO FOUND GUILTY OF THEFT OF CORD WOOD

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Jan. 3—(AP)—Emil Dazy, 38, and Alvin Ladd, 26, of this city were each fined $100 and costs in the Mansfield town court this afternoon when found guilty on charges of theft of cord-wood. Dazy appealed to the superior court. Ladd's assessment amounted $115.42 and having no funds was taken to the Tolland county jail to work out his fine. Both had pleaded not guilty. Alfred Chalifoux, also of this city, who was believed to have been implicated in the case was found not guilty and was discharged. The testimony presented by the state was to the effect that Dazy and Ladd had stolen about five cords of wood from Brownie Siedjesky of Mansfield and wood from P. Frank Smith of Willimantic. The wood was sold at retail in this city and vicinity. The arrests were made after a lengthy investigation by State Policemen Frank A. Starkel and Terrence Griffin of the Stafford Springs barracks. The cases were heard in the town hall at Spring Hill by Justice of the Peace Richard Wright of North Windham who has been justice for three years but was presiding at his first court session. Grand Juror Carleton P. King prosecuted.

A talk on "Law Enforcement" was given by Rev Arthur S. Wheelock at the weekly luncheon meeting of the Willimantic Rotary club held in the Nathan Hale hotel this noon. Applying his topic to resolutions for the New Year, Rev. Wheelock asked all members to do their utmost to create a respect for the law. He lauded Governor Al Smith of New York for his determination to obey and enforce the law regardless of his personal disapproval of certain legal enactments. Rotarian James L. Case of Norwich offered the New Year greetings of that club to the local one. Harry W. Standish also favored with remarks in an impromptu program. John F. Ahern made announcements relative to the meeting next week which will be a regular Rotary dinner at 6.30 o'clock in the evening when the ladies will be guests. State's Attorney Arthur M. Brown, Norwich Rotarian, will be the speaker of the evening. There will be special music, events and dancing. Frederick Branch of New York, nephew of C. H. Branch, was a guest. The attendance contest between the five eastern Connecticut Rotary clubs was launched locally today. It is expected that "make-up" attendances during the week will bring the percentage for the first week to 100 per cent. The five captains who are directing the local attendance announced their team names as follows: Walter S. Barnes' team, Dry Squad; Fred L. Avery Pall Bearers; John Reilly, Ironmen; Frank M. Smith, Smith Brothers and Herbert W. Huber, Coughers. President Richard E. Dodge was in charge of the session.

RACICOT GETS 60 DAYS FOR LIQUOR VIOLATION

WILLIMANTIC, Jan. 3—One of the heaviest jail sentences recorded for some time against a liquor law violator was imposed in police court this morning when Joseph Racicot was ordered to spend 60 days in the county jail when found guilty of keeping liquor with intent to sell in two places. He was further ordered to pay the costs of $17.30. No fine was imposed. The double case was a continued one and resulted from raids at 41 Jackson street and 16 Prospect street. Racicot pleaded not guilty and explained that he feared to dispose of it because a 30 day jail sentence already hung over him as the result of a conviction early in December. Judge Foss imposed sentence of 30 days on the two counts involved in the present case and made effective the 30-day suspended sentence.

Bookings for entries and exhibitions for the Willimantic exposition to be held at the state armory here this month under the auspices of the Windham County Poultry, Pigeon and Small Stock association in conjunction with Company C 169th Infantry, C. N. G. are coming in rapidly. Ivan M. Johnson of South Chaplin has taken charge of the bookings in the absence of D. D. Cavanaugh, manager of the exposition, who is in Boston attending the show there and signing up special attractions. A. Mowell of Hagerstown, Md., and Charles Johnson of Manchester have been engaged to judge the dogs. George M. Grayes of this city will be chairman of the dog department, assisted by W. A. Smith of Whitneys Point, N. Y.

Miss C. Belle Martin, 61, died at her home, 260 Pleasant street, at 5.30 o'clock this morning. She was born in this city, December 2, 1866, a daughter of Arnim and Mable Marcy Martin. The deceased was a member of the First Baptist church and of the Woman's Christian Temperance union. Her grandfather and grandmother were two of the founders of the Baptist church an interesting fact that first became general knowledge during the recent centennial celebration of the church. The only surviving relatives are cousins.

At a reunion of the Morrisetto family held New Year's night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Raphael Doiron, 98 Summit street, three generations, represented in 45 persons, were present. A chicken supper was served, followed by games, music and dancing. In attendance were six married sisters and one brother of the Morrisette family. Mr. and Mrs. Albert Cloutier, Mr. and Mrs. Napoleon I. Brindamour, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Demers, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Roy, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Desormeau, Mrs. Raphael Doiron and Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Morrisette, with children and grandchildren.

A return to the home of her parents on Ash street from school during the noon hour today caused some concern to the parents. An unsuccessful search was followed by a call to the police department and Officer Grant Bombria was detailed to locate the child. The little girl was found about one o'clock at the home of the Grant family, 451 Main street, where she had stopped on the way home.

A marriage license was issued at the municipal building in New York Saturday to Miss Jennie C. Ryder, 22, formerly of Mansfield now of 60 Flora street, Hartford and Carl Worlund, 23, of the same address. The marriage is to take place in the city chapel and be performed by Deputy City Clerk John J. McCormick, according to the license. Miss Ryder was born in Mansfield, the daughter of Charles and Emma Anderson Ryder. Mr Worlund was born in Finland, the son of Eric and Edna Korrh Worlund.

LOCAL RED CROSS CHAPTER WINS ROLL CALL HONOR FLAG

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, Jan. 3—Jewett City chapter, American Red Cross, is one of ten chapters in Connecticut to be awarded the Roll Call Honor flag. It is printed in the honor list in the January issue of the Red Cross Courier. The chapter was one of the first ten chapters in the state to file a report, also exceeded the quota allotted it. The other chapters which are to receive the Honor flag are Bristol, Danielson, Fairfield, Farmington, Milford, New Britain, New London Stafford and Washington. Douglas Griesemer, national roll call director said, in the award of the Honor flags, and in the presentation of certificates of appreciation to the Roll Call workers, national headquarters and the chapters are really honoring themselves, for these awards are significant of Red Cross comradeship and the unswerving loyalty of our workers every where in carrying on a big job and showing in results that our organization is truly our people's very own Red Cross."

The Town Nurse committee has been appointed and comprises Dr. G. H. Jennings, Margaret Driscoll, Mrs T. A. Rioux, Mrs. E. H. Hiscox, Joseph McCarthy, Arba Browning and Daniel F. Finn. The committee is to meet Thursday evening in the Red Cross room to organize.

BAPTIST CHURCH ROLL CALL WITH ONE HUNDRED ATTENDING

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, Jan. 3. — Close to one hundred members of the Baptist church with their friends, were present last evening at the January roll call. The program, prepared by Mr. and Mrs. James B. Palmer, proved of more than usual excellence. The audience was delighted with two solos sung by Miss Doris Myott— This Day is Born a Savior, Stewart, and In Heavenly Love Abiding, Gley Speaks. The violin solo, La Virginella, played by Toylar O. Gilbert, and the piano solo, Grande Polka de Concert, Bartlett, given by Miss Margaret Jordan, afforded much pleasure and all received merited applause.

Mrs. B. R. Gardner entertained pleasingly with reading, the selection being a German folk-lore tale, of the Black Forest.

The address was by State Attorney Arthur M. Brown, a member of the church. He called to the attention of his hearers a small primer of recent issue, published by The National Council of Northern Baptist Laymen. Mainly, in his remarks, he held to the answers of a layman for some of the questions propounded in the primer—Shall the Denomination live? If so, why? If not, why? The speaker held to the idea, as he pointed out the different viewpoints of his belief, that unless we lose sight of denominationism, and join in a grand get-together, with the energies of all denominations centered on the common goal, much of Christian efficiency will be lost.

Another question, "What are the perils and losses of making Christianity the business of the ministry alone?" and, "Why do not Baptist laymen's organizations succeed?" were carefully considered by the speaker. He was not aware that such organizations were not meeting with success, but thought that back of them, the real touch and companionship of the Master were a necessity to any Christian achievement. Much information was gained from the speaker's views relative to the outstanding things which may cause a church to either succeed or fail.

He thought that many creditable objectives were lost, because of the complexity of the make-up of the organizations that sought to gain really laudable ends.

Rev. E. E. Scates, the pastor whom the honored speaker characterized as a Christian minister of merit and ability, spoke at some length, telling of his efficient backing by the members of his church and the hearty cooperation always accorded any effort looking toward the church's best interests.

The pastor also was much pleased because of the unanimity of his people, saying that as is sometimes the case a house may be divided against itself.

Ice cream and cake added to the evening's pleasing program. The efficient committee were: Invitation, Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Gray; program, Mr. and Mrs. James B. Palmer; refreshments, Mrs. G. H. Prior, Mrs. Charles F. Gardner and Miss Mabel H. McBroome, acting for the Ladies' Aid society.

Supt. F. H. P. Clement, of the schools of Griswold, has decided that no pupil hereafter may be excused from school while in session, without a written request from the parent or guardian. This decision anticipates any possible attempt to entire pupils from the building.

The first fire of 1928, was discovered at 2:30 Tuesday morning in the small store occupied by Stanley Arbuckle, corner of Mechanic and Mathewson streets. Patrolman Viegard saw the blaze through the basement window as he passed on his regular beat, and turned in the alarm. Cause not determined and damage slight, is the report.

Local people were interested to read in the Danielson column, about the hanging of Oliver Watkins, in Brooklyn, Conn., in December 1831. It was one of the last public hangings and in response to the appeals from local mill operatives, the records of Griswold tell that the mills were shut down, and by every conveyance available nearly the whole village of Jewett City went to Brooklyn to see the hanging. Some it is said, walked, starting the night before, and carrying provisions for the trip.

Monday night was the coldest of the winter, the mercury falling to 3 and 6 above. Everything is in readiness for the ice harvest. Cutting last year began Jan. 14th and two winters ago on Dec. 28th.

BROOKLYN SAVINGS BANK TRUSTEES APPROVE PLANS

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Jan. 3—This afternoon at a meeting of the trustees of the institution approval was made of plans selected by the building committee for the new banking home of The Brooklyn Savings bank. Norton and Townsend of New Haven are the architects.

The building, to be located at the northeast corner of Main and Academy streets, next to the Public library, will be a colonial type structure, entirely different in design from any bank in eastern Connecticut. Its gabled roof, stately columns and granite porticos will be set off by antique grill trimmings. The material in all probability will be colonial brick with Vermont marble columns, caps and trimmings. It should make a very beautiful building and fit well in the setting along with the library and Westfield Congregational church.

The structure will set quite close up to the library building and on the Main street frontage will run along almost with the front of the library building. The bank will extend back 75 feet along Academy street, on which they will be an entrance to the Community room and thence in the public space of the bank.

The interior drawings show a high vaulted central section, with appointments in keeping with the most approved and modern ideas of bank construction. There will be a mezzanine floor. Working space for the bank force, vaults for securities and books, offices for officials and trustees are all arranged to afford the greatest convenience.

It is anticipated that every minute detail of the bank and its appointments will have been worked out so that contractors who desire to bid for the construction work may do so during February. Clearing of the site of the bank, this involving the removal of buildings thereon, will be undertaken soon after March 1.

It is a matter of regret not only to the members of St. Alban's parish, but also to all of those in Danielson and other nearby communities who have come to have the pleasure of his acquaintance that Rev. Leonard R. Richards, rector of St. Alban's, is to leave Danielson about March 1, to become rector of Christ church at Pomfret. His pastorate here will have extended over four years at the end of this month. He goes to Pomfret as successor to Rev. F. H. Bigelow, who has become head master of the Rectory school at Pomfret.

Rev. Mr. Richards rectorship here has been prolific of fine things for St. Alban's, and among other things, been marked by the erection of the Parish house. He is a graduate of Oxford university and served overseas as a chaplain with the British forces during the World war. In addition to administering to St. Alban's parish here he also has served the people of Trinity parish Brooklyn the past four years.

There was undertaken this morning a work that involves applying a stucco exterior finish to the group of business buildings owned by Peter Jodoin on Main street, just south of the railroad crossing. There are three large frame structures in the group. All of these, on the street level, are occupied as business places. The second floors of the buildings are occupied as apartments. Mr. Jodoin's plan is to give them a very attractive appearance, and as he explains what is to be done one may sense that this will be achieved, to the general advantage of the business section of the community.

At the annual meeting of St. Alban's Sewing society the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, Mrs. E. H. Keach; vice-president, Mrs. Alfred L. Reed, secretary, Mrs. F. O. Armington; treasurer Mrs. A. H. Armington; choir mother Mrs. George Holt.

Work was planned for the coming year and much gratification felt over the accomplishments of the past year. As the occasion was the 45th anniversary of Mrs. A. H. Armington's service as treasurer, she was presented by her associates with a purse of gold. Mrs. Armington's long and efficient service has been greatly appreciated, and the affection and esteem she enjoys was evidenced by the gift.

Mrs. Walter Musgrave and Mrs. F. E. Storer, hostesses at the meeting, entered into the spirit of the occasion and served dainty refreshments from a prettily decorated table. As guest of honor, Mrs. Armington was requested to pour. The afternoon was an especially enjoyable one.

Members of the Brooklyn Vegetable Growers' association, their wives and guests to the number of 56, gathered for the annual banquet of the association at the Mortlake Manor in Brooklyn on the evening of Dec. 30. The pretty decorations were in pink, blue and yellow. President DeForest Wells acted as toastmaster and among those who responded to introductions were Prof. A. E. Wilkins, vegetable specialist at Storrs; Walter Simmons, whose talk had to do with the historical features of the manor and of historical facts about the surrounding countryside; Frank L. Davis, Putnam, county agent; Walter G. Bruce, master of Killingly grange; Marshall J. Frink, secretary of the Windham County Agricultural society, and William Valentine, Pomfret, secretary of the State Vegetable Growers' association. Particularly pleasing to the assembled party was the sentiment expressed by Mrs. Miriam Thompson of her delight, as hostess, that the historic rooms of the manor again rang out with the spirit of good will. A venison dinner, prepared by Mrs. Herman Lathrop, was served.

However few passenger trains run over the local branch of the New Haven road in these later days matter little locally, with optional transportation available, but it is of interest that an exceptionally heavy freight business is being done on the route. To this Danielson contributes in a small way. Some concerns here are quite heavy shippers, one of them sending out from seven to eight car loads of freight a day.

A suggestion that likely will have the consideration of the Danielson chamber of commerce when it carries out its plan to mark the roof of some suitable building with the name of the borough is one offered by the National Bureau of Aeronautics. This suggestion is that, in addition to the place name, there should be an arrow pointing in the direction of the local airport. On one side of the shaft of the arrow an M is painted and on the other side of the shaft the figure showing the number of miles from the sign to the airport.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Jodoin of Broad street are entertaining Aime Aubin of Detroit.

Do not forget that all deposits made on or before January 5th in the savings department of the Windham County National bank will draw interest from January 1st.—Adv.

Members of the Westfield club will elect their officers for 1928 when they meet Friday evening. They will also hear a speaker and there is to be a musical program.

Young people here are interested in the skating carnival scheduled to be held on Perry's pond at Putnam Friday and Saturday of this week under the auspices of the Windham County Y. M. C. A.

J. E. Charbonneau is en route to Albany-Decatur, Ala., where he is to be employed at the new plant of the Connecticut Mills company.

Again this morning the temperature was down to 6 above zero. Ice five inches thick was reported on ponds hereabouts today.

Yesterday Wellington E. Bitgood, while hunting with Deputy Game Warden Gurdon E. Withey, shot a 11 1-2 pound red fox. Red fox pelts have a value thi swinter of about $20.

Orpheum theater was crowded tonight when gifts presented by the chamber of commerce were distributed.

It was suggested today that what the town lost in repairing highways after the November flood damage might be largely offset by not having such a heavy snow removal bill in this winter than has been so peculiar to date.

The public schools of Killingly and Brooklyn reopened for the winter term this morning, as also did St. James' parochial school.

A chorus of bells and sirens this morning heralded the resumption of operations in mills here and hereabouts that have been closed since just before Christmas.

Mrs. Melvina Lajoie, 58, a native of Canada and for years resident in Danielson, died today at her home at Connecticut village.

The case of Augustus Ducett, Lewis boulevard, charged with a violation of the motor vehicle laws, to have been heard in the town court this morning, was continued until Thursday.

Persons held at the county jail in Brooklyn to answer to criminal charges will not be present in court until Friday of next week, the session to be at Putnam.

On this bitterly cold morning Ezra Burgess, resident on upper Reynolds street picked a dandelion, in bloom, while passing through one of the fields on his place. It's a record for other dandelion pickers to shoot at, and a good one, for this is January.

DESERTING SAILOR HIT BY TRAIN AT MECHANICSVILLE

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Jan. 3—Thomas L. Smith, a youthful deserter from the United States navy, was struck by a New Haven train today while he and a fellow deserter were making their way toward Putnam. His left hip and leg was almost stripped of flesh and large arteries were cut causing him to lose a large amount of blood.

He is now a patient at the Day Kimball hospital with the chances favoring his recovery but with a long hospital sojourn awaiting him and after that a court martial.

Eight days ago, he and Jackson Hall, both but seventeen years of age, and both from Knoxville, Tenn., decided to leave the naval service after they heard that they were to be transferred to the U. S. Lexington, now in Boston harbor.

Last night they reached East Thompson, they appeared to have had no settled plan of where they were going, but to escape shelter from the zero weather they forced an entrance to the passenger station there, where they passed the night. Under overhauls, they were wearing their naval uniforms which they wished to keep from observation. This morning they started along the railroad track toward Putnam. At Mechanicsville, they were sitting close to the tracks and eating some lunch which one of them had procured and failed to notice an approaching train and Smith was struck. Hall escaped without injury.

The train stopped and Hall and the trainmen helped the injured boy and at the station in Putnam they were met by Dr. Edward F. Perry, who had the boy taken at once to the Day Kimball hospital. The flesh is torn in strips from the leg but the loss of blood from the severed arteries is what puts the name of the young man on the danger list.

Details of the itinerary of the two youths since they left the naval school indicate that they had no fixed objective—they did not want to serve on the Lexington and they evidently failed to understand the seriousness of their desertion.

As nothing is missing from the East Thompson station their version of the break is probably correct, they were desperately in need of shelter from a temperature that the thermometer indicated was at zero or below. John Murray, special officer for the New Haven road and the local police were seeking to find who had forced an entrance into the station at East Thompson and the accident explained it.

Hall, who was not at all hurt except from the ravages from hunger and cold, would ordinarily have to face a burglary charge but it is likely that he will be turned over to the naval authorities and taken back to Virginia to face a court martial on the self proved and serious charge of desertion. Young Smith in addition to the crime against the civil and the military laws has a long and painful sojourn in the hospital to face provided he recovers.

The relatives of both of the boys have been notified of the happening

INSTALLATION OF OFFICERS OF EASTERN STAR CHAPTER

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Jan. 3—The Betty Putnam chapter, Order of the Eastern Star, held its annual installation of officers at the Masonic temple in South Woodstock on Monday night. The following officers were installed: Worthy matron, Mrs. Gertrude M. Ash; worthy patron, George Young; associate matron, Mrs. Winifred French; secretary, Mrs. Ruth Sumner; treasurer, Miss Adriana Hutchins; conductress, Mrs. Bertha M. Briggs; associate conductress, Mrs. Mary M. Hopkins; chaplain, Mrs. Elnora J. Butts; marshal, Mrs. Mabel J. Nelson; organist, Miss Annie Ash; Adah, Mrs. Louise Chils; Ruth, Mrs. Mildred Jewett; Esther, Mrs. Gertrude Bowen; Martha, Mrs. Edna Sharp; Electra, Mrs. Lucy Walker; warden, Mrs. Blanche Walker; sentinel, Clarence Watson.

The officers were installed by Past Matron Mrs. Ada Potter of Danielson, assisted by Past Matron Mrs. Kenworthy, of Danielson. After the installation the past matron, Mrs. Emily Young, received the jewel of a past matron and a large bunch of American Beauty roses from the lodge and other flowers from many of the members. There were a number of members of the order from Danielson and Putnam. After the work of the meeting was completed, refreshments were served in the dining room consisting of fruit salad, rolls, cake and coffee. Betty Putnam chapter, although but three years old, is a very prosperous one.

Mrs. Alice Hayward entertained on Monday afternoon at her home in West Woodstock in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Warren Bingham of West Woodstock, who were celebrating their fiftieth wedding anniversary on that day.

Mr. and Mrs. Bingham were married in Vermont and lived there for a number of years, coming to West Woodstock fifteen years ago. There are no children. A number of guests paid their respect to the couple. Refreshments were served at which tea was poured by Miss Elizabeth Hayward and Mrs. Lennon Sumner, both of Woodstock.

Mrs. Fred W. Prince and little daughter, Florence, have returned from spending the holidays with relatives at Milford, Mass.

Miss Eleanor Murphy, who has been spending her vacation with her mother, Mrs. Catherine Murphy, of Sunnyside, has returned to her school duties at Torrington. Miss Murphy is one of the teachers in the High school at that place.

Miss Ruth White, a teacher in the schools at Brooklyn, N. Y., spent her holiday vacation with her mother, Mrs. Lilly White, on Grove street.

Rev. and Mrs. John E. Duxbury were the guests several days last week Mazwell at Willimantic.

Miss Dora Swift, of New London, has been the guest of her aunt, Mrs. George Holbrook, of South Main street.

Mrs. William H. Myers, of Brooklyn, N. Y., spent the week-end and the New Year with Mr. and Mrs. Pierre H. Myers, of Farrow street.

Miss Mary Vale, of Hartford, formerly a resident of Putnam, was the guest of the Misses Mason, of Pomfret street, over the week-end.

Mrs. Jessie Marsh, of North Woodstock, has gone to Columbus, Ohio, to spend the rest of the winter with her daughter, Mrs. Frank Snow.

MYSTIC

BAPTIST CHURCH REPORTS FOR YEAR OF ACTIVITIES

At the annual church meeting of the Union Baptist church Monday evening the pastor, Rev. L. J. Shepler presided. The meeting opened with singing and prayer by Albert L. Wheeler. The minutes of the last meeting as read by the clerk were approved. The reports were given as follows: Trustees, Ellas F. Wilcox, president and Charles Gildersleeve, clerk. The treasurer, George S. Richmond reported on all money received and income from invested funds, showing all bills paid, with a balance. The benevolences were over $2,000; fellowship fund, L. P. Allyn; Ladies' Aid society, $742 raised, balance of $144. Missionary society, Miss Helen Wilbur's report was read by Harriet Fish. Friendly league, Mrs. Seymour Stoddard, showing $290 raised for missionary work with 55 members; Senior World Wide guild, Winifred Wheeler; Junior World Wide guild, Frances Thorp; Crusaders, Mrs. Eleanor Lucy; Pioneer Boys' club, D. M. Bennett; Christian Endeavor, Betty Wheeler; music, Mrs. R. H. Wilcox; organ custodian, Mrs. Julia B. Coates and Seymour Stoddard. The Women's bible class, Mrs. Abbie Phillips reported $216 raised during the year and used for the church. The pastor's report for 1927 follows: The work of the year has been most gratifying. There has been a spirit of unity and cooperation and loyal support that has brought real joy to all of our hearts. The evangelistic spirit has been manifest; twenty-six have been added to the church by baptism and six by letter. The Sunday services and the prayer meetings have been well attended, giving the pastor a splendid opportunity to reach many hearts with the gospel message. The Bible school is in a most encouraging condition. The work that Rev. O. P. Campbell carried on with us last year has been most helpful and has made a permanent contribution to our church life. The new record system adopted by the Bible school is increasing the efficiency of our work in every way. It is promoting the attendance of the boys and girls at the church services and is securing much better lesson preparation on the part of the pupils. The church finances are in such condition as to move us to thank God. The missionary budget has been met and the current expenses have been paid in full. The pastor has made 125 regular calls and 55 sick calls. He has officiated at 24 funerals, bringing comfort and strength to the bereaved and troubled hearts of the church and the community. The pastor desires to express his deep appreciation to all the officials of the church and leaders of the various organizations for the manner in which they have given their loyal and willing support to the work of the church. Let us look forward to the work of the coming year with faith and joy. Let us all do our best and give our best so that God's richest blessing may rest upon us and that many souls may be led into the kingdom of our Lord Jesus Christ.

At the conclusion of the reports officers and committees were elected, nearly all being re-elections. Mrs. Julia B. Coates church clerk. One change G. H. Griswold was elected auditor in place of the late Frank W. Batty. After the meeting adjourned the Friendly league served sandwiches, doughnuts and coffee.

The American Legion and auxiliary have received cards and letters from disabled veterans in hospitals thanking them for Christmas gifts and the good cheer sent them. The gifts were made possible by the traveling basket Thanksgiving day which supplied the money.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Sheehan of Brooklyn, N. Y., were guests during the holidays of relatives in town.

The meeting of the Methodist Ladies' Aid society is to be held Thursday afternoon at 2.30 in the vestry.

Philip Dolsen has returned to East Orange, N. J., after a visit with relatives here.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert George have returned to Little Rock, Ark., after a visit with the former's parents.

Miss Frances Trevena, R. N., has returned to Boston after spending the holidays with her mother, Mrs. Fanny Trevena.

Twenty-nine new books have been added to the Mystic-Noank library.

Dwight Knox, who is studying forestry has returned to Syracuse, N. Y., to resume his studies.

Friends have received cards from Mrs. L. C. Whitney from St. Petersburg, where she is spending the winter. She spent four summers here.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Jober of Norwich spent the week end with Mrs. John Crandall of Fort Rachel place.

Miss Maud D. Congdon returned to Yonkers, N. Y., Tuesday, to resume her duties as teacher of French in the high school.

Evans Morgan has returned to Princeton University after the holiday recess with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Percy Morgan.

Members of the American Legion motored to Hope Valley Tuesday evening to attend the installation by state officers.

WHAT A. P. AND PUBLICITY DO

Attention has recently been called by the St. Louis Globe-Democrat to "the importance of the Associated Press as a potent and original instrumentality in the collection and dissemination of the news of the world," with particular reference to the accomplishments in connection with the Hickman case. Not only does it refer to the fact that the Associated Press was the first to flash the bulletin news of the arrest to the country at large, the first to follow it up with a complete story of the chase, capture and confession, but it was the first to broadcast telephoto pictures of the scenes of the capture and the developments there. What is even more important is that "the Associated Press and the intelligent piecing together of dim and scattered evidences of the direction of the flight, through cooperation of its workers in many parts of the west, resulted in the actual capture by the officers at Echo."

This is of no little importance because of the very nature of the case and the widespread public feeling, but it is well that attention should be directed to it not only as a demonstration of the alertness of the news agency but as telling evidence of what may be accomplished through publicity when a crime has been committed.

There are frequent instances where authorities are desirous that news of indicated crime should be kept from the newspapers. Occasionally they are quoted to that effect and as long as they are successful in thus smothering news those who are responsible for crime are getting the protection which they want and keeping from others the help they should have to hasten their capture. Had the Los Angeles authorities kept the Parker case under cover, Hickman would probably have succeeded in getting out of the country and would probably have been at large today.

Not only has the Associated Press become, as the St. Louis Globe-Democrat says, "a dependence of the newspaper readers of the land, and constantly devoting its energies toward extending its facilities to widespread news outposts that it may keep faith" but it and newspaper publicity are doing an effective work for public protection through exposing crime.

THIN ICE DANGERS

The season of thin ice usually comes long before this, but whenever it arrives it constitutes a menace which deserves greater attention than it gets. Already there have been several deaths from drowning because boys ventured on ice which was not thick enough to bear their weight and when they got into difficulties they were unable to help themselves and such assistance as was at hand was futile.

There are those attractions to the youthful skaters which are not to be disregarded during the cold days when ice forms. There are next to irresistible desires to try it out, and there is always an eagerness to be the first. Where the water happens to be shallow and breaking through means only a wetting at the most there is a minimum of danger involved, but where it is from several to many feet in depth there is a real menace not only to those who happen to break through but to any and all others who may rush to render aid.

Heroic must be regarded the efforts of a 12 year old boy who dived several times in a quarry hole near Boston in an endeavor to rescue his chum who had gone to the bottom after breaking through the ice. He failed after bringing the body to the surface twice because he was unable to cope with the situation, but in each case of that character it cannot fail to be realized that there would have been no such losses, no such risk of a second drowning, had the boys stayed away or been kept away from that thin ice.

Perhaps it is too much to expect youngsters to exercise the judgment that would insure their protection. They are very apt to allow it to be swayed by their desires, but there is a responsibility resting upon parents which ought not to be overlooked at such a time. This is particularly true in regard to ponds and rivers where the water is deep and where drownings can be expected if skaters break through. There can be no desire to prevent the enjoyment of good skating, but there should be a strong desire to retard it until there is certainty that it can be indulged in with a reasonable degree of safety.

THE BITUMINOUS SITUATION

When the effort was made to bring the coal operators and miners together in the hope that an adjustment of the differences in the soft coal region could be adjusted, it was soon evident that little progress was likely. When most of the operators contended that the situation was being adjusted with the industry, that public requirements as far as demands for coal was concerned were being met and that inasmuch as the big bone of contention, the Jacksonville agreement terms, was thoroughly understood there was no reason for participating in the conference. That meant the beginning of the end. The conference got nowhere.

Now new tactics are being employed. Efforts are underway to have a congressional investigation started for the purpose of bringing out the facts in the bituminous industry, and at the same time appeals are being made for the coal miners who are out of work because of the strike.

It doesn't appear but what those for whom assistance is being asked could have gotten employment had they been willing to work at a scale similar to what other soft coal miners are getting, although it cannot be overlooked that there is a much greater number of miners than the industry really requires. This has been recognized for a long time.

Just what facts there are which can be obtained only through a congressional investigation is not understood. It is an unfortunate position in which the miners find themselves, but it doesn't appear that anyone is more to blame for it than themselves. They elected to be idle and others have been found who were willing to take their places, either in the mines where they were employed or in others. Bituminous coal has been produced in a sufficient quantity to meet public requirements. The consumer has not been subjected to increases, while the soft coal industry is not being cramped because of the self-imposed idleness of those miners now out of work nearly a year.

MUNICIPAL ECONOMY

Several of the Massachusetts cities have been inaugurating their mayors, and interest naturally is displayed in the programmes which they have mapped out for the ensuing year. There are new mayors and old mayors, but it attracts attention when, among other things which are regarded as necessary in the respective cities, there are so many of them calling for the practice of economy. This indicates that there has been a general lapse in this respect which needs to be overcome and it is significant when the mayors set out to lead such efforts.

The mayor of Pittsfield is represented as stressing the need of economy. The mayor of North Adams urges economy. The mayor of Holyoke wants that city run in an economical manner. The mayor of Chicopee calls for a lowering of the tax rate and a curtailment of expenses.

The mayor of Springfield has during the years that he has filled that office been a strong advocate of economy. He has insisted upon it to the extent of arousing considerable criticism, but there now stands out the fact that economy and a low tax rate have put that city into such excellent financial shape that it is believed that there can be some deviation from the saving rule and more money can be spent for needed improvements or put into what the mayor regards as investments for the future.

With the keynote in so many cities much the same it would appear that belated recognition is being given to a condition which ought to have been corrected long ago. What is being sought by Massachusetts cities is only what is needed in other municipalities.

THE S-4 INQUIRY

Quite the same as it has been displayed in connection with the efforts of rescue and other efforts on the S-4, interest will attach itself to the inquiry which is ready to open concerning the disaster involving that submarine. This and any other inquiries which may follow will be expected to go into full details as to what happened, so far as is known, and what followed the sinking of the underwater boat.

The loss of the S-4 with all those aboard needs to be studied from all angles, not only for the purpose of fixing the responsibility, but with the idea of determining whether there have been any unwise steps, any lack of efforts, in connection with the endeavors to remove those alive or to raise the vessel from its present position. Furthermore it is desired to know whether the means of dealing with such a situation are as effective as they can be, whether the equipment is adequate and properly distributed and whether greater efficiency might be used under such circumstances. The question of better safety devices for submarine crews is another matter which must get attention.

There have been all kinds of stories, claims and charges in connection with the loss of the S-4. There have been many who have been inclined to criticize because certain methods were not adopted, because certain offers were not accepted, because something different was not done. Much of that criticism it is believed has been based upon ignorance of the real facts and a lot of irresponsible talk. All these things can and should be cleared up by the investigation getting underway and any others which may follow. Let all the facts be brought to light. They cannot help those on the S-4 but they may be the means of clearing up uncertainties and obtaining better protection in the future.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Bills and New Year's cards make plenty of business for the mail men.

We are eagerly awaiting the first report dealing with the increased privileges of leap year.

These are the days when there is an eagerness to tell how finely the new resolutions are riding.

The man on the corner says: It may surprise you at times, but you can usually tell if the thermometer is out of order.

Yale gets a million more than the $20,000,000 endowment that it sought. The alumni and friends of that institution never fail when it comes to a show down.

Strange things continue to happen—the parents of twins born on the Mauretania while crossing the Atlantic were able to find names for their children without employing the name of the ship.

RICH BUT ROMANTIC

"Come right in," says Miss Nangle of Nangle Sisters, who conduct a beauty shoppe. "You like this booth the best, don't you? Say, you look good today! Not so tired around the eyes. Now you lay right back and relax. Let me take off that. Don't you do one thing."

She chants her litany as she assembles her tools. Quickly and skilfully she works. Quickly and skilfully she entertains her customer.

"I'm most about dead today. Busy yesterday? I'll say. Seems like they let up the last week in the month—get to thinking about their bills or something. Anyhow, the first week in the month's a caution.

"Of course, as I say to Bertha, there is plenty don't have to ever think about the first day of the month or any other day, far as taking care of bills. Money, money, everywhere, as I say to Bertha, and not a worry in this world about where more's coming from in a person's bank balance. Although I and Bertha have no cause to complain.

"I was thinking just like this late yesterday when young Mrs. Skinner was in for a marcel. Not old Mrs. Skinner. That's her mother-in-law. Young Mrs. Skinner. Do you know her? Romantic, is what she is? Very romantic—but just as refined! And got away with it—being romantic. Of course, as I say to Bertha, a person can't afford to take the risk of being romantic, not often, they can't. But young Mrs. Skinner!

"Seems her name was Howe, Marcella Howe, and she was in college here. And she said she was an awful quiet girl, serious, and didn't make friends easy. And plenty of money; can you beat it? Anyhow, she took life serious and she made friends slow, but faithful.

"When the end of her third year was due she informed her parents she was going off to some spiffy summer hotel, table-waiting with her crowd. And not needing the money at all, mind you, but she said it was a social experience, or sociable, or some such. So after a terrible upset with her parents why, she goes.

"So, they get to the hotel, and she finds her friends mixing around gayer than she was used to them, with bellhops, if you please, but this girl she isn't such a good mixer, and so she hasn't nothing to do but read a lot, so she does, and would've gone home, but, like I said to Bertha, a person is often too proud to fly, and so she stays.

"And then, just like in a movie, one day she is sitting by herself, between meals, when the tables are all set and ready for dinner, she is sitting out under a tree, she is thinking she don't want to ever go into an experience like it again, for she feels her friends is neglecting her. So I don't know how, exactly, she meets up with one of the bellhops and they talk. I can't tell you if he's sitting on the other side of the tree or comes walking by or what. The point, is, they converse. And just like she is a poor mixer, so is he. And just like she reads books, why, so does he. And just like she is disappointed at her old college chums not being serious like she was used to them, why so was he. Romantic—both of them.

"And so, as I say to Bertha, why, the little god of love he pierced them with his bullet, and so on, until you know they would be sure to plight their troth. And then, why, the sequel is, he wasn't any more needing to absolutely work his way than she is! Can you beat it? But has come here with his chums to see what it is like and so on, and is disappointed, just like she, until they meet, when all is well, as I said to Bertha. So now the wedding bells have pealed, and college days have passed, and she comes in here for a marcel every once in so often.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

A Lorenzo Dow Relic.

Mr. Editor: This writer was particularly interested in the historic notices given in your Bulletin of today, because whatever doubt may exist in regard to his birthplace, it is certain that the said Lorenzo Dow lived many years in Oxoboxo, near Gardner lake, and that the clock which ticked the hours for him is now in the possession of the writer, ticking the same true time it did over a hundred years ago.

This clock, well certified, was brought by Rev. Dow from the Old Country, and a penciling on the back of the dial place the words—Seid Dow—could be easily read in the year 1836 when it came into my possession. This was likely inscribed by the shopkeeper from whom it was purchased.

After the death of Dow and at the auction of his effects the clock was bought by Christopher Miner of Salem, Conn., and used as a timepiece in the family, descending to his son Dwight Miner of Gardner lake and came to this writer finally from his son, Frank D. Miner, of the same place. A modern American clock having taken its place the old one had been used as a plaything as much of the necessary parts had been lost and these were supplied by the ingenuity of the writer who had early acquaintance with the construction—his father having cleaned many clocks of the kind, which in the Old Country was called "A wag at the Wall," because they had no case and did not require one.

This Dow clock was exhibited at the New London county fair in the year 1887 and received a generous write-up in a New York daily. This clock of the famous eccentric preacher, which can be regulated to correct time, now ticks and strikes off the hours of the new year 1928 with its usual regularity and is good for another century unless overtaken by an accident.

JOHN TROLAND.

Colchester and Hebron Highway.

Mr. Editor: Quoting from Road Conditions in Connecticut, "Route No. 336—Amston-Hebron road is under construction. Open to traffic. Bridge on Amston-Hebron road is under construction. Temporary bridge is in use."

Verily one of the most modern of state activities, the highway department has carried us back nearly 100 years in the temporary use of a section of an old highway and bridge abutments that have not been used since 1835. This is the temporary bridge on Hebron-Colchester road across the stream south of Edward A. Raymond's, which is placed on the abutments of an old bridge on an old highway that was discontinued about 1835. Before that time, if anyone wished to go from Hebron to Colchester on that route, and probably very few did, he drove easterly towards Lebanon several rods east of Raymond's house before he turned abruptly to the right through the old highway which passed the barn in the rear of the home, crossed this old bridge and came into the present road just south of the bridge which is now being rebuilt of concrete. Then he kept on the old "north pond road," past the Gillett place and took another now discontinued road, turning to the right at the old "Crouch place" and passing the old "Gott place," which brought him out at the "Foote place," just over the Colchester and Hebron town line, and then a little south of that took what is now a cross road to the then generally used road from Hebron to Colchester, known as the "old road." This was a roundabout way to get from one of these then important country towns to the other and probably not much used except by those who had then learned "that the longest way round was the shortest way home."

A TRAVELER.

Admitting North American Indians.

Mr. Editor: A harmless looking bill has just been introduced into congress to amend the immigration act of 1924 by excepting from restriction North American Indians of all classes.

This looks like a square deal for the few and scattered tribes that once owned our territory, some of whom have crossed the Canadian border and wish to come back. These people may very well be provided for as a class by themselves. This bill, however, involves and conceals an entirely different problem for it covers North American Indians of all classes. Beyond the Mexican border there are some ten million persons who appear to have a valid claim to be classed as North American Indians. When any of these come over into the United States, and are freed from home conditions, it is found that they multiply as rapidly as did the few white people who came between 1600 and 1750, whose descendants now make some 40 or 50 million of our population. Various people wish to bring these peons over, not for the benefit of our country but to make money out of them. They are now making every effort in congress to retain the right to do so. We have recently excluded as good or better races than they, races having their foundations in a civilization less unlike our own. We have done this because we wish to keep America what it is and because we wish to have a higher standard of living for our whole population. Now merely because certain interests want to make money out of peon labor, we are asked to continue letting these people in. Thereby we would make certain a new race problem, and would slowly and surely undo the benefits already evident that have been coming from restriction. There could be no more lame and impotent conclusion to the work that congress has been doing in controlling immigration from Europe and Asia. In fact, we would equal in wisdom the party who closed the hole for the kitten but left one open for the cat.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Frank B. Kellogg, whose friends in Minnesota are booming for the republican presidential nomination, is a former United States senator from Minnesota, who later became ambassador to Great Britain and who now holds the important post of secretary of state in the Coolidge cabinet. Mr. Kellogg has a reputation as an exceptionally able lawyer and in the days when he was in active practice his professional services were enlisted by the federal government in the prosecution of some of the big anti-trust cases. Nor is he without political sagacity and skill. He has long been prominent in the counsels of the republican party and for eight years he was the Minnesota member of the national commitee. He is a self-made man, in the common parlance, and has had no connection with academic institutions.

Stories That Recall Others

Green Milk?

Little six year old Mary was visiting an uncle in the country and for the first time she learned the source of milk and butter. Every evening she stayed around the barn to watch the milking.

One day as she wandered over the farm she noticed the cows were eating grass. She ran to find her uncle, saying, "Oh, uncle Henry, the cows are eating grass and the milk and butter will be all green."

Former Norwich Leaders

Captain James L. Day.

(From Norwich Bulletin, July 14, 1870).

Captain James L. Day, formerly of this city, died at his residence in New London, yesterday afternoon. He was one of the best known of our old citizens, and was highly esteemed by all. He was for many years an alderman of this city. He was a public-spirited and generous man, and famous for his hospitality.

Brought up to following the sea, he established a line of steamers between Mobile and New Orleans, which was very successful and brought him a large fortune. At the time of the outbreak of the rebellion he was one of the wealthiest of our citizens. The seizure of his steamers by the rebel government, however, caused him a heavy pecuniary loss, and he disposed of his fine estate in this city and removed to New York, where he has resided till recently. He has suffered intensely during a long illness, to which his vigorous constitution has finally yielded.

Editor's Note: It was from Captain Day that John F. Slater bought, in 1861, the property on Broadway on which he lived till his death in 1884. The price Captain Day received was $50,000.

IN THE DAYS NEWS

AGRA.

"Agra, central Indian city included in a recent list of the world's twenty most beautiful communities, and famous as site of the Taj Mahal, is a monument in stone to the Magul empire of the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic society. "While Tudors and Stuarts were governing England, and adventurers of many nations were seeking wealth or freedom in America, descendants of Tamerlane were building an empire in India which for display and magnificence has never been equalled. Agra, capital of the Great Mogul, was adorned with palaces and mosques which rank today among the wonders of the earth.

"The oriental world then bowed before an emperor whose throne, supported by peacocks studded with jewels, cost five million dollars. His chess board was a courtyard paved in black and white marble squares, and for chessmen he had slave girls in colored costumes, their movements directed by his voice. Ninety-nine wives were in his harem, a hundred being considered unlucky, and princes from beyond the seas crowded his audience chamber under a ceiling of solid gold. Such was Shah Jehan, during whose reign the Mogul Empire reached its golden age, and who built the Taj Mahal as a tomb for his favorite wife, Arjmand Banu, 'the exalted of the palace.'

"Shah Jehan mounted the throne of India by wading through the blood of his male relatives, having killed them all to nip revolution in the bud. He ruled with incredible cruelty and splendor, and died at 74, the prisoner of his usurping son whose mother was the same Arjmand Banu, in whose honor he had built the Taj Mahal. At her death Shah Jehan's hair had turned white, and it was her son who imprisoned his aging father in the fort at Agra and ruled instead.

"The interior of this old red sandstone fort, which is still standing, is filled with the palaces of Mogul emperors, buildings of supreme beauty. In one of them is shown the Jasmine tower which sheltered Shah Jehan's 'exalted of the palace' during her life time. Here the emperor had spent many hours with his favorite wife and its platform commands a superb view of her tomb, the Taj Mahal.

"At his own request the aged emperor was brought to die in this favorite haunt of his youth, in sight of the building which has since become his own resting place as well as that of his wife.

"This world-renowned white marble building is set in a beautifully kept garden between two symmetrically placed red sandstone mosques, the whole being kept in perfect repair by the government. Hither, during India's more pleasant fall and winter months, flock thousands of tourists from Europe and America as well as from neighboring oriental countries.

"Palaces of the Mogul emperors, the white marble Pearl Mosque, and the near-by tomb of Akbar share with the Taj Mahal the glories of Mohammedan architecture of the past. In a sense Delhi and Agra are to Mohammedan India what Benares is to the Hindu, sacred cities of ancient times. Certainly Agra embodies what is most beautiful in Moslem taste, though several Italian draftsmen are said to have been employed in its plans.

"The modern city of Agra is a railway and distributing center of importance in north central India and is capital of the British governed United Provinces, which include the districts of Agra and Oudh. It lies on the banks of the river Jumna, one of the major tributaries of the Ganges. Chief among its industries is export of red sandstone, in which the district abounds, and of which the city itself is constructed. Palaces of modern India, however, though built of the same material, in their elaborate magnificence compare but poorly with the chaste designs of the ancient Agra. Harmonious lines and delicate balance distinguish the buildings of the Great Moguls, beside whose historic walls officials and tourists now play golf and drink tea."

THE VERY CHRONIC APPENDIX.

By W. A. Newman Dorland, M. D., Chicago—Member Gorgas Memorial.

Appendicitis, which 25 years ago was frequently overlooked or unrecognized even by the medical profession, is now a familiar clinical picture to the laity as well as to the doctor. The pain localized in the right lower quadrant of the abdomen, the elevation of temperature, coated tongue, nausea and vomiting, and rigidity of the abdominal wall on the affected side comprise a group of symptoms that cannot readily be mistaken for anything else.

There is a phase of the disease, and with which the public is almost and with which the public is almost totally unacquainted. It is the very chronic variety of appendicitis known clinically as the stenosing or contracting variety. This form very rarely, if ever, ends in an acute attack with abscess formation. It is also quite usual for the symptoms of stenosing appendicitis to be referred to some more or less remote portion of the abdomen, so that the attention of both patient and doctor will be directed away from that organ. Frequently it is the upper abdomen which seems to be the seat of the trouble.

These cases are often mistaken for incipient or chronic gastric or duodenal ulcer, for neuralgia of the stomach, for gall-bladder inflammation, or for a chronic catarrh of the large bowel or colon. The patient knows he is not well. He has indigestion more or less marked. His tongue is dry, furrowed, and heavily coated. He suffers from occasional vague pains in the median end of the stomach. His bowels are more or less constipated, and he is the victim of varying degrees of nervous prostration. He is depressed, both physically and mentally, and is regarded frequently as a neurasthenic or hypochondriac. His hands are cold and clammy and his blood-pressure is apt to be low.

The usual clinical history of these cases is one covering months or years without relief to the vague, though distressing, symptoms. The patient will suffer indispositions until scientific advice is sought and a diagnosis made and proper treatment instituted.

An x-ray examination after a test-meal has been given will generally reveal the chronic trouble in the appendix. Removal of the organ will do much to restore the patient to a normal state of health.

WOMEN APPROACHING MIDDLE AGE

MRS. HARVEY TUCKER
R. R. 9, SHELBYVILLE, IND.

"Grow old along with me,
The best is yet to be"

With her children grown up, the middle-aged woman finds time to do the things she never had time to do before—read the new books, see the new plays, enjoy her grandchildren, take an active part in church and civic affairs. Far from being pushed aside by the younger set, she finds a full, rich life of her own. That is, if her health is good.

Thousands of women of middle age, say they owe their vigor and health to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Those who have learned through their own experience the merit of this dependable medicine are enthusiastic in recommending it to their friends and neighbors.

"I had been in bad condition for three months. I could not do my work. One day I read what your medicine had done and just had a feeling that it would help me, so I went and got a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I had only taken half a bottle when I got up and started to do my work. It gave me an appetite, and helped me wonderfully. I can not praise this medicine highly enough. I surely will advise all women and girls to take it, and they don't have to use rouge to look healthy. My two daughters are taking it now and one is also using the Sanative Wash. I am willing to have you use this testimonial and I will answer letters from women asking about the medicine."—Mrs. Harvey Tucker, R. R. No. 9, Shelbyville, Indiana.

"I read about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in the little books you give away and began to take the medicine. After the first few bottles I began to feel better and could eat better and had fewer headaches. I feel like a different person. At anytime that I don't feel good I take the Vegetable Compound again, as I always keep a bottle on hand. You may use this letter for every word is true. I will answer any letters sent to me."—Mrs. Jennie Bollerman, 611-11th St., Union City, N. J.

What Shadow's Nose Discovered.

Who trusts his nose and believes his eyes
Is never easy to surprise.
—Shadow the Weasel.

Shadow the Weasel is well acquainted with the old stone wall on one side of the Old Orchard. Every once in so often he visits it. It is just the kind of a place he likes. Of course, it is full of the loveliest kind of places for such a slim fellow as Shadow to dodge in and out of. It is, of course, equally good for certain other little people, and it is because of these other little people that Shadow likes it so well.

That Striped Chipmunk had his home somewhere under the old stonewall was an open secret which all the little people of the Green Forest and the Green Meadows knew. Shadow had known it for a long time. But knowing it was there and finding it were two different matters. Shadow had hunted for Striped Chipmunk's home before and he knew just what kind of a task finding it would probably be. So until today he had put off the hunt. Now he was there, he made a business of what he had come for.

"Of course," thought Shadow, "the entrance to Striped Chipmunk's home is in the ground somewhere under this old stonewall. Of course, he wouldn't make that entrance right out in the open. My guess is that it is under the edge of some big stone. If he were out and about I would soon find it by following his scent. Now that he's asleep I'll have to depend on my eyes more than my nose. The thing to do is to look thoroughly."

Did you ever see a hunting dog, particularly a bird dog, doing what is called quartering? He enters a field to look for Bob White. He runs fast, zigzagging back and forth until every bit of that field has been covered. If Bob White is in the field he is certain to be found. In just this same way Shadow the Weasel worked along the old stonewall. He would pop out of one side, disappear between the stones and pop out on the other side. Back and forth from side to side he worked. Two or three times he stopped and very, very thoroughly went over the ground with his nose.

"There's a faint smell of Chipmunk," muttered he.

"There's a very faint smell of Chipmunk," muttered he. "Yes, sir, and unless my nose deceives me—and I have never known it to do that—there's a little smell of Wood Mouse mixed up with that smell of Chipmunk. And, as I live, I smell rabbit! Goodness, yes! I smell rabbit! It must be that Peter Rabbit has been fooling around over here. He ought to stay at home where he belongs. Now I can't smell anything but rabbit!"

No, Shadow moves very quickly and it wasn't long before he was half way down the old stonewall. He was getting near to the entrance to the home of Striped Chipmunk. Of course, he didn't know it. My, wouldn't Striped Chipmunk have been worried if he had known! and wouldn't Whitefoot the Mouse have been worried if he had known! But neither knew and so there was no worrying whatever. So far Shadow's nose had discovered that at least three people, any one of whom he would like to have caught, had been in the old stonewall within a few days. Presently his nose picked up another scent.

"Aha!" said he. "Chatterer the Red Squirrel has been here. I think this old stonewall will be a good place for me to stay a while. He climbed out to the top of the wall for another look around. There he discovered the scent of Happy Jack the Gray Squirrel, who had run along that wall only a short time before. Shadow licked his lips hungrily.

"Yes," said he. "I think I'll stay here a while. Rabbit, squirrels, mice! What more could a Weasel desire?"

Lesson No. 11

Question: How does emulsified cod-liver oil increase the efficiency of milk as a protection against rickets?

Answer: Milk is deficient in rickets-preventing vitamin. A little emulsified cod-liver oil added to every can of milk makes it a more perfect vitamin-food. Give it!

After their honeymoon trip which will include Boston, Providence and Maine, they will reside in a newly furnished home in Providence where the groom is employed as an advertising salesman. The bride has been employed as a telephone operator in New York city.

CORONER FINDS COLCHESTER MAN CRIMINALLY RESPONSIBLE

Leslie W. Hill of Colchester is held criminally responsible by Coroner Lowndes A. Smith for the death of Muriel Clark of East Hampton killed in an automobile collision on December 1. Hill's car ran into one driven by Oscar Soderslein at a junction of four roads in East Hampton. The coroner said that he could not see why Soderslein did not see Hill's car approaching except that possibly the two persons on the seat with him might have momentarily obstructed his view. He did not hold Soderslein in any way responsible, however. As for Hill, the coroner found that he drove at excessive speed in coming into the intersection of roads. His machine turned over after striking the other one. Miss Clark was on the way to a funeral.

The coroner recommended that the selectmen of East Hampton confer with the state highway commissioner as to means of safeguarding the junction.

FUNERALS.

Mrs. Arthur J. Dawley

The funeral of Mrs. Arthur J. Dawley was held Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock at her home, No. 67 Broad street and the service was conducted by Rev. Alexander H. CRIMINAL COURT TERM TO HAVE SEVERAL CASES FOR JURY TRIALS

Ten or eleven cases in which the accused either already have pleaded "not guilty" or will so plead and go to trial were indicated at the opening day of the January term of the criminal superior court here Tuesday with Judge Arthur F. Ells presiding. The jury has been summoned in for this (Wednesday) morning and the first of the jury cases will go to trial then. After the jury cases are disposed of there are probably to be one or two trials before the court.

Those who pleaded "not guilty" Tuesday and elected to be tried by jury were the following: Reald Bouchard and Joseph Troland, violation of liquor law in Norwich; Peter Gaganis and Mrs. Athena Angelopoulos, adultery in Norwich; Samuel Brogno of Norwich, six counts, keeping house of ill fame in North Stonington, frequenting the same, and receiving the earnings of Stella White and Dorothy Carney through prostitution; Stella White and Dorothy Carney, both of Manchester, N. H., frequenting house of ill-fame.

On the charge of manslaughter because of the death of Fred S. Campbell in an automobile accident, Jerome Gareaux of Providence pleaded not guilty and elected to be tried by the court. His machine struck Campbell on a Jewett City street on Sept. 4. Edward McClue of New London was another to elect for court trial when he pleaded not guilty to the charge of indecent assault on Dorothy A. Miller in New London on Dec. 1.

When the court session opened at 10 o'clock Tuesday morning, prayer was offered by Rev. E. C. Dunbar before the business of the court was taken up. There were 18 prisoners in the pen; 12 of whom had been brought from the New London jail and the others from the Norwich jail. State Attorney Athur M. Brown prosecuted the cases and many of the accused were represented by Public Defender Charles L. Stewart. All the room in the spectators' seats in the court room was taken up and there were a number standing during the session. When court adjourned for the day, all but a few of the new cases on the docket had been taken up.

State Prison Sentences.

State prison sentences were given in the following after pleas of "guilty" had been entered:

Andrew Austin, Negro, of this city, was sentenced to 1 to 2 years in state prison on an arson charge. Austin, according to State Attorney Arthur M. Brown, set fire to a building at 14 John street, with revenge in his mind, attempting to wipe out a family against which he held a grievance. The building was owned by the Gager-Crawford Co. Public Defender Stewart represented the accused.

James Lupinacci, 20, of this city, was given from one to two years in state prison when he pleaded guilty of accepting money from the proceeds of the earnings of a female from prostitution. The place where the crime was committed was in North Stonington and the woman was Veronica Zelinski who came from New Haven. She was arrested here on Nov. 15.

A similar charge against Fiore Longolueco, of Norwich, was changed to one of frequenting a house of ill fame, and he was given a fine of $100 and costs, State Attorney Brown said that he was satisfied that Longolueco had not accepted any money from the women.

Joseph Serzan, 18, and Herbert Bunnell, 18, of New London, both pleaded guilty to stealing jewelry on Nov. 2, last, valued at $200 from the residence of Henry Jensen in New London. These accused also stole a Buick car from the show room of Julian Williams, Buick dealer, and committed other burglaries in this city, Chesterfield, Baltic and New London. The police are now looking for a man named Donovan, who is described as the "master-mind." Serzan was given one to three years in state prison, while Bunnell was sentenced to the reformatory, although his counsel, Attorney Clayton B. Smith, asked that he be given a jail sentence.

Harry Whitford, 20, of Mystic, was given from two to four years in state prison when he pleaded guilty to assault with intent to commit rape. Whitford, it was alleged hit Pelagia Kornitsky with a rock in Mystic and attempted to assault her. The alleged act was committed on Sept. 12.

George J. Findlay, of New London, agent there for the Maytag washing machine, was given not less than one year nor more than two years in the state prison when he pleaded guilty to a charge of obtaining money under false pretenses.

According to State Atty. Arthur M. Brown, Findlay, who resides in Pequot avenue, swindled on a large scale, having had in his possession 300 fictitious contracts upon which he obtained $120.75 on each after paying $20 on each to the General Financing Corp.

Atty. Morris Lubchansky, counsel for Findlay, informed the court his client had always been a man who had done much for charity; that several of his employes had blackmailed him, one in particular having gotten in trouble with a woman and forced Findlay to give him $1,000. Findlay has a wife and two children. Since his arrest on July 19, the Maytag company has taken him back and he has since been in business in New London representing the concern. His case was continued from the last term of the criminal court, due to the illness at the time of his wife.

Given Jail Sentences

Joseph Davanzo, of New London, 37 years of age, was given a year in jail without costs when he pleaded guilty to statutory burglary on December 4, when he was alleged to have burglarized a tobacco store at 107 Main street, operated by his former employer, Eugene Conway.

William J. Connor, of Mystic, was given a year in jail when he pleaded guilty to indecent assault upon a Groton girl on September 20. The sentence carried no costs with it.

Jesse Bryant, Negro, of New London, who ran amuck with a gun and came near ending the life of Patrolman George McCaskey, was given one year in jail without costs, when the accused pleaded guilty to aggravated assault.

Bryant, said to have been worried by the action of his wife, who is suing him for divorce, ran wild with a revolver and after putting a bullet through the trouser leg of one person started to shoot Policeman McCaskey who grabbed the gun and sustained a cut in his finger when the hammer came down upon it, thus causing the revolver not to explode.

Carl Brown, Negro, of Groton, termed by State Attorney Arthur M. Brown a "ne'er-do-well" was given a jail sentence of nine months without costs, while Tony Mazzelli, also of Groton was given a fine of $100 and costs and six months suspended jail sentence, when they pleaded guilty to theft of poultry from the chicken coop of L. Hempstead on October 13.

State Attorney Brown said that Brown sold the chickens to Mazzelli.

William B. Scaplan of Waterford was given a year in jail without costs when he pleaded guilty to a charge of statutory burglary in taking carpenters' tools from an unoccupied house in Waterford owned by Louise H. Chisholm on Nov. 3.

According to State Attorney Arthur M. Brown, Scaplon gets drunk and is a kleptomaniac.

Samuel Rogers of Preston was given a six months jail sentence without costs on the charge of breach of the peace.

Payroll Padding Case

Felix Kalko of Jewett City charged with obtaining money under false pretenses through a payroll padding scheme at the Ashland Cotton company, was fined $100 and costs with a one year jail sentence suspended. Emil Brenek, 19, involved in the same case was fined $25 and costs and Joseph Gilbert who was also involved was given the same penalty as Brenek. Ernest Beaudoin, Alfred Chaput and Dorios Robillard, are three others in the case, who are expected to be on hand to plead today (Wednesday).

Joseph Amarel of New London, who was alleged to have assaulted Miss Alice Y. Stillman, a New London nurse, with intent to commit rape, had his case nolled. State Attorney Brown said he was satisfied Amarel was not the man in the case.

Charles Goyette, a Meriden young man, was before the court on two counts alleging operation of an automobile without consent of the owner and larceny. He pleaded guilty. He was accused of operating the Chevrolet coach of Edward Novick on Oct. 26 and the larceny of three tires, three inner tubes and a rim, of a total value of $45.50. Judge Ells fined Goyette $50 and costs in each count and sentenced him to the reformatory on the second count, suspending the sentence and putting him on probation for a year.

Marion Montelbano, 17, and Nicholas Frangiman, 18, two youths from Brooklyn, N. Y., who were accused of the theft of a Buick roadster belonging to Anthony Zurella in New London on Nov. 17, were each sentenced to the reformatory under suspended sentences. It was explained to the court that the two young men took the machine to get back home after they had come to Montelbano's father's farm in Montville to do some hunting and were without anything to eat on the one day they spent at the farm.

William Evans, 24, of Occum, had his case nolled on recommendation of State Attorney Brown who said Evans wanted to marry the girl who he was accused of bringing here from Poughkeepsie, N. Y., and her parents also wanted him to marry her, which would be the best solution of the case.

Will be Put to Plea

Two others who will be put to plea today (Wednesday), according to State Attorney Brown are John Filburn Jr., of this city on the charge of operating an automobile under the influence of liquor and Frederick J. Grandchamp of Montville who has a statutory manslaughter charge against him. He was driving the machine which collided on Mohegan hill with a machine driven by William Towart of New York, who was killed in the collision, and a young man named Laflamme lost the sight of both eyes.

It is expected that the Filburn case will be tried at this session of court but the Grandchamp case will go over to the May term as a witness in the case is still in the hospital.

CURRENT EVENTS TALK BEFORE WOMAN'S CLUB

Mrs. Marion Gaylord Atwell, of New York city, continued on Tuesday evening in the Wauregan hotel ballroom her interesting series of talks on current events before the Norwich Woman's City club. She gave a New Year's character to her talk by stating at the outset that the world as a whole is peaceful and comparatively happy at the beginning of this year and she went on to speak of the better feeling between Mexico and the United States due in great measure to Ambassador Morrow, Will Rogers, Colonel Lindbergh and the recent decision of the Mexican supreme court. From mention of the present situation in Nicaragua, she went on to speak of the sixth Pan-American congress at Havana to which the United States is sending one of the strongest delegations which has ever represented this country at such a conference, including President Coolidge, Secretary Hughes, Secretary Kellogg, and Ambassador Morrow, and she predicted this was to be a critical conference at which there may be an effort on the part of the Latin-American countries to have a revised interpretation placed upon the Monroe doctrine.

Speaking of Europe, Mrs. Atwell said that the happiest nation there now is Germany and the most unhappy is England, because it lacks the leadership to solve its difficult problems. Conditions in France have greatly improved during the year under the happy combination made by the leadership of Poincare and Briand.

Mrs. Atwell touched upon the Gilbert report on Germany, referring to his advice that the time had come to have reparations fixed and Germany relieved from the necessity of paying through a transfer agent, and she said that the financial leaders of the world realize that it is time that a general financial conference were held on the international situation.

Speaking of President Coolidge's recent message to congress, Mrs. Atwell said it reminded her somewhat of a Roosevelt message in the way it spoke out and failed to please some sections of the country, viz; the farmers on the McNary-Haugen bill, the southerners in the matter of lynchings, and the people in the Mississippi flood region. Mrs. Atwell expressed her fervid wish that the nations of the world should outlaw the submarine and declared this was a poor time to come forward with a big navy programme.

She spoke of what the senate and congress had done in their session before the holidays and said the significant thing was the way congress had ignored advice of the president and the secretary of the treasury, regarding the tax reduction bill. She said that the congressional investigation of the Hearst charges, which she called absurd, should go to the fullest extent in justice to Mexico, to the United States and to all reputable newspapers.

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH ANNUAL AND ROLL CALL

Preceeded by a chicken supper, the annual meeting of the First Baptist church, was held Tuesday evening at the church with an attendance of about 100. The supper was served at 6:30 o'clock and the menu was as follows: Fricasseed chicken on biscuits, mashed potatoes, peas, creamed sauce, rolls, cake and coffee.

Following the supper the annual meeting was called to order by Rev. E. C. Dunbar, pastor of the church. The various reports of church officers and committees were received and accepted. The election of officers for the ensuing year resulted as follows:

Church clerk, Miss Mazie Stamm; church treasurer, Miss Rose Thornes; treasurer of the benevolent fund, Miss Gladys Thornes; trustees, Deacon Charles R. Cross, E. LaRue Bliven and Frank D. Davis. Charles R. Cross was re-elected a deacon for three years and Miss Agnes Lathrop a deaconess for three years. The executive council comprises the pastor, deacons, church officers, heads of church organizations and the following church members: Mrs. Lena Perkins, Mrs. Charles Stamm, Mrs. Herbert Willey, Mrs. Lena Leach, Mrs. Bessie Browning, Mrs. Martin Farrell, Mrs. L. A. Wheeler, Mrs. Arthur Rogers, Miss Althea Church, Mrs. Charles R. Cross, Mrs. Winfred Blackledge, Thomas Farrell, Earle W. Stamm, George Rathbun, George Amburn, and Walter R. Cowan.

At the roll call 118 members responded personally or by letter. Preceeding the roll call there were two finely rendered vocal solos by Frederick T. Maples. The meeting adopted resolutions thanking the Norwich Bulletin and the Norwich Evening Record for news space covering church activities the past year. Two gifts were received during the evening, a black walnut gavel presented by Frank Davis and a communion table presented by Mrs. James E. Olcott, in memory of her husband.

The committee in charge of the supper comprised Mrs. Minnie Amburn, Mrs. Lena Perkins, Mrs. Mary Woodworth, Mrs. Arthur Rogers, Mrs. Frank L. Tuttle, Mrs. Eva Wilson, Mrs. Herbert Willey and Mrs. John J. Parsons. The waitresses were in charge of Mrs. L. A. Wheeler and were as follows:

Misses Edna Jones, Rose Thornes, Gladys Thornes, Myrtle Greiner, Fannie Meier, Lillian Sandberg, Althea Church, Ellen Neilson, Celeste Copeland, Olive Rathbun, Thelma Marsh, Doris Pulsifer, Emily Sandberg and Mrs. William Harvey.

SETTLEMENT IN SUIT BROUGHT FOR $10,000

A reported settlement for $500 has resulted in the withdrawal from the superior court of the $10,000 suit of Mattie Fargo of Lebanon, administratrix of the estate of the late John Fatt of Bozrah, against the Groton & Stonington Traction Co., and T. K. Raymond of Groton.

On May 8, 1926, John Fatt, who was employed by T. K. Raymond, was riding on a truck owned by Raymond and operated by Lawrence Thompson of Groton, along the highway leading from Groton to Stonington. While on the tracks near Prentiss Ledge, the truck was struck by a trolley car owned by the Groton and Stonington Traction Co., whereby Fatt was thrown from his seat to the ground and the trolley car ran over him and killed him.

Suit was brought against the trolley company and the employer of Fatt, on the grounds that joint negligence existed on the part of both.

REGISTRARS OF VOTERS QUALIFY; NAME ASSISTANTS

Tyler D. Guy and Cornelius J. Downes qualified Tuesday as registrars of voters for their new term which is for two years from Jan. 1, and also announced their appointments of assistant registrars in the different districts of the town as follows:

By Mr. Guy (republican), second district, Frank I. Royce; third, Louis H. Geer; fourth, Albert J. Bailey; fifth George N. Beardow; sixth, Howard A. Spalding; by Mr. Downes (democrat), second, Thaddeus Leahy; third, William J. Malone; fourth, Patrick T. Connell; fifth, Timothy Sullivan, sixth, Henry Gebrath.

Both Mr. Guy and Mr. Downes are seasoned veterans in the positions, the former having been first elected in 1896 and the latter in 1900 and having done the work with such satisfaction to the electorate that they have been elected continuously since then.

DIVORCE AND ALIMONY TO COLCHESTER WOMAN

In the superior court here Tuesday Judge C. L. Avery granted a divorce to Rebecca Glass of Colchester on her cross-complaint in the suit brought by her husband, Max Glass, also of Colchester, to whom she was married Jan. 30, 1912. The divorce was granted on the grounds of intolerable cruelty and the wife was granted alimony of $2 450 and change of name to Lena Lindy.

The husband also alleged intolerable cruelty in his suit, but there was no testimony offered on his behalf.

DEATH IN SOUTHBRIDGE OF EDWARD T. TUCKER

(Special to The Bulletin)

SOUTHBRIDGE, Mass., Jan. 3—Edward T. Tucker, a native of Putnam, Conn., and a resident here for the past 12 years, died last night at his home, 40 Elm street. He was 60 years old. Born in Putnam, Mr. Tucker was a son of Elyndon and Caroline (Torry) Tucker. He is survived by his wife, A. Maud Tucker. He was a member of Israel lodge, I. O. O. F., of Putnam. Burial will be in Putnam.

OBITUARY.

William F. Woodward.

William F. Woodward, 87, formerly of this city, died Monday night about 7.15 o'clock in the Odd Fellows' home at Fairview, Groton. His death was due to general debility accompanying old age. He had been a bedridden invalid several years and his health began to decline sharply about six months ago.

Mr. Woodward had been a resident of the home longest among those quartered there now. He was admitted Aug. 11, 1903. He was a member of Shetucket lodge, No. 27, of Norwich.

He was born in this city Aug. 16, 1840, and had been a lifelong resident here up to the time of his removal to the Odd Fellows home. In his last employment he was engaged in a clerical capacity in the Norwich office of the New York & Norwich Propeller Co., a steamship line running boats between this city and New York.

Mrs. Nathaniel Manning.

Harriet Pember Manning, widow of Nathaniel Manning, died at her home in Lebanon after noon Tuesday. She was one of the most highly respected older residents of the town. Mrs. Manning was born in Franklin, Jan. 16, 1852, a daughter of Adin and Sophie Gager Pember. She is survived by four sons, Myron Manning of Lee, Mass., Ray and Ernest Manning of Lebanon and Reuben Manning of Franklin; one daughter, Mrs. Willis Fuller of Litchfield, this state; two brothers, Andrew Pember of Norwich Town and Jacob Pember of Portland, Ore.; one sister, Augusta Pember of Lebanon; 21 grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren; also several nephews and nieces. Her husband died in 1919.

RICKARD PLANS ACTIVE FISTIC PROGRESS FOR SPRING AND SUMMER

NEW YORK, Jan. 3.—(AP)—Rapid shifting of pugilistic fortunes brought two champions back into the Metropolitan fistic headlines today, sent one contender scurrying west in search of a heavyweight title fray and set the stage for clearing all doubt as to who should sport the world featherweight crown.

Simultaneous with the matching of Tony Canzoneri, New York State Athletic commission entrant in the featherweight sweepstakes, and Benny Bass, color-bearer of the National Boxing association, for a 15-round match at Madison Square Garden on January 27 to settle once and for all the question of featherweight supremacy, Tex Rickard announced "big doings" in the welterweight division. Gene Tunney neared New York from Miami, and Jack Delaneke Hudkins, the Nebraska wildcat back into the picture as the probable opponent for Joe Dundee, ruler of the class, in a titular match scheduled for next March in the Garden. Hudkins, recently reinstated by the New York commission after a long suspension must first defeat Lew Tendler, Philadelphia southpaw, Jan. 20, and Soldier Sammy Baker, army sharpshooter sometime in February, to gain the "big shot."

Tunney came north from his winter vacation to sit in at the "all-champion" banquet to be staged by Rickard's "800 Millionaires" club tomorrow night. While no other purpose was announced it appeared probable that Gene and Tex, rather distant friends since Tunney's charge that the promoter was Jack Dempsey's real manager and had "doctored" motion pictures of the fall heavyweight spectacle in Chicago, could bury the hatchet, along with knives and forks at the festive board. Rickard is anxious to discuss with Tunney the champion's desire for two fights next summer where only one had been planned.

Joe Jacobs, who recently announced the purchase of Delaney's contract from Pete Reilly for $50,000, left New York after failing to convince Rickard that the Bridgeport warrior's proper place now is in the thick of the current heavyweight elimination tournament. The promoter prefers to test Delaney further before guaranteeing him a match with the winner of the Jack Sharkey-Tom Heeney battle Jan. 12. Jacobs seeks to attach Delaney's name to the other half of the contract Jim Mullins, Chicago promoter, is rumored to have with Tunney for a title fight in the midwest next fall.

The day's fistic developments also included the restoration of Bud Taylor, Terre Haute scrapper, to good standing in New York. This was an automatic result of Taylor's fight with Tony Canzoneri here last week. He had been under ban until fulfilling a long-standing contract to fight the New York Italian.

LOS ANGELES OPEN GOLF TOURNEY STARTS TODAY

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 3.—(AP)— The greatest field of professional and amateur golfers ever assembled here, more than 300 from all parts of the country, polished up their games today for tomorrow's qualifying rounds of the $10,000 Los Angeles open. The 72 hole tourney starts Friday with 18 holes. The second 18 will be played Saturday and a 36 hole final Sunday.

Qualifying rounds will be played over six Los Angeles courses due to the extensive list of entries, while the tournament will be held at the Wilshire Country club.

Headed by Tommy Armour, Washington, National open champion, some thirty players who finished low in the last National open or the 1927 Los Angeles open, will not be required to qualify. They include:

"Wee" Bobby Cruickshank of the Progress Country club, New York city, won the event last year while "Lighthorse" Harry Cooper clubbed his way to victory in the 1925 play.

GLASER IS REINSTATED BY ILLINOIS COMMISSION

CHICAGO, Jan. 3.—(AP)—The Illinois state athletic commission today reinstated Joe Glaser of Chicago, manager of Eddie Shea and Walcott Langford, after he had apologized for his remarks made at the time Babe Ruth, Louisville featherweight, was awarded a decision over Shea, last month.

Bill Tate and Cell Harris, Negro heavyweights, were suspended indefinitely and their licenses revoked, and they were fined 50 per cent of their purses for stalling and refusing to become warlike in their match here last Friday night.

The three ten round bouts, with Lope Tenerio, Filipino lightweight, meeting Frankie Schaefer of Chicago in the wind-up, scheduled for the Coliseum tonight, were postponed by Promoter Mullen until Jan. 20. The prevailing cold weather was the chief reason although Mullen admitted the customers were displaying no great interest in the bouts.

NO U. S. HOCKEY TEAM IN THE OLYMPICS

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Jan. 3.—(AP)—America, in all probability, will not be represented by a hockey team in the Olympic competition this year.

William S. Haddock, of Pittsburgh, chairman of the A. A. U. hockey committee, said tonight that he had about abandoned hope of getting a team together to represent this country in the puck-chasing Olympic games.

Haddock said he had but one hope—Eveleth, Minnesota. He added that he had wired hockey enthusiasts at Eveleth asking if they could get a team together and to date had received no reply.

Haddock met many setbacks in his efforts to get a club. He scoured the country for eligible players, and some teams after accepting, later recalled the acceptance, saying it would not be possible for the players to make the trip. He negotiated with clubs in Boston, New York and some western cities without success, and he said that the reply from Eveleth would decide whether America would be represented in the Olympic hockey competition.

PREHN ASSUMES DUTIES AS ILLINOIS BOXING HEAD

CHICAGO, Jan. 3.—(AP)—Boxing in Illinois began the new year today under the administration of a college athlete-coach, one of the youngest heads of a state boxing commission in the country, Paul Prehn, of the university of Illinois.

He was elected chairman of the Illinois state athletic commission today to succeed John C. Righelmer. Prehn is the only surviving member of the commission of three appointed by Governor Small when the new boxing law became effective in July, 1926.

For many years he has been instructor of boxing and wrestling at Illinois, his alma mater, and is just past his 35th birthday. A slightly cauliflowered ear is his diploma in the school of the ring.

Otherwise he has the appearance of the typical college man just coming into business success. Before taking up his duties as coach at Illinois, Prehn served during the war as a member of the staff of athletic instructors at American army camps.

Chairman Prehn pledged himself to strictly enforce the rules and regulations of the commission, to keep the game clean, and to make it tough for managers and boxers inclined to crookedness.

Prehn said he would make recommendations to the next legislature for some changes in the boxing law, particularly with reference to the state tax. He advocates reduction of the state's percentage from ten to five per cent, and the placing of amateur matches, with which Chicago is now flooded, under control of the commission.

Chairman Prehn and Samuel P. Luzzo, who was appointed just a few months ago, are seeking a high type of men either in professional or social life in Chicago, to recommend to Gov. Small for the vacancy as third member of the commission.

Prehn began his war work with Mike Gibbons, St. Paul middleweight, at Camp Dodge, Iowa, as boxing and bayonet instructor. Later he went overseas as American representative in the interallied games and there won the middleweight wrestling title for this country.

Eight years ago he was appointed instructor in boxing and wrestling at the University of Illinois, and his wrestling teams have won the big ten title six times in those eight years. Boxing is not an inter-university competitive sport in the Western Conference But Prehn hopes it will be some day.

Prehn is likewise vice president of the National Boxing association, likely to succeed to the presidency at the next election, becoming head of the sport in 28 states.

BOGASH OUTPOINTS GANS IN FEATURE AT BRIDGEPORT

BRIDGEPORT, Jan. 3. —(AP)— Lou Bogash, of Bridgeport outpointed Allentown Joe Gans in the feature ten round bout of the Armory A. A. here tonight before a crowd of 3,000. Bogash carried the last four rounds to win. He weighed 172 1-2 pounds, and Gans 162 pounds.

In the other bouts Pat Duffy, 129, of Bridgeport outpointed Jackie Lenn, 130, also of Bridgeport in four rounds.

Morrie Bruno, 151, won from Frankie Callahan, 152, in the third round when Commissioner Donohue ordered Callahan out of the ring for not being in condition.

BARNARD IS BACK AT DESK AFTER VACATION

CHICAGO, Jan. 3.—(AP)— E. S. Barnard, president of the American league, returned to his desk today, after a months absence, ready to plunge into the task of preparing for the 1928 season.

After attending the baseball meetings in Dallas and New York, President Barnard remained in the east to rest at Atlantic City.

The decision of the American league club owners to hold a spring meeting hinges on the action of the minor leaguers in regard to the draft problems at their meeting here Jan. 9. If the minor leaguers revolt, a meeting of the American league will be necessary Barnard said.

The schedule for the 1928 race has been drafted, but its release date has not been set. It probably will be made public, however, the latter part of the month, depending on the release date of the National league schedule.

LACY TO BE OLYMPIC TEAM BOXING COACH

BOSTON, Jan. 3.—(AP)—The Boston Traveler today says Al Lacy, of Chelsea, will be chosen as coach of the American Olympic boxing team which is scheduled to sail from Boston for Amsterdam in May or June.

Lacy, who is the trainer of Red Chapman, featherweight title contender, took a team of American amateur boxers to Buenos Aires a year ago for a tournament with an Argentine team, and the success of the trip, according to the paper, led to the consideration of Lacy's name as an Olympic coach.

Lacy today began work with a group of Boston amateurs who probably will represent this city in an international inter-city tournament to be staged here on January 28 by the New England A. A. A. U., as a curtain raiser to the later national championships and Olympic selection bouts. He declined to comment on the possibility of his selection as Olympic coach.

KILLILEA BUYS BREWERS IN AMERICAN ASSOCIATION

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Jan. 3.—(AP)—Henry J. Killilea, Milwaukee attorney, today purchased the Milwaukee club of the American association for a reputed $380,000.

Killilea made the purchase from Mrs. Isabel Ruby Borchert widow of Otto Borchert, for years owner of the club. He dropped dead a year ago while attending a banquet in his honor.

Killilea is well known in baseball. He was one of the organizers of the American league, and owned the Boston Red Sox 35 years ago.

Mrs. Bochert has leased the Brewers Park to Mr. Killilea. It will be known as Borchert field in honor of her husband.

KILLINGLY HIGH OPENS WITH WIN OVER ALUMNI

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Jan. 3.— Killingly High school's basketball team, coached this year by "Bill" Schofield, member of the faculty and formerly of the Connecticut Agricultural college, opened its season at the high school gym Monday evening by administering a sound trouncing to the Alumni team, 41 to 6.

Barrett, Brennan, Stoddard, Fulton, Potter and Bowen, all recent graduates, made up the Alumni team. The high school team used Captain Spencer, Withey, Young McKeon, Lague, Clark and Wood during the course of the game. A slippery floor service somewhat handicapped both teams during the evening a team of Alumnae and materially slowed up the game.

In another game played at the gym defeated the K. H. S. Girls' basketball team, 25 to 18.

COUGARS MOVE INTO FIRST PLACE IN AM. GROUP

NEW YORK, Jan. 3.—(AP)—The Detroit Cougars moved into first place in the American group of the National Hockey league, one point ahead of the Boston Bruins, when they defeated the New York Rangers here tonight by 4 goals to 3.

The Rangers had the lead twice on goals by Bill Cook and Frank Boucher but wild New York shooting particularly when they had a two-man advantage at one stage of the third period together with sensational goal keeping by happy homes were factors in Detroit's victory.

Bradley to Scout Colleges

CLEVELAND, Jan. 3.—(AP)—Bill Bradley, former third baseman for the Cleveland Indians, has been engaged to scout college teams for the tribe, General Manager Billy Evans announced tonight.

BASKETBALL BRIEFS

Now for the real games. The holidays have gone and with them November and December, the "warm-up" months.

Tonight at Plainfield there ought to be a real "starter" in the Pro-Renaissance clash.

No doubt this game will attract fans from many sections. When the Harlem team played in Hartford a week or so ago officials, players, etc., from all over New England came just to see the celebrated New York quintet.

Norwich gets its next game Thursday with the second chapter of the Y Emps-New Britain Phantoms series. For one who likes to see junior teams perform this will surely satisfy for these two clubs are about the cream of the little fellows in the state.

They showed as good passing in the first game as has been seen in Norwich this year, big or small teams.

Danielson Towners take on Clinton Germans tomorrow night at Danielson With Billy Scholfield in the lineup the Towners should win.

The big thing in the high school line for eastern Connecticut this week comes in the Windham-Chapman Tech clash at Willimantic Friday. It is also the first contest between any of the four large high schools of this part of the state.

Vic Hanson's reported break with the Cleveland club of the American league has caused plenty of comment all along the circuit. Hanson claims that he was discriminated against by other members of the team. Cleveland needs Hanson, it would seem, and others like him.

The state league is already preparing for a hot race down through the second half, which opens next week. The first half has not furnished an abundance of thrills, New Haven and New Britain providing the only real first-place contests.

Fordham again this year, seems well on the way toward the top among the eastern colleges. Her win over Yale Monday night was a big boost.

The five most important basketball happenings in eastern Connecticut during the past year might be classified as: 1. Academy's fine showing in her first year at the sport and especially her winning of the championship in the eastern Connecticut-Western Rhode Island Interscholastic league; 2. Plainfield Pros' winning over Taftville Celtics for the eastern Connecticut title; 3. Windham's commendable season's record that enabled it to compete in the Yale tourney; 4. the play of Chubbuck of Tourtellotte High which was a big factor in this team's winning the state class D title and 5, in general terms, the rapid rise of the sport in Norwich.

PLAINFIELD PROS MEET WORLD'S BEST IN RENAISSANCE FIVE TONIGHT

Tonight's Lineup.

Plainfield	Renaissance
Brusso, rf	rf, Fiall
Dissinger, lf	M. Ricks
Stravinitsky, c	c, Saunders
Madden, rg	rg, Mayers
Bernot, lg	lg, Jenkins

Plainfield Pros face tonight what is considered by a large number of basketball experts the world's best team in the Renaissance Colored Five of Harlem. This dusky quintet is the only team that can consistently beat the Original Celtics, recognized champions of the world, and so far this season holds two victories over the Celtics.

Included in the Renaissance five are a number of colored sports stars, not only in basketball but in other athletics. They boast the world's champion colored tennis player in Cappy Ricks, who plays forward and has an average point score of 15.6 points per game during the last 200 games. One of the guards is Clarence Jenkins, called by critics as the fastest man in basketball, and also is rated as the fastest base-runner in baseball. He is noted for his streak-like cutting from a standing start after fainting his opponent out of position. Harold Mayers, a guard, and has the reputation of being one of the few players to hold Nat Holman and Johnny Beckman scoreless. Georgie Fiall, running mate of Ricks is noted for his accuracy and long shots and once broke up a Celtic-Renaissance game with shots from past mid-floor. Saunders, standing 6 feet and 6 inches high, is the pivot man around whom the play swings.

The Pros have a good chance in tonight's game can be seen from the fact that the New Britain Guards trimmed the Renaissance team and the Pros beat New Britain. However, Plainfield will have to step against this clever passing team to get a break, and it goes without saying that Manager Salisbury will use his best team, Brusso and Dissinger or Normandin forwards, Stravinitsky, center, Madden and Whitey Bernot, at guard.

This game has attracted wide notice and already three quarters of the seating capacity has been sold. The house seats close to 1000 and it is expected that the entire house will be sold out.

In the preliminary game the Plainfield Buddies will clash with the Y Outlaws of Norwich in the second of the series between these two teams. The Outlaws hold a close decision over the Buddies in a game at Norwich two weeks ago. The Buddies have been greatly strengthened by the return of Marriott to the lineup.

Dancing will follow the game.

DANIELSON TOWNERS TO PLAY CLINTON GERMANS THURSDAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Jan. 3—The basketball fans of Danielson and vicinity are looking forward with very keen interest to the basketball game in town hall, Danielson, Thursday night, when the famous Clinton German Five play the Danielson Town team.

The Clinton team is one of the most classy teams to play in the town hall this year and the lineup includes the noted Dietel brothers. Vattes, one of the fastest players and most accurate shots in Massachusetts while Brannhardt and Baer compose the remainder of the team. Baer will play the pivot position and those who have seen him play know he is a sensation.

This team has defeated practically all of the leading teams in Massachusetst and included in their victims are the famous Purple Collegians of Worcester whom they handed a 12-6 beating in Clinton last winter. They have also played against the Boston Whirlwinds which shows the real calibre of the team.

The Clinton team has played together now for several years and are always a big drawing card.

The Danielson management has made it possible to accommodate the several hundred fans who will no doubt witness this game.

Kansas Makes It Two Straight

KANSAS CITY, Jan. 3.—(AP)—Kansas City made it two straight over Winnipeg and clinched the introductory series of professional hockey in this city by winning 1 to 0 from the Canadians tonight in an American Hockey association game. The winning point was scored by Campbell after five minutes of play in the third period. Kansas City was on the offensive throughout. The locals won last night's game 2 to 1.

Lane Stars at Hockey

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Jan. 3.—(AP)—Dartmouth opened its hockey season hre tonight by crushing an inexperienced M. I. T. sextet by an 11 to 1 score. Myles Lane, captain of the Big Green pick mn and leading scorer of the eastern football season, tallied five goals for the Hanover team. Dartmouth leaves tomorrow morning for a game with McGill university at Madison Square Garden.

Mack Sends Hasta to Toledo

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 3. —(AP)— Connie Mack, manager of the Philadelphia Athletics, announced tonight that Carl Hasta, third baseman, had been sent to the Toledo club, American Association, on option. He was obtained last year from the Rock Mount, N. C., club of the Piedmont league.

SARAZEN WINS MIAMI BEACH TITLE AGAIN

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Jan. 3.—(AP)—Gene Sarazen, former National open champion, today successfully defended his Miami Beach open gold crown, winning that event with a card of 292 for the 72 holes of medal play.

Johnny Farrell, New York and St. Augustine professional was second with 295, while Joe Kirkwood, the Albany, Ga., pro, was one stroke behind him in third place. Alex Ayton, Miami professional was fourth with 297.

Cold weather and high winds made the play especially difficult both yesterday and today.

Farrel, who figured in early rounds to win, had considerable trouble in sinking putts today.

Others in the prize money were Emmett French, former Ryder cup player, from Southern Pines, N. C., 302; Tom Kerrigan, New York, 303; George Christ, Rochester, 304; Arthur Andrews, Davenport, Ia., 304; Charles Thom, Chicago, 305; Charles Mayo Jacksonville, 306; Lewis Myers Providence R. I. 307; Jock Hutchinson, 312; Johnny Golden, 315; and Wilfrid Reid, 322, demonstrated what happened to numbers of seasoned players because of bad weather.

Sarazen and Farrell carried the gallery, there was nothing spectacular about the play. The putting some times was a bit weird, considering the game both players generally play.

Farrell produced three birdies in a row on the thirteenth, fourteen and fifteenth this afternoon, but a six on the par four tenth and a string of fives cut him down to 74 for the round. Sarazen, with only one birdie to show, was more consistent with a 73.

TORONTO BEATS OUT YALE IN LAST MINUTE

NEW HAVEN, Jan. 3.—(AP)—A goal by Carrick, Toronto university left defense man in the last minute of play sent Yale down to defeat here tonight, the Canadians beating the Elis 4 to 3 in a hard fought and exciting hockey game. The winners after taking an initial lead of 1 to 0 in the first two minutes of play, had trailed most of the way thereafter, Yale holding a lead of 3 to 2 at the start of the third period. In the final session the Maple Leafs from Canada played a fine game, tied the score early in the period and won the game in the last minute.

BUCKLEY BUSY DENYING RUMORS ABOUT SHARKEY

BRIDGEPORT, Jan. 3.—(AP)—Johnny Buckley, manager of Jack Sharkey, again denied rumors here tonight that the Boston sailor will not go through with his fight with Tom Heeney in the Madison Square Garden, January 13. Sharkey had a heavy day in Boston, traveling 15 rounds, eight of which consisted of boxing. Buckley said, and his hand is in perfect shape. Buckley was here to second Lou Bogash in his bout against Allentown Joe Gans.

Y Juniors Win from Newsies

The Y. M. C. A. Juniors clinched the indoor baseball series with the Norwich Newsies Tuesday evening at the Y gym when the paperboys were beaten 26 to 11. It was largely through the pitching of Lambert and the stellar work of Stephano, Angelopoulos, Falcone and McNeil in the field that the Juniors won. The lineup for the winners: Ruzutto c, Lambert p, McNeil 1b, Bowne 2b, Angelopoulos ss, Falcone 3b, Stephano lss, Wilmot lf "Polar Bear" Niedweski cf, Pechuwlys rf.

Leonard to Box Again

NEW YORK, Jan. 3.—(AP)— Benny Leonard, who left the ring about three years ago as the undefeated lightweight champion of the world, announced today he would don the gloves again as a welterweight. Leonard said he hoped to make his return by next summer.

SPORT WORLD BRIEFS

The starting gate, now used almost universally in horse racing originated in Australia.

Red Wing, Minn., will be the scene of the United States national ski championships during the first week of February.

Japanese golf players in Los Angeles have their own club.

Chess was the favorite game of the Vikings; it was compulsory.

Indiana university is planning to send a team to the Texas relays next March.

Singapore is said to have a marvelous tennis star of international calibre in the person of Hoole Hai, a Chinese player.

Hilario Martinez, the young Spanish pugilist who is now displaying his wares in America, was a bull fighter in his native land.

The English turf has a new champion jockey in the person of Gordon Richards, who was victorious in 164 races in the season just ended.

A most remarkable gridiron record is that of Tuskegee Institute of Alabama—forty-nine consecutive victories during the past four years.

The National Football league, the leading organization of professionals, reports that the season just ended was the most successful in its history.

Jack Slattery, who is to pilot the Boston Braves next season, is a graduate dentist, but owing to his early success in baseball he never practiced his profession.

Nearly 200 motor boat manufacturers, designers, equipment dealers and marine architects will have displays at the coming National Motor Boat Show in New York city.

In the early days of lawn tennis the racquet had a curve in the handle. This was supposed to help the underhand stroke in use in those days.

The first no-hit game in the history of baseball was played at Ionia, Mich., August 17, 1876, between the St. Louis Reds and the Cass club of Detroit. The celebrated Jim Garvin pitched for the Reds.

The popular Mexican game of Paloto bears a strong resemblance to handball. An arm-piece made of cane is worn by the players and with this the ball is hit on the fly or on the bounce up against a wall. Four men play at a time, two on each side.

Thirty-four dual meets are included in the wrestling schedule of the Western Intercollegiate conference for the coming season, and in addition a play-off for team championships will be held as the regular annual individual title tournament.

No other college has a swimming record approaching that of Yale, which has won fifteen championships and tied one since the Intercollegiate Swimming association came into existence twenty-one years ago.

Alexander Alexhine, the new chess champion of the world, possesses a most extraordinary memory. On one occasion he played 28 games simultaneously against 28 of the best players in France, sitting with his back to his opponents. He won 22 games and lost 3, the others being drawn.

Probably no other performer in any branch of sport is able to boast of having established a dozen new American and world's records during the year now drawn to a close. This is the 1927 accomplishment of Johnny Weissmuller, the swimming ace of the Illwinois Athletic club.

The University of Wisconsin is planning an annual carnival of winter sports which will be to the colleges of the Middle West what the Dartmouth carnival is to the east. The first carnival will be given in early January and will include competitions in speed skating, ski-jumping, fancy skating and ice boating.

The 18.2 balkline game, a style of billiards favored by the experts of the cue, originated in the United States. It was in 1892, when Frank Ives, Jacob Schaefer and George F. Slosson had become so proficient at the 14.2 balkline game that the game were long and monotonous and the game closed as too easy, that the cry went up for a new game. The 18.2 style was the answer but this did not come about until four years later.

The first catcher's mask was made in the 70s by F. W. Thayer, who at the time was captain of the Harvard baseball team. The first mask used in the major league was designed and patterned by George Wright, then playing shortstop for the famous Boston Nationals. Mr. Wright, who is still living, also constructed the first rubber mouth-piece for catchers which was used later to the tape upon which the football boosters are constructed.

WESTERLY

SUNDAY NIGHT MOVIES DEFEATED BY PASTOR'S ASS'N

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., Jan. 3—President Horace E. Burdick presided at the January meeting of Westerly town council, Tuesday. Attorney John F. Gallagher appeared for Abraham Leibovitz and his two sons, owner of the store property, 69 High street, occupied by the A. and P. store. The council was told that Building Inspector Thomas Wills had denied a building permit and the matter had been referred to them for the soundness of his refusal. The inspector had based his objection that it was contrary to the building code ordinance in that alterations were to be made in a wooden business structure of more than 1,000 square feet and it was intended by the petitioners that in the 1,700 square foot building, no addition was intended and weak parts would be bolstered up. On motion of Councilman Farquhar Smith it was voted that detailed plans and specifications of changes desired be filed with Inspector Wills and if approved by him, permit be issued.

Attorney Clarence E. Roche appeared for the Quality Lunch, 7 Main street, in their petition that the victualling license granted them April 4, 1927, with closed period from 1 to 5 a. m., be extended for the restaurant to be kept open 24 hours. Councilman Trainer of the police committee said Chief Brown who had recommended closing of the restaurant before continued in the same opinion. Solicitor Ferguson reported that a court case arising from young men restaurant frequenters (the Marion Flood of Norwich solicitation case) had cost the state of Rhode Island money. Councilman Smith moved and it was voted that license for longer opening hours be given up.

Attorney Samuel H. Davis came before the council relative to the council accepting and placing on file the plat, the 4th section of Winnapaug park, near Winnapaug golf grounds, continued from last council session. Two objections previously made, failure to show previous existing right of way, and the layout with 40 foot wide street. Solicitor Ferguson informed the council that the Westerly zoning board was the authority for Mr. Davis to consult and he retired.

Rev. Karl L. Schoning, president of the Westerly Pastors' association and pastor of the Broad Street Christian church, attended the council session with Rev. Luther G. Coburn, Pawcatuck Congregational, secretary; Lewis A. Walker, Calvary Baptist, treasurer; H. C. Sutter, Grace Methodist Episcopal and Dr. Edgar Tobin, rector Christ Episcopal church, in furtherance of the resolution adopted by them and read by Clerk Whipple against the decision by the council of Sunday night motion picture exhibitions. Rev. Mr Schoning said the ministers stood back of the council in all law enforcement but they knew in recent application of Manager Finley of the United theatre, who operated a Sunday night show the first of the week without a license, the council had no authority to act under the statute. President Burdick assured the clergymen that the council appreciated the ministerial support and that they did "not need to worry as they would be satisfied with the council action."

Clerk Whipple stated that he had paid the members of the police department, although the last year's budget balance was last reported as insufficient. Town bills for December were ordered paid. Action was voted approved by Town Treasurer James M. Pendleton of issuance of town notes at 4 per cent. interest to the amount of $28,200.00 dated Dec. 20, 1927 and due June 20, 1928, for payment of town debts.

George A. Stillman, approved by Chief Brown, was voted a police constable without pay.

James Davis, residing on Clark St., complained to the council of the nuisance arising from town land on Margin street being used for the dumping and tin cans and brush.

Superintendent of Schools Willard H. Bacon, with School Committeeman Thomas Perry asked to be summoned back when the council went into executive session.

Approval was voted health officer, Dr. Samuel C. Webster's report for December, showing six cases of contagious disease, lobar pneumonia 2, mumps 2, diphtheria 1 and tetanus 1.

Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown's report for December showed 12 arrests, as follows, passing semaphore beacon illegally 2, assault with a dangerous weapon 1, operation of auto while under the influence of liquor 1, operation of auto without operator's license 1, reckless operation of auto 2, operation of auto not equipped with at least two powerful brakes 1, insane person 1 and fugitive from justice 3.

For Mothers' Aid Miss Mary L. Randall reported $3,857.50 spent in 1927. Families aided for month of December 5, children under 5, 8; 5-14, 11 and 14, 16, for a total of 20, six applications having been received.

Harold West was voted a milk dealer's license for White Rock. A victualizing license was voted granted to Mr. and Mrs. John M. Dickerson for a tea room on the shore road.

The town council voted to offer a prize in gold to the member of Battery E, 243rd R. I. C. A. C., H. D., at the annual prize drill in the armory Jan. 12th. Councilman Trainer reported the battery membership at the peace time strength of 83 men.

Tuesday evening, Jan. 31st was set as the date for the annual budget meeting of the council.

Councilman Fraser, a committee on the rebuilding of the broken dike along the Pawcatuck river bank in Varietyville, reported work progressing on this reconstruction.

Westerly alumni and undergraduates of Dartmouth college, Hanover N. H., gathered Monday evening for a dinner at Elm Tree inn, preceding the students' return to college after the holiday recess. HIGHER PRICE MOVEMENT MARKED IRREGULAR SESSION OF THE MARKET

NEW YORK, Jan. 3—(AP)—Wall street ushered in the beginning of the New Year on the New York Stock exchange today with an irregularly higher price movement. Buying orders were distributed over a fairly broad list but centered largely in a selected group of rubber, copper, motor and merchandising issues. Despite the absence of many traders on extended week-end visits, trading was in fairly heavy volume.

Marking up of the call money renewal rate to 5 1-2 per cent, following a sharp deficit in reserve in last Saturday's clearing house statement, probably had a tendency to restrict speculative operations. Banks called between $20,000,000 and $25,000,000 in loans but funds poured in freely from the interior, and ample credit facilities were available. An easier money market is expected when the January 1 checks are cleared.

Heavy buying of the rubber stocks was based on improving trade conditions, and unconfirmed merger rumors. Goodrich, Goodyear and U. S. Rubber all ran up 3 1-2 to 4 1-2 points while Ajax, the most active of the group, climbed a point to a new peak. In the motor group, Hudson ran up nearly 3 points and Packard and Paige-Detroit reached new high ground, but most of the others were rather sluggish. General Motors closed fractionally lower at 137 3-4.

Greene Cananea was again the spectacular performer in the copper group, soaring more than 9 points to a new record high at 160 3-4, apparently at the expense of an over-crowded short interest. Park Utah was heavily traded in and touched a new high at 12 1-4, but other coppers moved within rather narrow and irregular limits.

Profit-taking caused some irregularity among the railroad equipments, recent buying of which has been influenced by the placing of orders for about 15,000 freight cars in the last two months. A jump of nearly 6 points in American Woolen preferred, a third of which was lost, attracted widespread attention. Urgent buying also took place in American International Corporation, Beechnut Packing, Coty, Eureka Vacuum, Kraft Cheese, Montgomery-Ward, Murray Corporation, National Biscuit, Otis Elevator, Purity Baking B, Real Silk Hosiery and the Fair, all up 3 to 6 points, and most of them at their highest prices in a year, or longer.

Except for a renewal of selling pressure against Pathe A, which sank to the lowest price on record at 16 5-8, and a 5-point break in Universal Pipe preferred, there were no outstanding weak spots. Declines of a point or so were quite numerous.

Rails were still under the adverse influence of poor November earnings and December traffic reports, although the St. Paul issues and St. Louis Southwestern preferred reached new high ground, and a brisk demand was apparent for Texas & Pacific and some of the eastern coalers.

Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

A rally of 25 points in Spanish pesetas to around 17.15 cents was the only change of consequence in the foreign exchange market, with buying presumably based in anticipation of some sort of an announcement regarding stabilization. Sterling cables were slightly easier around $4.83 1-8 and Canadian Exchange continued at a discount of 11-64 of 1 per cent, making further gold imports likely.

Wheat and cotton markets both broke out of the narrow trading area in which they have been moving on the upside. Wheat advances more than a cent a bushel in response to an improved foreign demand, but part of the gain was lost on realizing. Cotton dropped 3 to $3.50 a bale. Coffee and sugar markets were firm.

MARKETS AT A GLANCE

THE CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Jan. 3—(AP)—Heavy trading and rising prices today greeted the New Year in the curb market. Low priced issues were in the lead, with particularly heavy dealings in Canadian Marconi, Brooklyn City Railway, Creole Syndicate and the Servel new stocks.

American Rolling Mills again attracted the attention of operators for the advance, and Bancitaly was bid up 4 points. Other former favorites which moved toward higher ground included Fansteel Products, General Bronze, Campbell Wyant and Cuneo Press. U. S. L. Battery, International Cigar Machinery and Alabama Great Southern all exceeded their 1927 peaks.

Public utilities derived strength from further evidences of continued prosperity in that industry. American Gas & Electric common and preferred, Standard Power & Light, and American Light & Traction were in brisk demand and Electric Bond & Share advanced a point before reacting on realizing.

Petroleum issues generally moved forward, although Vacuum was under steady pressure. Standard of Kentucky and Margay Oil gained about 3 points each, and Gulf Oil advanced about a point, later losing all its gain.

Activity and strength of the Servel issues was attributed to announcement that the company's reorganization had been completed.

Newmont Mining, selling ex-dividend, fell back nearly 5 points, but subsequently made up most of the loss. Deere & Company, the Celanese and Celluloid issues, Lefcourt Realty preferred and McCall corporation also were heavy.

NOANK

A NO-TOBACCO CLUB FORMED BY YOUNG MEN

Since the first of January came in about 15 young fellows in the fishing village raised their right hands and said: "No more smoking for one year. If any one catches me, I will give him anything money can buy!" William Franklin, says one fellow has started to chew gum to keep away from smoking. So these young men have formed a club named Aunt Sarah Peabody—and it means "We are not to use tobacco." If any one of the members is caught by any other member, he gets fired out of the club. [illegible] president has been elected, Flash McDonald; vice president, Eddie Ellis; treasurer, Charles Patterson; secretary, Edward Morgan; committee to watch out and see if any one smokes, chairman, William Franklin, Setretch Moran, John Bracci. This week a meeting is to be held for reports by the non-tobacco users at the Saturday Night club room. Beware members of Aunt S. Peabody club! Some one is watching you and don't let a cigar touch your lips!

The lowest low tide in many years was noted Monday morning along the shores in Noank. The tide was away out by the docks to the edge of the channel, so the clammers got out their pails and hoes and went over to Palmer cove, where no water was in sight and to Six-penny island. The life of a clam was not safe when those Noank clam-sharps got their eye on a good-sized hole. William Banks was high sport for the day, getting two pails full. Everybody got at least one pail full. Carl Ashcraft said "We will call it clam chowder week in Noank."

George Deveau, who attended the game between Norwich and the All-Heller Brothers' basketball teams in that city, Monday afternoon, never saw anything like the players, they were so fast. He claimed they could make the Plainfield team step some to win.

The bell rang again Tuesday morning at the village school to call back the children after their vacation of ten days, and all the grades will be busy again.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Burdick have returned from a few days' visit in Wauregan.

Orrin Miner was in New London this week.

Mrs. Mary Augusta Potter, 71, wife of Joseph W. Potter, died Sunday at her home on Pearl street after a long illness. She was born in Edgartown, Mass., and came to the village at an early age. She was a member of the Baptist church and took part in many social affairs and was well liked by all. She will be missed by her neighbors and she was a member of Liberty council, Daughters of America. Besides her husband, she leaves two sisters, Mrs. Addie Rathbun, of this village, and Mrs. Harry Weathon, of Groton. The funeral was held Tuesday afternoon at her home on Pearl street. The services were conducted by Rev. Ernest F. Weise, pastor of the Baptist church. The floral pieces were beautiful. Burial was in the family plot in Noank Valley cemetery. The bearers were G. E. Andrews, W. P. Latham, Paul Chesebro, Freeman Rogers, Halstead Brown and Raymond Coon.

It was the coldest day this winter, Monday. At W. W. Rathbun's store the temperature was but 9 above zero. On Main street and on Fort Hill the milkman said it was only 2 above. The wind even made the cows shake standing in the barn waiting to be milked. Mr. Merritt said it was the coldest morning on the farm in several years. The carpenters at Groton Long Point had to put away their tools and go home on account of the cold wind. The shipyard was idle. The mill force pulled down the curtains and made it a holiday. The stores were closed for a half day and the fishing village kept the New Year as a holiday.

Mr. and Mrs. John MacQueen, of Boston, are visiting for a few days with Mr. and Mrs. Duncan McDonald.

A Sunbeam racing car with New York numbers on it stopped on Front street Monday morning coming from New York, bound for Boston. Soon a crowd gathered to get a look at the racer. It was 14 feet long and about 6 feet wide, had an English flag on one end and Old Glory in front. Alongside the side it read "World record for speed—204 miles an hour—used Dunlop Tires." The color was red, with 12 exhaust pipes. Two young fellows, wrapped in fur coats, were not cold from the wind, and only a windshield for protection. About 100 greeted the two fellows. Driver Sundson told something about the racer, but soon waved a good-bye to the village and the car was soon out of sight. Oh baby! how that red racer could eat up the road! Look-out cars, give me room! We are bound for the Bean Town!

Walter Palmer spent Sunday in Springfield.

Charles DeBlaise, of Bristol, Conn., was home over the week-end.

Golden Rod club held a watch night party Saturday evening at its room. About 75 watched the old year out and saw the new year come in with a cold wind. It was open house to everybody, with a reading by Robert Maynard, a new banjo was played by Eugene Mallett, with a solo and the Golden tri song "Good Bye Forever, 1927." Dancing followed until the birds were singing it is daybreak at 4:30 o'clock. Music was by the Happy-go-lucky orchestra of five music shieks. The lunch was corned beef sandwiches and apple turn-overs with coffee.

REVIEW OF PROHIBITION IN THE VATICAN ORGAN

ROME, Jan. 3—(AP)—Osservatore Romano official Vatican organ, today publishes on its first page an exposition of conditions in the United States under prohibition. The article quotes American news stories of dry raids, destruction of property, increase of alcoholism, killings and also the claims of prohibitionists that the dry law has reduced drinking.

Among news items mentioned are those of the destruction of $50,000 worth of furnishings at a night club in New York, a recent statement of Representative F. H. La Guardia of New York that a liquor syndicate controls sales in the American metropolis, and a statement by Mrs. James J. Walker, wife of New York's mayor that prohibition enforcement has failed.

The paper also quotes figures by Dr. A. L. Reed of the University of Cincinnati, former president of the American Medical asociation, giving deaths due to prohibition enforcement as 65,000, several thousands more than the American deaths in the World war.

CHARGES AGAINST NEW YORK NIGHT CLUBS AND HOTELS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3.—(AP)—An unpleasant aftermath of the New Year's celebration came to managers of nineteen night clubs, hotels, theatres and other resorts today when charges that they violated the Sunday closing law were filed against them. Trials were set for January 10.

The charges, which alleged that the establishments defied police regulations by remaining open during restricted hours, were preferred against at least one of every type of resort here in order to determine which com under the law.

A STAY OF EXECUTION ASKED FOR MRS. SNYDER

NEW YORK, Jan. 3.—(AP)—A stay of execution for 30 days to permit an investigation of the mental condition of Mrs. Ruth Snyder, condemned with Henry Judd Gray to die next week for the murder of the woman's husband, was asked of Governor Alfred E. Smith today by counsel for Mrs. Snyder.

In a letter to the governor, the lawyer, Edgar F. Hazleton, based his request on "facts I have not heretofore felt at liberty to speak, but about which reticence appears no longer necessary.

SEC'Y LOPEZ WAS FOUND HIDING IN MEXICO CITY

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 3.—(AP)—Jose Lopez Y. Portillo, former private secretary to General Arnulfo Gomez, who has been in hiding since the failure of the recent Gomez-Serrano revolutionary attempt, was found today in Mexico City by secret police.

Lopez was arrested and a considerable amount of the private correspondence of General Gomez was seized. Police claim the correspondence revealed details of the revolutionary plans.

Lopez was confined in the Santiago military prison.

SCENARIO WRITER EMPEY SUED FOR ALLEGED LOAN

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 3.—(AP)—Arthur Guy Empey, author, scenario writer and former Canadian soldier, was sued here today for $23,990 by Florence Evelyn Martin Rice, who declared she sought the return of the amount loaned to Empey.

Filed with the complaint was a document signed by Miss Rice, which said in part:

"I am crediting you with $3,500, which was money you gave me for Christmas and personal presents, but which I am considering a loan, because I do not want to keep any gifts from you.

"I also ask you for a duplicate or equivalent, of jewelry I lost through you—you may do as your conscience tells you about the jewelry—none of it was given me by you."

SECTIONS OF LONDON ARE INVADED BY FLOODS

LONDON, Jan. 3.—(AP)—The Thames and other major streams continued to rise tonight as the tributary valleys sent down waters from the great thaw and yesterday's widespread heavy rainfall.

Vast lowlying sections of East London and other parts of the metropolis are already invaded by floods, which have badly crippled train service and covered many roadways. More than a score of heavy laden barges at Kingston, just above London, torn from their moorings in the swollen Thames, crashed dangerously into the bridges below. Some of them sank, others formed obstructions against the arches.

In Trim This Winter?

It Behooves One to Keep Careful Watch of the Kidneys After Winter's Colds and Chills

DOES winter find you lame, stiff and achy? Do you feel tired, drowsy—suffer nagging backache, headaches and dizzy spells? Are the kidney secretions scanty and burning in passage?

Colds and grip create poisons in the blood that bring extra work to the kidneys. When the kidneys act sluggishly, waste impurities remain in the blood and cause many unpleasant symptoms.

Thousands have learned to rely on Doan's Pills after winter's colds and chills. Doan's, a stimulant diuretic, increase the secretion of the kidneys and thus aid in the elimination of waste impurities. They have earned a nation-wide reputation. Ask your neighbor!

LEGAL NOTICES

AT A COURT OF PROBATE HELD at Norwich, within and for the District of Norwich on the 31st day of December, A. D. 1927.
Present, NELSON J. AYLING, Judge.
Estate of Matthew J. Geary, late of Griswold, in said District, deceased.
Ordered, That the Administrator cite the creditors of said deceased to bring in their claims against said estate within six months from this date, by posting a notice to that effect, together with a copy of this order on the sign-post nearest to the place where said deceased last dwelt, and in the same town, and by publishing the same once in a newspaper having a circulation in said district, and make return to this Court.
NELSON J. AYLING, Judge.
Attest, HELEN M. DRESCHER, Clerk.

NOTICE
All creditors of said deceased are hereby notified to present their claims against said estate to the undersigned at P. O. Box 103, Uncasville, Conn., within the time limited in the above and foregoing order.
JOHN J. GEARY,
Administrator

NOTICE
Notice is hereby given that a hearing will be held by the Zoning Board of Appeals for the Town and City of Norwich at the Mayor's Office in the City Hall in said Norwich on Monday, January 9th, 1928 at eleven o'clock a. m. for the purpose of hearing and deciding a certain appeal which has been taken to the Board by Isaac Fishken from the decision of the Fire Marshal of the City of Norwich in refusing a permit and authority to the appellant to build a blacksmith shop on Talman street where it crosses the Battle ground, so-called, in the City of Norwich.
The Board of Appeals for the Town and the City of Norwich.

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH HAS SUCCESSFUL YEAR

The calendar of the First Congregational church was given Sunday by Samuel Butterworth, in memory of Harold Lawton.

At the annual meeting of the church reports were presented by all the organizations of the church and showed that the activities of the year had been unusually successful. Thirty-three members have been added, bringing the total to 300. The following new officers have been elected: Christian Endeavor, president, Alfred Royle; vice president, Mrs. John Kingsley; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Milton Winsor; secretary, Miss Florence Wibberly; treasurer, Donald Gallup; chairman of committees, lookout, John Dodge; prayer meeting, Ernest Royle; social, Mary Baldwin; flower, Frances Mathewson; citizenship, Milton Winsor. Friendly helpers, president, Mrs. Cecil Butler; vice president, Mrs. Irving Flagg; secretary, Miss Ruth Hall; treasurer, Mrs. John Lees; birthdays, Mrs. Turner Green. Ladies Aid society, president, Mrs. Lotta Dodge; vice president, Mrs. Percy Wilcox; secretary, Mrs. Winfred Gardner; treasurer, Mrs. Fred Greenwood. Boy Scouts, secretary, John Dodge; treasurer, Raymond Roode; first patrol leader, Sidney Gardner.

The Christian Endeavor meeting held in the vestry of the Congregational church was led by Alfred Royle. The subject was "What Are the Values of Daily Devotions?" Tuesday the executive board of the Christian Endeavor society met with the president, Alfred Royle.

New members received in the First Congregational church, January 1, 1928 were: John Holland, Sarah Ann Holland, John James Holland, Louis Holland, Ethel Melinda Holland, from the Congregational church of Taftville.

The first meeting of the C. J. S. is to be held tonight (Wednesday) in the vestry of the Congregational church. The new officers will assume their duties.

The M. M. club was entertained at the home of Mrs. Lloyd Phillips with a New Year's party. Whist was played, the prizes going to Mrs. John Bradford, Miss Florence Wibberly and Mrs. Irving Flagg. Games were played and refreshments were served.

Mrs. N. Vaillant entertained friends from Willimantic and Worcester at her home with a New Year's party Saturday.

Much sympathy is felt for the Baldwin family in the death of Samuel Baldwin Sunday morning, at Backus hospital, Norwich as already noted in The Bulletin.

MOOSE LODGE INITIATED NEW YEAR'S EVE CLASS

A large sized class was initiated New Year's eve by Norwich lodge, No. 950, L. O. O. M., at the Moose home. Dictator B. Wunderlich, while not acting, was present. This was the first time he attended a meeting of the lodge since October, when he underwent an operation at a Boston hospital.

Vice Dictator Joseph Hastedt presided. After the initiation George Moles, a past dictator, spoke on the growth of the local lodge from a few members to the 700 on the membership roll today. Past Dictator Vaudery of Attleboro, Mass., gave a very interesting talk on Moosedom and its growth to 700,000 members. He spoke of Mooseheart and of Moosehaven in Florida. The latter is the Moose home for the aged who pass the remaining days of their lives in peace and comfort.

A banquet then was served and there was a social time following. The next class will be initiated sometime this month.

Harry A. Mackey, lawyer and manager for William S. Vare in his 1926 campaign, yesterday became mayor of Philadelphia for four years, succeeding W. Freeland Kendrick.

KENNETH LELAND, CG-148, MAY HAVE FRACTURED SKULL AT NEW LONDON

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 3—Kenneth Leland 21, of Kalamazoo, Mich., United States Coast Guard and a motor machinist's mate, was one of the crew of the 75-foot rum patrol boat CG-148, was injured off Block Island yesterday afternoon. An explosion occurred on the boat, doing damage to the rum chaser and serious injury to Leland. He has a possible fractured skull and jaw for an X-ray taken today at Lawrence-Memorial hospital revealed every evidence of that injury. Leland's condition is considered serious. Capt. H. G. Hamlet, in charge of the Coast Guard force at this port, instituted a board of inquiry last night and today that body was engaged in making inquiry into the cause of the explosion. The rum chaser is tied up at a dock at the New Harbor, Block Island, where she was towed by the patrol boat Nehema, which received a wireless to go to the assistance of the rum-chaser, while she was performing outside patrol duty. After docking the rum-chaser, the Nehema put into port with Leland.

CITY IS GETTING GOOD—HOLIDAY FOR POLICE COURT

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 3—There was no session of the police court today for there was not a solitary arrest last night or this morning, something that has not occurred in many weeks. Peter Vong, State street, merchant, was ordered into court by Patrolman George Laboue this morning when the officer detected Vong as having parked his automobile on State street longer than 12 hours, which act is a violation of the city's parking ordinance. Vong furnished a bond of $3, but failed to present himself at police headquarters and the bond was declared forfeited. A sailor from the United States Coast Guard section base was at the Union station last night drunk, and he was taken in charge of by Special Agent James Daly and a shore patrol. The sailor was locked up at police headquarters until midnight when he was taken back to the state pier by the patrol.

Continued improvement in the condition of Mrs. Charles A. Pinney, of Howard street, wife of Captain of Police Pinney, who was operated upon at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, Monday, was reported today. Harold Pinney, a law student at New York, returned to that city today, he having been summoned here because of his mother's illness.

Miss Sophie Goldstein, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Aaron Goldstein, 351 Bank street and Joseph Epstein of New York were married at Trotsky's, that city Sunday evening. Included among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Selleck, 351 Bank street, the latter a sister of the bride; Samuel Goldstein, brother of the bride; Mrs. May Jagolinzer, New York, formerly Miss Ruth Labensky, of this city.

Harold Rutman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hyman Rutman, of Squire street, and Miss Mabel Bronstein, of Providence, were married at Providence tonight.

Tony Lynch, 31 Warner street, Groton, was in the Groton town court today charged with breach of the peace. He pleaded not guilty, but on the evidence submitted, Lynch was fined $15 and costs of $9.55. On the afternoon of Dec. 27th Lynch and his wife quarrelled and the husband hit her a blow on the head. The wife made complaint to the police and Tony was arrested. In court today Lynch denied that he struck his wife, but admitted that he "shoved" her. Their son, John, testified that his father was in an ugly mood on the afternoon of the quarrel and Mrs. Stella Hermanassi, a neighbor testified that Lynch was intoxicated the afternoon the assault was committed.

Arnold Crandall, 17, was charged with violation of the state motor vehicle laws was fined $5 and costs of $11.55. The fine was ordered remitted by Judge Cornelius C. Cosgrove. Crandall was driving an automobile Dec. 27th which struck Harold Dray, of New London. When Crandall reported the accident to the state police at investigation by Officer Bernard Kennerson showed that Crandall had caused a different body to be attached to the automobile than that which his registration provided for. He was arrested and the case was continued until today. Crandall made a settlement with Dray, so the latter would not prefer a charge of reckless driving against him.

Four other cases were nolled, Bernard F. Stuart, 20, of Mystic, was charged with failure to grant right of way, but the case was nolled upon Stuart paying the officer's fee and the cost of recording the offense. Stuart was arrested Nov. 28 by State Police Officer Donald Brown, charged with failing to grant right of way. The arrest was made following an accident.

Arthur Page, of New London and William O. Wheeler, Groton Long Point, were charged with reckless driving, but both cases were nolled. A truck driven by Page and an automobile driven by Wheeler collided on Prospect Hill, Dec. 24, the crash occurring at a "blind" corner.

Vernce C. Thornton, Groton, was charged with failure to grant right of way was the final nolle entered. Thornton was arrested Dec. 23 by State Police Officer Arthur Willimarch II, was alleged that Thornton in driving his automobile cut in on another auto at the entrance to the submarine base.

Their 56th wedding anniversary was informally celebrated today by Mr. and Mrs. William T. Wyman, 30 Thames street, Groton. The anniversary was also the 75th birthday of Mrs. Wyman. Mr. and Mrs. Wyman were married in Salem, Mass., and resided the greater part of their lives in Boston. They have resided in Groton but four years.

Mrs. Catherine Wilder, of 466 Bank street; Nathan Mahoney, New Haven and Mrs. John Kuple, Front street patients at Home Memorial hospital, were discharged today.

United States Coast Guard cutter Tampa, stationed at Boston, is at the state pier, having arrived in port this morning. The cutter will remain here but a few days and will then proceed to a point between Block Island and Boston, where she will do ice patrol duty.

The funeral of Mrs. Mary Potki, wife of Ramon Potki, of 88 Eastern avenue, was held this morning at 9 o'clock at Our Lady of Perpetual Help church, the mass of requiem being celebrated by Rev. Joseph Raniszewski. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

Mary H. Fahey, 76, wife of James Fahey, of New York, died last night at Home Memorial hospital where she had been a patient but a few days. Mrs. Fahey came to New London about a week ago to visit Mrs. Truman Porter, of 20 Terrace avenue. During her stay at the porter residence, Mrs. Fahey was taken ill and her condition became such that she was taken to the hospital. The body was forwarded to New York, where the funeral and burial will take place.

Mrs. Evelyn J. Gasson, 48, wife of Charles A. Gasson, died yesterday afternoon at her home, 162 Green street, after a lingering illness. Mrs. Gasson was born in New London and had resided in this city and Waterford practically her entire life.

James Emery, 54 Baker avenue, Groton, and Mrs. Thomas Kelly and infant daughter, 53 Colman street, patients at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, were discharged today.

FREED AT NORWICH, JOSEPH AMAREL ARRESTED

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 3.—Joseph Amarel, former United States coast guardsman, now residing in Brooklyn, N. Y., who was acquitted of the charge of indecent exposure and attempted rape in the criminal superior court in Norwich today, was arrested later by Sergeants John Cavanaugh and Nelson Smith, charged with breach of the peace. He was locked up at police headquarters, but was released when Joseph Silva qualified on his bond of $100. Amarel will be in the police court tomorrow. Amarel was arrested several weeks ago when accused of having peered through the windows of the home of Mrs. Rybicki, on Harrison street, and to having exposed himself. He was detected in his act by Mrs. Rybicki, who identified him after he had been arrested. Amarel was also accused with having attacked Miss Adelaide Stillman, a trained nurse, on Vauxhall street, while she was walking to her home on Brooks street. Miss Stillman was seized from behind and dragged into a yard, but her assailant became frightened and ran away leaving the young woman on the ground.

Patrolman John Clifford in making his rounds on Green street tonight observed a group of boys loitering about parked automobiles, while their owners were attending a meeting of Brainard lodge of Masons. As the officer approached the boys ran away. The officer investigated and found two large flashlights inside the fence surrounding the temple property. These were taken to police headquarters to await claimants, but inquiry at the temple did not reveal that any of the owners of the autos had flashlights in their cars when they were parked.

Patrolman Elwod Bailey is the latest member of the police department to become incapacitated. The officer is not ill, but he is unable to perform duty because of an infection of a toe. It is not believed that the infection will compel the officer to absent himself from duty long.

Harry Goldstein, 58, Jefferson avenue, reported to the police tonight that while his automobile was parked on Starr street, near Washington street, a spare tire was stolen from it.

The Connecticut Power company today assigned a force of workers to the task of removing the lights that were used on the poles of the company on State, Main and Bank streets for the Christmas and New Year's celebration. This was accomplished during the day, after which the Westerly concern that provided the evergreen removed that.

ZONING COM. REPORTS TO NEW LONDON COUNCIL

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 3.—The city council this evening granted applications for permission to build and make alterations to buildings in nine instances. The applications were for the erection of three dwellings, and four garages, and for alterations in other instances.

The police department thanked the council for assistance given the department in paying the rent of a gymnasium and invited the members of the council to inspect the gym at any time after the 8th of January. The invitation was accepted.

The city manager was authorized to lease land on West Colt street to one Piscatella.

A bill of $77.40 from St. Agnes' hospital for the care of Joseph Fox was approved and ordered paid.

An agreement between the city of New London and B. L. Armstrong to take care of water drainage on Grenada Terrace was referred to the committee on public works.

A proposal to place a sewer in Plant street was opposed by Councilor Streeter, on the ground that Plant street had not been accepted by the city. He said the proposal to lay the sewer was the worst kind of favoritism. He said he opposed the plan on principle, as other applications had been denied. He opposed the recommendation of the director of law and said that the action was to favor persons and was not according to the charter. The resolution calling for the laying of the sewer was referred to the committee on public works.

A resolution providing for the laying of a public sewer on Converse place was adopted unanimously.

On motion of the chairman of the public safety committee, a request for the regulation of traffic at Squire street was withdrawn.

The tentative report of the zoning committee was received for record.

An application for the removal of a tree from in front of 26 Woodbridge street and for the hanging of a sign at 52 Prest street was referred to the city manager with power.

Mayor May asked for information as to what had been decided in reference to Bank street and was informed by the city manager that the plan proposed would be submitted soon, as would the plans for Green and Truman streets.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theatre.

There is good entertainment in "Stage Kisses," the Columbia Pictures' Production which will be shown at the Palace theatre today and tomorrow. A capable cast headed by Kenneth Harlan and Helene Chadwick and including such favorites as John Patrick, Phillips Smalley, Ethel Wales and Frances Raymond unfold the plot. In each case the players have been well cast and skillfully directed. The characterizations are built up with the touch of an artist.

The story is one of those simple, natural dramas which might occur in the lives of any group of persons moving in the environment in which this screen picture has been painted.

"Stage Kisses," is a picture which can be recommended to those who wish consistency of action and a variety of atmospheric backgrounds in their dramatic menu. It will hold the interest, create an element of suspense and above all, provide a good two hours of diversion in which the beholder will forget his own cares and worries in trying to solve the problems of the young couple who struggle against odds in a matrimonial venture.

Striking a new note in western dramas the co-feature Tom Tyler's newest production for F. B. O., "Out of the West," is a delightful combination of baseball and cowpunching. Against the usual background of desert, sagebrush and cowboys, is thrown an exciting and original story of two rival ranchers who pit their baseball teams against each other instead of the more conventional methods of "shooting it out" when differences arise.

Tom appears in the role of a wandering cowhand who is as good with a baseball as he is with a lariat.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Property Sold.

Through the agency of A. V. Covello, real estate agent, Mr. J. A. Fitzgerald sold his property located at 129 Cliff street to Angelo and Rose Chioda. The property consists of the four apartment house with all modern improvements. Mr. Chioda buys the property for investment.

New York Central's Calendar.

Broadway Theatre.

Capacity audiences are bestowing all manners of praise on the management of the Broadway theatre, for bringing back vaudeville to this popular playhouse. The five acts showing for the last times today are far superior to the usual vaudevile program and the picture entertainment, "The Love Lorn" starring Sally O'Neil, Molly O'Day and Larry Kent leaves nothing to be desired in the way of picture entertainment.

The feature screen attraction for the last three days of the week, brings to the Broadway screen, Adolphe Menjou in his latest Paramount production, "Serenade." In this picture Menjou is presented as Franz Rossi, struggling young Viennese composer, who finds in love the inspiration for a new operetta that sweeps him into tremendous success. The adulation of the public turns his head, the featured dancer of the opera company assisting toward his downfall. Katherine Carver, as Menjou's wife brings him to his senses, however, and succeeds in disposing of the other woman. It is truly a remarkable story with much pathos, leaving one with a sense of having seen something worth while.

The vaudeville program to be shown in conjunction with "Serenade" will feature five acts comprising the best talent available in vaudeville circles.

Breed Theatre.

"Colleen," Madge Bellamy's latest starring vehicle for Fox Films, will provide laughs, thrills and romance aplenty for all who see it. This picture will be shown at the Breed theatre today and Thursday as the main attraction of an excellent double feature program.

"Colleen" is the story of Irish hearts, Irish fortunes and Irish horses. Madge Bellamy is cast as demure Shiela Kelly, owner of the pedigreed race horse Nora, and daughter of a wealthy Irish landholder. She is in love with Terrance O'Flynn, last of an impecunious, though noble, Irish family, owner of "Colleen," Nora's only rival on the Irish turf.

The O'Flynns try to recoup their family fortunes in America by entering Colleen in the International sweepstakes. The Kellys, on discovering that their fortunes are also wiped out, decide to enter Nora in the race. From this point the story develops into a fight between the two families with the love of Sheila and Terrance in the balance.

Terrance, at the last minute, "throws" the race to Nora, but the family groups divide the purse.

J. Farrell Macdonald, Charles Morton, Sarah Padden, Tom Maguire, Marjorie Beebe, Sammy Cohen and Ted McNamara are also included in the cast. Frank O'Connor directed the production.

"The Bandit's Son," starring Bob Steele, the new western favorite, will be seen as the added feature on this bill.

As late as 1822 a lighthouse in England had an open coal fire as its tower light.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Old Farmer's Almanac.

The Old Farmer's Almanac, now in its 56th year, has been issued for 1928 with its usual fund of ready and useful information. It predicts continued cold and show for the month of January.

Strand Theatre.

"Hi-Jacking Rustlers," a story of western adventure taken from the frontier novel by Victor Rousseau, features the three pals, Jack Perrin, with "Starlight, the Wonder Horse," and "Rex, the Movie Collie." This is a real western thriller, full of action and has a plot that unfolds itself in many exciting adventures.

There is not a slow moment in the Tiffany production "One Hour of Love" now showing at the Strand. Jacqueline Logan and Robert Fraser, who play the leading roles are both excellent in their portrayals with the former bringing to the screen a rare beauty and winsome personality. The picture opens with the heroine engaged in a tennis game after she is beseiged by a society man to become his wife. She very reluctantly accepts him, and later meets a young engineer who is working for her father.

From the modest attempts 18 years ago to introduce polyglot policemen to Berlin, an estimable traffic squad of 130 conversant with foreign languages has grown. These linguistic officers are recognizable by red bands around their arms, on which are printed the languages they speak. Many of them learned their foreign languages abroad. French and English are the languages most often called on, but many also speak Russian and Polish.

POETRY

The Weight of Years

The sands of time are running, in imagination, through the glass.
The minutes and the hours and the days all quickly pass.
Yes, tempus keeps a-coasting, and the years do not come back:
The happy days of long ago will not return, alack!
And often I'm reminded, till I know it must be so,
That I am not any younger than I was a year ago.

Of course, I am not aged, but I'm growing old, perhaps,
And I've begun to notice how the years fly as they lapse.
I'm frequently reminded that I am no longer young,
Although my swan-song yet for sundry years may be unsung;
And now that I am thirty-six I tell you that I know
I am not any younger than I was a year ago!
—Somerville Journal

The Albatross

Time can not age thy sinews, nor the gale
Batter the network of thy feathered mail,
Lone sentry of the deep!
Among the crashing caverns of the storm,
With wing unfettered, lo! thy frigid form
Is whirled in dreamless sleep!

Where shall thy wing find rest for all its might?
Where shall thy lidless eye, that scours the night,
Grow blank in utter death?
When shall thy thousand years have stripped the bare,
Invulnerable spirit of the air,
And sealed thy giant-breath?

Not till thy bosom hugs the icy wave,—
Not till thy palsied limbs sink in that grave,
Caught by the shrieking blast
And hurled upon the sea with broad wings locked
On an eternity of waters rocked
Defiant to the last!
—Charles Warren Stoddard

HUMOR OF THE DAY

"What's an operetta?"

"Don't be dumb—it's a girl who works for the telephone company."—Texas Ranger.

Deckhand—"Man overboard!"

Victim—"You fool, what do you mean—man overboard? Judge Davis Richardson, Sr., is overboard."—Detroit News.

Court Officer—Do you swear to tell the truth, the whole truth—

Fair Witness—It will be perfectly lovely. If you really have time to listen.—Boston Transcript.

Actor—What do you charge for your rooms?

Landlady—From 30 shillings up.

"But I'm an actor."

"Then it's 30 shillings down."—Answers, London.

"Yes," said the gloomy one, "before we were married she used to say 'Bye-bye' so sweetly when I left her. Now it's 'buy-buy.'"

"Ah," said his friend, "she puts a different spell over you."—Pearson's.

"Alice is not a good listener."

"Why, I never knew her to interrupt."

"That is mere politeness. To be a good listener means something more than merely waiting until the other person is through."—Boston Transcript.

Three Scotsmen were seen to be quarreling in a tea shop.

A crowd assembled, but the Scotsmen took no notice. They were seen to toss a coin. One man, the loser, stood up and strode over to the counter. He ordered a cup of tea and three saucers.—Tit-Bits, London.

A little girl went to stay with her aunt, and gravely watched her saying her prayers the first morning. When the aunt rose to her feet again the child said:

"Auntie, do you say your prayers now as well as at bedtime?"

"Of course," said auntie, "don't you?"

"No, I say my prayers at bedtime and in the morning I do breathing exercises."—Twice Told Tales.

OFFICER CHARLES PERRY GOES ON RETIRED LIST AFTER LONG SERVICE

Charles L. Perry, for nearly 20 years a "regular" on the Norwich police force, was Tuesday night transferred to the veteran reserve at $82.50 a month at the January meeting of the court of common council. Officer Perry was for four and a half years a supernumerary police officer and July 1, 1899, was appointed a member of the regular police force. The greater part of his long service has been on the West Side night beat. His retirement becomes effective today (Wednesday) January 4th.

Mayor Milo R. Waters called the council meeting to order at 8:15 o'clock and the minutes of the last meeting were accepted without reading, according to custom.

City Clerk Weston C. Pullen read his certificate of publication on the amendments to the traffic ordinances, establishing a five-minute parking limit in front of the Dime Savings bank, Broadway, and establishing a no parking limit on West Thames street, from the city line, northerly to a point 210 feet southerly of Shipping street. Mayor Waters declared the hearings open. Frank L. Woodward, treasurer of the Dime Savings bank, spoke briefly in favor of the adoption of the amendment establishing the five minute parking limit in front of the bank. As no others appeared at the hearings to be heard, the hearings were declared closed. The council then adopted both amendments and ordered the amendments published according to law.

Petitions were received and disposed of as follows:

From Adams P. Carroll, et al, for the establishment of a grade for and the width of sidewalks on Carroll avenue. Referred to the public works committee.

The monthly reports of the street commissioner and the city treasurer were received and accepted.

The police commissioners reported that the petitions of Irene Gatrousir for a bug light on Golden street extension, of Wolfe Blinderman for an arc light on Thames street and of George Brense for a bug light on pole 2181, Corning road have been granted.

The quarterly cash statement of the water department and the quarterly report of the fire marshal were received and accepted, after which the public works committee recommended the adoption of a resolution establishing the grade for and the width of sidewalks on Carroll avenue, as petitioned for by Adams P. Carroll.

City Clerk Pullen then read a communication from Police Officer Charles L. Perry to the police commissioners asking that he be placed on the retired list. The police commissioners, in a report read by the city clerk, reporting on the application, stated they had voted to transfer Officer Perry to the veterans reserve at a monthly compensation of $82.50.

A quit claim deed from St. Joseph's Roman Catholic church transferring a strip of land to the city for highway purposes, in consideration of one dollar, was accepted. The strip of land deeded to the city is to be known as Cliff Court.

The council adopted a resolution requesting the city treasurer to pay to the state police the sum of $100, being one half of the fine paid by Tony Rodriquez to Deputy Sheriff Oscar H. Main and turned over by Sheriff Main to the city treasurer. The state police department is entitled to one half of the fine by law.

The council also adopted a resolution instructing the city treasurer to pay to Catherine A. Collins, the sum of $100 in full settlement of her claim against the city as the result of a fall on Broadway.

A quit claim deed from Adams P. Carroll, transferring to the city a strip of land to be used for highway purposes, in consideration of one dollar, was accepted, the strip of land to be known as Carroll avenue, it being an extension of Carroll avenue.

An invitation was received from Hourigan Post, No. 594, V. F. W., to attend a joint installation of the officers of Hourigan Post and the post auxiliary at the veterans' rooms, January 10th. The invitation was accepted.

City Clerk Pullen created considerable excitement when he announced that for the first time in the history of the city, Santa Claus was paying the council a visit. Impersonating Santa Claus, Mr. Pullen then distributed from a prettily decorated Christmas tree, an envelope to each member of the council. The envelopes contained the $5 monthly compensation paid each alderman and councilman. A rising vote of thanks was given Santa Claus for his thoughtfulness and generosity.

Department bills were approved as follows:

Public works dept., $12,628.71; police dept., $6,257.60; gas and electric dept., $50,572.12; park dept., $243.45; water dept., $4,128.93; cemetery dept., $480.93; Deep River reservoir, $12,504.80; recreation dept., $593.20; fire dept. $7,716.65; finance dept., $13,945.43. The council adjourned at 8:30 o'clock.

ANNUAL QUIET DAY BY COUNTY MINISTERS

The annual quiet day together for the ministry of New London county and vicinity was observed at the Church of the Good Shephard, No. 148 Broadway, by an all-day session Tuesday.

The morning devotional service was in charge of President Benjamin T. Marshall, D.D., of Connecticut college. The thought of the hour magnified the traits of expectancy; responsiveness; assurance and aspiration as primal elements in worship. Those straits, in their development, make the strong and radiant character which commands honor and esteem.

Lunch was served at 12:30 o'clock in the social rooms below. Divine Grace was invoked by Rev. J. Eldred Brown and at the short business session which followed the lunch, reports were read by the secretary, Rev. H. W. Hulbert, of Groton.

The afternoon session opened at 1:45 o'clock with organ music effectively rendered by Prof. J. Lawrence Erb, of the Music Department of Connecticut college.

The address of the afternoon on "Our Common Gospel," was given by Rev. Thomas Van Ness, of Boston. With apt illustration and felicitous expression the preacher—long time a leader in the religious circles of Boston—analyzed the elements which are shaping the gospel of our deeper love and faith.

As American life is very composite, he said, and the ideals of the present have resulted from the converging of numerous influences, so the survey of religious life from the high standpoint of today's activities shows the factors which are allied and are becoming merged into one strong and vital gospel. The intellectual Calvinism of the early Puritans was one of the primary elements; this was later followed by the symbolism brought from the mother church and later still the mysticism brought from the far east. Once the appeal to fear was common and even dominant; that has largely been displaced by the joyous and confidence of life. Our understanding tells how the thought of the world has been so vastly enlarged; our sympathies tell the new motives have changed selfishness into generosity and transformed the character of society. Adjustment and cooperation are key words in the progressive life of today; adjustment of the strong to the weak and the cooperation of all in the service of humanity. Below the sectarian differences which separate, are the factors contributed by the different peoples which are merging into ideal which shall command the loyalty of an ever increasing number of people.

The thoughtfulness of the address and the eloquence of the delivery won keen appreciation of the clerical attendants and the preacher was most warmly greeted at the close. The closing prayer was offered by Rev. Dr. D. A. Pitt and thus was closed a session of prayer and spiritual meditation of unusual helpfulness.

TALKED ON POLITICS TO WOMEN VOTERS

The Norwich League of Women Voters held its regular monthly meeting in Slater Hall annex Tuesday afternoon. Mrs. Charles Perkins Gilman spoke to an unusually large audience in a most delightful manner on Things to Think About.

Mrs. Gilman began by saying she would talk from a text taken from Webster's Unabridged dictionary and she then read the definition of politics. She said she would not go into details but deal more with politics concerning larger issues. It is a fault of the people that they can become more interested in things behind rather than looking forward and we are not as ready to cope with matters when they come up.

Mrs. Gilman contrasted the politics of a monarchy with those of a democracy and spoke of small democracies such as Switzerland and compared their problems with the greater problems of large democracies and she emphasized the need of personal intelligence rather than the need of leaders. She spoke of the benefit of starting the children in school with the idea of the forms of government enabling them to carry on when they are older.

Mrs. Gilman spoke of Christianity in relation to politics and of government as a service to do things for the people and as an organization for action for the good of the public. She then spoke of the functions of the government and of how swiftly they have increased. She also told of books which she hoped might be prepared dealing briefly with the chief items of interest of each town and of each state, from which we could learn from comparing one with another.

Other subjects which Mrs. Gilman touched on briefly were the child labor bill, party politics and birth control.

After her talk the subject was open to discussion and several interesting questions were brought up which she explained.

Preceding the talk a short business meeting was held with the president, Miss Audrey Gernon, presiding.

NORWICH TOWN

LEAGUE OF SERVICE ADOPTS CONSTITUTION

During the annual business meeting of the First Congregational church in the chapel, Monday evening, one of the important features brought up for discussion was the adoption of the constitution of the League of Service, as follows:

The name of this organization shall be the League of Service of the First Congregational church of Norwich, Conn.

The object of the league shall be to enlist the whole church and parish for active religious and philanthropic service, and to raise the project money for which the church is responsible.

The duty of the league shall be to have oversight of all its departments, call such union meetings as it deems best and present an annual report to the church.

The officers of the league shall be president, vice president, secretary, treasurer, and a chairman of each of the associated departments, and any other officers which may be deemed advisable. These officers shall be appointed annually by the church, shall perform the usual duties of their respective offices and together with the pastor of the church, ex-officio, shall constitute the executive committee of the league.

The departments of the League of Service shall be: The Men's department, the Woman's department, the Young People's department, the Children's department, the Cradle Roll, the Home department, the Literature department. These departments may be changed in name or number at the suggestion of the executive committee with the approval of the church.

Each department shall be independent in the selection of its committees, aside from the chairman, and in planning its activities, being willing however, to accept the final authority of the league and the church. Each department shall render an annual report to the league.

The league shall hold an annual meeting and other meetings at the call of the executive committee. The meetings of each department shall be held at the discretion of the chairman of that department.

At all meetings of the league or of the department for adults, the voting power shall be vested in all adult members of the church and parish present and wishing to vote. The control of the Children's and Cradle Roll departments shall be left to the discretion of their chairman.

This constitution may be amended by a majority vote of those present at the meeting duly called for the purpose, a ten day notice having been previously given.

SUSAN C. HYDE,
MRS. C. E. REEVES
MRS. H. L. YERRINGTON,
HENRY T. FRAZIER,
GURDON F. BAILEY,
Committee on Constitution.

Officers of the League of Service are: President, Henry T. Frazier; vice president, Arthur Avery; secretary Miss Mary Wattles; treasurer, Mrs. Sarah W. Chapin. The chairmen of the several branches comprise, Men's department, Frederick G. Ross; Woman's department, Mrs. Dwight W. Avery; Young People's department, Mrs. Burton W. Jopson; Children's department, Miss Jessie E. Hyde; cradle Roll, Miss Bernice Underwood; Home department, Mrs. Ronold Nelson; Literature department, Miss H. Louis Hyde.

The Week of Prayer, Norwich Town Methodist and Norwich Town Congregational churches uniting, opened at the latter church Tuesday evening. The visiting pastor, Rev. Albert E. Whitten, gave the address. At the Congregational church Thursday evening, the address will be by Rev. Charles E. Reeves. Rev. J. Harlow Graham, pastor of Trinity Methodist church, is to bring a message to the Norwich Town Methodist church Wednesday evening and Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey will have the message of the evening at the same church Friday.

At the annual meeting of the First Congregational church Monday evening, a rising vote of thanks was extended the choir for its faithful services, also to Deacon William R. Lathrop, for his recent liberal gift of money to this church. The pastor, Rev. Mr. Bailey, at the close, was also given a rising vote of thanks for his strenuous responsibility in conducting the lengthy meeting.

At the Sacred Heart church Monday morning at 8 o'clock, the pastor, Rev. Edward J. Quinn, celebrated an anniversary requiem high mass for the repose of the soul of Miss Maud La Moine, late of Yantic. There was a large attendance of relatives and family friends. Mrs. William A. Murphy was in charge of the musical part of the mass, during which the choir sang. At the offertory, Miss Mary Buckley sang De Profundis, and for a waiting hymn, she sang Abide With Me.

For the first Friday of the month at the Sacred Heart church, mass will be celebrated that morning at seven o'clock. For the convenience of those who have to report for work early, communion will be administered at 5:45. That evening at this church, there will be devotion in honor of the Sacred Heart of Jesus at 7:30.

Announcement was made Tuesday that Frederick H. Bushnell, of Huntington avenue, was still the valued superintendent of the Methodist Sunday school, to which office he was recently re-elected indefinitely. His assistant, Miss Theodora Brown, having resigned, her brother-in-law, Lewis Aldrich, was elected in her place, acting superintendent. Mr. Aldrich commenced his duties New Year's day. Supt. Bushnell has held this office for the past forty-three years. From now on Mr. Aldrich is to assume much of the responsibilities attached to this branch of church work.

The January meeting of Dorcas Home Missionary society of the Methodist church, is to be held Thursday afternoon, at the parsonage, on West Town street.

DIVERS RECOVER THREE BODIES FROM SUNKEN SUB

The Divers Carried the Bodies From the Engine Room, and They Were Raised Slowly to the Surface by Ropes—The Bodies Indicated That the Men Were Drowned Rather Then Suffocated—All Were Found on the Floor of the Compartment, and Were Fully Clothed—Divers Were Unable to Complete Their Search Before They Were Forced to Stop For the Day.

PROVINCETOWN, Mass., Jan. 4—(AP)—The sunken submarine S-4 today yielded the bodies of three of the forty men who lost their lives when the ship was rammed and sunk off Cape Cod eighteen days ago.

Divers, entering the hull this afternoon, carried the bodies from the engine room and from the ocean bottom they were raised slowly to the surface at the end of ropes lowered from the salvage ships on the surface.

With no attempts at identification, the bodies were placed in baskets and put aboard the destroyer Maury which started tonight for the navy yard at Boston. There they will be transferred to the naval hospital at Chelsea where identification will be made.

A naval academy class pin on one indicated the body was that of one of the five officers who were aboard. Another was a machinists' mate and the third apparently a chief petty officer.

Divers who recovered the bodies expressed the opinion there were no others in the engine room compartment. They did not succeed in completing their search, of the compartment, however, before they were forced to stop operations for the day.

Although there was no opportunity for a thorough medical examination the appearance of the bodies indicated the three men were drowned rather than suffocated. They bore little evidence of the long immersion in the water. All of the bodies were fully clothed and when found were on the floor of the compartment.

Joseph L. Eiben was the first diver to enter the submarine and the one who found the bodies. For several days everything had been practically in readiness for the divers to go into the hull through the hatch leading to the engine room and only weather conditions interfered. The sea was fairly calm this afternoon and C. L. Applegate was the first diver sent down. He opened the hatch but did not enter and was raised to the surface.

Eiben was then sent down with two other divers, R. C. Wilson and E. A. Mattox. While Wilson and Mattox remained on the deck beside the open hatch, Eiben slowly climbed down the ladder into the compartment. Almost immediately his foot struck the first body where it lay in a slight depression in the floor of the submarine some feet from the hatch and on the port somewhat aft the hatch and on the port side. A moment later, on the opposite side of the compartment he found the second body. The third was near the control room bulkhead farther forward.

Eiben then lifted each body up to the opening in the hull where the other divers raised it to the deck of the submarine. Wilson then entered the hull and aided Eiben and after the three bodies had been taken from the compartment the divers signalled for a line to be lowered. The bodies were attached and raised to a point about ten feet below the surface.

The three divers were then raised to the surface and a surf boat was sent from the diving ship Falcon, carrying the baskets which had been provided previously for the purpose. The bodies were lifted gently to the surface and immediately put in the baskets and covered with canvas. Each was marked with a tag, "Engine room 1," Engine room 2" and Engine room 3." These were the only identifications possible.

From the Falcon the bodies were transferred to the tender Bushnell where the baskets were covered with American flags. An armed guard was stationed beside them. Later they were removed to the destroyer Maury for the trip to Boston tonight.

Three other divers were sent down after the removal of the bodies. They were Tom Campbell, Frank Crilley and George Baker.

Campbell entered the engine room but had been inside only a few minutes when he tore the safety strap over his shoulder. To safeguard him against accident he was raised to the surface. During the process of the work weather conditions had grown less favorable and the other divers were lifted to the surface and operations were suspended.

The clothing the men wore gave comparatively little evidence, from a cursory examination, that would aid in identification. It was stained with oil and the bodies bore the marks of the normal undersea activities of the men—the dirt and oil of their tasks—but otherwise they appeared to have been uninjured and to have escaped suffering. The arms of one were folded as though he might have died while asleep.

The salt water and the low temperature of the sea at the bottom, much of the time only a few degrees above freezing, helped to preserve the bodies.

BODY IDENTIFIED AS THAT OF LIEUT. J. A. M'GINLEY

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 4—(AP)—One of the bodies recovered today from the sunken submarine S-4 has been identified as that of Lieut. Joseph A. McGinley, of Norristown, Pa., members of his family said tonight.

The widow of Lieut. McGinley, Mrs. Adeline Moore McGinley, and his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph J. McGinley, said they had received a telegram to this effect from naval officials in charge of the salvage operations at Provincetown, Mass. Mrs. McGinley said she would ask that her husband's body be interred with military honors in Arlington cemetery.

Lieut. McGinley was graduated from the naval academy at Annapolis with the class of 1921. He was married two years later and left an eight months old daughter besides his widow.

His presence on the S-4 at the time of the disaster was due to his having agreed to continue on sea duty so that the officer ordered to relieve him might spend Christmas at home. Previously Lieut. McGinley had been ordered to land duty at New London, Conn. He was 29 years old.

NAVAL COURT INQUIRY OF SINKING OF THE SUB S-4

BOSTON, Jan. 4—(AP)—The submarine S-4 had just completed her day's work of submerged trail runs when she was rammed and sunk by the coast guard destroyer Paulding off Provincetown on December 17, the naval court of inquiry investigating the loss of the vessel with her 40 officers and men were informed today.

The witness, the first to be called in the hearing which opened at the Boston navy yard today, was Lieut. Frank L. Worden, commander of the submarine S-8, sister ship of the S-4. Basing his opinion on the program of the S- which completed standardization trials on the Provincetown course just before the S-4 embarked on hers, Lieut. Worden said the submarine had finished her "spot" of three runs each over the measured mile, and was coming to the surface when the collision came.

The day was devoted largelyto technical description of submarines of the S type, but the witness went on record on several matters which have been much discussed since the S-4 disaster.

He said he did not believe it necessary to post a guard ship to warn surface craft when a submarine was operating submerged.

"It would be just one additional ship we would have to watch and keep clear of," he added.

NAVY EXTENDS THANKS TO COMMANDER ELLSBERG

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4—(AP)—The thanks of the navy was conveyed today to Commander Edward S. Ellsberg for directing diving operations on the submarine S-4. Secretary Wilbur, in a letter to him, characterized his service as a "patriotic and unselfish action."

Ellsberg who resigned from the navy after directing divers in the S-51 operations off Block Island in 1926, volunteered his services from his home in Westfield, N. J., after the S-4 sank off Provincetown on December 17.

COOLIDGE ASKS POWER TO INVESTIGATE S-4 DISASTER

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4—(AP)—In answer to the nation's question concerning the los of the S-4 with her forty officers and men, the administration took steps today to set in motion an investigation by a specially appointed commission.

Acting upon a suggestion of Secretary Wilbur, President Coolidge asked congress for authority to appoint three civilian experts and two retired naval officers to inquire into the disaster which Chairman Hale, of the senate naval committee, declared had stirred the country as had no other since the blowing up of the battleship Maine.

Identical resolutions to carry out the president's suggestion were introduced at once in the house and the senate with indications that final action would be taken within a few days.

Besides inquiring into the disaster itself, the commission would study and make recommendations for the improvement of devices to insure the future safety of the navy' submarine forces and to prevent so far as possible a repetition of the S-4 tragedy.

Under the resolutions the committee would be clothed with full power to subpoena witnesses, books and papers, take testimony under oath and perform all the other legal functions of a regularly constituted committee of congress. Its report would be made to congress through the president, insuring complete publicity for its findings and recommendations.

A SUIT FILED TO EXCLUDE THE KLAN FROM INDIANA

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Jan. 4.—(AP)—Attorney General Arthur L. Gillion climaxed his long fight against the Knights of the Ku Klux Klan in Indiana today with the filing of a suit asking its eviction from the state.

Gillion declared the klan was organized in Indiana to gain control of state politics and government. Cancellation of the certificate of admission, issuance of an injunction to prevent further activities of the klan and appointment of a receiver were asked in the suit.

The attorney general contended that the organization was admitted into the state under false and fraudulent representations by its officers as to its character, activities and business. He held further that the business and activities by it and its officers "have been and now are unlawful". He said the order now owes the state $10,000 in back taxes.

The klan was at the height of its political power when D. C. Stephenson was grand dragon in 1923. Evidence given the Marion country grand jury in its long investigation of the political situation was that the klan dictated policies of candidates and exchanged its support at the polls for certain promises exacted from the office seekers prior to the 1924 election. Stephenson, who had quit or had been ousted from the klan in 1924, was sentenced to life imprisonment for murder in 1925.

The "Knights of the Ku Klux Klan, a foreign corporation," Hiram W. Evans, imperial wizard, and Joseph M. Ruffington, grand dragon of the Indianapolis klan, were named as defendants in the suit.

The attorney general asked that all the assets and property of the klan be seized and held for the payment of taxes and other claims.

BROTHER AND SISTER WERE BURNED TO DEATH

COTTER, Ark., Jan. 4.—(AP)—Frank Floyd, 16, Velma Farlin, 14, and her five year old brother were burned to death today when fire destroyed the T. C. Farlin home eight miles west of Cotter, bringing the child fire victim toll in Arkansas today to eight. Velma rescued three younger children but was trapped when she sought to save her brother. Farlin, Charles Floyd and his daughter, Edna, escaped.

Five children of W. G. Denby, near Little Rock, were burned to death in a fire which destroyed their farm home early today.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

PARIS, Jan. 4—(AP)—A Havas agency dispatch from Berlin says the semi-official Wolff agency has announced that Germany will participate in the proposed Franco-American treaty of non-aggression if invited.

BERLIN, Jan. 5.—(AP)—Three persons were killed and seventeen are known to have been injured in a violent explosion which wrecked and set afire a house in the northern part of the city shortly after midnight.

NICARAGUAN POLICY ATTACKED IN CONGRESS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—(AP)—The announced policy of the Coolidge administration to reinforce marine detachments in Nicaragua and co-operate fully in the establishment of order there was challenged on the floors of the house and senate today by democratic and independent republican demands that the marines be withdrawn.

The challenges came less than 24 hours after the state department had explained emergency orders dispatching 1,000 additional marines to Nicaragua by the flat declaration that the Washington government "fully intends" to carry out the terms of the Stimson agreement for American supervision of the Nicaraguan presidential election this year.

Referring to recent hostilities in Nicaragua which have cost the lives of six American marines, Representative Huddleston, democrat, Alabama, declared it the "administration's and not the American people's war."

"You cannot have free ballot boxes at home and marines dictating at the ballot boxes in foreign countries," he said.

In the senate the challenge went unanswered by regular republicans but in the house two of the majority party, Representatives Begg, of Ohio, and Wainwright, of New York, a former assistant secretary of war, resented any implication that the administration was engaged in war.

"This isn't a war," declared Begg. "This is preserving the peace and protecting the lives of nationals of other countries because there is no stable government there. The United States is protecting the peace of the world."

SUFFERING IN ENGLAND FROM FLOOD CONDITIONS

LONDON, Jan. 4,—(AP)—Cities and towns in Kent are reported to be the chief sufferers tonight from the flood conditions which prevail with greater or lesser distress in all the valley in the southern and midland counties of England.

In Canterbury scores of families have been driven from their homes by the invading waters, while the inhabitants of Dartford are living in a state of siege in the upper stories of their homes as the River Darenth sends torrents through the streets and floods the lower floors.

Conditions in many towns in the upper valleys are improving, but the peak of the overflows has not yet been reached in the lower Thames and other major drainage basins.

The River Thames is more than four feet above normal, having risen a foot during the night, and the situation is officially described as alarming.

BREAK IN THE COLD WAVE IN THE SOUTH

ATLANTA, Jan. 4.—(AP)—Dixie began to thaw out tonight although king weather was reluctant to relax his four day grip, the tightest hold he has had on the southland since January, 1924.

The south for the most part was still generally chilly but weather forecasts for tomorrow promised rapid moderation except in the coastal sections of South Carolina, Georgia and parts of Florida. These sections will have to wait another 12 hours for relief.

The toll of the ice seige in the south was 11 lives and as yet unestimated damage to tender winter crops. To the ten deaths reported up to yesterday was added the death of a Negro in Jacksonville, Fla., today.

Temperatures in southern cities today ranged upward except in Florida. Nashville reporting 8, Atlanta and Birmingham 12, Memphis 16, Little Rock and Montgomery 18, and Mobile 24. Above freezing temperatures were forecast for tomorrow and tomorrow night for these points.

NEW DIRIGIBLE TO MAKE OCEAN FLIGHT IN SPRING

LONDON, Jan. 4.—(AP)—The new dirigible passenger liner R-100 will make its inaugural Atlantic flight this spring.

Commander Charles Burney, managing director of the Airship Guarantee company, announced today he will sail for New York January 11 to complete landing arrangements for the huge craft.

Passengers already are making reservations, it was said, and the fare is expected to be about 120 pound approximately $700). The R-100 has accommodations for 100 passengers for its trans-Atlantic voyage, and 10 tons of mail.

The R-100 is being built at a cost of about $2,300,000. It is equipped with six six-cylinder Rolls-Royce engines of 700 horsepower each and can reach a speed of 80 miles an hour. The crusing range will be more than 5,000 miles. The dirigible will carry 34 tons of fuel.

SEC'Y WORK ENDORSES THE BOULDER CANYON DAM BILL

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4—(AP)—The Swing-Johnson Boulder Canyon Dam bill was endorsed today by Secretary Work. He said he had been advised by Director Lord of the budget bureau that the proposed $125,000,000 expenditure would be in harmony with President Coolidge's fiscal plans unless tax reduction exceeded materially what the treasury regards as a safe cut in revenue.

WEATHER MODERATING IN THE MIDDLE WEST

CHICAGO, Jan. 4—(AP)—Weather in the middle west continued to moderate today, reaching 22 degrees above zero in Chicago.

The severe winter's storm that swept across the middle west the past week end today has crossed the Appalachian mountains, the weather bureau reported.

REAPPOINTED HARBOR MASTER AT STONINGTON

HARTFORD, Jan. 4.—(AP)—James H. Weeks, of Stonington, was reappointed harbor master at Stonington harbor today by Governor Trumbull to serve three years from January 20.

Mother and Sister to Aid Hickman Defense

Plan Revealed Yesterday by Jerome Walsh, Attorney For the Accused.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 4.—(AP)—The mother and sister of William E. Hickman will [illegible] in his defense here the [illegible] hence when the youth's trial begins in connection with a confessed kidnaping and slaying of Marian Parker.

Plans to bring the mother, Mrs. Eva Hickman, and her daughter, Mary, 17, here from Kansas City, Mo., were revealed today by Jerome Walsh, attorney for the accused youth.

Charles E. Edwards, former chief of police of Kansas City, also will be a defense witness, Walsh said. Edwards has been advisor to the Hickman family and is familiarly known as "Cap" to the 19-year-old slayer.

While Hickman's attorneys, granted three weeks to prepare his case instead of the 35 days which he requested yesterday from Superior Judge Carlos Hardy, went about marshalling defense forces, legal authorities thumbed the state's most recent statutes pertaining to insanity defenses.

Hickman's plea of "not guilty by reason of insanity," was interpreted by the court as a plea of guilty to the two counts of kidnaping and murder, making it necessary to hold a trial to determine guilt. Debates over the laws' reaction should Wash attempt to prove that Hickman was sane at the time of the crime, but insane now, were frequent today.

Indictments against Hickman and Welby Hunt, Alhambra boy, charging murder of C. Ivy Thoma, a druggist, are to be asked from the grand jury. Both have confessed they staged the holdup of a drugstore in the suburb of Rosehill during which Thoma was killed.

The insanity hearing of Hickman, which Judge Hardy yesterday set for January 25, was viewed today as the probable beginning of a long legal fight by the youth's counsel to save him from the gallows. Prosecuting attorneys have frequently declared they would demand the death penalty in explation for the murder of the Parker girl, whose mutilated body was delivered to her father after he paid $1,500 ransom.

ADVANCE IN PRICE OF COMMON STOCK N. H. ROAD

NEW YORK, Jan. 4—(AP)—Common stock of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad advanced more than $2 a share on the New York Stock exchange today to 64 5-8, the highest price since 1916, on unconfirmed reports that directors of the road, at their meeting next Tuesday, would authorize a resumption of dividends. There is some difference of opinion as to whether the initial payment will be a the rate of $3 or $4 annually.

No dividends have ben paid on New Haven common for nearly fifteen years, the last payment being 1 1-2 per cent on September 30, 1913. The stock had paid 8 per cent yearly from 1896 to 1912, and 10 per cent prior to that, being regarded throughout New England at that time as a high grade investment issue.

DISABLED PLANE LANDED BY CAREFUL HANDLING

LEE, Mass., Jan. 4.—(AP)—Careful maneuvering of his airplane which developed engine trouble, while 5,000 feet in the air five miles east of here, enabled Donald Corwin, a formr army flier, to make a forced landing on the Shaylor farm on Golden Hill today. Corwin was on his way from Hartford to Albany with Clayton Hammond as a passenger. One wing and the carriage of the plane were damaged in the landing.

CASTS REFLECTION ON PHILADELPHIA POLICE

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 4.—(AP)—Philadelphia would be without a police force if all the "grafting cops" were discharged, Mayor Harry A. Mackey asserted tonight.

The mayor made the assertion in announcing that he had deferred his threatened "police house-cleaning," and that the patrolmen would be given an opportunity to make good.

"If we started to cull out the men who went wrong there would be none left," he declared.

Round of Receptions For Col. Lindbergh

Special Session of Honduras Congress Was Called to Honor Good-Will Aviator.

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras, Jan. 4.—(AP)—Clerk and proprietor, barber high officials stepped from behind counter, chair and desk to pay tribute today to America's flying ambassador Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh, as he came, fresh and rested, from the American legation at an early hour this morning to begin a round of receptions never before in the history Honduras accorded a foreigner. Every store was closed, pine needles carpeted the main street and the residents, in gala attire, waved flags and cried their welcome.

From beginning to end it was a busy day. At 9 o'clock the flyer appeared at the presidential palace. An hour later he was in the halls of congress, halls which have become familiar to him since he flew from Washington. Then he appeared at the city hall, and later at a dinner at the Country club.

At the special session of congress this afternoon, called for the purpose of honoring the youthful aviator, General Tiburcio Carlas, president of the house, addressed him as follows:

"Colonel Lindbergh, it affords me great pleasure to welcome you to this land where all feel the deepest sympathy toward your country and the greatest admiration for the epic flights, constituting your great accomplishment as the foremost triumph of the science of aviation. The feats achieved by you are the pride not only of your own country, but of mankind as a whole. Your visit to our country strengthens the bonds of friendship existing between the great North American nation and the sister republic. Your visit means the most cordial reapproachment between the two nations.

"The national congress of Honduras joins with the Honduran people in their manifestations of extreme joy and enthusiasm, deeming it a great honor to pay you sincere homage, thus joining with the other Latin-American countries which have bestowed upon you honors which a hero fuly deserves.

"Colonel Lindberg, I greet and welcome you in behalf of the national congress. At the same time, through you, I extend my salutations to your country which is at this moment so worthily represented by you, in whom we see a true symbol of the prestige of your country and the greatness of your race, welcome to our land."

LINDBERGH WILL RETURN TO MANAGUA, NIC., TODAY

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, Jan. 4.—(AP)—Nicaragua awaits the arrival of Colonel Lindbergh expectantly. He will reach the capital, it is believed, tomorrow from Tegucigalpa. Days ago houses and streets were lavishly decorated with flags and bunting and banners are flying bearing all kinds of inscriptions in tribute to the daring aviator.

There will be thousands at the field to welcome the flier and many more thousands will cry his praises as he proceeds through the thoroughfares of Managua to meet President Diaz and later as he proceeds to the national palace. The school children of Nicaragua are prepared to give their favorite hero as enthusiastic a welcome as he has had in any of the other republics. They will gather at the flying field and sing for him—The Star Spangled Banner and their own national anthem. Bands will blare forth their music and flowers will carpet the way as he passes.

Some of the banners read: "Ambassador of Peace and Good Will;" "All Nicaraguans Welcome the Envoy of Progress and International Ambassador Without Portfolio;" "The Eagle of the United States."

The thirteen departments of Nicaragua will be represented by special banners. Gun salutes will be fired every hour from the aviation field, and the Nicaraguan national guard, under General E. R. Beadle, will keep order.

25,000 APPLICATIONS OF VETS CAME TOO LATE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4—(AP)—In the deluge of last minute applications from World war veterans for adjusted compensation, the deadline for which was reached at midnight Jan. 1, approximately 25,000 applications came too late and cannot be considered.

The figures show that approximately 400,000 veterans entitled to such adjusted compensation have not taken advantage of their opportunity to have never been heard from.

MADE NON-STOP FLIGHT NEW YORK CITY TO MIAMI

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 4—(AP)—Accompanied by Harry Rogers and Major K. M. Lee, Miss Ruth Nichols completed a nonstop airplane flight from New York city to Miami at 8:14 p. m. tonight. The flight was made in a five seater pontoon monoplane. It was the first nonstop flight between the two cities.

U. S. MARINES ARE EXPECTING AN ATTACK BY NICARAGUAN OUTLAWS

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, Jan. 4.—(AP)—American marines and Nicaraguan national guardsmen holding the town of Quilali are on the lookout for an attack by the rebel, General Augustino Sandino, who is believed to be waiting a favorable opportunity.

Particular care is being taken to prevent a surprise attack upon marine patrols, pack trains, and reinforcements which are being sent daily to Ocotal, which is the distribution center supplying Quilali and the rest of the embattle region.

The very quiet of the situation has put the marines on guard as there have been no indications of rebel movement since the marines lost one man killed and five wounded in a counter-attack Sunday.

Sandino is understood to have established a republic last July, in Nueva Segovia, after other liberal generals laid down their arms in compliance with an agreement negotiated by Henry L. Stimson, President Coolidge's personal envoy. He is said to have changed the name of San Fernando to Sandino, coined some money, and established prohibition in territory under his control. The penalty for selling liquor was prescribed as death for a man and burning of her property for a woman.

General Sandino refused to accept the Stimson pact at the time General Jose Maria Moncada, liberal leader, and others laid down their arms as he maintained the liberals had been forced by the United States to sign it. He fled Nueva Segovia and began committing depredations which won for him the name of bandit and assassin even from members of his own party. He has, however a following among the uneducated peons who consider him a hero for defying the Nicaraguan government and the United States forces. Among these sympathizers there is secret rejoicing when Sandino is reported to have killed any marine or government troops.

HOW GOV. AL. SMITH TREATED THE PROHIBITION QUESTION

In His Message to the New York Assembly Gov. Smith Urged Adoption of an Amendment to the New York State Constitution That No Amendment to the Federal Constitution Be Ratified by Future Legislatures Until It Had Been Approved by a Referendum—Declared For a Strict Observance and Enforcement of the Prohibitory Laws—No Legislation Affecting Prohibition Was Suggested.

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 4.—(AP)—The work accomplished since his first inauguration together with 29 specific recommendations for legislature during the present session were outlined by Governor Alfred E. Smith in a 99-page message which launched the legislature on its 1928 voyage today.

Most of the recommendations were repetitions of policies advocated by him for several years which have been repeatedly defeated by the republican majorities in the legislature.

Among them were requests for state developments and control of undeveloped water power by a state water power authority; abolition of the motion picture consorship; restoration of the direct primary; four-year term for governor with gubernatorial elections between presidential elections; biennial sessions of the legislature; extension of towns, villages and cities of the provisions of the city home rule laws, and giving municipalities control over public utilities operating within their borders.

The message, in its consideration of the broad question of prohibition, urged adoption of an amendment to the state constitution to provide that no amendment to the federal constitution be ratified by future legislatures until it had been approved by a referendum. The message also contained a declaration for strict observance and enforcement of the prohibitory laws. No legislation affecting prohibition was suggested.

Senator Bernard Downing and Assemblyman Maurice Bloch, the democratic floor leaders of the legislature, endorsed the message as an historic document which would be read with interest by democrats and students of government throughout the nation. Senator John Knight, republican leader of the upper house, said that the governor was claiming credit for accomplishments that were made possible only by the action of the republican legislature.

The session got under way very quietly and promptly, and with only a slight trace of the activities about the lobbies that usually mark its opening.

No bills were introduced in the assembly, although several were introduced in the senate.

$6,000,000 GRUBSTAKE HAS BEEN RETURNED TO FRIEND

CLEVELAND, O., Jan. 4—(AP)—A "grubstake" of $6,000,000 which saved Frank A. Seiberling, president of the Seiberling Rubber company from financial ruin a year ago, has been returned by the rubber magnate to his devoted friend, Edgar B. Davis, New York financier.

The story of the Damon and Pythias—like friendship between these two men, who in times of threatened disaster staked each other in enterprises that eventually made them both wealthy, came out of the financial world today.

They met in New York twenty years ago, Seiberling was head of Goodyear Tire & Rubber company and Davis was president of the United States Tire & Rubber company.

Davis went to Sumatra to build up rubber plantations and for ten years the friends were parted. When Davis returned he put his entire fortune into Texas oil fields. But he struck no oil. Hard pressed for money and possessed of an instinctive feeling that he was bound to "hit," Davis appealed to Seiberling, who loaned him $57,000. Davis did "hit" and sold out to Standard Oil for $12,000,000.

But while fortune smiled on him thus, his friend Seiberling faced a crisis in the rubber industry and in 1920 found himself out of Goodyear and virtually "broke." Seiberling organized a new venture, the Seiberling Rubber company. After it had struggled along six years without making headway, Davis remembered that old "grubstake" of $57,000. He loaned Seiberling $500,000 cash and underwrote his notes for $5,500,000.

Last year Seiberling Rubber went sky high, returned a net profit of $1,356,707 and Seiberling was ready to pay back. A few days ago in the offices of local attorneys he retrieved the notes and Davis was released as guarantor.

"He's a real fellow," Seiberling said of Davis. "He refused to accept any interest."

MEXICAN DOCUMENTS PRONUONCED FRAUDULENT

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—(AP)—The Mexican documents published in Hearst newspapers were pronounced "spurious" today by five handwriting experts, three of them employed by Mr. Hearst, in reports submitted to the senate investigating committee.

Called to the stand after submission of the reports, Miguel Avila, procurer of the documents, insisted he still believed them authentic but added the experts' findings might indicate otherwise.

Avila quickly explained he never had examined the documents, one of which purported to show the creation of a $1,215,000 found for four United States senators. He reiterated that he saw some of them removed from official files in Mexico City but had no idea what was in the papers. The documents, he said, were turned over by him to John Page, a Hearst reporter, without any inspection of their contents whatever by him and he did not know what was in them until they were reprinted in the Hearst newspapers.

Besides long, detailed reports of Mr. Hearst's experts declaring the documents ungenuine, it was revealed that the committee had received similar reports from two handwriting experts of its own whose names were not divulged.

COUNSEL FOR SINCLAIR THREATEN CIVIL ACTION

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4—(AP)—Striking back at the federal grand jury that charged Harry F. Sinclair, William J. Burns and five associates with a conspiracy to obstruct justice, counsel for Sinclair announced today that they were considering "serious civil action" against the members of the jury based on the fact that no indictments were returned to support the allegations.

As a preliminary step toward the contemplated action a motion was filed in the supreme court of the District of Columbia to expunge from the court records all mention of a presentment returned by the grand jury last Friday. The presentment was returned after District Attorney Gordon had declined to draw up indictments, based on it.

FIVE CHILDREN BURNED TO DEATH; FATHER ARRESTED

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Jan. 4—(AP)—W. G. Dendy, whose five children were burned to death when his home near here was destroyed by fire today, was arrested tonight on instructions of the prosecuting attorney and placed in jail on a charge of arson.

TWO INFANTS DROWNED BY THEIR GRANDMOTHER

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Jan. 4—(AP)—Two infants met a tragic death in the bathtub of their home here today when police said the grandmother of the two children, Mrs. Clara McNeil Irwin, drowned them during what was believed to have been a fit of temporary insanity. The aged woman also drowned herself.

One of the infants, Elizabeth Reed Schonle, 20 months old, was found dead on a table in the bath room by the mother, Mrs. Horace Schonle, when she returned from a club meeting late today. The other child, Irene Schonle, five and one half years old, was found under the body of her grandmother in the overflowing bath tub.

According to members of the family the aged woman's husband died about a year ago and since that time she had suffered fits of despondency but her condition was never thought to be serious. Horace Schonle is a chemist employed by Eli Lilly and Company, internationally known chemists.

The mother left the children in the grandmother's care at 3 o'clock this afternoon. When she returned at four p. m. she was unable to raise any answer to calls. She found the bodies a short time later when she entered the bath room.

The coroner pronounced the children dead by drowning and the grandmother dead by drowning through suicide.

MACNIDER RESIGNS AS ASSISTANT SEC'Y OF WAR

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4—(AP)—The long expected resignation of Assistant Secretary Hanford MacNider of the war department materialized today and President Coolidge immediately nominated another Iowan, Charles Burton Robbins, of Cedar Rapids, to succeed him.

The resignation of MacNider, who first came into prominence as national commander of the American Legion, was accompanied by an interchange of complimentary letters between him and the president. In which Mr. Coolidge took cognizance of the assistant secretary's desire to return to business pursuits.

Like his predecessor, Robbins was state commander of the Iowa American Legion. He is a lawyer and a business man and has been active in Iowa republican politics. He served in the Spanish-American and World wars, has been a judge of the Cedar Rapids superior court, and is now serving as president of the Cedar Rapids Life Insurance company.

MacNider expects to return to his home in Mason City where his father, Charles H. MacNider is a leading Iowa financier, to re-enter the banking business.

PHANTOM STABBER GOT TWO VICTIMS IN HARTFORD

HARTFORD, Jan. 4—(AP) — The phantom stabber has two victims in this city, the police made known tonight.

Besides Mrs. Elinor Olsen, who was attacked near her home last night, the stabber has plunged his sharp weapon into the breast of Miss Bertha Talmadge, 19, of 11 Benton street. Miss Talmade was wounded on the evening of December 29, at 9.40 o'clock, almost two weeks to the minute previous to the stabbing of Mrs. Olsen. Police suppressed the news, they said, at the request of Miss Talmadge.

COUPLE UNDER GUARD FEARING MOB VIOLENCE

GREENUP, Ky., Jan. 4—(AP)—Fearing mob violence for R. H. Pitts and his housekeeper, Mrs. Marie Frasher, held in connection with the death of Pitts' three year old daughter, Greenup county officials threw a heavy guard about the jail tonight.

An inquest verdict found that the child, Mary Magdalena, died from injuries suffered when she was whipped severely. Mrs. Frasher accused Pitts of beating the child with six willow switches last Thursday. The girl died that night.

Chemists at Lexington, Ky. today began an analysis of the girl's stomach to determine whether she was poisoned.

GOV. SMITH NOT TO ATTEND THE JACKSON DAY DINNER

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—(AP)—Governor Smith of New York has declined to attend the Jackson day dinner to be given by the democratic national committee here on Jan. 12, but it was not apparent tonight to what extent his decision may upset the plans of party leaders for a general get-together.

BREAK IN WATER MAIN CAUSES MUCH INCONVENIENCE

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Jan. 4.—The few remaining active wells in the city did a thriving business for about two hours this morning when water was shut off from a considerable part of the city as a result of a break in the new 12-inch main on Pleasant street, near the Elks' home. The nature of the break has not as yet been determined as excavations at the scene are still in progress.

The hill section and Jackson street and adjoining thoroughfares were first affected by lack of water, these sections being supplied by the new main which was installed less than a year ago. It is believed that the break occurred about five o'clock as the pressure was good at that hour but no water could be drawn from faucets 15 minutes later. Water, pouring out through the break, flooded part of Pleasant street and overflowed to the grounds of the W. H. Peckham residence. While some of the water flowed into the river in the rear of the Peckham home, much of it flooded into the cellar of the house and caused damage.

There was much confusion in households, especially in the homes of mill workers as repeated attempts to draw water for bathing and cooking proved fruitless. Many believed that the water pipes in the house had frozen and much time was spent in trying to thaw them out. Plumbers received innumerable telephone calls.

Word of the trouble finally reached Superintendent of Water Works Henderson S. Moulton and he started an immediate investigation. It was found that water bubbled out of Pleasant street in two places, about 40 feet from each other, and fear was expressed that both the old and new mains had burst. A shut-off was made on the old main. Work was then started to excavate the new main and the full flow of water was directed from the pumping station reservoir through the old main. This served to gradually restore the supply. While the water pressure was low, Fire Chief Henry J. Kelley was in conference with Superintendent Moulton, as the condition constituted a hazard to the city in case of fire.

The unexplained lack of water pressure and the impossibility of ascertaining when it would be returned to normal caused officials of the Holland Silk Manufacturing company to give the operatives a day's vacation today.

COMMUNITY HOTEL SHOWS PROFIT FOR THE PAST YEAR

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Jan. 4.—A substantial gain in the operation of the Nathan Hale hotel is shown in a financial statement just issued by the directors of the hotel; William P. Jordan, James B Fullerton, George S. Elliott, Pierre J. Laramee, William F. Kirkpatrick, Leslie F. Hartson, John F. Ahern, Louis A. Kingsbury, Walter L. Bell and J. Leslie Kincaid. The report, issued to the stockholders of the Community Hotels corporation, owner of the hotel, covers a period of 14 months, dating from the opening of the hotel in September, 1926, to November 30 1927. There was a profit of $501.31 during the year 1927, as compared to the four months of 1926 when there was a deficit of $5,807.57 The profit reduces the deficit of the 14 months to $5,306.26. Earnings from the hotel have made it possible not only to meet current bills when due but additional expenses not a part of the original contract, such as window awnings, door screens, barber shop equipment, tile floor for the drug store and outside grading.

The following is the statement of the directors: Assets, (current) cash on hand, $4,457.19; accounts receivable $868.35; inventories, $2,964.11; total, $8,289.65; (fixed) land, $80,365.98; buildings, $214,549.03; furniture and fixtures, $49,366.33; total, $352,570.25; less reserve for depreciation, $3,877.25; making a total fixed assets $349,193.74; to which is added prepaid and deferred accounts making the total assets $375,166.73. Liabilities (current and accrued), accounts payable, $5,428.50; notes payable, $35,100; accrued accounts, $6,328.19; total, $46,856.99; (fixed) bonds, $128,000; capital stock $204,715; deficit, $5,306.26; total $375,166.73.

The directors appended to their report a note expressing appreciation for having secured the American Hotels corporation of New York to operate the hotel and especially of having secured Daniel F. Daley as manager. Manager Daley's courtesy and efficiency are highly praised in the supplementary remarks. Note is also made of the host of friends which the Nathan Hale hotel has made for Willimantic. There is also filed with the report a letter from General J Leslie Kincaid, president of the American Hotels corporation congratulating the success of the hotel, an achievement made despite the fact that the past season was one of the worst automobile touring seasons experienced in New England in five or six years.

Wolfe Rosen, who has conducted a gents' furnishing store at 773 Main street in the Hibbard block for several years past, has filed a petition in bankruptcy in the United States court at New Haven. The schedule shows liabilities of $9,558.97 and assets of $4,012. The unsecured claims against the clothing man total $2,641 Prior to entering the clothing business, Mr. Rosen conducted a tailor shop here for many years.

Miss Sabra S. Stoughton, retiring noble grand, was presented with appropriate gifts at an installation meeting of Violet Rebekah Lodge, No. 57, I. O. O. F., held in Odd Fellows' hall Tuesday evening. Miss Stoughton was presented with a collar by the lodge and her many friends in the lodge gave her a past noble grand's jewel and a five-dollar gold piece. Miss Stoughton worked untiringly during her term of office and was successful in bringing the lodge to a new high standing. Through her efforts a total of 32 new members were added to the roll of the lodge during her term and there has been a corresponding increase in the interest of the entire membership in all of the phases of lodge work. The treasury is now in excellent condition. The installation of officers for the year was conducted by Miss Sadie E Curley of this city and suite. Miss Curley was presented with a gold piece in appreciation of her services.

Louis Laginsky, 42, of New Haven, was arraigned in the Coventry town court Tuesday on charges of attempting to bribe an officer and driving a car without a registration. He was fined $35 and costs, amounting to $47.82, which he paid. The arrest was made last Sunday by State Policeman K. W. Stevens of the Stafford Springs barracks who found the accused driving a car equipped with 1927 markers. Laginsky offered the officer a five dollar bill "if the offense was overlooked." In court Laginsky pleaded guilty. Justice of the Peace Albert M. Gilman said that he was being lenient in the attempted bribery charge when he imposed a fine of $25 on that count and ten dollars on the motor vehicle law violation. Grand Juror Robert G. Brooke prosecuted the case.

Stops Coughs Quickly—healing demulcent

"I was bothered with a hard persistent cough, but found no other remedy so good and so quickly relieving as Foley's Honey and Tar Compound," says E. Boggess, Pomona, Calif. Coughs and throat irritations, hard bronchial coughs, lingering "flu" coughs, almost instantly stopped. It combines the curative influence of pure pine tar and the mollifying demulcent action of fresh clear honey with other healing ingredients. A boon to those who suffer from troublesome night coughs. Ask for Foley's Honey and Tar Compound.

Mother!

Child Gets Sick, Cross, Feverish if Constipated

Mother! Your child isn't naturally cross and peevish. See if tongue is coated; this is a sure sign the little stomach, liver and bowels need a cleansing at once.

When listless, pale, feverish, full of cold, breath bad, throat sore, doesn't eat, sleep or act naturally, has stomach-ache, diarrhoea, remember, a gentle liver and bowel cleansing should always be the first treatment given.

Nothing equals "California Fig Syrup" for children's ills; give a teaspoonful, and in a few hours all the foul waste, sour bile and fermenting food which is clogged in the bowels passes out of the system, and you have a well and playful child again. All children love this harmless, delicious, "fruity laxative," and it never fails to effect a good "inside cleansing." Directions for babies, children of all ages and grown-ups are plainly on the bottle.

Keep it handy in your home. A little given today saves a sick child tomorrow, but get the genuine. Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Fig Syrup," then see that it is made by "The California Fig Syrup Company."

Announcing

The VICTORY SIX

BY DODGE BROTHERS

From an engineering standpoint The Victory is radically new, radically different and thoroughly original—is literally years ahead of its time in many vital features.

In a very real sense, too, it compares with no other car or class, because NO car, either here or abroad, provides features that are comparable. To enjoy these advantages you must buy THIS car, for elsewhere they simply do not exist.

Revolutionary New Principles of Design

1. For the first time since the invention of the automobile, the chassis and body of The Victory are a single integral unit—the wide, deep Victory chassis frame, flush with the lines of the body, replaces the customary body sills. (Heretofore, the body was mounted on a sill and both in turn mounted on the chassis.)

2. For the first time in history, battleship construction (i.e., double steel walls) is here applied to the motor car.

Spectacular Performance

The results of these, and other basic innovations are astonishing in their effect on every phase of motor car value; beauty, comfort, safety, strength and most impressive and important of all—performance itself.

With chassis and body a single unit, there are 330 fewer parts—175 pounds less weight—and an extremely low center of gravity.

The results are greater motor efficiency—increased power—quicker pick-up—greater stability and flexibility in relation to load—an easier car to handle—a faster car to drive!

21 miles to the gallon at 25 miles per hour is precisely what you can expect—with sustained high speed all day long at instant call!

Drive over cobbles and await the usual discomfort—it will never occur! The Victory is the smoothest riding car, for its type, ever built.

Safe, Strong and Stable

Because the chassis frame conforms precisely with the body lines—and because of the car's low center of gravity (weight close to the ground) The Victory is remarkably stable—tipping, skidding and swaying are reduced to a point positively negligible!

Turn a sharp corner and you will understand!

And the double steel walls mean double protection in case of accident—double the safety of any type yet known. A staunch body, with doors that close with a substantial and non-metallic snap.

Quiet and Comfortable

The aim of all engineering is simplicity, for simplicity means economy—strength—SILENCE. There are only 8 major parts in The Victory body—and they are welded into a single unit. Not a joint to squeak or rattle. A silent body.

And Dodge Brothers powerful new six-cylinder motor—specially engineered for The Victory—preserves this luxurious quietness at all speeds.

A Car of Striking Beauty

Body and chassis built as a single unit—without the customary body sill—permits lower over-all height with liberal head-room and road-clearance.

Splash shields, a constant source of noise and annoyance are replaced by the wide, deep Victory chassis frame; wide, heavy-gauge one-piece fenders and drum-type head-lamps are provided. Upholstery, hardware, instruments, color combinations and other appointments satisfy the most exacting demands of style and good taste.

Indeed, you have a distinct and thrilling impression that the car in which you are riding is long, low, swift and safe—a car of surpassing originality and smartness down to the smallest detail.

KILLINGLY'S GRAND LIST SHOWS INCREASE OF $20,296

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Jan. 4—The assessors of the town of Killingly today made known the total of the new grand list they have completed, based on lists submitted as of October 1 last. The grand total this year is $7,151,144, less exemptions of $110,970, making the net grand total $7,040,174, an increase of $20,296 over the list as completed the previous year.

Some interesting facts are revealed by a study of the new list. For instance, one finds that there are 1626 dwellings in the town of Killingly of an assessed valuation of $2,543,025. A little farther along is listed 1635 automobiles owned in the town, these machines of an assessed value of $549,015. That, one discovers, means a motor vehicle for every house in Killingly—and a few to spare.

Horses are not so numerous. There are only 277 in the entire town, which means about one horse for every hundred acres of land. Cows are listed as numbering 857, which is regarded as a very good showing an indicative of considerable activity in the dairying industry. The horses are valued at $9,990, the cows at $32,560.

Listing barns and sundry other taxable structures of similar nature the assessors make a total of 1341, of an assessed value of $377,015. There are also 2,244 lots, valued at $742,110. Another item dealing with mercantile structures lists 176, of a value of $535,110.

How largely Killingly leans toward manufacturing activities is indicated by the listing of 16 mills of an assessed valuation of $1,353,050. The land within the borders of the town of Killingly totals 26,762 acres, and it is assessed for $249,940, this not including, of course, the special assessments on land listed as lots. Including the assessments on lots, the land of Killingly is taxed for close to $1,000,000.

Pointing to a growing and special line of activity in the town is the item listing 19,160 head of poultry for taxation. Furniture is assessed for $66,905, and stocks of merchandise for $456,785.

Additions to the grand list through addition of the 10 per cent penalty for failure to file lists of taxable property within the time required added $27,979 to the grand list, which was compiled by A. V. Thompson, Frederick Miller and Louis Barstow, members of the board of assessors.

With the opening of February the board of relief will begin to hold sessions to hear pleas for reductions or abatements. With this work completed the grand list will be the basis of taxation for next year. By March, when the adjourned annual town meeting is held, the selectmen will have completed their budget for the year and the tax rate for 1928 can be determined. It is anticipated that it will be lower than the rate for 1927.

P. G. ALDRICH DISAPPEARS WHILE ON A HUNTING TRIP

DANIELSON, Jan. 4—Relatives and friends of Phineas G. Aldrich of North Main street were tonight expressing real anxiety as to what may have become of him. With Julius Rainville of North Main street with whom he makes his home, Mr. Aldrich, a man in his fifties, very tall and very powerfully built, went hunting last Saturday morning. It was foggy at the time. Arriving at a crossroad leading from above the Putnam Country club to the main highway between Danielson and Putnam they were about to enter the woods when Mr. Aldrich espied two men standing a distance down the road and apparently watching him. For some unexplainable reason he immediately dashed off into the woods, the fog swallowing him up and not a trace of him has since been found. The men turned out to be fox hunters, who happened to be standing near a runway. It is not conceivable that Mr. Aldrich was lost because of being unfamiliar with the country. He knows every foot of it and has for years.

Searching parties have gone over the surrounding country in a general way in the last four days, but up to tonight had been unable to find any trace whatever of the missing man. It was said tonight that a better organized and more complete search of all the countryside thereabout will be made at once.

That the sentiment of those chiefly concerned may be accurately gauged, a committee of the chamber of commerce, with Sidney P. Marland as chairman, was named by President M. H. Berthiaume at last evening's meeting of the chamber of commerce to interview business men on their attitude toward opening stores here Wednesday evenings instead of on Monday evening, as has been the rule for many years. The committee will report at the February meeting. Another action taken by the chamber had to do with formally requesting the N. Y., N. H. and H. R. R. company to arrange for stopping the State of Maine express here nights for passengers from New York. Advertising came in for considerable discussion at the meeting, with an agreement reached that all advertising, except in newspapers and such advertising as is sent out by mail by local business men shall be banned. It is planned to have a Norwich man address the chamber following the regular February dinner and business meeting, the address to be in the Orpheum theater and with the public invited.

Due to other New Year's attractions the meeting of Killingly grange was slimly attended on Monday night. While the number present was small the program given was one of the best. Howard Wood was chairman of a committee delegated to give a surprise program and was successful in putting on a first class mock trial. George Wood was the presiding judge, Charles E. Haynes, prosecuting attorney, Howard Wood, attorney for the defense, and Kenneth Preston, court officer. Ray Pellett was the defendant in a case brought by Ruth Spaulding the plaintiff, the wrong alleged being breach of contract. The defendant was accused of and witnesses produced to prove that he had purchased a diamond ring of Mr. Woolworth for the plaintiff, that he was a lady-killer in general and that in particular he was guilty of sparking without a tail-light. The defense made a strong denial of all the charges and called competent witnesses to establish the fact that while the defendant was perfectly upright and reliable the plaintiff was known to have a "steady" and that the diamond ring worn by her was purchased at McEwens and not Woolworths. The jury after hearing all sides of the case was out several hours but finally returned and announced a verdict of guilty in the first degree. The next meeting of Killingly grange will be Jan. 16th at which time the new officers will be installed.

Officers of Dorcas Rebekah lodge, noble grand, Mrs. Pearl Horton; vice grand, Mrs. Hattie Gallup; recording secretary, Mrs. Delia Weeks; financial secretary, Miss Annie Page; treasurer, Mrs. Grace Ennis; trustee for three years, Arnold Battey and the appointive ones are to be installed on the evening of January 13.

Golf enthusiasts are keeping up their technical form for the game in Danielson this winter by practice at a golf school. A very considerable number of new golfers was developed in Danielson the past year, and this number, it is indicated, will be added to this year.

The first series of shares of the Danielson Building and Loan association, issued more than 12 years ago, are coming due in the spring of this year. The association will arrange for the refirement of these shares, insofar as may be desired, but it is indicated that much of the money will be put back into the association for new shares.

Lieut. and Mrs. Ross V. Urquhart have returned from a few days' visit at Lieut. Urquhart's paternal home in Ansonia.

At Trinity church, Brooklyn, an event on the feast of the Circumcision was the christening of Robert Knight Bard, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert K. Bard, by Rev. Leonard R. Richards.

From numerous sections hereabouts there came reports this morning of zero temperatures.

J. C. Witter and N. A. Witter are to be at Seekonk, Mass., Thursday to conduct a sale that includes 85 head of cattle.

A complaint came to Chief John McFarland about a minor raid made at night on a coal pile near a manufacturing plant on Furnace street.

An evidence that the campaign of the chamber of commerce did meet its big aim of attracting outside business to Danielson is the wide territory over which the gifts were distributed. The gift automobile went to a resident of Hampton.

A special feature of the social activities of St. James' parish are weekly whist parties, to continue until the beginning of the Lenten season.

Selectmen of the town met at their offices in the town hall building today to approve bills and to transact other routine business.

Only a break in the cold wave is awaited to start the fishermen out for trys through the ice, a sport there has been little of to date this winter.

Building, 10 by 20 feet, for sale, at 9 Broad St.; will also sell or rent 2 1-2 story frame building, on railroad siding, at Cottage St., with about 10,000 square feet of land. Excellent for commercial purposes. J. C. Witter.—Adv.

Demand for cord wood continue to be so heavy in Danielson and communities hereabouts that crews of choppers are in the woods these winter days cutting steadily. Much of this wood will not come into use until late this year.

State Bank Commissioner Lester E. Shippee recently has been a visitor at his home in East Killingly.

It is said the prospects are for good business at the plant of the Acme Products company in East Killingly during 1928, a matter of commercial interest to Danielson.

Daily this week registrations for cars are coming through to those who failed to arrange to have them by the first of the year. A considerable number of trucks in town have been out of service for the past few days on account of having no 1928 markers.

Wesley Lehrer, Dayville, who has been a patient in a Boston hospital for a number of weeks, is said to be slowly improving.

As early as possible this year, the work of rebuilding the state highway between the West Side and Brooklyn will be undertaken, it was said today. The new surfacing is to be of a special type of macadam.

Miss Blanche Beauregard of Lowell returned to her home today after visiting with friends here for a week.

PUTNAM

NEW CITY OFFICERS SWORN IN AT COUNCIL MEETING

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Jan. 4.—At the last meeting of the old city council, held Tuesday evening with Victor Chapdelaine, as mayor of the city, all of the members were present with the exception of Alderman Labby. Bills were read and ordered paid. A notice for a claim for damages by Dr. Marguerite J. Bullard was presented through her attorney, Archibald Macdonald, Jr. She claims that she sustained injuries by a fall on a sidewalk on School street by reason of a defective sidewalk. J. Otis Fox asked permission to erect two 20,000 gallon gas tanks on Harris street.

Mayor Chapdelaine, after the unfinished business was completed, read his message as retiring mayor. He made no recommendations to the incoming board, but complimented the aldermen and other officials upon the way in which they had performed their duties. He then administered the oath of office to the mayor-elect, Charles A. Richard, who then in turn administered the oath to the alderman-elect, Warren S. Ames; alderman-at-large, and Robert T. Chadwick, Charles A. Ryan, Edward Dubois, John M. Dean Leo Delisle, Frank Vadnais, Willis B. Carroll and Eugene B. Mignault.

Alderman-at-large Ames was unanimously elected president of the board of aldermen. The council then went into executive session and named the following appointive officers and committees:

The council also appointed the following standing committees:

Finance committee, Mignault, Ames and Dubois; fire department, Ames, Dean and Delisle; city property, Vadnais, Ryan and Chadwick; rules and ordinances, Chadwick, Carroll and Dean; police committee, Delisle, Mignault and Dean; street lighting, Dean, Ryan and Chadwick.

Funeral services of Michael Duffy, aged 45 years, were conducted at nine o'clock yesterday morning at St. Mary's church and burial was in the family plot at St. Mary's cemetery. He has been living for several years at Louisville, Ky., and came to Putnam to spend the holidays with his mother and other relatives. Shortly after arriving here, he contracted a cold which developed into pneumonia and he died on Sunday morning at the home of his mother on Providence street. Mr. Duffy was born in Putnam and lived here for the greater part of his life and is survived by his mother, Mrs. Annie Duffy, of this city, three brothers, Thomas Duffy, Martin E. Duffy and John Duffy, all residents of Putnam, and four sisters, Mrs. Mae Rogers, Mrs. Slovis Lenine both of Putnam, Mrs. Thomas Coffee, of Willimantic, and Miss Rose Duffy, of Hartford.

During his younger life, Mr. Duffy was very prominent in local theatricals and his acting and specialty numbers were very popular among the theatre goers.

Clifton B. Smith, of Pomfret, is in the hospital at Willimantic, suffering with a badly broken leg as the result of a motorcycle accident in that city on Monday. William E Johnson, of Pomfret, who was injured in the same accident, is now at his home in Pomfret. It was at first thought that Smith had a fractured skull but it was found that he was only suffering from many wounds and sprains and he was permitted to return to his home later.

The clear cold weather and no snow has made the ice on Perry's pond in excellent condition for the ice carnival which is planned for there at the end of this week. The past three days have been by far the coldest of the year. On Monday the thermometer did not rise above about twenty at any time during the day. Tuesday morning was the coldest morning of the winter, and in various parts of the city and vicinity registered any where from zero to six below. This morning the air was again very frosty and the murcury was still around the zero mark.

About twenty linemen of the Western Union Telegraph company are in the city, making Putnam their headquarters while engaged in stringing a new railroad telephone line between Boston and Willimantic. They are now working out of Putnam between East Douglas and Willimantic. The N. Y., N. H. and H. railroad is abandoning the use of the telegraph in running its trains and is installing its own telephone system. The men will be in Putnam until they are ordered to the next district.

Word has been received here of the death of Edward T. Tucker, at his home in Southbridge, yesterday. He was born in Putnam, the son of Elyndon and Caroline Torrey Tucker and was 60 years of age. Mr. Tucker lived in Putnam all of his life until he moved to Southbridge about ten years ago and for a number of years conducted a grocery store in the Union block in the room of what is now a part of the Putnam post office. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Maud Tucker, who is a sister of Mrs. Joseph Vandale. He was a member of the Israel Putnam Lodge of Odd Fellows of this city. His body will be brought to Putnam for burial.

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Cheney have been entertaining their son, Lawrence Cheney, of Hartford.

Reginald Pike, of Pennsylvania, has been the guest of Dr. and Mrs. E. H. Pike, at North Woodstock.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Swan, of Providence, and James Coldman, of Attlebore, Mass., have been the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Henry T. Wells.

Thomas Elliott, a student at the General Motors Institute of Technology at Flint, Mich., spent a week's vacation with his parents, Mr. and Mrs F. H. Elliott, at Abington.

Mrs. Josephine McGorty, of Abington, has been visiting rMs. A. Newton Vaughn, of Grove street.

Miss Helen Whitaker, of Providence has been the guest of her cousin, Miss Bertha Weeks.

Edward Benoit, of Livery street, has returned from a visit with his brother, Arthur Benoit, of Norwich.

Mr. and Mrs. A. D. McIntyre and daughter, Janet, have returned from Boston where they spent the holidays with relatives.

Miss Faith Decker has returned to her school at Mount Vernon Seminary at Washington, D. C., after spending the holidays with her parents, Mr and Mrs. Frank Decker.

The Misses Dorothy and Elizabeth Thompson, of New York city, have been the guest of their mother, Mrs C. O. Thompson, at Pomfret.

COSTLY CHAPEAU FOUND BESIDE LOCAL CURBING

JEWETT CITY, Jan. 4—One morning recently a man found beside the curb, a new style, up-to-date woman's silk bean-pot hat. Inside was the insignia of trade, "Bedell of Paris and New York," which along with the fine texture of the material, told the story of some classy millinery. The foregoing is far from all, a cut steel, many jeweled arrow, with a threaded point fastener inside the dart end, was fastened in a smart rake to the satin bow on the side of the crown.

The finder brought it to the Bulletin correspondents, and it's sure some bonnet.

Local postal workers have received the following greetings from the postmaster general at Washington, D. C., and from the superintendent of the first division of the railway mail service at Boston:

Holiday Greetings to Postal Employes

"As you turn from the tasks that are the portion of all postal workers at Christmastide, may the thought of duty well done and the joy your labors have brought to others add immeasurably to your own sense of holiday cheer."

HARRY S. NEW,
Postmaster General.

The superintendent desires to express his appreciation to all railway postal men as well as to postmasters and their forces, and to the railroad companies for the big job just completed so satisfactorily. Each year the job gets bigger, but notwithstanding that each year it is handled more effectively.

May the New Year be one of contentment and prosperity.

W. F. YARRINGTON,
Superintendent.

At the Jewett City alleys Tuesday evening Greek met Greek when the two star girls' bowling teams broke even, on the last two strings of a three-game content. In the first set, the result was a tie, the unusual occurring when the pinfall was found to be the same.

The following is the best score, showing the winners by the scant margin of 17 pins. Miss LePage was easily the star, and received rounds of applause from an enthusiastic gallery.

The high single 95, was bowled by Beatrice LePare. The high total 279, was bowled by Beatrice LePage.

LA GUARDIA'S PERSONAL INQUIRY

According to his own statement, when Congressman LaGuardia set out from New York to make a personal investigation of the sinking of the S-4 he was prejudiced against the navy. Like others who knew nothing about the conditions he had based his opinion upon gossip, talk and criticism. He couldn't see why some of the things which have been urged could not have been employed by the navy in preventing such a sinking or in getting the submarine from the bottom in time to save six sailors who were alive. As a layman, not as an authority upon the navy, he was prepared to launch a fight against the navy. He evidently felt that there was neglect and inefficiency there. He may have thought that the navy doesn't care anything for the lives of the sailors.

How he came to hit upon the idea of making a trip in a submarine we do not know. But he did it and he has made so complete a change about, and done it so quickly, that it makes those who read about his investigation dizzy, even if he isn't himself.

On the strength of what he had gathered out of the air and through certain reports, he had prepared a speech to be delivered in the lower house of congress. How completely wrong he was is revealed by the fact that he has torn up the speech and now declares that he had gotten an entirely wrong impression. He stands now as a defender of the navy. He insists that "only a miracle could have saved any of the S-4's crew and no miracle happened," while in regard to the criticism of the equipment of the salvage fleet he adds "I know it has been undeserved."

This New York congressman may not rate as a naval expert. He evidently knows more about the situation involving the loss of the submarine than many others. His investigation has caused him to back up, even as the father of one of the men lost on the submarine retracted his words of criticism after he understood the situation. When such men humbly admit their errors of judgment after careful inquiry, others cannot fail to realize that there must be ground for it. The proper course for some of the other naval detractors seems to be to make a personal investigation and get acquainted with the facts.

PUTTING DOWN OUTLAWRY

Outlawry has been prevalent in Nicaragua under the leadership of General Sandino, who claims to have been at one time a follower of Pancho Villa in Mexico. Sandino was one of those who was hired by the liberals in Nicaragua to carry on their opposition to the government. When the agreement was effected by Henry L. Stimson between the political and military heads of the revolutionary forces and the Nicaraguan government there was an end to the revolution, but Sandino and those under his guidance refused to accept the understanding. Since that time he has been carrying on a campaign of terrorism along the Honduras border.

Part of the agreement reached provided for the supervision of the next presidential election in Nicaragua by this country and we have since been doing police duty there in support of the terms and while making preparations for the election which is still to come. In connection with that police duty Sandino has raised his objections. He has been the cause of the fighting that has been done even though those under whom he served in the revolution abandoned the same for the agreement.

Sandino thus represents neither the liberals nor the Nicaraguans. He is maintaining guerrilla warfare to the detriment of the country and is so located in the hills, and at a point where he can dodge into Honduras whenever hard pressed, that pursuit and capture are difficult. It is quite evident that he cannot be ignored. The peace of Nicaragua and the protection of the marines who are aiding in police duty there until another government is established must get the necessary attention. It is for that reason that additional marines are being sent to that republic. There is no other course to be followed under the circumstances. The marines are there by invitation of the Nicaraguan government. They are there to help Nicaragua and in the opposition that is being shown to the outlaws it is the purpose to see that a thorough job is done in maintaining law and order and the country relieved of such outlawry.

THE NAVAL PLAN

It was evident from the time it was presented that the plan for spending three quarters of a billion on the navy over a period of years would call forth much discussion. It came at such a time following a disarmament conference that it appeared to display the attitude that inasmuch as nothing was accomplished this country intended to launch a naval programme that would annoy the other countries. Furthermore it was quite contrary to the views of the little navy supporters.

As a matter of fact nothing that would establish a leadership on the part of this country in naval construction can be gained from such a plan. We have refrained from such work for so long, through the scrapping of ships and in hope that other nations would desire an extension of the Washington agreement, that we are far from having our proper naval equipment. Such a programme as planned would provide it.

An important provision of the recommendations is that which authorized the president to suspend the building programme should it be authorized. This means that even though the programme is adopted and the work extended over a period of years, it could be halted if the president found conditions warranted it. Although the attempt may be made to eliminate this provision it seems hardly likely, for even though it was turned down other congresses could refuse to provide the money for the carrying out of the programme if they so desired. Inasmuch as there are times when that authority, or similar authority, should be vested in the hands of the president in order to get results when congress might not be in session, the proposal is regarded as a good one.

Talk of extending the construction over seven instead of five years simply indicates part of the discussion that is going on relative to the huge naval expenditure that is involved, and yet the occasions are many when congress is freely criticized for not making proper provisions for the navy.

THE DAWN'S FATE

Nobody actually saw the Dawn land in the ocean or disappear. No one saw it battling with the waves or in trouble. It was seen as it went over Cape Cod and it was heard off Cape Cod by the crew of a schooner. Furthermore following the noise which identified it in the dark as an airplane there was a splash like a heavy body falling in the water. The crew was convinced that an airplane had fallen and halted in that vicinity for a time, but the conditions were such that it could not have launched a boat had the need of it been disclosed.

That furnishes the best evidence available concerning the fate of the Dawn and its crew and where it occurred. Radio messages which sought bearings, and which indicated trouble were received, but except for the statement by the schooner's crew the belief would have been maintained that the plane had been lost near Sable Island off Nova Scotia.

That was one of the instances where the radio equipment failed to accomplish what was expected of it. Evidently there was too much confusion aboard to make full use of it, or else the trouble developed so suddenly and so seriously that there was no time to do more than was done.

Whatever was the cause of the loss, it has been shown that there is not as yet an unsinkable flying machine and that it is most unwise to defy the advice that was offered against any such flight as was contemplated at this season of the year. That bitter experience will not check flying, it will not stop attempts to cross the Atlantic in the air, but it ought to furnish an accentuation of the danger which some have apparently ignored. The whole affair carries an unmistakable warning.

HORSE AND AUTO THIEVES

Once again Enfield is getting some interesting notoriety because of its organization for the detection of horse thieves. Despite efforts to modernize it to the extent of using flying machines instead of horses for the pursuit of those who steal horses, the society sticks to fast steeds and the members are pledged to use them to the best of their ability.

Just what the horse population of Enfield is is not known, but the probability is that in the current year there will be more trouble experienced in that town from the theft of automobiles than there will be from horse thieves. In that contemplation the organization may feel certain that the duty of its members will be light, more honorary than actual, but from the number of autos that are being stolen from day to day it is not impossible that some such vigilant organization for the apprehension of auto thieves may be advisable and necessary.

There were days when the theft of a horse was a serious offense in many states. It was done to discourage a most annoying act, and yet when it comes to value and annoyance the theft of a motor vehicle is quite as bad. If it was found desirable and necessary to impose severe penalties for stealing horses there is no reason why any more leniency should be displayed concerning something which is just as important and much more valuable.

Possibly the day will come when Enfield will so reorganize the society as to include autos and change the method of seeking the thieves accordingly. Certainly the need for it is growing more and more apparent every day in spite of the efficiency and far reaching influence of police departments.

EDITORIAL NOTES

We had a hot December but there appears to be no need for fly paper in January thus far.

The man on the corner says: Knowing a lot of things that aren't so can cause a lot of trouble.

The only trouble with 1927 auto markers is that no one but the police is interested in them any more.

It may seem a little out of season just now but it's only 56 days to the first month of spring.

Looking through the important events of 1927 it will be noted that the name of Lindbergh occupied a conspicuous place.

We are getting to that period of the year when there is going to be plenty of time to study the seed catalogues while listening to the radio.

It seems strange that Hickman, who now complains of having suffered from a strange complex since his high school days, didn't think to do something about that condition before now.

SONG OF THE WILD

He was the kind of canary for whom they especially designed golden cages—golden cages with a marble bath, porcelain trimmings and one tight, pretty door. Women buy them to match the sun as it shines in the living room. Men buy them because of a prevailing boyish desire to own something that will answer one's whistle at night, bob a worshipful welcome.

Charley called the bird Dickey, of course, for the same reason that a dog is Rover and a cow Bess. Dickey was destined to golden bars because he had a beautiful body and a beautiful voice. Man has ever attempted to cage the exquisite.

Charley hadn't thought of the principle of it—that there was any crime beyond paying three smooth $10 bills for a fluffy mite that the bird dealer designated as a genuine "Roller" and worth $50. Charley had had a brown collie once that used to trot around at his heels, hunt rats, or dive for sticks in the old mud hole. Charley was 14 then and there had been no Mrs. Charley to abhor dogs.

So at 40, Charley bought a canary. "Kind of like to hear the little thing singing," he explained casually to Mrs. Charley.

But there was Jake Stanton, next door, expounding fiercely the ten mandates for right living, nine of them at least hinting about kindness to animals. Of course, Jake was a naturalist by instinct and avocation. Jake never hurt a living thing in his life unless it was a vocalized mosquito on a summer night. And then he didn't hurt it. It simply died a quick but painless death.

"Charley," Jake would vociferate, "have you never learned the law of live and let live? A cage, however golden, with something alive within it, eager for release is a symbol of cruelty——"

"Cruelty nothing," Charley squirmed. "Dickey gets the best bird seed and gravel in town, besides a daily dessert of apple at all seasons. Why, if Dickey asked for strawberries in December we'd have them for him, right on a silver platter at the tip of his beak."

A breath of May came through the casement curtains carrying the scent of young grass and early flowers. Sparrows were chirping on the lawn outside.

"What about the feelings of the little fellow as he looks wistfully through his bars at the great free outside. Listen!" triumphantly. In his cage near the window, Dickey was singing. No doubt he could see the pair of aristocratic robins trotting around the shrubbery hunting for worms.

His throat swelled, head up to the top o fthe cage where Mrs. Charley had a piece of apple tied on a string. Slowly the ball of his body elongated, grew thinner and thinner until the burst of song ceased. Then with a quick shake of his neck he was pecking frantically at the string, splashing in the bath, hopping now on the lowest ring, now the highest, hop, skip, a nibble at the apple, another song, another nibble. A bird's life!

"Dickey's crazy about apples."

"Listen," Jake repeated softly. "Did you ever hear anything so plaintive? It's a true song of the wild. Doesn't it eat into your heart?"

"Why, I don't know—he always starts singing when he hears people talking."

"Bah, have you no moral insight. Listen the next time he sings. See if you can't detect that pitiful little tremor, the longing for the trees and flowers and sunshine that's beyond the golden bars."

Charley did listen at odd moments.

"It's the song of the wild, for sure, and I'm a heartless brute," he finally admitted.

And so one Saturday afternoon, Jake at his elbow, he opened the pretty, tight door of the cage. A spurt of joyous yellow and Dickey was off in the trees.

"There, don't you feel relieved?"

"Only of $30," and Charley hung the empty cage on the lowest limb of the elm.

"Oh—h, Dickey's gone," Mrs. Charley wailed.

"Yes," Charley looked away. "He—escaped. Too bad. I—er—we'll get a cat or something instead."

A glum month with Jake writing a treatise on a "Bird's Song of the Wild" for the naturalist society, and reading new paragraphs to Charley every time new paragraphs were made. And then Mrs. Charley suddenly burst in where Jake was nonchalantly solving the problem of birddom.

"Charley, Jake, come quick. Look!" The lowest limb of the elm tree, golden cage swinging, door shut, Dickey inside pecking hungrily at a piece of crisp apple.

"I kept the door open and apple on the string," Mrs. Charley panted.

"Listen," cried Charley. Dickey was singing a Niagara of melody.

"Wild, nothing," Charley snapped. "That's the Song of the Apple. Dick's crazy about apples." And Jake frowned as he crossed a whole page from his treatise.

"Civilization has spoiled birds as well as men," he muttered.—Chicago News.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Lord Decies, who is mentioned to succeed Timothy Healy as governor-general of the Irish Free State, is best known on this side of the Atlantic through his marriage in 1911, to Miss Vivian Gould, daughter of the late George J. Gould of New York. John Graham Hope Horsley Beresford is the fifth Baron Decies. In early life he adopted a military career and fought in many campaigns, serving with distinction in the Matabele and Boer wars and against the Mad Mullah in Somaliland. He is also widely known as a sportsman. It was in 1910 that he came to New York for the National Horse show and it was then that he met his future wife. Their wedding in the following year was one of the most brilliant ever seen in New York. Lord and Lady Decies have three children, and their home, near Killarney, is a show place.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

What I Know About Fort Ned.

Mr. Editor: I am a regular reader of your paper, but the article in the "Social Corner" under date of December 3rd, signed by "Winter Robin," asking "Who knows about Fort Ned?" escaped my notice.

A few days ago I was asked if I read the letter making inquiry about Fort Ned and suggested that I could make a reply, as I was born within half a mile of the place in question and have since been where I was kept informed of the changes there, up to the present time. My memory goes back to events from the time I was four years old. As I have never seen a reply to Winter Robin's question, I will ask space to reply.

First I will go back to the origin of the name as it was told me by my father. In 1793 my grandfather, Jesse Peck, after his return from the Revolutionary war and took unto him a wife, bought 80 acres of land with building thereon of Nathan Waldo, for 200 pounds. The deed I now have, the former owner being his father, Edward Waldo Esg. The western boundary of this farm was Little river. Apponaug was the Indian name. Edward Waldo, more commonly called Ned Waldo, with others, built and maintained a ford way across the river as there was no bridge until later. The ford-way was called Ned Waldo's ford and more often referred to as Ford Ned. No doubt, those later, not knowing the origin of the name, called it Fort Ned. The eastern approach to the ford was on my grandfather's land, purchased of Mr. Waldo.

On the west bank of the river and about 25 feet north of the approach to the ford stood a factory and in my father's early life it was owned and operated by Ephriam Safford in the manufacture of woolen cloth. At this time there was but one dwelling house divided into three tenements, occupied by the factory operatives. A number of years later this property came into the possession of Hezekiah Crandall, brother of a most estimable young lady, Miss Prudence Crandall, who kept a school on Canterbury Green, for the education of young colored girls.

This school was broken up and Miss Crandall was most shamefully abused by a mob of ruffians, to the discredit of themselves and the town. Some of the mob that were living at the time of the Civil war, were called "copper heads."

Mr. Crandall operated this factory in the making of rope yarn, carpet yarn, twine and wicking. He also owned a mill where he lived in the southeast part of Canterbury; the village was known as "Mud Hole," where he manufactured the same as in his Fort Ned factory. His market for the rope yarn was at the rope walk in Norwich, in which John Breed was financially interested.

William Horton was the superintendent of the Fort Ned mill, up to about the year 1831. I was then four years old, but well remember visiting the factory and its wonders, being watched and cared for by Mr. Horton's daughter, Ellen, with whom I was very much in love.

Mr. Horton was succeeded by Albert Burgess, a relative of Mr. Crandall. The house was occupied by Mr. Burgess and family on the lower floor and Mr. Handy and Mr. Sechting or Saxton (generally called) the upper tenements.

In 1854, one very cold night, the factory was burned down, about 9 o'clock. My father saw the flames as they broke through the roof, just as he was retiring for the night in the west part of the house. Hastily dressing, he with my two older brothers, hastened down the hill to assist in putting out the fire. The factory with machinery was a total loss. Some dozen bales of cotton and the main belt were all that were saved.

Mr. Crandall sorrowfully viewed the ruins the next day. As he ascended the hill on his way home, he turned around to look once more upon the ruins. He was heard to remark: "It's gone. Fort Edward was the pride of my life." The tenements were vacated in the following spring. For two years the property was deserted. With financial assistance, Mr. Crandall rebuilt the factory, and again began manufacturing the same yarns as before the fire. In 1864 this property was bought by John Bacheider, of Eagleville, now Versailles, who built a dam, about 100 feet below the old dam, and about the same above the old ford-way. He built a large addition to the factory, equipped it with up-to-date woolen machinery, built five two-tenement houses; moved the old house across the road, and with other improvements, made a very pretty mill village and named it Appoquaug. Soon the factory was ready for the manufacturing of a nice quality of cassimeres. The tenements were filled with a nice, sober, industrious class of operatives. The building of the addition to the factory necessitated the building of a new bridge 200 feet below the old bridge. At the same time the town commenced the building of a highway from the east end of the bridge, parallel with the river, connecting with the main highway from Westminster to Hanover, at Walter Peck's.

Mr. Bachelder took in as a partner, Mr. Mayo, who acted as super.

The business flourished, and with the 12 families, the farmers found a ready market for their farm and dairy products. After a successful business of three years, the property was sold to Charles A. Hilbert, who continued the manufacture of woolen goods. He converted one of the tenements in the old house into a store, stocked it with dry goods, groceries, boots, shoes, gent's furnishings, ready-made underwear. I was in his employ as clerk. In May, 1871, Mr. Hilbert met with financial reverses, the property was attached, or passed into the hands of a receiver and all business was suspended. Perry Linnell was appointed custodian of the property until all stock and machinery was disposed of. The goods in the store being the last, they were sold at auction in the fall following the failure. About a week before the failure came, small pox broke out in the family of Jerry Buckley. There were 13 cases in all, but only one death, that of a young child. A day or two after suspension of business the village, (then called Canterbury Woolen mills), was quarantined and it really became a village of ideness. After a year or two, the property was purchased by the Reed Paper company. Col. William G. Ely, Levi Branch and others were financially interested. The mill was converted into a paper mill and was doing a prosperous business until it was burned down in the early Eighties. Since then the once Fort Ned, Fort Ned, Appoquaug, Canterbury Woolen Mills, has passed into complete decay. Only the cellars tell today where stood the houses that once made up a village of a happy and industrious people. Trees of large proportions now grow in the place of the burned mill and in the places where stood the houses. I visited the place two months ago. There is now a dam by a mill site, but no mill by a dam site. Ford Ned or Fort Ned remains today only in pleasant memory.

YOUR HEALTH

PARENTS AND MALFORMED CHILDREN

By Samuel Walter Kelley, M. D., Cleveland, Ohio.
Member Gorgas Memorial.

Parents differ widely in their reactions to the advent of malformed offspring. Suppose the long-expected baby is born with a harelip and cleft palate. All parents will naturally be shocked; usually they are astonished that such a thing could happen to them. Some will be resigned, some excessively chagrined; others will be rebellious and would rather the babe had been born dead than malformed.

They usually ask the physician what is to be done. Learning that such malformations can be corrected, some will demand operation immediately, before their friends come to see the baby. If told that the infant is not just now in good condition to risk operation, some acknowledge that they are not anxious to have it survive the ordeal. This is a great opportunity for the over-enthusiastic operator. In my observation it has been the father more often than the mother who is thus moved by mortification to prefer immediate operation at all hazards. This reminds one of the old saying: "A father's love is half pride."

Now is the time when the surgeon informs the parents, as gently as may be, that all will be done in good time and that, not wishing to act as executioner, he never operates by choice upon a bad risk when there is a good prospect that it can be put in better condition by prudent preparation.

There are ways to hide the deformity by the use of adhesive strapping at the same time aiding nature to advance her uncompleted work, preventing the inrush of unwarmed air and dust which irritate the mucous linings and enabling the babe to nurse better.

Usually it is better thus to wait until the dangers of lung collapse, hemorrhagic disease, jaundice, pustulating eyes, pemphigus, and other diseases imminent to the new-born have had time to pass by. Then, with good nutrition established, in the second or third month the lip may be closed; and some months later, perhaps not until the second year, the palate is closed.

Some parents—more often the mother—hover most tenderly over the afflicted child.

Some are too fearful and postpone all action, and must be encouraged and urged to accept surgical interference. Fortunately there are parents who are sensible.

Operation is best done before speech faults become fixed, but even in neglected cases it is better late than never. Always it should be done by a surgeon accustomed to operating upon children, and always thorough training in speech must follow operation.

They Had Some Funny Ideas in 1316.

That was the year that Parliament petitioned Edward II of England to forbid the use of coal because it was unhealthful. Such a proclamation was issued, but it was disregarded because of the high price of wood, and was soon withdrawn.

In 1837 Edward Chappell, who was wiser than the illustrious Edward II, and knew that human health and happiness are dependent on coal, established his business in Norwich.

Just as facts and experience tell us that Edward II and Parliament were wrong, so they speak for the earnest endeavor of the Chappell Company to live up to the standards of honesty, loyalty and faithfulness which Edward Chappell set up.

Little Talks on Thrift

Lack of Thrift and Crime.

What are the causes of the great amount of crime in this country today?

Various persons would answer this question in various ways. It is, perhaps, too complicated a problem for the solution of anyone at this time.

Extravagant habits often lead directly to crime. For example a young man lives beyond his means. He feels the pressure for more money. He takes a little. Then more and more and finally, in order to make a big haul, he turns to banditry.

Police records and court testimony in thousands of cases within the last few years will bear out the truth of these statements.

Gambling also leads to crime in many cases, particularly with young men.

One of the outstanding facts of current life—a fact which the police magistrates of any of our great cities will verify—is that, instead of cultivating sensible practices and living sane and moral lives, many of our boys and young men are allowing themselves, step by step, to get into ways that require more money than they are earning, and, due to these habits, are dissipating their ambitions and rotting their moral fibre.

Their is nothing more stabilizing than consistent thrift. Those who practice it not only have the advantage that comes with the conservation of their material resources, their health and their energies, but they have also the advantage of sane judgment and normal viewpoints upon the problems and responsibilities of life.

There is an inter-relationship between sound economics and sound morals. Moral betterment must depend always on thrift as an essential of its progress.—American Society for Thrift.

There are still those who believe that their future can be read in a teacup. A woman appeared at the general delivery window at the Haverhill postoffice and asked the clerk for a letter that was there for her. The clerk found none and so informed her. "There is a letter for me," she replied with an air of finality. "There certainly must be. The leaves in my teacup last night plainly indicated that I was to receive a letter today."—Boston Globe.

DR. FLAVEL S. LUTHER DIES IN PASADENA

The death of Dr. Flavel S. Luther, a native of Brooklyn, this state, occurred about midnight Tuesday at Pasadena, California, in his 78th year. Dr. Luther had been living in Pasadena since his resignation brought to an end his long and brilliant career as president at Trinity college, Hartford, from 1904 to 1919. In recent years he had been in poor health, and for the past year had suffered from angina pectoris.

Flavel Sweeten Luther, Jr., was born in Brooklyn, Conn., on March 26, 1850, the son of Flavel Sweeten and Jane Jerusha (Lillie) Luther. His father's family traced its lineage to Johannes Luther, brother of Martin Luther, the great leader of the Reformation.

Young Luther graduated at Trinity in 1870 at the age of 19 and that fall was in charge of a parish school in Troy, N. Y. When he became of age he was ordained a deacon in the Protestant Episcopal church and in 1873 he became rector of a church at Racine, Wis. From 1876 to 1881 he held the chair of mathematics at Racine college, then for two years a similar position at Kenyon college, Gambier, Ohio, before coming to Trinity as professor of mathematics, holding this position for twenty years before he became president of the college.

Dr. Luther was a member of the state senate at the sessions of 1907 and 1909 as the representative of the first district. He leaves his wife and a nephew, Alfred E. Pulford of No. 65 Evergreen avenue, Hartford.

EVENING OF CARDS FOR HOSPITAL BED FUND

An evening of whist and pinochle was enjoyed Wednesday at Odd Fellows hall, Main street, with 15 tables of each in play. The affair was conducted under the auspices of St. Therese Maternity hospital of Boswell avenue, for the purpose of raising funds so that a free bed at the hospital will be assured for the patients of Norwich, who are unable to pay. Thirty dollars was realized. A special prize was won by Enid Senser.

The prize winners were: In whist, women, first, Mrs. McKelvey; second, Miss Alice Beetham; consolation, Mrs. F. Disco; men, first, G. Keeley; second, R. Beetham; consolation, J. Maurice. In pinochle, women, first, Helen O'Neil; second, Mae Danahy; consolation, Mrs. Boucher; men, first, Mr. Brodeur; second, Mr. Prodell; consolation, Max Felzenstein.

Following play a delightful program of the latest dance selections were rendered by Gerard Bourden and his six-piece orchestra for dancing, which was enjoyed from 10:30 to 12 o'clock.

FUNERALS.

Frederick B. Lewis

The funeral of Frederick B. Lewis occurred Wednesday evening at 8.15 at Christ church, Pelham Manor, N. Y., and the body will be brought on Thursday to this city for interment. Mr. Lewis was 61 years old and in the real estate business for 35 years. He was originally a member of the firm of McVicker & Co., afterwards McVicker & Gaillard Co.; then he embarked in business on his own account under the trade name of McGreal & Lewis until his business was taken over by the Charles F. Noyes company of New York city in February 1912. Mr. Lewis is survived by his wife, Louise F. Moller Lewis, a son David and a daughter Marion. Mr. Lewis was one of the most popular men in the real estate profession. The following notice of his death was sent to the various members of the Noyes organization:

"January 3, 1928.

To all Employes
of Charles F. Noyes Company, Inc.
New York and Chicago. and to

Friends:

Death has taken from us one of those best loved. On the morning of January 1st about 7.45 Frederick B. Lewis, our treasurer, suddenly died.

For over thirty years he was a friend—and for nearly sixteen years has been one of our executives and the Treasurer of our Company from its incorporation.

The funeral services will be held Wednesday evening, 8.15, at Christ church, Pelham Manor, N. Y.

Fred Lewis was the soul of honor, loyal to the extreme, and one of those rare characters whose pure life and high ideals did so much to help the upbuilding of this business. It is men of his type who have made this business what it is and we will always honor and cherish his memory.

CHARLES F. NOYES."

Nearly one hundred and fifty members of the Noyes organization attended the funeral services, going and returning by special trains. Representatives of the Noyes National as well as the local companies attended the funeral services and also representatives of the directors of the United Cigar Stores company, with which company the Noyes business is closely affiliated.

Patrick A. Sheridan.

The funeral of aPtrick A. Sheridan, formerly of Norwich, was held Tuesday from his home, 121 Broad street, New London, and was largely attended. At St. Mary's Star of the Sea church at 9 o'clock, high mass of requiem was sung by Rev. Raymond J. O'Callaghan. Many friends were in attendance and there were beautiful flowers. As a waiting hymn, Edward F. Murray sang "Abide With Me."

The bearers were Arthur Keefe, Patrick L. Shea, Frederick H. Davis, H. H. O'Neill, E. W. Wylie and former Mayor Timothy C. Murphy, of Norwich. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery, where Rev. Fr. O'Callaghan conducted the committal service.

Among those attending the funeral from Norwich were Thomas H. Beckley, Miss Molly Beckley, Mr. and Mrs Wm. J. McKnight and son, James P. Sheridan and his sister, Miss Mary Sheridan, Philip Sheridan and John P. Corcoran. Other relatives present included Mrs. Charles Driscoll, from Hartford, and John Slattery, of Bridgeport.

As a young manhood in Norwich, Mr. Sheridan was prominent in athletics and had participated in rowing races on the river with former Mayor Timothy C. Murphy, one of the bearers Tuesday.

Referring to Mr. Sheridan's death, the New London Day said:

Patrick A. Sheridan, 68, a real estate and insurance agent in this city for 22 years, died Sunday morning about 12:50 o'clock at his home, 121 Broad street, following an illness dating from last January. Mr. Sheridan was a member of the local board of fire underwriters and was democratic deputy registrar of voters in the second ward for a number of years up to the time of his death. He was born in Wareham, Mass., April 15, 1859, and as a boy he moved with his parents to Norwich where he resided until 30 years ago. During youngAmanhood Mr. Sheridan developed athletically as a professional parsman. When sculling races were among the foremost athletic evcnts on the Thames, Mr. Sheridan was one of the most active participants. He won prizes in several sculling events.

Mr. Sheridan came to this city 30 years ago and eight years later he established himself in the real estate and insurance field here. His office was at 85 State street. He married in St. Mary's Star of the Sea church, New London, Jan. 17, 1883, Nellie G. Gleason who survives him. He was a member of St. Mary Star of the eSa church.

Besides his wife he leaves a daughter, Miss Alice L. Sheridan, of this city; four sisters, Mrs. T. H. Beckley, Mrs. William J. McKnight, Mrs. Nellie McHale of Norwich and Mrs. Charles Delscoll, of Hartford and two brothers, Philip H. and John Sheridan, of Norwich.

Stanislaw Mailhot

The funeral of Stanislaw Mailhot, a former resident of the Falls section, took place from his late home 27 Kendrick avenue, Woonsocket, R. I., Wednesday morning at 9.30 followed by a solemn high mass of requiem in St. Anne's church at 10 o'clock. Rev. Adelard Lalliberty was celebrant, Rev. O. H. Brouillett was deacon and Rev. J. F. Dumont sub deacon. Chopin's funeral march was played as the casket was borne into the church. Pie Jesu was sung at the offertory and Some Sweet Day as a waiting hymn. The bearers, six members of St. Jean de Baptiste of which Mr. Mailhot had been a member, were Leon Labare, William Paul, Joseph Forsier, Ursul Cote, Charles Saravia and Joseph Fornier. Burial was in the cemetery of The Precious Blood. Funeral arrangements were in charge of Shea & Burke.

BAPTIST CONVENTION LEADER ADDRESSES MEN'S MEETING HERE

What is the real task of the church? asked W. C. Coleman, president of the Northern Baptist convention, in an address he delivered Wednesday evening before a gathering of 160 representatives of the Baptist churches of eastern Connecticut, at the Central Baptist church. The task of the church is to acquaint people with Jesus Christ, was his answer. President Coleman is the first president of the Northern Baptist convention to address a Norwich audience and he was given a hearty welcome. His address followed a chicken pie supper served by the women of the Central Baptist church at 6:30 o'clock. It was a complimentary supper to the distinguished guest of the evening and the Baptist parishes represented, 16 in number, were New London, Groton, Poquonnock Bridge, Mystic, Moosup, Packer, Danielson, Willimantic, Jewett City, Preston City, Quaker Hill, Lebanon, Leffingwell, Third church, Norwich, First Baptist church, Norwich, and the Central Baptist church, Norwich.

During the supper menu an orchestra, with Joseph S. Adams at the piano, provided an excellent concert programme and there were sung a number of popular and well known old time airs. At the close of the menu Shepard B. Palmer, who presided, asked all to stand and sing the first verse of Onward Christian Soldiers. Then he requested each one to shake hands with the person sitting opposite him at the tables. At Mr. Palmer's request a hearty cheer was given for C. Edward Smith who was married 40 years ago Wednesday. Mrs. William Crowe then entertained with an excellently rendered vocal solo after which the attendance by parishes was taken at the request of Mr. Palmer.

Horace B. Sloat, secretary of the state Baptist convention, was called on by Mr. Palmer. Mr. Sloat stated that the laymen of the state are trying to do some definite work in the state. He expressed his appreciation to the Central Baptist church for making the supper and gathering possible and also expressed appreciation of the services of the women of the church in providing the splendid menu, the orchestra and the quartette for their parts in the evening's entertainment.

Mr. Palmer then called on Rev. David A. Pitt, D. D., pastor of the church who is also president of the state convention. Rev. Mr. Pitt said he was pleased to see so many men present and stated that this was the first supper gathering in the banquet hall since the new equipment had been installed. He spoke briefly of the Hartford conference which he attended Wednesday afternoon and spoke of the various speakers and the musical programme which featured the day's programme. Rev. Dr. Pitt then introduced President Coleman, who spoke for over an hour, capturing the hearts of his audience from the very first and holding the close attention of all until his concluding words. He told a number of humorous stories and then in a very earnest address, called on the gathering to support more than ever before the mission programme of the Baptist church. If you want to develop real capacity, he said, you have to put responsibility on folks.

President Coleman, who is devoting three weeks out of each month to the work of the church, said that he discovered in 1912 that the manufacturing company of which he is the president, could get along very satisfactorily without his presence. Up to that time he had the idea that he had to be at his desk on things would not go right. His wife prevailed upon him to take a vacation in 1912 and he did. For eleven weeks he was away from the company office and passed the time in New England. He told his vice president not to bother him too much with telegrams. He heard so little from his company that he began to worry and was glad when the time came for him to return home. A board meeting was called and during the course of the meeting, he said that his vice president told him that when he heard Mr. Coleman was returning home a meeting was called. Financial statements presented to Mr. Coleman showed him the company had done even better during his absence than when he was present. The vice persident informed Mr. Coleman that the chief problem before the meeting was what they could give Mr. Coleman to do when he returned to the office.

In traveling over the country Mr. Coleman said that he has come in contact with over 100 Baptist groups. I think this is the largest group of men only that I have addressed, he said. He spoke of the very manifest solidarity of the Baptist denomination. We have stood for soul liberty, he said. If we are true Baptists we have to respect the faith of others. I am very sure we are on the highway to solidarity, he said. Our Baptist interpretation of faith is very acceptable. Jesus came to emphasize to us the majesty of individual life. There is no expression around the world that so adapts itself to the development of the world as our faith.

What is the real task of the church? The only way to interpret the task of the church is to find out what Christ's purpose was. I can't see any difference between evangelism and missions, except one of geography. The whole task of the church is to acquaint people with Jesus. The great difficulty of the church has been that we are slow to adapt ourselves to the changes in life.

If the young people of the Sunday school and of the church organization are not taking their places in the church as they should, there is something wrong.

Speaking of the visitation evangelism plan Mr. Colman said, You go out and visit the members of the church and impress on them their obligations to the church. You have your personal contacts, religious surveys, etc. All the various activities drawn together give you a field of activity. One trouble with people is that they are just ashamed to own up that Jesus Christ is their friend. Hordes of our young people are just drifting along because there is no one to suggest to them, at the opportune time, the next step they should take. It is a good plan for your church to set up an evangelistic quota.

In business we succeed because we plan our course ahead and keep at it. Do we do that in the church? If we are not bringing the people into the church continuously, there is something wrong.

Mr. Coleman explained the evangelistic quota plan whereby a certain number of people are brought into the church in a stated period of time. We can't just take care of our town, he said. We must take care of the state as well. It makes a big difference to our town on what kind of a state we have. Our denomination has a great task and it is a united task. Paganism is not a matter of geography; it is a matter of the state of the mind. The right to have soul liberty means that we Baptists must respect the faith of others.

In conclusion Mr. Coleman made an urgent plea for increased support of the fund for Baptist missions. He illustrated the great need of an increased mission budget to care for the expense of the missionaries activities.

At the close of his splendid talk Mr. Coleman was given a rising vote of thanks. The gathering came to a close with the singing of the hymn, Blest Be, the Tie That Binds.

The committee in charge of the supper comprised Mrs. Henrietta Tefft, chairman; Mrs. Jennie Davis, Mrs. William H. Covey, Miss Nellie Rathbun, Mrs. Charles Hewitt, Mrs. Milton Terry, Mrs. James Parker, Mrs. Willis P. Hill. Miss Belle Rathbun was in charge of the waitresses who included: Mrs. Clarence D. Sholes, Mrs. John Hill, Mrs. Gilbert S. Raymond, Miss Bessie Grimes, Miss Ruby Vaughn, Miss Ruth Hamilton, Mrs. Edward Y. Messenger, Mrs. Charles L. Stewart, Mrs. Joseph S. Adams, Mrs. Herbert E. Richardson, Mrs. Reuben P. Potter, Miss Edith A. Ellis, Mrs. Henry H. Pettis, Mrs. Arthur F. Wyman and Miss Genevieve Eno.

OVER 200 MILES OF NEW PAVING IN STATE

1927 was a year of exceptional activity in the Connecticut highway department, according to figures of the year's work reported by Highway Commissioner John A. Macdonald. During the course of the year there were acceptances of 205 miles of construction and reconstruction of Connecticut highways and work was begun on 66 more miles of pavement which is now in the course of reconstruction. Thirty-two water spans were either completely rebuilt or repaired during the year, and the approaches to these bridges were in all cases reconditioned with the spans themselves.

Many important pieces of highway were reconstructed in 1927. Several sections of the Boston Post road, which links Connecticut with New York state, were widened to accommodate four lanes of traffic during the year, each being another step toward the completion of the state's greatest and most heavily traveled road between New Haven and the state line. The greater part of the work on the new pavement between Middletown and North Haven was completed. The Waterbury-Milldale road, another big traffic artery, was placed under reconstruction. A large section of the road from Waterbury through Thomaston to Torrington, which connects the northwestern part of the state with the rest of it, is being rebuilt. Completion of the new pavement between Hartford and Farmington greatly enhanced the Farmington route from New Haven, Waterbury, Southington, Bristol and Plainville to the capital. Completion of the road between Marlborogh and Hebron opened a through route from New Haven and points west diagonally across the state to Willimantic and the northeastern section by way of Middletown, thus eliminating the old circuitous routes through Hartford and New London.

In all of the reconstruction operations of the year, continuation of Commissioner Macdonald's policy of reducing accident hazards has been dominant. Elimination of bad curves and steep grades has been accomplished on practically all of those stretches of road which were rebuilt in 1927. When curve elimination was found impractical, sight lines around the curves were improved by clearing away all hindrances to a clear view of traffic moving in the opposite direction. It is the purpose of the department to remove all bad curves and grades from Connecticut highways as the trunkline system is rebuilt.

While the figures of the highway work completed in 1927 are impressive, they hardly afford a clear picture of the actual achievement of the department during the course of the year. In addition to its major work of highway construction, the department undertakes scores of other activities not reflected in the annual figures, but which form a large part of the service rendered to the state.

The highway department furnished much assistance to the towns in the state in the matter of state aid construction. Following the revision of the state aid law and the appropriation of a fund of one million dollars a year for state aid work by the Connecticut general assembly early in the year, Commissioner Macdonald created a new office in the department called supervisor of state aid construction and appointed W. E. Hulse, former supervisor of highway district No. 11, to fill the position. Together with Mr. Hulse, Commissioner Macdonald held meetings of the selectmen from the towns of each county at their various county seats and explained to them the new law and the new policy of the department, inaugurated this year, which enables the towns to use their share of the appropriation for entirely completing a section of road, or to use it to complete certain stages of construction under this year's fund and the complementary stages under future appropriations. As a result of these meetings, 162 of the 169 towns in the state made application under the appropriation act, and generally improved town roads will be the outcome. The department also inaugurated this year the policy of offering cooperation to the towns in the matter of construction machinery and engineering advice.

Highway beautification work begun by the department last year was continued more energetically this year, several hundred trees being planted along certain sections of highway and considerable work being done in clearing debris and straggling growths within the highway limits. The year of 1927 witnessed the creation of a new office entirely in charge of the work of highway beautification. Luther M. Keith, former supervisor of the Putnam district who had a record of achievements along the line of beautification in his own district, was placed in charge of the office.

Tieing in with the beautification program was the work of clearing inflammable debris and tangled growths from the limits of the highways as a precaution against the start of forest fires. As a result of this work, not a single woodland fire originated along Connecticut roads. The commissioner, following out the same plans, issued a request to all motorists using Connecticut highways to avoid the practice of dropping lighted cigaret and cigar butts along the edge of the roads, and requested motoring campers to take special precautions with their camp fires.

In order to protect motorists from any impurities that might exist in roadside public drinking supplies, the department cooperated with the state department of health in examining and marking each such supply. In every case where water was found unsafe to drink, the department placed a sign warning motorists against using it.

Thousands of highway signs were placed in Connecticut by the department equipped with the standard United ment during the course of the year. All major routes through the state were States highway signs, yellow and black signs marking the danger spots and cautioning motorists as to what action was best, and white and black signs furnishing directions and route numbers. A new set of signs was designed for use on the four lane Boston Post road. These signs have been placed on the famous pike to warn all slow moving traffic, such as motor trucks and horse drawn vehicles, to remain in the outside lanes and to leave the inside stretches free to the more rapidly moving passenger traffic.

During the year, the department continued to retain its reputation for rapidity in snow removal, the work being far more prevalent during the early months than in the last two months of the year. Several heavy snowfalls took place during January and February and in each case the department with its 183 trucks swinging into action automatically when the snow reached a depth of three inches, was able to clear the main arteries of traffic over night. Drifted snow in some parts of the state made long hours of work necessary to completely clear the roads, but all roads were opened at least for one way traffic by the noonday following the storm. The work of snow removal was followed with further action in preventing the drifts from blowing back into the roads and in keeping the highways free from ice.

The department undertook several chemical experiments during the year, attempting to discover a quick hardening concrete which would enable the opening of newly paved roads several days earlier than formerly. These experiments were successful and a new concrete formula was devised at the department laboratories in Portland. This formula will be put into use during the coming spring and is expected to result in a reduction of the time that traffic is usually forced to use detours or to delay because of one way passage.

Connecticut river ferry service was improved in 1927 by the building and launching of two new boats, the "Pataconk" and the "Hollister." These new ferries were put into operation on the two ferry routes on the Connecticut and continued in operation until cool weather forced a suspension of operations for the winter.

Indications that the present winter might be an open one led to the innovation of awarding contracts for next summer's work in the fall of the year. Contracts were awarded in December for the reconstruction of 31 miles of highway to be completed next summer. The early awards will enable the contractors to complete much of their preliminary work during the winter and early spring months, and to be well under way with their paving before the annual summer rush of traffic commences.

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS

RENAISSANCE FIVE PROVE TOO FAST FOR PLAINFIELD PROS, WINNING 41 TO 25

(Special to The Bulletin)

PLAINFIELD, Jan. 4.—The Renaissance Big Five of New York city, world's colored champions, tonight won from the Plainfield Pros 41 to 25 but they were the "wonder-team" only in spots. While the Harlem quintet held the upper hand over more than half the way still they did not live up to advance notices.

The Pros battled doggedly throughout and probably it was his fact that took some of the brilliance from the widely noted team from the metropolis. Every one of the home club made the colored boys go at top peed all the way and the Renaissance team had to be on the move for the whole forty minutes.

The visitors deserved their victory, there's no doubt about that! They passed better and guarded more consistently than the home five but still the fact remains that they did not impress like the Original Celtics whom they are supposed to hold decisions over.

For the first minute the New York team was brilliant. On the opening tap-off the colored boys gained the ball and with a dazzling display of passing and pivoting worked in and through the Plainfield defense for a basket, Sanders scoring. For the next seven or eight minutes it was all Plainfield, the Pros running up ten points on three baskets by Dissinger and one each by Brusso and Stavinitsky, despite exceptionally close guarding by the visitors. All of these scores were from within a short distance out Stavinitsky's being on a tap-in off the backboard.

With about half the period gone Jenkins converted a foul and Saitch, hobbling for Fiall, who was out with an injured ankle ,threw in a field goal off to the side. "Cappy" Ricks tossed in a long one and Saitch, left uncovered, scored again, bringing the count up to 10-9. Dissinger pushed Plainfield a little bit farther ahead with one off the backboard but Saitch made up for this with another short one and Ricks then sent the visitors ahead for keeps with a basket from a good distance off to the side of the court Slocum dropped in a "sucker" shot making it 15 to 12 but Stavinitsky made a foul and brought Plainfield to within two points.

The Renaissance seemed to be getting their "landslide" attack in motion when Saitch and Slocum dropped in a basket apiece, making it 19 to 3, the largest margin that the colored boys yet held with over 15 minutes gone Stavinitsky, however, kept Plainfield close with a basket off the backboard for 19-15. Ricks tossed in a pretty overhand shot for 21 to 15 but Dissinger still kept Plainfield right at the Harlem's team's heels with a short shot. The score was now 21 to 17 and about 17 minutes of the period had elapsed.

The Renaissance, in these last few minutes of the period, pulled away for their seven point margin at the half, on a foul by Sanders and a basket by Saitch. There was still little of a runaway to this game.

For five minutes or so no more was made with both teams going fast, refreshed from the rest. "Stretch" Sanders scored first, one from off to the side and Stavinitsky converted a foul soon afterwards. Madden made it a bit close, 26 to 20, in definite terms, on a "sucker" shot and Stavinitsky brought things up to that four-point margin again with another short shot. The score was now 26 to 22 with nearly half of the last twenty minutes gone.

At last, the Renaissance began to show real scoring power. Baskets by Sanders, Slocum, Jenkins and fouls by Jenkins and Sanders made it 34 to 22 and from then on Plainfield had little to say about the ultimate outcome. Play got rougher as the minutes dwindled. The ball went up and down the floor, sometimes on mis-directed passes and sometimes on clever dribbling. Madden went out after a rugged exchange and Nichols took his place. Jenkins featured on one of these long excusions taking the ball the length of the court to score and make it 39 to 22. Ricks made a foul and Sanders dropped in a neat over-the-shoulder shot making it 39 to 22. Stavinitsky and Nichols scored for Plainfield, the former on a foul, giving Plainfield all her points and Sanders then finished the Renaissance scoring with a field goal.

In the preliminary the Plainfield Buddies defeated the Y. Outlaws of Norwich 17 to 16 in a rough game. Neither team had a safe edge during the tilt, the going being especially close in the final five minutes.

PROTESTS SENDING SKATING TEAM TO NORWAY

BOSTON, Jan. 4.—(AP)—A protest that threatens to unseat an American-Olympic speed skating team on the eve of its departure from New York was voiced here tonight by William Carroll Hill, president of the Amateur Skating Union of the United States, an organization formed here last November on the dissolution of the International Speed Skating Union of America.

President Hill claims that the skating team scheduled to leave New York tomorrow for a three weeks training period at Oslo, Norway, was chosen by Ben A Goffen, of Pittsburgh, a guiding light in the old International Skating union which is now defunct.

Since the dissolution of the International body and the formation of the A. S. U. last November both organizations have filed claims with the National A. A. U. for recognition as the official speed skating governing body of the country. Hill explained, but an expected decision from the A. A. U judge advocate has not been forthcoming.

Meanwhile Norweigan skating authorities, communicating in good faith with the I. S. U. invited a United States team to come to Oslo, expenses paid for a three weeks training period before the opening of the Olympic winter sports events at St. Moritz on February 12. The invitation was accepted and the team which is now in New York was named and left Chicago two days ago. The squad includes Irwin Jaffe, of New York; Valentine Rialis, Utica, N. Y.; German Perleberg, of Cleveland, and Eddie Murphy and O Neil Farrell, of Chicago.

Hill wants to know how the team can be designated an official American-Olympic selection until the opposing claims of his organization and the I. S. U. are settled.

HAHN WILL COMPETE IN K. OF C. RACE AT BOSTON

BOSTON, Jan. 4.—(AP)—Lloyd Hahn, America's premier miler, who makes his first appearance of the indoor season at Columbus council, Knights of Columbus,meet in New York this Saturday, will compete in two big races in one evening during the Knights of Columbus meet in this city on January 28.

The fast traveling little Boston A. A runner has announced his intention of competing in both the 800 and 1,500 meter races at the Olympics before hanging up his shoes for all time, and his decision to "run double" here was prompted by the desire for a preliminary test of his ability.

The Boston K. of C. games, which this year will be known as the William C. Prout memorial games, will see Hahn entered in the K. of C. mile for the James M. Curley trophy, one which he already holds two legs, and the William C. Prout memorial six hundred.

YALE MERMEN TO PERFORM AT NEW BEDFORD POOL

NEW HAVEN, Jan. 4.—(AP)—Coach R. J. H. Kiphuth of the Yale swimming team, will take four of his stars to Bowdoin college, Brunswick, Me., on Saturday for the opening of the new Cyrus H. K. Curtis swimming pool there.

James D. Bronson, captain of 1926 team will give exhibitions in the fifty and 100 yard free style events, Captain James A. House, Jr., of the varsity team will enter the short free style and back stroke events, M. A. Glascock will give diving exhibitions, and F. M. Rickman will demonstrate the breast stroke.

Coach Kiphuth and his brother, Oscar, will give demonstrations of corrective and body building exercises in connection with a program being arranged by Prof Roland H. Cobb, of the Bowdoin faculty.

SPORT SLANTS

By Alan J. Gould

(Associated Press Sports Editor)

NEW YORK, Jan. 4.—(AP)—The "inside story" now may be told about how the Army rallied to beat the Navy in what may turn out to be their last football game in some time.

It's chief ingredients, as revealed by Head Coach "Biff" Jones of West Point, consisted of a snappy three-minute talk between halves and the confidence of the players in their captain, "Light Horse Harry" Wilson.

To satisfy the curiosity of those who like to know "what happens between halves" Captain Jones resorts to a Lindbergh sort of "we" in this story:

"We just gave the boys a little talk when they came in after the first half, only about three minutes to point out one or two plays they had overlooked and discuss a defense for the Navy plays that had run roughshod through the middle of our line in the first half.

"We were prepared to meet their sweeps and passes but the power of that line attack upset our plans. Clifton, the middle fullback, was the biggest surprise to us.

"We also noticed that Harry Wilson seemed to have his old speed back and planned to use the cut-back through the line that worked so successfully in the second half. It was tried only once in the first half and failed then only because one man did not carry out his assignment. The use of the 'spinner' play, with Murrell carrying the ball, that worked so well in the last half also was emphasized "That was about all but it worked out even better than we figured.

"You know how Wilson got going on that off-tackle play early in the third quarter and how he took the ball down to within a few yards of the goal in four or five plays but here's factor of team spirit we hadn't anticipated:

"Our quarterback figured Wilson was perhaps getting a bit tired. He didn't want to run any risks of losing that touchdown so he called Cagle's signal. There was just a moment's hesitation on Cable's part ,then he said:

It is pretty well known that Wilson not only made this touchdown but another one later on to clinch the game.

"That," concluded "Biff," "is one of the things that make this a great game and give me the biggest kick."

There may be quite a shake-up in the Olympic organization before the American athletic argosy sails in July for Holland.

Indications already are out that Al Lacy, Boston trainer, will replace "Spike" Webb of the Naval academy as coach of the boxing squad. Webb had this assignment in 1920 and 1924 but the powers-that-be oppose his selection again.

The track and field coaching staff, under Lawson Robertson of Pennsylvania, as head coach, also will be revamped, as compared with 1924. Several new figures will be on the list, possibly including Dean Cromwell of southern California, Henry Schulte of Nebraska and Harry Gill of Illinois. Of the old staff however, Harry Hillman of Dartmouth and Johnny Magee of Bowdoin are expected to be retained.

YANKEES SIGN TWO PACIFIC LEAGUE PLAYERS

NEW YORK, Jan. 4.—(AP)—Two of the most eagerly sought minor league stars in the country, Shortstop Lyn Lary and Second Sacker Jimmy Reese of the Oakland club of the Pacific Coast league, have been signed for delivery to the world's champion New York Yankees in 1929.

Purchase of the crack infield pair was announced officially today by Colonel Jacob Ruppert, Yankee owner, after circulation of reports for several weeks that they had been obtained "under cover."

The price for the two young stars was not disclosed but baseball experts estimate it will amount to at least the equivalent of $150,000 in cash and players.

Although baseball men were prepared for the Yankee announcement it probably came as a shock to clubs hopeful of stopping the New Yorkers. Already regarded a one of the great teams of all time, champions by a wide margin last year and heavy favorites to repeat this year, the Yankees apparently intend to leave nothing to chance in keeping their machine highly geared.

The coast pair attracted attention last season as one of the cleverest combinations in the minors. Reese set a new Pacific Coast league record by handling 1,273 out of 1,294 chances while Lary was not far behind in fielding skill. Lary is more of a slugger but they batted about the same for 1927, a few points under .300.

Both are young, Lary being only 21 and Reese,22, so that another year of seasoning in "AA" company may ripen them for the big show.

DANIELSON TOWNERS CLASH WITH CLINTON FIVE TONIGHT

When the Danielson Town team meets the Clinton German five in Danielson tonight they will have their regular lineup on the floor, including Coach William Schofield, who was on the All-New England college basketball team last year and who has just returned from his vacation in fine condition. The remainder of the team will include, Armington, Veach, Poirier, Godreau, Reeves and Blakely.

This team has made a fine showing this year having played the best teams obtainable by the Danielson management so there is no question but what there will be a great battle between Clinton and Danielson tonight.

Clinton always brings along a large cheering squad and the Danielson fans and players think they will need them as they are out for business.

Those wishing real good seats want to plan on being in the town hall early as there is a very large crowd expected.

GLICK GETS VERDICT OVER FARR IN 10 ROUNDS

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Jan. 4.—(AP)—Joe Glick, Brooklyn Italian and foremost contender for Tod Morgan's junior lightweight crown, handily earned a ten-round decision over Johnny Farr, of Cleveland, here tonight.

Glick weighed 130 1-2. Johnny Kilbane, former feather king, was referee. Glick outsmarted Farr and won all the way. The milling was fast and continuous. Jack Britton, formerly world welterweight champion, and Lloyd Hilbert, of Cleveland were ordered out of the ring in the fifth round of a scheduled eight-round semi-windup. Referee Matt Brock said theye "weren't trying."

Y EMPS CLASH AGAIN WITH PHANTOMS TONIGHT

The New Britain Phantoms come back for their second game with the Y Emps this evening at the Y gym. The Phantoms pinned the first defeat in 20 starts consisting of two seasons play on the locals last Thursday in one of the best played games seen here this season . The Hardware City team showed plenty of class in that game, practically all of them being well versed in pivoting, passing, dribbling and all those sorts of things.

The Emps will use their best lineup consisting of Tigar and Economius at the forwards with Henschel at center and Swatsburg and Murphy and it ought to be an interesting evening.

ACADEMY WILL OPEN SEASON SATURDAY NIGHT

The Academy's basketball season formally opens Saturday evening at the Y gym when the Red and White takes on Plainfield High. Little is known of the visitors but they are expected to provide a real test for the local schoolboys, who will be starting on their second season in this game. The C. F. C. and Plainfield Buddies will play the preliminary.

Coach Whitney will hold a stiff session today at which all regulars are expected to put in an appearance, prepared for a busy campaign after the holiday rest.

WALTER HAGEN RETIRES FROM BASEBALL VENTURE

NEW YORK, Jan. 4.—(AP)—The retirement of Walter Hagen, professional golf champion, from a brief and probably costly venture into organized baseball was disclosed today simultaneous with announcement of an extension of time granted to the Rochester (N. Y.) club of the International league to straightenout its financial difficulties.

The Rochester club will forfeit its franchise unless its affairs are settled by January 16.

Cullop Sold To Buffalo.

CLEVELAND, O., Jan. 4.—(AP)—Nick Cullop, outfielder for the Cleveland Indians, was sold to the Buffalo club of the International league today for $8,000. The tribe bought Cullop last year from Washington, paying $12,500 for him.

WATERBURY EASTERN LEAGUE CLUB MAY BE TRANSFERED TO ANOTHER CITY

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Jan. 4.—(AP)—Waterbury will give way to another New England city in the Eastern league this season, according to indications given at a meeting of the league officials here today. Because of the heavy losses sustained by the Connecticut club owners last season through lack of patronage and the flooding of their park, combined with the general apathy in the city toward professional baseball, the league president, Herman J. Weisman, who is also an owner of the Waterbury club, told the directors that drastic action had to be taken. He explained that two propositions were open, one to transfer the franchise to another city, the second, to let a major league club operate the Waterbury club. This second proposition was frowned upon General sentiment at the meeting was that Worcester might be the new spoke in the Eastern league wheel.

The meeting, first of the New Year, was officially called to take action on the draft issue which looms between the major and minor leagues as the result of the recent action at Dallas by the minor leagues when those five leagues that enjoyed modified draft relations with the majors were ordered to discontinue the system.

Herman J. Weisman, president of the Eastern league and who drafted the original resolution at Dallas, will represent his league at Chicago on January 9. The Eastern league, it was pointed out, has always been in favor of the universal draft system, contending that the advancement of young ball players by this system came ahead of everything else and made for a better spirit of competition. The Eastern league would like to have the modified draft privilege extended to every league in the minor association. It is bitterly opposed to the three class AA, Western and Three-Eye having special privileges in this respect. The sentiment of the league was that the changes adopted at French Lick Springs, Ind., last season by which the Eastern league's draft price was raised from $4,000 to $6,000 best suited the Eastern league. These changes never went into effect.

If Judge Landis, commissioner of baseball, rules that the action of the minor association in ordering the five "renegade" minor league to discontinue the modified draft was valid, the Eastern league is in favor of continuing the minor-major league agreement adopted in 1921, but if the commissioner rules that such action was invalid, the Eastern league goes on record as favoring abrogation of the major-minor league agreement. President Weisman announced after the meeting.

WINGATE HAS LOW SCORE IN TRAVIS TROPHY PLAY

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla., Jan. 4.—(AP)—Bob Wingate of the Jacksonville, Fla., golf club, won medalist honors here today in the qualifying round of the National championship tournament of amateur club champions with a score of 38-38—77, for the 18 hole play.

He just nosed out R. C. Garretson of Ashland, Ohio,who finished next in the sixteen flight with 41-37—78. High winds which swept the course all day interfered with play.

The tournament is for the $1,000 Walter J. Travis Memorial trophy which will go for one year to the club whose champions wins it.

AL MILLER WILL BE ABLE TO RUN FOR HARVARD

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Jan. 4. —(AP)—Al Miller, former Harvard dash man and Olympic sprint prospect will not be forced to abandon running this year due to a training injury, Eddie Farrell, Harvard track coach, said today. Miller was reported to have pulled a tendon recently, but examination has shown the injury to be nothing more serious than a tightened muscle which has rounded into shape again after a lay-off. Miller was in running togs today and plans to make his first indoor appearance at the Knights of Columbus games here on January 28.

MASSACHUSETTS BOXING TURNS REVENUE OF $65,460

BOSTON, Jan. 4.—(AP)— Boxing in Massachusetts returned a revenue of $65,460.16,according to figures for the fiscal year submitted to the legislature today by the Massachusetts boxing commission. The total represents an increase of some $1,400 over the year 1926, which in turn approximately equalled that of 1925.

"The figures show that there is no tidal wave as far as boxing is concerned in Massachusetts and at the same time no disastrous landslide," was the comment of Gene Buckley, chairman of the commission.

Whitman To Pilot Bridgeport.

BRIDGEPORT, Jan. 4.—(AP)—William C. (Billy) Whitman, of Philadelphia, former scout of the Chicago Cubs and last year manager of the Pittsfield club, today signed a contract to manage the Bridgeport baseball club of the Eastern league for one year.

McCarthy Bout is Postponed

The bout at Worcester between Young McCarthy of Norwich and a Worcester fighter which was to have been held tonight has been postponed for two weeks. McCarthy finished up his training on Tuesday and was in the finest of condition for his go.

NEW ENGLAND AMATEURS AT NASHUA COUNTRY CLUB

BOSTON, Jan. 4.—(AP)—The 1928 New England amateur golf championship will be held July 25 to 28, at the Nashua Country club, Nashua, N. H., it was announced here today by William F. Garcelon, president of the New England Golf association.

Although the Ne wEngland amateur golf championship tournament is a fixture of rather tender years first seeing light in 1926, it has attained great importance and the officers of the N. E. G. A. are planning to handle a record field at Nashua.

Fred J. Wright, Jr., of Boston, Mass., won the 1927 championship. The 1926 event was won by Francis C. Newton, of Brookline.

Sherry Is Released.

CLEVELAND, O., Jan. 4.—(AP)—Sherry Smith, southpaw pitcher was given his unconditional release by the Cleveland baseball club today. Sherry, who is 37, did little hurling for the tribe last year He was used as a coach most of the season. He came to the Indians six years ago from Brooklyn by the waiver route.

BASKETBALL BRIEFS

These Thursday nights seem to be filled with promising games. Tonight the Y Emps-New Britain Phantoms play at the Y gym here and in Danielson the Town Team plays the Clinton (Mass.) Germans.

Probably that was being indefinite when we said that Thursday night had a lot of good games. Every night promises real action from now on.

The regular schedule should now find the C. F. C. in action on Monday, Taftville on Tuesday, Plainfield Pros on Wednesday, Danielson and Y Emps on Thursday and Academy on Saturday Also the Academy will probably throw in games during the week, probably for Tuesday or Friday nights. This list is not mentioning the City league games in New London or high school tilts in Willimantic, Stonington and New London where the fans will also be occupied fairly well but where no one night has been announced for the home games.

Windham ought to beat Chapman Tech tomorrow evening although the Whalers have somewhat of an edge in experience on the Willimantic boys. Tech has played over twice as many games so far this season as the Callaghan men have.

Aubrey Brown sure made a real debut with the Taftville Crescents the other night against that Hartford team. He seems to fit in well with the rest of the orange-jerseyed boys and that he will be a great help next Tuesday night against Danielson is taken for granted.

The City league in New London has once again resumed after a lapse mainly because of the S-4 disaster.

Once again we can say that nothing is being heard of a City league in Norwich although there seems to be a demand for such a project.

Stonington High plays the Socony club of New London, leaders in the New London league Friday at Stonington. The schoolboys should win for although are good in their home loop they have shown nothing outside, losing both to the Plainfield Buddies and Colchester teams.

Who's the city's tallest basketball player, is a uestion for today. We nominate Herb Neilsen of the First Baptist team of the Senior church league with Les Pingree and Joe Viau of the Academy or Johnny Diachyshyn of the Y Emps as good runners-up.

They say that when a fellow bunts inbaseball he sort of lays down on the job then why not, when a player tosses in a basket in basketball doesn't he rather throw up the job.

125 STRIKE SYMPATHIZERS ARRESTED IN COLORADO

DENVER, Colo., Jan. 4.—(AP)—After several weeks of comparative inactivity, the Colorado coal miners' strike which was called by the Industrial Workers of the World on Oct. 18, took on new life today. State police arrested 125 strike sympathizers for mass picketing in Huerfano and Fremont counties and raided the I. W. W. headquarters in Walsenburg.

Sheriff Henry Koerner announced that law enforcement in Fremont county had been turned over entirely to state police.

Large crowds appeared around the Huerfano county jail at Walsenburg, where 117 of the persons arrested by state police were confined. State police armed with machine guns were on duty inside the building. Eight others arrested were held in jail at Canon City.

Crowds also appeared around the jail there.

State police announced they had seized a large number of clubs made out of chair legs, pieces of pipe, pickhandles and other articles in the I. W. W. headquarters at Walsenburg. They said the raid was made following a report that the I. W. W. members planned a demonstration today because of the arrests made by the state police.

BURKE LEADS FIELD AT LOS ANGELES

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 4.—(AP)—With two stunning rounds of 69 and 68, William Burke, Rochester, N. Y., topped a field of nearly 300 players in today's $6 hole qualifying test of the Los Angeles $10,000 open gold tournament.

Horton Smith, Kansas City, who tied Burke in the first 18 today, shot a 71 on his second round to qualify with 140 strokes while Jack Tarrant, Los Angeles, turned in cards of 72-69 for a total of 141.

Arnold Statz, Los Angeles amateur who also is a professional baseball player, had two good rounds of 75-70 to qualify with 145.

Qualifying play was held over six courses with the 15 low scorers of each entering the 72 hole championship which starts Friday at the Wilshire Country club.

Some 25 outstanding performers, including Tommy Armour, national open title holder; Bobby Cruickshank, New York; Harry Cooper, Los Angeles, and George Von Elm, former national amateur champion, were exempt from qualifying today because of their showings in the last national open and Los Angeles open events.

Those qualifying today:

Horton Smith, Kansas City. 68-71—140.

Jack Tarrant, Los Angeles. 72-69—141.

Fred Morrison, Los Angels. 73-70—143.

Arnold Statz, Los Angeles. 75-70—145.

Frank Walsh, Minneapolis. 73-74—146.

Olin Dutra, Los Angeles. 72-74—146.

Abe Espinosa, Chicago. 71-76—147.

John Perelli, Los Angeles. 76-71—147.

Harold Hiser, Los Angeles, 78-74—152.

Jule Blanton, Toledo, Ohio. 73-79—152.

Fred Bell, Denver. 77-75—152.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theatre

"Stage Kisses," the Columbia Pictures' production which will be shown for the last times today at the Palace theatre, is an attempt to prove that all of the affection of an actress is not sham. The story moves along smoothly and in a perfectly natural manner with plenty of stirring action and breathless moments of suspense. Blended with this is a constant shifting background of social life ranging from the stage, cabaret and night club to the staid drawing-rooms of the upped social strata and the more relaxed atmosphere of an apartment block

Kenneth Harlan is just the right type for the young aristocrat, who revolts against parental dictation, and sets out for himself. He displays a natural and proper faith in his wife and builds up a pleasing characterization.

John Patrick, Phillipps Smalley, Ethel Wales and Frances Raymond complete the strong and capable cast which makes "Stage Kisses," an interesting two hours' entertainment.

In the co-feature the thrilling Tyler trio are again delighting audiences with their own inimitable form of entertainment in "Out of the West." F. B. O.'s latest Tom Tyler production which is coming to the Palace theatre next week where it will begin a three day run. This unrivalled screen combination which includes besides Tom Tyler, his little pal, Frankie Darro, and the faithful "Sitting Bull," always has a fresh supply of laughs, a new store of thrills and an original note in romance. This time the story has a novel twist by introducing Tom as a baseball player in his off moments when not occupied in his ranch duties. The love interest is supplied by the beautiful actress.

Dodge Brothers' New Victory Six.

After 18 months of development work, Dodge Brothers, Inc., has officially announced the Victory Six, a passenger car containing a number of marked innovations. It is long and low in appearance, capable of sustained high speed, and is priced from $1,045 to $1,170; the standard of sustained at $1,095 f. o. b. Detroit.

Plans for 1928 at Dodge Brothers include the continuance of the Standard Four, equipped with 4-wheel brakes and priced at $875 for the sedan, and the Senior Six, priced at $1,595 for the sedan; in addition to the Victory Six. The Graham Brothers truck division, which has just completed the most prosperous year in its history, will continue to build commercial cars and trucks of five capacities; 2-ton, 1½-ton, 1-ton, ¾-ton and ½-ton.

"With this program," said President E. G. Wilmer, "the Dodge dealers are prepared to meet a wide range of the demand for automotive transportation. These three distinct classifications of passenger cars and five separate types of trucks fit into a high percentage of the public's requirements as indicated by the industry's total sales."

Tentative schedules for the year indicate that nearly three-fourths of Dodge Brothers passenger car production will consist of Victory models including a coupe at $1,045, a coupe with rumble seat at $1,095, a sedan at $1,095 de luxe sedan at $1,170, and a de luxe brougham at $1,170.

Grilling tests during which more than 1,000,000 miles were rolled up by engineers in both experimental and actual-production models preceded the formal announcement of the Victory. Some of the testcars, on durability runs, were kept going on the highways until their speedometers showed over 100,000 miles; speed performances on the Indianapolis track demonstrated that the car was capable of maintaining nearly 70 miles an hour as an average in thousand-mile grinds. For months preliminary to the formal announcement, Victory Six models have been subjected to all sorts and conditions of roadwork in all parts of the United States; their drivers taking them 14,000 feet up mountains and far below sea level on western deserts.

Officials of the Dodge company state that the new car embodies several basic innovations in automotive construction and design. To provide road-holding qualities necessary for high speeds and at the same time to permit the low sweeping body lines dictated by fashion without sacrificing roominess or road clearance, Dodge Brothers is employing a design entirely new to the industry. The body and the chassis frame, in the Victory Six, are a single unit.

Because conventional sills and cross-members are done away with, the center of gravity is closer to the road and the over-all height of the car is about at the ordinary man's hatbrim. The low center of gravity and union of chassis and body are said to have a marked stabilizing effect, reducing side sway and adding greatly to riding comfort. The frame of the Victory Six chassis is so deep that no splash shields are necessary, thus eliminating a source of noise.

Further structural distinctiveness has been obtained by a novel type of body design, which might be described as a steel shell welded inside an outer steel shell to form a double wall with an air space between. What automotive engineers graphically and untechnically describe as "tin-panning" in all-steel body construction effectually has been suppressed by perforations and other sound-deadening devices; leaving, they assert, strength, lightness, appearance, and absence of rattles as a net gain.

The engine developed exclusively for the Victory Six is an L-head, medium duty type, with bore of 3 3-8 inches and stroke of 3 7-8 inches. Pistons are aluminum alloy. Seven bearings support the crankshaft, which turns approximately 1,285 r. p. m. at 25 miles an hour and about 3,350 r. p. m. at 65 miles an hour. Because of rigid support and careful balancing of the 52 pound crankshaft, no counterweights or other vibration dampeners are used. Gearshift positions are S. A. E. standard; namely, lever to left and back for low and to right and back for high.

Four-wheel Lockheed hydraulic foothrakes expand internally against a drum 12 inches in diameter. The parking brake contracts on the propeller shaft.

The entire passenger car production of Dodge Brothers, in all three models, will be supplied in wide varieties of color combinations.

NURSE IS INJURED DURING AUTO ACCIDENT

WESTERLY, R. I., Jan. 4—A misunderstanding of signals was reported as the cause of an automobile accident about 11 a. m. today when a new Buick roadster owned and driven by Dr. J. Gordon Anderson was badly smashed when it struck a stone post in front of the property of Owen Vaughn, 27 Beach street. Miss Mary I. Patton, a nurse at the Margaret Edward Anderson hospital, an occupant of the auto, received a cut on her face from the broken windshield and injuries to her knee. X-rays will be taken to ascertain if further injuries resulted.

The accident happened as James Neugent was driving his Ford coach up Beach street and, followed by the Anderson car, was about to turn into the Westerly highway department yard, formerly the Beach street car barn of the trolley road. It was stated that neither Neugent's hand signal nor the Anderson car horn were sen eor heard by either driver. To avoid a more serious accident the Neugent car straightened away up Beach street while the Buick went on the sidewalk and struck the stone post. The Neugent auto was not struck by the other car and Dr. Anderson was uninjured. Patrolman George L. Madison investigated, Mr. Neugent taking Miss Patton to the hospital in his auto.

A chimney fire in the house of Frank Vacca, 18 Pond street, was the cause of an alarm being turned in from Box No. 81, Pond and Pierce streets, about 9:30 a. m. Wednesday. The Seagraves and Ahrens-Fox pumpers and the truck of the Alert Hook and Ladder company responded. The Ahrens-Fox and the truck returned to the temporary headquarters, Morrone garage on Main street, when their services were not needed.

Under direction of Chief George E. Egger and Engineer Columbus J. Pasetti hose from the Seagraves booster tank was taken into the front door of the residence and carried up stairs where the contents were directed into the chimney. No damage resulted from the fire.

The Fifth Division Commander of the Grand Commandery of Knights Templar and the Appendant Orders of Massachusetts and Rhode Island, Eminent Sir Harold W. Sprague, a past commander of Bay State commandery, No. 53 of Brockton, Mass., paid an informal visit Wednesday evening to Narragansett commandery, No. 7, K. T., of Westerly. He was accompanied by his father as acting deputy grand warder. Officers of the commandery and guests gathered for a dinner, previous to the opening of the 613th stated conclave by Commander E. Sir Robert Hazard. There was no work, that the division commander might make a social visit previous to the annual commandery inspection Feb 15th when he will again visit the commandery as inspecting officer.

Carpenters were engaged Wednesday stretching wire re-inforcement on the roof of the addition to Westerly Memorial and Public Library building preparatory to having everything in readiness when weather conditions would permit the pouring for the fire-proof cement roof.

The Frederick O. Lanphear company of Broad and Main streets, purchased Wednesday about an acre of land on the east side of Main street on which a garage will be built. The property, formerly that of Mrs. Hannah B. W. Brown, with a Main street frontage of 99 feet was purchased through the agent for the Brown property heirs, Harry B., Russell H., Frank W., and Roger G. Nevins.

Wednesday morning at 8:30 o'clock the funeral of James Ballata, of Pawcatuck was held from his home, 9 Thompson street. High mass of requiem was celebrated at 9 o'clock at St Michael's church by Rev. Leo C. Weston. Burial was at St. Michael's New cemetery, where the committal service was by Fr. Weston. The bearers were James Ballata, Salvatore Ballata, Peter Castagna, Thomas Sanquidolce and Thomas Conti.

This (Thursday) afternoon from 1 to 5, children under school age will have an opportunity to take the Schick test for inoculation against diphtheria, in the child welfare clinic, under the auspices of the Westerly Visiting Nurse association. Dr. Paul F. Thompson, assistant pathologist of the state board of health and Dr. Marion A. Gleason, director of the board's division of child welfare, will give the test to all children brought to the W. V. N. A. rooms at 111 High street by their parents. Diphtheria has been entirely eliminated from the public schools of Westerly since the Schick test was introduced here three years ago, according to Dr. Samuel C. Webster, health officer.

Cold so affected the automatic steam trip valves beneath the Pullman sleepers of the east-bound New England express that when the Westerly station stop was made brakemen and porters crawled beneath the six or eight cars with lighted fuses to thaw them out. A Seaboard R. R. combination observation car, "Charleston" officials car No 3 was attached to the end of train bound for Boston.

Miss Adele M. Martin, librarian of Westerly library, was in Providence Wednesday.

Miss Augusta Stanton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Stanton, has returned to her studies at Wellesley college, after the holiday recess.

Henry G. Clark of Providence was in Westerly Wednesday.

Mrs. Edward P. Mitchell, Whetyepay farm, Charlestown, R. I., was a visitor in Pawcatuck Wednesday.

Robert Duff left Westerly Wednesday morning for Boston.

John O. Mills and son, Olcott G. Mills left Westerly on Wednesday to attend the annual furniture exhibition on Grand Rapids, Mich.

ASHAWAY GOLDEN WEDDING A DOUBLE ANNIVERSARY

In spite of the storm Saturday afternoon a good number of friends and relatives of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel E. Blake gathered at their home on High street, Ashaway to commemorate the fiftieth anniversary of their marriage and incidently the second anniversary of the marriage of their daughter Almyra and Harry B. Lewis. Both events occurred on the same date of the month.

The celebration was rather informal as it was managed as a complete surprise to Mr. and Mrs. Blake by their daughters, Mrs. Lewis and Mrs. Grieve.

Mr. M. L. W. Ennis a life-long acquaintance and relative of Mrs. Blake was present and entertained the company by reading a brief poem written for the anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. Blake received many congratulatory cards, beautiful flowers and golden souvenirs.

Cake, ice cream and coffee were served. Miss Clara Pashley of Intermont college, Bristol, Va., played and sang with those present many old time favorites, and little Claire Louise Grieve, the granddaughter sang "The Golden Wedding Day." A social hour was enjoyed by all.

NOANK

At the meeting of the Fire Co. Tuesday night in their rooms Foreman Albert Banks was in the chair. Different committees made their reports. The dance committee reported that the weekly dances at Unity hall have attracted good crowds and are putting money in the bank for the company. H. Bracci in charge of the pinochle team stated that he has rounded up some fast smoke-eater card sharps for the team and will give the hooks of Mystic the heavy oil at a future contest in a series of three games. Chief Park reported the fires the village has had in the past year—only five. These were: March 26, Anderson cottage on Riverside avenue, a total loss; Letrell boat at the north dock in July, burned to the water's edge; Oct. 14, Capt. Arthur Fish's boat at North dock a total loss; railroad station roof afire, little damage; Dec. 17, the chimney at O. W. Beebe's home was afire and damaged slightly.

His report was voted O. K. There was one false alarm for a mile and a half run and no fire. After the meeting Assistant Steward Harry Roberston gave the crowd bean sandwiches, cake and jello, also a firemen's cup of coffee, good to the last drop.

Miss Grace Fitpatrick has returned to New York after a short visit at her home.

Mrs. Sam Terry was working around the kitchen at her home with her washing Tuesday morning and put some wet wood in the oven to dry it out and forgot about the wood. She was busy at the clothes-line, then started back to the house. The kitchen was filled with smoke and the smell of wood burning brought the neighbors with buckets to help put out the blaze as the smoke was pouring from the windows. Her husband opening the oven and finding the wood afire, threw the sticks into the yard.

Mrs. B. Benoit has gone to Providence for a week's visit with relatives.

Olva Jensen of Fishers Island has been in the village for a few days.

Quartermaster Edward Jensen has returned from a trip to South America on steamer Krooland. Jensen claimed it was the roughest weather he ever saw on the ocean, with waves rolling as high as a house. The wind blew an 80-mile gale. Several of the crew were seasick, including old sea dog, Jerry Spike, who never knew what it was to be sea sick. Quartermaster Jensen will spend about seven days in the village, then back to South America, sailing out of New York

Mr. and Mrs. E. Foley have returned to Fitchville, after visiting Mr. and Mrs. William Bishop.

The auto number plates this year are blue and white. About 30 auto owners got caught in the long line in New London at the last minutes and 3 o'clock a. m. found a Noank owner in line until 8:30 a. m. and then 400 were back of him. He hoped he would not have to wait as long as that for a marriage license.

St. Joseph's Sunday school classes had the best Christmas program this year since the church was built, in 1902. The program included: Song, Silent Night; recitations, Welcome, John Steele; Christmas, Vera Miller; Nearing Christmas, Dolly Jennie Steele; song, Santa, Gordon Burbine; recitations, Poor Santa Claus, Mary Wilcox; Useful Things in Clothes, Norris Burdick; song, Christmas Lullaby, Nellie May Zuccardy, Hazel Trahan, Emily Miller; recitations, Teddy Bears, Adirce Clifford Sullivan; Christmas Elfs, Frances Eldredgh; It's Proved at Last, Arnold Burbine; violin solo, Hazel Trahan; recitations, The Longest Day, Charles Zuccardy; Christmas Everywhere, Emily Miller; song, Christmas, Charles Zuccardy, Buddy Mayard; recitation, Christmas, Hazel Trahan; organ solo, Wilford Ellis; recitation, Morning After Christmas, Bernice Burbine; song, Santa Dear, Emily Miller, Jennie Steele; recitation, Christmas Bells, Harriet Eldredgh; organ solo, Nellie May Zuccardy; song, O Come All Ye Faithful, Sunday school. The committee who worked so hard to train the children were: Chairman, Miss Viola Ellis, Mabel Ellis, Miss Mary Roberston and Frances McDonald, the Sunday school teachers.

Mr. and Mrs. Clish of Oakdale, R. I., is visiting Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Eccel.

Frank McDonald and John Roberston stone.

Frank McDonald and John Roberston have left for Newport, R. I., where they have secured work as carpenters in the shipyard.

Miss Adelaide Spicer is ill.

Professor Webster Chester of Watertown, Me., is pending a few days in the village.

The officers are: President, Mrs. Margaret Decker; senior vice president, Mrs. Charles Gremly; junior vice president, Mrs. Hattie Grimes; chaplain, Mrs. Lucy P. Lewis; conductor, Mrs. Elsie Thorp; treasurer, Mrs. Ella Getchell; guard, Mrs. Laura Tift; secretary, Mrs. Katherine Allen; patriotic instructor, Mrs. Lucy Burdick; press correspondent, Mrs. Margaret Eldredge; assistant conductor, Miss Evelyn Burdick; first guard, Mrs. Marion Packer; color bearers, Mrs. Annie Higbee, Mrs. Marion Higbee, Mrs. Lillie Barden, Mrs. Grace Murphy. After the installation, Miss R. Carrie Chapman presented Mrs. Alice Lamb, retiring president, two framed pictures and another present. Mrs. K. Allen presented Mrs. Lucy a vase.

The G. O. R., Sons of Veterans, and Daughters of Veterans, were united; twelve were present. Brief addresses were made by E. L. Scofild, Horace Clift, for the Veterans; Arthur Rathbun, A. W. Butler for the Sons, and Mrs. Harriet Eccleston for the Daughters.

Mrs. Lucy Burdick gave a reading, Uncle Josh's Second Visit to the City, and My Suffering Sisters, which made a big hit. After readings by Mrs. Margaret Decker, the meeting closed in due form. Chicken sandwiches, fancy cookies and coffee were served. About fifty were present.

Mrs. W. K. Logee has returned to Providence after a visit with her sister-in-law, Mrs. Mary S. Brown.

Miss Elizabeth A. Burrows returned Wednesday from Providence where she has been visiting her niece, Mrs. William Allen.

James M. Whitman collected the rubbish Tuesday and Wednesday for the Village Improvement society.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Wydler, of Norwich, spent New Year's with the former's father, Emil Wydler.

Short Talks by Thoughtful Mothers

A Wisconsin Mother says: "I find mothers very well informed on the subject of 'dope' in medicines. Few mothers now-a-days would buy a preparation that contained opiates or chloroform. A glance at the package before buying tells her this. With Foley's Honey and Tar Compound, the name tells a true story. It is quickly effective for coughs, colds, croup and throat irritations. Pure as it is sure, and worth many times its price."

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

Black Pussy Is Unknowingly a Friend

We all at times unknowing lend
Our aid to one who's not a friend.
—Black Pussy.

Black Pussy is fond of the old stonewall that runs along one side of the Old Orchard. She is fond of it because some of the little folk she delights to hunt are fond of it. She is always expecting one of them to pop out from between the stones. Frequently she catches a glimpse of one of them disappearing between the stones. So Black Pussy likes to hunt along the old stonewall. When she has nothing else to do she goes down there and crouches beside some favorite hole, hoping that some one will come out of it.

Now it was mere chance that Black Pussy decided to go hunting along the old stonewall right on the very day that Shadow the Weasel decided that he would hunt along the old stonewall. Of course, Black Pussy knew nothing about the plans of Shadow the Weasel, and Shadow the Weasel knew nothing of the plans of Black Pussy. So it happened that at just the time that Shadow, as white as the driven snow, started in at one end of the old stonewall Black Pussy, as black as the blackest of the Black Shadows, started at the other end of the old stonewall.

There was one certain place which was a great favorite with Black Pussy. She had spent many hours watching a certain hole between two great stones of the old wall. It was a very small hole, but time and time again Black Pussy had seen Striped Chipmunk pop out of that hole. So she used to go over there often, hoping that Striped Chipmunk would pop out while she was there. And she always made the mistake of sitting too close to that hole. That was one reason that Striped Chipmunk never had popped out. He had always discovered her first.

It was straight to this place that Black Pussy now went, and as usual she crouched close to the hole. She didn't seem to think that being so black she would be very easily seen against all that white around her. She crouched with her eyes fixed on the hole, out of which she hoped Striped Chipmunk would pop, despite the fact that he never had popped out when she had been there before.

So intent was Black Pussy in watching that hole that she didn't see a little white form, a very small person slim, trim and pure white, bounding along on top of the old wall, until her attention was drawn by an angry spitting sound. Then she looked up to see Shadow the Weasel. He was on top of the wall, just a little more than a good jump away, and he was very, very angry. He arched his back and hissed and spit, as only a Weasel can. Really, it was funny to see such a little fellow threatening one so many times bigger than himself.

Now, it would have been better for Shadow had he not given way to his temper. He wanted to investigate that hole where Black Pussy was, and it was because she was sitting there that he was so very angry. But he was so bold about it that Black Pussy made no attempt to catch him. Little as he was, he somehow made Black Pussy respect him. Perhaps Black Pussy knew that it would be perfectly useless to chase him. Anyway, she was satisfied to remain right where she was and continued to glare at him.

Finding that he couldn't make Black Pussy move, Shadow leaped from the wall on the far side, ran around the place where Black Pussy was and kept on along the old wall, investigating every nook and cranny and every hole. Of course, he didn't find the entrance to Striped Chipmunk's home. It was down right under where Black Pussy was sitting. So it was that Black Pussy, who wanted to catch Striped Chipmunk and so was Striped Chipmunk's enemy, proved to be his friend that time. Had she not been right where she was Shadow undoubtedly would have found the entrance to Striped Chipmunk's home, and I am afraid that would have meant the end of Striped Chipmunk.

The next story: "Shadow Visits the Barn."

In 1882 David Nightingale bought a pair of shoes in John Dickman's store at Peekskill, N. Y., and then left for California without paying for them. Recently Nightingale returned to settle his forty-five-year-old debt. He found the shoeman had retired from business, but was out $4, the original price of the shoes, and then $35 more, which he estimated was the interest to date.

PACKARD EIGHT PRICES REDUCED

PACKARD'S own Custom Eight cars are today reduced in price as follows:

MODEL	OLD PRICE	NEW PRICE	REDUCTION
Seven Pass. Sedan Limousine	$5250	$4550	$700
Seven Passenger Sedan	5150	4450	700
Two Pass. Convertible Coupe	4950	4250	700
Two Passenger Coupe	4800	4150	650
Five Passenger Club Sedan	4950	4450	500
Four Passenger Coupe	4950	4450	500

The Packard factories are busy to capacity—busier than ever before in nearly thirty years of fine motor car building and at a season of the year when activity is least expected. It is but good business for Packard to share its prosperity with those who buy its products. Therefore the new prices.

There has been no change in quality. Each car is identical with those Packard has been building. The new prices continue to include complete custom equipment and unlimited paint and upholstery options costing hundreds of dollars extra on many other cars. This, together with today's price reductions, gives the Packard Eight an important first cost advantage.

The lower prices make it possible for many additional thousands to step up to the possession of America's finest and most modern car.

We shall be pleased to put this great car into your hands for a demonstration and in return ask only the privilege of telling you what your present car is worth in part payment. Any Packard may be purchased on our payment plan.

(Prices do not include freight and Government tax)

Me and Milt

Milt Work and I have not so much in common—
I hear he seldom trumps his partner's ace!
He must be quite a different brand of salmon
From this poor fish who grovels in disgrace.
They say he never asks "What's trumps?" or raises
A partner's bid, when all the rest say "By."
So playmates seldom tell him "Go to blazes!"
Or label him a feeble-minded guy.

I hear he never doubles on suspicion
Or goes no trump with four-card topless suits.
Wherefore he seldom wallows in contrition
Or feels the weight of censure—or of boots!
His partner and opponents get a notion,
From what he bids, what cards are in his hand.
Which wins for him a great deal more devotion
Than I, with my erratic game, command.

I'm told that when he bids he often makes it.
Instead of getting set 'most all the time.
He never holds a card aloft and shakes it.
Then violently slams it—that's a crime!
He never says, so I have heard, "spadoodles";
He never drops his cards, they all agree—
If my informants are not off their noodles,
Milt Work, at bridge, does not resemble me!
—Strickland Gillilan, in Kansas City Star.

An Epitaph on Bad Roads

They took a little gravel,
And took a little tar,
With various ingredients
Imported from afar;
They hammered it and rolled it,
And when they went away
They said they had a good street
To last for many a day.

They came with picks and smote it,
To lay a water main,
And then they called the workmen
To put it back again.
To lay a railway cable
They took it up once more,
And then the put it back again
Just where it was before.

They took it up for conduits,
To run the telephone,
And then they put it back again
As hard as any stone.
They tore it up for wires
To feed the 'lectric lights;
And then they put it back again,
And were within their rights.

Oh, the street is full of furrows
There are patches everywhere;
You'd like to ride upon it,
But it's seldom that you dare.
It's a very handsome street,
A credit to the town;
They're always digging of it up
Or putting of it down.
—Washington Post.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

Grim Neighbor—"Are you saying that I poisoned your dog?"

Mary—"Papa is there really honor among thieves?"

Father—"No, Mary. Thieves are just as bad as other people."—Answers, London.

"Say, George, did you hear about the man who fell off a 60-foot ladder?"

"No, was he hurt much?"

"No. He fell off the bottom rung."—Montreal Family Herald.

Madge (with magazine)—This writer says that every woman's face tells a story. Does mine?

Her Friend—Of course, dear; you make it up for yourself.—Boston Transcript.

"Why don't you announce that your hat is in the ring?"

"It is not necessary to do so," answered Sen. Sorghum. "With a man who has been in politics as long as I have, the fact may be taken for granted."—Washington Star.

The teacher asked little Ruth what her father's name was.

"Daddy."

"Yes, dear, but what does your mother call him?"

"She don't call him nuthin'," Ruth answered earnestly. "She likes him."—Exchange.

Visitor—But how do you know it was a stork and not an angel that brought your little sister?

Johnny—Well, I heard daddy complaining about the size of the bill—and angels don't have bills, do they?—Tit-Bits, London.

At the conclusion of one of his addresses, after the class had been dismissed, the professor wrote upon the blackboard the following:

"The professor has the honor to inform the class that he has today been appointed 'Physician in Ordinary' to His Majesty the King."

On returning the next day to resume his lectures, he found written underneath: "God Save the King."—Montreal Star.

The number of babies born in England and Wales last year was no greater than in 1860.

A dinosaur skeleton found in East Africa was so large and heavy that eighty natives were needed to carry the bones to the ship.

The ancient Chinese held that the five vital organs corresponded to five elements: The heart to fire, liver to a tree, spleen to earth, kidneys to water, and lungs to metal.

The fact that remains of tropical plants are found in arctic regions means that these plants once had a greater resistance to cold, rather than that the arctic climate was once warm, says a British geologist.

One day not very long ago, Daniel H. Avery, eighty-three, of Strafford, N. H., saw a hawk that was bothering his poultry and he thought he would put an end to such doings. So he took his gun and fired. The hawk was high in the air, but it fell to the ground, stone dead. And that was Mr. Avery's first shot in three years.

Probably the oldest cigar maker in Missouri is John C. Thudium, of Brookfield, who is completing his sixty-fourth year in that trade. Mr. Thudium, now eighty-three, says he has made 17,000,000 cigars—all by hand. Mr. Thudium was born in Germany. He came to this country thirteen years later, when it required six weeks to cross the Atlantic.

For a reason best known to herself, Baby Barbara Stein, of Martins Creek, Pa., decided to curl up in the other end of her crib. It was well she did, for a large stone, weighing twenty pounds, which had been hurled into the air following a blasting operation, penetrated the roof and second floor of her home and landed on the pillow on which the child's head had rested only a short time before.

AFTER AN EARLY PERIOD OF STRENGTH, STOCK PRICES TURNED REACTIONARY

NEW YORK, Jan. 4—(AP)—Stock prices turned reactionary today after an early period of strength. Early buying had been influenced largely by a reduction in call money rates from 5 1-2 to 4 1-2 per cent. but as the session progressed considerable uneasiness developed over the brokers' loan situation. Stock exchange member loan figures, announced after the close of the market, showed a gain of $341,071,018 last month, bringing the total to a new high record for all time at $4,432,907,321, as compared with a low of $2,767,400,514 in May 1926.

Fears that the huge volume of credit absorbed by the securities markets would lead to a tightening of credit facilities by federal reserve authorities were freely expressed by brokerage circles. Easier call money rates were generally expected as the January disbusements returned to normal channels. Operators working for higher prices also derived some encouragement from the import of $5,000,000 in gold from Canada, which more than offset a shipment of $900,000 to India.

There was little in the day's trade news to influence the price movement. The weekly steel trade reviws reported a marked expansion in orders in the closing days of December and automobile manufacturers stated that the initial response to the introduction of new models had been favorable. Earnings reports were mixed in character, but corporation profits in the final quarter are generall yexpected to fall below those of the corresponding period last year.

Trading was in unusually heavy volume, total sales crossing the 3,000,000 mark for the first time since Dec. 21.

General Motors, which has been rather sluggish for the last few days, suddenly leaped into the speculative spotlight with a daily turn-over of more than a quarter of a million shares, the final price of 138 7-8, representing a net gain of 1 1-8 points. Packard and Paige-Detroit reached new peak prices, but Hudson, which was strong yesterday, turned heavy. Mack Trucks dropped 3 points on rumors that 1927 earnings would fall below expectations because of the relatively poor heavy truck business last year. Some of the smaller motors were sold on the theory that recent price cuts in the low priced field would reduce profits.

Packing shares also changed hands in enormous volume on reports of improving trade conditions, particularly better hide prices. Armour A and B, Wilson A and preferred and Cudahy all closed 1 to 2 points higher.

Greene Cananea Copper advanced to a new record high at 164 1-2 and then broke to 152 for a net loss of 7 3-8 points. American Sugar fell from 76 1-2 to 71, Coty from 128 to 123, Du-Pont from 323 7-8 to 319, General Railway Signal from 122 3-4 to 118 7-8, Midland Steel Products preferred from 290 to 280, Porto Rican Tobacco B from 34 1-2 to 30 and Wright Aero from 85 to 81 7-8; partial recovery being made in a few cases.

Independent strength was shown by a number of specialties including American Express, Brooklyn Edison, Electric Auto Lite, General Asphalt, Owens Bottle, Pittsburgh Coal, and Weber and Heilbroner.

A further advance in New Haven to 64 5-8, the highest price since 1916, on buying influenced by unconfirmed reports of a resumption of dividends next week provided one of the few features in the railroad group.

Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Except for a jump of about 10 points in Spanish pesetas to 17.25 cents, the leading foreign exchanges were reactionary. Sterling dropped about 1-4 of a cent, cables being quoted around $4.87 27-32. Despite the further import of gold, the Canadian dollar continued at a discount of 11-64 of 1 per cent.

Commodity markets displayed a firm undertone. Wheat advanced a fraction of a cent a bushel. Cotton was heavy at the opening, but rallied later, final quotations ruling $1 to $1.50 a bale higher. Coffee and sugar quotations held steady.

THE CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Jan. 4—(AP)—Heavy buying of oil shares and a few specialties featured today's strong curb market. There was some irregularity around the close when profit taking developed in sympathy with lots selling on the "big board."

Standard Oil of Kentucky was one of the individual features, adding 2 points to its recent steady advance, and selling above its 1927 high. Creole Syndicate gained more than a point on a heavy volume of transactions, but later lost about half the gain. Gulf Oil, which has been gaining intermittently for several weeks, turned reactionary on realizing.

Responding to strength of kindred shares on the stock exchange, Firestone Tire and Seiberling Rubber invaded new high territory. Bancitaly was heavily purchased at rising prices. American Rolling Mills again gave a good account of itself, gaining more than 4 points. Midland Steel Products common, which displayed heavy tendencies in recent sessions, also had a good gain. Other former favorites which displayed strength included General Bronze, Hellman Warrants, and General Baking "B".

An outstanding feature was a rise of 11 3-8 points in Dow Chemical to 110, a new high. Only a few shares changed hands. Auburn Auto reflected the strength of motor shares on the "big board."

Universal Pictures sagged to a new low, but Warner Brothers had a gain of nearly 2 points. Ford Motor of Canada, Deere & Company, Schaeffer Pen, Newmont Mining and Bunker Hill & Sullivan were among the conspicuously heavy spots.

Belgian National Railways company preferred stock was admitted to unlisted privileges, the second stock of foreign origin to gain admittance since promulgation of the new rules.

BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Jan. 4—(AP)—The bond market today continued to await the development of the reinvestment demand. Although there were several outstanding points of strength, they were, as a rule, centered in mortgages of a semi-speculative nature, or those available at low pprices. The general tone was steady, with an undertone of firmness engendered by prospects of continued ease in the time money field.

New issues thus far in the new year have been of small proportions. A few formidable offerings are in sight, including one of $25,000,000 American Rolling Mills 5s. Offerings will be made tomorrow of $3,396,000 City of Buenos Aires 6s, priced to yield about 6.10 per cent.

Denver & Rio Grande Western 5s led the railway group, advancing to 91 1-4, the highest price in more than a year, on sales aggregating more than $200,000 par value. The price later fell back a point, however, when realizing developed. Erie convertible 4s "A" also exceeded their 1927 peak. High grade rail liens were generally quiet, with easing tendencies here and there. Some of the St. Paul bonds continued to gain.

General Asphalt 6s, Armour of Delaware 5 1-2s and Philadelphia Reading Coal & Iron 5s were the outstanding strong spots in the industrial group, and International Telephone 4 1-2s led the utilities. Brooklyn Union Gas sustained a further loss on profit-taking.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, Jan. 4—(AP)—Active speculative buying of corn went hand in hand today with a material falling-off in corn receipts and with simultaneous indications of corn export business. Liverpool corn market quotations advanced a penny a bushel.

Chicago closing prices on corn were unsettled, 1-3c to 1c net higher. Wheat finished firm at 1-8c decline to 1-4c advance, oats unchanged to 1-4 a 3-8c up, and provisions unchanged to 7c down.

At first the corn market here showed a downward trend owing to more favorable weather, but primary arrivals of corn were 305,000 bu. less than for the corresponding day a year ago. Receipts west and southwest were in particular much diminished, and there were but few suggestions of any bigger movement from the country. Under such circumstances and with the Liverpool corn market showing an abrupt upturn, numerous corn traders here became aggressive in purchasing future deliveries.

Brisk rallies that ensued carried the corn market sharply upward from the earlier low price level, and in the end left values but little under the day's top figures. Meanwhile, the Seaboard was inquiring for cash corn here, and there were advices of export business at the Gulf of Mexico, 2 1-2c over Chicago May. January delivery of corn in Liverpool closed at equal to $1.04 1-4 per bushel. Friends of higher prices pointed out that although the North American available supply of corn increased 3,838,000 bushels last week, the total is now 23,890,000 bushels against 36,412,000 bushels last year. Oats rallied with corn.

Wheat kept in a narrow limit during the day, but averaged a trifle lower. European continental countries were reported purchasing from this side of the Atlantic but call for United States wheat was relatively slack, and for the most part business with Great Britain appeared to have been checked by the recent advance. A forecast of milder weather tended to counterbalance reports of lack of snow protection for domestic winter wheat. The shipping demands here for wheat however were good.

Provisions were somewhat easier.

New England Industries

THE LIME INDUSTRY.

A generous share of the nation's output of lime and limestone products comes from New England establishments, the output of which amounted to 16 percent of the value of product for the entire country in 1923. The companies, which are relatively small, are distributed through Massachusetts, Vermont, Connecticut, Maine and Rhode Island. A survey conducted by the United States department of commerce in co-operation with the New England council shows that the average age of plants is 43 years, and the reason generally reported for locating in New England is accessibility of raw materials (limestone, lumber and coal).

About one-fifth of all employes of reporting plants are paid by piece work or by some other incentive method. Employment varies but slightly, probably because of special efforts to keep it uniform. One producer reporting in this survey brings most of his wood supply to the yards during the slack period. Another has increased the number of his limestone products while others report timber cutting and repair work for the same purpose.

Most of the companies make their major sales to New England markets, with a small number making most sales in New York, New Jersey, or Pennsylvania. Sales in New England have been falling off in the last three years for the majority of the reporting firms. Reasons given for this include more favorable freight rates for concerns in other sections, less selling activity, and the manufacture of substitutes for lime. Over-production and competition from other regions have accounted for total sales decreases.

Distribution is usually direct to consumers, with wholesalers or jobbers next in importance. All products of reporting plants are branded or trade-marked.

NEW LONDON POLICE OFFICER MAKES RAILROAD MAN PEEVED

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 4—Late yesterday Joseph Connelly, railroad employe and trainer of pugilists, filed with City Manager William A. Holt written charges in which Connelly accuses Patrolman Henry Sylvia of using abusive language to him and exceeding his authority. Upon the reception of the charges City Manager Holt referred the matter to the police department for investigation, but this afternoon Captain of Police Charles A. Finney had not received the communication, which he will be asked to investigate. The charges will probably be received by that official by mail tomorrow.

Connelly's communication to the city manager states that he and several friends were on Main street, near Church street New Year's eve and were awaiting the arrival of a bus for the purpose of going to Norwich to attend an entertainment. When a bus was seen approaching the group went to the street and Connelly signaled the driver to stop. When the bus halted it developed that a private party had chartered the bus. The young men then started to walk to where they could board a Norwich bound trolley car and it was then, according to Connelly that he was abused. He states that Sylvia was nearby and after the bus started, Sylvia yelled, "What the h—— are you trying to do?" Connelly resented the remark and explained to the officer his purpose of stopping the bus, but the officer apparently did not believe the story and used harsh and violent language. Connelly was taken to police headquarters where the officer related in his own language what had occurred and his reason for escorting Connelly to headquarters. After hearing Connelly's statement, Lieut. James C. Sullivan did not deem the grounds sufficient to have Connelly arrested and the latter was allowed his liberty. Connelly felt aggrieved at the action of the officer and made it known that he would prefer charges against Sylvia. Connelly claims he has a number of witnesses who will corroborate his statements as to the language and conversation of Sylvia. Sylvia has been a member of the force but a few years, being one of the youngest members of the department.

Mrs. Benjamin Nelson and infant son, of Waterford; Mrs. Louis Annello and infant son, 311 Huntington street and Miss Betty Armstrong, 42 Mountain avenue, patients at Home Memorial hospital, were discharged today.

ORDER OF THE RED CROSS CONFERRED AT COMMANDERY

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 4—A communication of Palestine Commandery, Knights Templar, was held this evening in Brainard lodge, Masonic temple, and was attended by a representative number of members. A class received the illustrious Order of the Red Cross, the exemplications being by Eminent Commander Morris W. Rouff and assistants. The conferring of the degree was the first work under the guidance of Commander Rupff, who was only elected to that office last week.

Connecticut College for Women opened for the winter term today after the 600 students had returned from the holiday vacation at the home of their parents or relatives. The first contingent of young ladies started arriving late yesterday afternoon and evening, but the major portion of the students arrived in New London on the trains reaching here at 10:19 and 10:33 o'clock from Boston and 10:43 o'clock from New York.

SUB-BASE MARINES READY FOR NICARAGUAN ORDERS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 4—The detachment of 40 marines stationed at the submarine base, is being held in readiness to act upon orders to proceed to Nicaragua where an uprising of the insurgent force of Sadina has become serious so the situation is acute. Only a few days ago a half dozen marines on duty there were killed as a result of a battle between the outlaw forces and marines.

The officers of New London chapter, Mooseheart Legion, were installed in the Moose hall last night, the ceremony being witnessed by about 50 members of the legion. The officers seated were: Senior Regent, Elizabeth Nichols; past regent, Mary Geer; junior regent, Gertrude Finnegan; chaplain, Barbara Sparks; recorder, Bertha Mehaffey; treasurer, Jeannette Keenan; right cudie, Gladys Chojnowski; organ'st, Alvina Lavoie; sentinel, Mrs. Leno; argus, Virginia Sherman. The installing officers were Past Regent Theresa Waters, assisted by Mrs. La Valle, of Norwich. Mrs. Mary Geer, retiring senior regent, was presented a past regent's pin and Mooseheart ring and the retiring past senior regent was presented a bouquet of carnations.

Miss Florence Jones, teacher in the Palmer Memorial school Montville, has resumed her duties after having spent the holiday vacation with her parents in Willimantic.

At Union lodge room last night a joint installation of the officers of W. W. Perkins post, G. A. R., and W. Perkins Relief corps was held and was witnessed by a large assemblage of members of both organizations. The installing officers of W. W. Perkins post were Francis Bracken and Morgan G. Haven. The officers installed were: Commander, Louis I. Baker; senior vice commander, John Goddard; junior vice commander, George W. Myer; surgeon, Michael Cleary; officer of the guard, Cephas Ball; chaplain, Lafayette W. Starr; patriotic instructor, George Haven; adjutant, George Haven; quartermaster, Francis Bracken.

The officers of the relief corps to be installed were: President, Ella W. Tew; senior vice president, Lenny B. Whitman; junior vice president, Lottie T. Ewing; chaplain, Mary Harris; treasurer, Flora D. Lester; conductor, Hortense Cottrell; guard, Mrs. William Beebe; secretary, Helen Steward; patriotic instructor, Mary Fox; musician, Abbie Thompson; press correspondent, Nellie D. Orchard; assistant conductor, Katherine Cavanaugh; assistant guard, Mary Mills; color bearers, Mrs. Elmer Kennerson, Mrs. William Packer, Mrs. George Jennings and Mrs. Joseph Burr.

At the Center Groton school last night, William D. Alexander was re-elected foreman of Center Groton fire department. The other officers elected were: First assistant foreman, Everett Lamb; second assistant foreman, Charles Tatro; executive committee for three years, R. J. Whitman, Robert Whitman; board of finance for three years, Oscar C. Brunner and Irvin E. Crouch.

James Wiler, of Niantic and Alfred Soderburg, 349 Ocean avenue, patients at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital, were discharged today.

John Stanners, 1124 Ocean avenue, former chief of the New London fire department, is a patient at Lawrence-Memorial hospital under observation. He was taken to the hospital yesterday afternoon. It is not believed that he will be under treatment long. Mr. Stanners is about 75.

Miss Julia C. Richards, 74, died last night at the residence of Charles M. Litwhiler, Long Cove, Groton, after a lingering illness. She is survived by several nieces and nephews. Miss Richards was born in Waterford, the daughter of Lyman and Julia Bolles Richards.

Mrs. Elaine A. Krestensen, 27, wife of Jens B. Krestensen, died last night at her residence on Meridian street extension, Groton. Mrs. Krestensen was born July 9, 1900 at Port Elizabeth, South Africa.

Leroy Bailey Howard, 35, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. Howard, Lakes Pond, Montville, died last Friday at Michigan City, Ind. Mr. Howard was born in California, but had resided at Lakes Pond the greater part of his life, until he moved to Michigan City several years ago. He was a world war veteran and was a member of Michigan City lodge of Elks.

Joseph Amarel, former sailor, now residing in Brooklyn, N. Y., where he is married, was discharged in the superior court at Norwich yesterday of charges of indecent assault and attempted rape, only to be rearrested here on a charge of breach of the peace. He was presented in the police court this morning, but the case was not concluded, being continued to March 1. Amarel furnished a surety on his bond of $100 in Joseph Silva, Winthrop street store proprietor. Amarel was arrested last November at a time when the police received numerous complaints of young women being molested in the streets. It was claimed that he went to the rear of the residence of Mrs. Rybecki, a young Polish resident of Harrison street, where he played the role of a Peeping Tom and then exposed himself. He was also accused of having attacked Miss Adelaide Stillman, registered nurse, of Berkley avenue, when the young woman was passing through Vauxhall street. Amarel, it being charged, attacked Miss Stillman and dragged her to a nearby yard where she fainted, the woman becoming unconscious causing Amarel to get frightened and to flee. The breach of the peace charge is a culmination of the previous charges. When Amarel's case was nolled in the superior court and he came to New London he was arrested by Detective Sergeants John Cavanaugh and Nelson Smith.

Clifford Delozier, sailor, and Judith Lorraine, youthful East Lyme girl, were in court today charged with lascivious carriage and behavior. Their cases were continued to March 4. Delozier and the girl were observed on Bank street about 1 o'clock this morning by Patrolman Louis Wheeler, who watched their action. When Delozier left the girl near Golden street while he went to a rooming house, on Bank street, the officer surmised that Delozier was seeking rooming accommodations for himself and the girl. The officer was sure of his suspicion when Delozier reappeared from the rooming house and escorted the girl there. Officer Wheeler communicated with Sergeant Patrick Murphy and the officers went to the rooming house and found Delozier and the girl occupying the same room. The proprietress of the house stated that Delozier sought a room for himself and wife, stating that the latter was to arrive in New London on a train that came here from Boston at 1:15. The proprietress believed Delozier's story.

The estate of William Booth, who committed suicide a year ago by jumping into the Thames river while mentally unbalanced, has sold the Booth property on Bank street, consisting of a large dwelling and several acres of land to Minucci Brothers Realty company.

John Birmingham and Catherine Birmingham Corcoran have transferred title in a residence on Vauxhall street to Catherine K. Birmingham.

Benjamin A. Armstrong sold to Andrew C. Miller a building lot on Briggs street. Miller has since sold the land to John J. Kelly.

GENERAL AUTO PAINT SHOP DOES EXCELLENT WORK

If you are looking for the most reliable paint shop in town go to the General Auto Pain Shop at No. 354 West Main street. This shop was established in 1913 and has made a specialty of perfect lacquer finishes for automobiles.

Now is the time for fine unhurried automobile painting and here is the sop where you are sure of it. We are now ready to paint or Duco that car of yours and have a splendid, beautiful car equal to new, in appearance, for spring.

With our lacquering the sport lines of the car are properly accentuated and the color scheme novel but appropriate. For a different and a better job let us quote you, and offer suggestions.

Although we mention only automobiles, here we do painting and refinishing on automobiles, wagons, trucks, baby carriages and all kinds of furniture. No piece is too large and none too small for us to handle. Besides this kind of work we also do sign painting and commercial lettering.

We also relacquer all kinds of metal fixtures, including electric floor lamps, table lamps, bric-a-brac, and anything else that needs refinishing. We also straighten and repair auto bodies and fenders, in fact, we pride ourselves on conducting a most complete automobile hospital.

With the winter now in our midst it is the best time of the year for you to bring in your car for refinishing. With the car off the road for several months now you can have this work done at a time when your car is not wanted for the many duties of summertime pleasures.

Bring in your car now for work and rest assured that we will provide that type of quality and service that has always been our watchword.

ORDER LASTING TRIBUTE FROM C. A. KUEBLER CO.

A loving memory should prompt all who have dear ones asleep at neighboring cemeteries to erect a monument over those graves as a lasting symbol of love for the deceased.

The Charles A. Kuebler Co. of 39-41 Franklin street has for years cared for the wants of Norwich people in preparing for them such lasting memorials. Each and every memorial may be different, but, regardless of price, be it the small headstone or the largest memorial, the Kuebler Co. will take that same amount of care to see that every detail of the memorial is perfectly worked out. At this season of the year we would recommend that you give us your orders for Memorial Day. By selecting your memorial well in advance it gives us every possible advantage of time, thus making it certain that your memorial will be well finished.

If you desire impressive dignity expressed in a memorial we are sure that we can provide you with just the design you want. We suggest that you do not wait until the very last possible moment before Memorial Day, but urge you to come and see us now. This will give you time enough to talk the matter over with the family, select the tribute and also give us ample time to carry out your desires in making the memorial a thing of lasting beauty of design and craftsmanship.

WAUREGAN HOTEL SPECIALIZES IN SERVING BEST

At this season of the year many people are entertaining in their homes. Always on these occasions the problem of "what shall we have for a menu," is bothersome.

The Wauregan Hotel for years has made a specialty of figuring on catering at either large or small parties. Why not let this hotel take over the problem of planning a menu. All that is necessary is to get in touch with the management of the hotel and request suggestions for a menu.

Hundreds of delightful menus are always kept on hand. There is something proper for the wedding, the anniversary party, the birthday, in fact for any special event which calls for entertaining and serving guests with properly planned food.

Of course with the large catering work there is the necessity for planning well in advance. With the smaller parties a shorter time enables the hotel to provide the proper service. However, in catering there is always the chance that some particular food is not always at hand, or, there may be some delicacy desired. This of course means that the article wanted must be obtained from out of the city perhaps.

Because of this, sufficient notice will guarantee a better menu, and also allow for any changes which might be necessary to make.

The next time you plan a party or a banquet where catering must be done remember the Wauregan Hotel specializes in this line and can best serve your wants.

AETNA BOWLING ALLEYS PROVIDE WINTER SPORTS

With the coming of colder weather the Aetna Bowling alleys, located in the Majestic building, 55 Shetucket street, offers the Norwich people a fine home for winter sports.

Bowling is always a pleasure at this time of the year and at the Aetna alleys you will find seven of the finest alleys in eastern Connecticut fairly tempting you to roll them down the alley to beat the 100 mark.

For years the Aetna alleys have been conducted in a manner which makes it possible for the men of Norwich to bring their wives and daughters with them to enjoy a game or two. Alleys at anytime may be reserved for women, excepting of course specified alleys which are held for tournament games now underway.

Besides the bowling alleys there are over a half dozen excellent billiard tables. Here again is a game which is as suited for the ladies as for the men.

The policy of the Aetna alleys has always been that of allowing only gentlemen to use its alleys and tables for pleasure and because of this policy has established the reputation of being an ideal place for winter games for the entire family.

HIGH GRADE GROCERIES ARE SOLD BY A. T. OTIS

For years A. T. Otis & Son of No. 72 Franklin street, has enjoyed the reputation of carrying nothing but high grade groceries. In carrying only high grade groceries this company has still maintained prices which are reasonable.

It is only in home stores such as this store that service can be rendered. In the local store the owner must face his customer day by day, his men must wait on the customers week after week. All this goes to make the conscientious store owner particular about what line of goods he carries.

Only through courteous service and giving quality for a moderate price has this store maintained its enviable position in these hurried days of selling.

We invite you to come in and see us, note the quality of our goods and the reasonableness of our prices. One trip would convince yoou that here is a store built on service and quality, possessing lasting friendships and with a force instantly ready to serve your wants.

HOUSE DELIVERY OF KEROSENE IS MADE BY SMITH BROS.

If you are not already aware of the fact that one Norwich company makes house to house delivery of kerosene then this may be the means of notifying you that Smith Bros., of No. 63 Boswell avenue, phone 3159, has cared for Norwich families in this line for years.

This type of service makes it easy for you to always have kerosene on hand, to keep it in a container that is always out of the way, and never to have the worry of running short some night or day when stores may be closed.

Our regular deliveries insure you against this danger of being without kerosene. It is our business to provide this necessity and for years we have provided it for Norwich and vicinity.

The next time you need kerosene think of the Smith Bros. and give us a ring, — we will do the rest. House service is our specialty and our prices are extremely low. Let us quote you on kerosene service by the day, month or year.

Don't Guess About Your Eyes
Weak, weary eyes cannot help but be dull, tired and strained. How remarkable a difference properly fitted glasses make. A recent testing of the eyes of some fifty thousand college students showed that over a third of them needed glasses, but most of them were not aware of the need. That is why we stress the desirability of an examination.

BROGNO CASE ABOUT READY TO REACH JURY IN SUPERIOR COURT

Salvatore, or Samuel Brogno, 30, of this city, who formerly conducted a plumbing business, was on trial in the superior court here Wednesday before Judge Arthur F. Ells and a jury on six counts involving the keeping of an alleged house of ill fame in the Lantern hill district of North Stonington where he was found in the early morning hours of Dec. 2 by state policemen. A Norwich taxi driver, who is now missing, three coast guardsmen from New London and two girls were also found at the house when the policemen arrived.

Trial of the suit was begun before a crowded court room about 11 o'clock after several other matters had been disposed of by the court and the following jury was selected:

State Attorney Arthur M. Brown prosecuted the case and Brogno was defended by Attorney G. Curtis Morgan.

State Policeman George W. Webber of the Groton barracks was the first witness called to the stand by the state attorney. Webber testified that on the morning of Dec. 2, in response to a telephone call from Capt. Murphy at Norwich police headquarters, Webber and Sergt. Albright came to Norwich headquarters where they saw Capt. Murphy and a girl named Veronica Chelensky of New Haven. With the girl the two state policemen went to North Stonington, Webber said, where she showed them a house and they brought her back to Norwich. Then they returned to the North Stonington house by automobile. There were two automobiles in the yard. Webber said he went to the front door, where he saw Brogno pulling back a curtain. Webber testified that he went into the kitchen where he saw some liquor in glasses on a serving tray and in the dining room were Dorothy Carney and two sailors Arthur Candill and Kenneth Leeland.

It was brought out in the testimony that Leeland is now in the hospital at New London, having been injured Tuesday in an explosion on a coast guard boat near Block Island.

The witness said that Dorothy Carney went into a bedroom where he saw Stella White and a sailor named Mitchell Leprich. All the people in the house were taken into the dining room and questioned and then brought to Norwich along with the taxi driver who is now missing. Webber said that Brogno told the policemen he had received $30 from the sale of liquor and money from the women, who told the policemen they gave Brogno $1.50 out of each $3 they received.

On cross examination, Attorney Morgan asked why the officer did not bring any evidence from the house to indicate the character of the place, although he brought liquor from the place. The officer said it was because all the people in the house admitted it. The witness said the officers went there for the purpose of investigating the house as a place of ill-fame, but had no warrant to search for liquor. The attorney brought out that Brogno said the place was leased by a man named John Albert. The witness said Brogno told him he sold liquor at 25c a drink. Officer Webber pointed out in the court room, the two girls, Stella White and Dorothy Carney, whom he saw at the house and also the two coast guardsmen, Leprich and Candill.

Sergeant Henry Albright, another state police officer, from the Groton barracks, gave testimony largely corroborative of Officer Webber's testimony. He said the place they went to in North Stonington is known as the Herrick place. He said Brogno told him he was running the place for some one else and had taken in about $30 for liquor sales and money which the girls received when entertaining men. Brogno said that he received $1.50 from each $3 the girls received.

Sergeant Albright produced a written and signed statement from Brogno which he said was made by Brogno at Norwich police headquarters after Brogno had been warned it could be used against him in court, and that no promises were made to Brogno.

The sergeant denied to Attorney Morgan that he told Brogno if he signed this statement it would amount to nothing and he would get off with a $15 fine.

The jury was excused for a few minutes and the accused, Salvatore or Samuel Brogno, was brought to the stand by Attorney Morgan, who inquired about the circumstances of signing the paper. Brogno said that Sergeant Albright wrote it out in the common pleas court room office and then called Officer Murphy in and read it and asked Brogno to sign it, saying it was on the liquor case and would only be about $10 in the North Stonington court.

Judge Ells then overruled Attorney Morgan's objection to the introduction of the statement by Brogno, the jury was recalled and the statement was read before the jury by Sergt. Albright. The statement was in the officer's handwriting and was witnessed by Patrick T. Murphy and Sergeant Albright.

In brief, it said, that on Nov. 27, Brogno heard a man named John, and Vincent di Natolo, of Boston, talking in Lake street about opening a house of ill-fame in North Stonington and De Natolo was to geth some girls in Boston. The next day Brogno saw De Natolo was to get some girls in he went to this house and saw girls there and was there on the night of the raid.

Attorney Morgan cross-examined Sergeant Albright at length as to why he had not brought from the house some of the objects which might serve as physical evidence of the character of the place.

Capt. Thomas P. Murphy, of the Norwich police force, testified to calling the state police as a result of a conversation with Veronica Chalenski and the witness told of the officers going to the North Stonington house and later bringing back Brogno, two girls and a taxi driver. The police captain said he didn't know where this taxi driver is now.

Officer Patrick T. Murphy, of the Norwich police force, identified his signature as a witness on Brogno's statement and said he heard Sergt. Albright warn Brogno that the statement would be used in court against him.

Leonard R. Main, a North Stonington merchant, who was agent for the Herrick place, owned by the Airproofing Rubber company, testified that he rented the place late in November when two gentlemen came to see him. Mr. Main identified one of these men as Brogno. He said he didn't know who the other was.

On cross-examination, Mr. Main said the other man paid the rent of $10 and asked to have the receipt made in his name, John Albert. On direct examination, Mr. Main said Brogno did the talking when the two men came to rent the place, saying he was a war gassed World war veteran with a wife and family of children and wanted to get out into the country.

At this point the state rested after a short recess. Attorney Morgan began the case for the defense by calling to the stand Mitchell H. Leprich, a member of the U. S. Coast guard, attached to No. 241 at Base 4.

On the night of Dec. 1, the witness said, he left New London in company with Kenneth Leland and a guardsman named Cordell, coming to Norwich where they asked to be taken where they could get a drink and were taken to this house in North Stonington. The witness said they had a good many drinks, but he had no relations with women at the house. He denied that Sergt. Albright saw him in the room with the White girl and he denied that he told Officer Webber that he told the officer that he had relations with the women.

Attorney Morgan called on the state attorney to produce a statement signed by the coast guardsmen, which Attorney Morgan had State Policeman Webber read. It concluded with the statement that Leprich was found in bed with Stella White. Leprich testified that he made the statement on condition he wouldn't have to come to court.

Leprich denied that the room contained an article described by the police as being there and when a ripple of amusement passed over the spectators at the manner of his answer, Judge Ells directed Deputy Sheriff George H. Stanton, the court officer, to clear the room if there were any further demonstrations.

On cross-examination by State Attorney Brown, the witness said Brogno was at the door when they reached the place. He thought he had seven or eight drinks of wine and two shots of liquor. He claimed he was in the bed room looking for the toilet.

Arthur Candill, another coast guardsman, gave brief testimony, stating that after he had drinks at the house he lay on the couch and didn't know much that went on. He denied that he had told Officer Webber he had any relations with the women.

A signed statement made before Officer Webber by Candill was read by the officer at the request of Attorney Morgan and court adjourned for the day after Candill had been given cross-examination by State Attorney Brown.

The trial will be concluded this (Thursday) morning.

ILLUSTRATED TALK FOR FAITH TRUMBULL MEETING

Faith Trumbull chapter, Inc., D. A. R., held its monthly meeting Wednesday afternoon at the Wauregan hotel with the regent, Mrs. William H. Dawley, in the chair. Chapter officers made reports as follows: Mrs. Leslie L. Brewer, the secretary; Mrs. Albert S. Comstock, the treasurer; Mrs. George A. Ashbey, the historian; Mrs. Hezekiah Perkins, the registrar. Mrs. Daniel M. Lester, reporting for the museum committee stated that she had received for the museum a large and elaborate hair-wreath from Mrs. Hough, of Stafford Springs.

Mrs. Raymond B. Sherman, reporting for the ways and means committee, announced that $20 was raised by a small bridge party. The regent said that the board of management is planning an entertainment that is a bit different from those given lately, an evening of reading, humorous, for late January or early February.

Reporting for the programme committee, Mrs. Albert M. Van Wagénen announced that the next meeting will have a civil war programme and that members of Sedgwick Post, No. 1, G. A. R., would be invited.

Mrs. Harry E. Higgins, chairman of the membership committee, reported one application for membership. The magazine committee, through the chairman, Mrs. Daniel M. Lester, reported one new subscriber to the magazine.

Mrs. Herbert W. Gallup, chairman of the genealogical research committee, exhibited a large volume, the records of the old church in Bozrah, which have been copied, typed, indexed and bound. The work was begun by Mrs. Elisha E. Rogers when she was chairman of this committee and has been finished by Mrs. Gallup. It has been prepared as a gift, from the chapter, to the library of Continental Memorial hall.

The chairman of the patrotic education committee, Mrs. Frank I. Royce, stated that all members had been asked to bring articles for the usual box for Ellis Island, and that quite a good number had responded. She also said that she is getting, at Miss Willey's request, copies of the Manual for Immigrants, in Polish, Italian, French and Yiddish, for use in the night schools.

The regent said that, in view of the recent changes in the national society's by-laws, the board recommends that a committee be appointed by the regent to review our by-laws and bring before the chapter, at a later date, such changes as seem necessary, or desirable.

Mrs. Albert S. Comstock, Mrs. Leslie L. Brewer, Mrs. George A. Ashbey and Mrs. Henry H. Pettis comprise the committee appointed. A letter from the chairman of the nominating committee for officers to be elected at the state conference, asked that the chapter indicate on the enclosed blank its choice for state officers. Letters asking the chapter to endorse three councilors were also read. Hannah Woodruff chapter, of Southington, Sarah Williams Danielson chapter, of Danielson, and Anne Wood Elderkin chapter, of Willimantic, being those presenting councilors.

Letters were read by the regent regarding the national congress, and reminded the chapter that delegates must be elected at the February meeting. Delegates to the state conference must also be elected at that meeting.

A feature of the meeting was a talk by Miss Hannah M. Crowell on Some Picture Towns of Europe. The talk was illustrated by many beautiful pictures shown on the screen by Louis H. Walden. Miss Crowell told the story of each of these "picture towns" in a most interesting way and the chapter thanks her gratefully for a delightful hour.

Preceeding Miss Crowell's talk, Mrs. Raymond C. Brittin, with Mrs. W. H. Stebbins, piano accompanist, entertained with two vocal selections, The Spirit Flower, by Campbell Tipton, and In a Garden, by Hawley. At the close of the meeting, tea was served by a committee headed by Mrs. C. Eugene Saunders.

GIVES DESCRIPTION OF INSTRUCTION FOR NURSES

Mrs. Ruth Cooper Raymond, an instructor at the W. W. Backus hospital training school, was the speaker at the noon day luncheon-meeting of the Business and Professional Woman's club Wednesday at Gregory's, Broadway. Mrs. Raymond made a comparison of the training received by the nurse of today and that received by the nurse previous to the war. The talk given by Mrs. Raymond is in accordance with the club's programme in having various members address the noon luncheons so that all members may become acquainted with the duties of each member. In her talk, Mrs. Raymond said:

The nurse of today is no longer trained, but educated. She is educated to think and express herself. She is educated to enter the many fields of nursing which she may enter after leaving her school of nursing and taught to think so that she may grow with her work as medical science advances.

The curriculum of the nursing school of a few years ago is a vast contrast to the 90-hour course in anatomy and physiology of today and the 45 hours of theory in materia medica, obstetrics, communicable diseases, psychology and surgery, 15 hours course in pathology and operating room technique and many others. Affiliations in pediatrics and public health. With all of these there is personal supervision while on the ward service to correlate the theory with the practical. Previously the nurse was expected to give up all outside interest, and just live in her one small sphere. It is wonderful that nurses have been able to accomplish all that they have, with the restrictions that have always been present in the training schools. The vigorous ones have simply overridden the restrictions and have thrown all their mind and heart, as well as their physical strength into their work. Today our aim is to make her course as interesting and as valuable as it is possible. She is encouraged to express herself, develop other interests as well as nursing, so that she will be a vital, interesting and capable individual. Her practical work is not neglected, she is still able to give her patient same physical comfort, but she is also able to meet her patient mentally. She is an intelligent assistant to the doctor and knows not only how to carry out his orders but knows why.

The nurse is educated to be a teacher no matter what field she may enter and I think everyone of you have had occasion at some time to see the benefits of their teachings.

In educating the nurse we have not forgotten that all work and no play makes Jack a dull boy. Therefore, the nurse has a homey house, accommodated to having class rooms, radio parties, and a place for entertaining friends. They are encouraged to utilize their talents in socials and entertainments and even theatricals. Classes in gymnasium are arranged for, tennis, volley ball, weeny roasts, and many other outdoor festivities are indulged in. The nurse and her hospital are also vital factors for health in the community. The comumnity and all civic organizations in turn should have a vital interest in their hospital and the activities of the nurses.

Getting Up Nights

For Bladder Relief. Is Nature's Danger Signal. Columbus Minister's Wife Relates Experience.

Rev. W. H. Mitchell, 824 No. Park St., Columbus, Ohio, says in his own home paper, the Columbus Dispatch: "My wife was troubled seriously with bladder irritation until we used Lithiated Buchu (Keller Formula). She had to get up 6 to 8 times each night. Will gladly answer any letter."

Lithiated Buchu acts on the bladder as salts do on the bowels. Drives out foreign matter and decreases excessive acidity, thereby relieving irritation. The tablets cost 2c each at all drug stores. Keller Laboratory, Mechanicsburg, Ohio. Locally at Geo. Engler's, Druggist.

RECREATION COMMISSION HAS SKATING PONDS IN SHAPE

Through the efforts of the recreation commission several skating ponds in the city and vicinity have been put into condition for the season. At the West Side and Thamesville, almost perfect conditions prevail and many are enjoying this healthful recreation while at the East Side, although the ice is a bit rough, skating may be had on a large part of the pond.

Plans are now being made for electric lights and definite action will probably be had along this line within a day or so.

NEW HAVEN PASTOR TO PREACH HERE SUNDAY

By invitation of the Connecticut Lutheran conference, Rev. Richard J. W. Mekler, of New Haven, is to be the preacher at the Sunday morning service at the German Lutheran church on Franklin street. Rev. Dr. Mekler has preached a number of times at the church since the death of Rev. Paul Werth, five years ago, and has attended semi-annual conferences that were held at the church in this city.

26 Operators' Licenses Suspended

The weekly list of operators whose licenses to drive automobiles in Connecticut have been suspended for one year for driving while under the influence of liquor was given out Wednesday at the state motor vehicle department as a part of the effort to reduce this highway menace. There are twenty-six names on the list. Four cases were appealed. Two were Connecticut operators convicted in other states. The only one in this part of the state in the list is William W. Reimer of Danielson.

NORWICH TOWN

The Community Christmas tree on the Norwich Town Green, brilliantly lighted each evening since Christeve, was dismantled Wednesday. The current was turned on for the last time this season, Monday evening.

Under the arrangement of Rev Gurdon F. Bailey, the chairman of lighting, representing the Norwich Rural association, the tree was never more beautiful than this year. Its illumination for ten or more evenings, provided real pleasure for the townspeople, especially those residents surrounding the Green. As in past years, the electricity was furnished through the courtesy of the Norwich Gas and Electric company.

When Miss Marjory Merry returned to her home at Norwich Town, from Hartford to spend Christmas, she had as her guest, Miss Hilda Shepard, also of Hartford. Others included in the holiday party entertained by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Orrin F. Merry, were their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Fred S. Armstrong and family, of Norwich. Miss Merry also returned home at the week-end, to spend the New Year recess of several days. She left Tuesday evening to take up her duties in Hartford, where she has a secretarial position.

The January meeting of Home Chapter of the King's Daughters, is to be held at Johnson Home, Monday afternoon.

At the basketball social held in Plainfield Wednesday evening, which was followed by dancing, Theodore Sterry, of Norwich Town, filled an engagement as violinist in the orchestra. Mr. Sterry expects to spend this (Thursday) evening, with friends in Deep River.

Having passed several days on a business trip to Hartford, Fred E. Fuller, of Washington street, has returned. While there, Mr. Fuller, who is district manager for a large garment house in Watertown, New York, was in conference with all other district managers for Connecticut, representing the same house. Following this, the entire company had an elaborate banquet at a leading Hartford hotel.

Several members of the parish from out-of-town were at the New Year's supper of the First Congregational church, Monday in the chapel.

CONJECTURE CONCERNING REVISION OF WAR DEBTS

Expert Asserts That the Problem Must Be Decided by Numerous International Conferences—Declares Only the Most Rash Expect Germany to Be Able to Pay Her $33,000,000,000 War Debt—Secretary Mellon Denies Report That the United States Plans a World Parley on the War Debts—Germany Has Agreed to Settle Her War Debt to the United States, and is Paying Under the Dawes Plan.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5—(AP)—Washington officials familiar with the situation believe it will take years to settle the question arising from the recommendations of S. Parker Gilbert, agent general for a reparations, that a fixed amount of German war reparations should be set as early as possible and Germany be allowed to pay it without foreign supervision of her fiscal affairs.

"It is a problem that must be decided by numerous international conferences which must receive the sanction of parliaments," declared one official capable of speaking with authority on the subject but who declined to be quoted by name.

So far as the United States is concerned, he pointed out, this country is interested only to the point where it is concerned over any important international financial settlement. Germany has settled her debt to the United States, he said, by agreeing to pay the $300,000,000 costs of the army of occupation and is now making payments under the Dawes plan.

Various high officials declared without qualification that the United States will not take the initiative in promoting these conferences destined to agree upon the total which Germany will be expected to pay and there is no disposition on the part of this government to agree to terms emanating from France that the French debt to the United States be reduced by the amount that Germany fails to pay France.

Published reports that the United States plans a world parley for a complete revision of the war debt including that of Germany with international bonds as the medium of settlement was branded by Secretary Mellon today as untrue and without foundation.

"It's bosh," he asserted with a bang of his fist on his desk.

He said he had talked with Mr. Gilbert over the operation of the Dawes plan and the Germany debt situation, but international bonds were not in the mind of the agent general and were not contemplated in his official report.

The fixing of a definite amount for Germany to pay is specifically provided in the Dawes plan, which was intended only to save Germany from financial chaos and ruin, it was pointed out by an expert who aided in the draft of the plan. Under it, he said, Germany never would be able to pay its present obligations, but until a basis of settlement is reached the Dawes plan will continue to operate as there is no time limit to its operation.

"Only the most rash expect Germany to be able to pay her $33,000,000,000 war debt," this official added. "Of course conferences must be held to reach a compromise settlement as has been done with all of the other debts except that of France. The recommendation of Mr. Gilbert follows out the Dawes plan and in his opinion after close study of the situation it is merely a suggestion for the foreign debtor nations to consider the United States is out of it."

MAGNITUDE OF GERMANY'S FOREIGN INDEBTEDNESS

BERLIN, Jan. 5—(AP)—Germany's foreign indebtedness at the end of 1927 is estimated by the statistical bureau as between 8,500,000,000 and 9,500,000,000 marks, exclusive of the Dawes loan of $50,000,000 marks.

Among the private borrowers, the heavy industries are predominant, while the indebtedness of the chemical and textile industries amounts to only 13,500,000 and 24,000,000 marks respectively.

Amounts standing to the credit of Germany from exports are estimated as between 2,700,000 and 3,000,000 marks.

284 AUTO ACCIDENTS IN THE STATE LAST WEEK

HARTFORD, Jan. 5—(AP)—Eleven people were killed in automobile accidents in Connecticut during the week ending December 31, it was reported today by the state motor vehicle department. Accidents totalled 519 in the state for the week.

In the corresponding week of 1926, one person was killed and 284 accidents were reported. Six people were killed in 390 accidents during the week ending December 24, 1927.

Three of the deaths and 67 of the accidents last week occurred in Hartford. New Year's eve and December 26, upon which Christmas was celebrated, were the most dangerous days to drive, there being 95 accidents in the state on each of those days.

New Haven reported 67 accidents for the week, and Bridgeport 59. Waterbury was the scene of 35, with 15 in Meriden, 13 in Norwalk, 12 in Greenwich, and 10 in Stamford.

Fatal accidents were reported as follows: Avon, Gicomo Migli; Hartford, Henry Campfield, Raymond Meegan, Mrs. Mary Ackles; Greenwich, Stephen Mishely; Middletown, William Carroll; Poquonock, John Yuska; Torrington, Earl Minor; Simsbury, Carl Smith; on a state highway, town unknown, J. Eugene Wilcox.

TEN FIREMEN INJURED AT $200,000 FIRE IN NEW HAVEN

NEW HAVEN, Jan. 5—(AP)—A twisted mass of metal and mountain of bricks, tonight marked the spot where ten firemen were injured in a $200,000 blaze early today. The Van Dyck Printing company, occupants of the ruined building have been offered temporary accommodations by another print shop and expect to have the Yale Daily News, one of the many publications they print, back on the street tomorrow. Today marked the first time in the history of the News, oldest college daily in the United States, that it did not appear on a regular publication day.

Every piece of fire apparatus in the city and 85 per cent of the personnel saw service at the blaze which was first detected at 5 a. m.

Captain Eugene J. Mulligan, of Truck company number one, who suffered a broken leg, was the most seriously injured of the ten who were hurt at the blaze.

Heavy linotype machines and presses crashing through to the cellar from the second floor caused shower after shower of sparks which ignited roofs of several buildings in the vicinity.

BOSTON MAN MISSING FROM STEAMSHIP BIRMINGHAM

SAVANNAH, Ga., Jan. 5—(AP)—F. C. Baker, of Boston was missing when the steamship Birmingham of the Savannah line, enroute from Boston to Florida docked here today. Officials of the vessel said they believed Baker had either jumped or fallen overboard Wednesday night. He was missed about 10 o'clock and a thorough search of the ship failed to reveal a trace of him.

Baker, who was said to have been in ill health for some time was enroute to Florida accompanied by his wife, Mrs. Baker left here today to return to Boston.

$200,000 FIRE DAMAGE TO SCHOOL IN NEW BRITAIN

NEW BRITAIN, Jan. 5—(AP)—The Osgood Hill grammar school, a one-story brick structure in the northern end of the city, was destroyed by a fire tonight at a loss which may reach $200,000. An explosion in the boiler room which rocked dwellings in the vicinity preceded the fire. Persons living in the vicinity reported that flames were shooting through the roof and windows of the structure almost before the echo of the blast had died away.

TWO ELECTROCUTIONS AT SING SING LAST NIGHT

OSSINING, Jan. 5—(AP)—Charles J. Doran, 21, of Albany, and Louis Mason, 30, Negro of Buffalo, were executed in the electric chair at Sing Sing tonight for murders committed during the course of hold-ups.

Doran was accompanied to the death chamber by the Rev. John P. McCaffrey the Catholic chaplain of the prison, and made no statement. He died with a prayer on his lips, and was pronounced dead at 11:10.

Mason, accompanied by the Rev. Dr. Anthony N. Petersen, Protestant chaplain, entered the death chamber at 11:13. His only statement was "Goodbye, fellows, I'm innocent." He was pronounced dead at 11:18.

Both Doran and Mason declined today to select a special menu for their last meal, and shared in the fare of the other prisoners—bread and butter, macaroni and milk.

Doran was convicted of participation in a holdup in Albany in November, 1926, in which Raymond Jackson was killed. Two justices of the court of appeals dissented from the verdict affirming his conviction.

Mason was convicted of the murder of David Karam in Buffalo, after Julius Gibbs, sentenced to death for the killing, turned state's evidence. Gibbs' sentence was commuted to life imprisonment.

67 FATALITIES AMONG HUNTERS IN PENNSYLVANIA

HARRISBURG, Pa., Jan. 5—(AP)—The state game commission announced today that there were 67 fatalities among hunters in this state in 1927 compared with 47 in 1926. There were 317 non-fatalities reported as against 244 last year. The majority of the accidents occurred during the small game season.

Preliminary figures on the kill last season showed that 25 elk were bagged. The kill of deer numbered about 14,500 or approximately 3,000 more than in 1926. There were 319 bear shot compared with 660 in 1926.

Estimates on the kill of other animals and birds included: Rabbits 2,300,000; squirrel 1,200,000, raccoon 20,000, wild turkey 9,500, ruffed grouse 300,000, ring neck pheasant 180,0000, bobwhite quail 200,000 and woodcock 40,000.

FIRE DEPT SECRETARY IS IMPLICATED IN ARSON CASE

CHARLESTOWN, W. Va., Jan. 5.—(AP)—A warrant for the arrest of T. W. Allen, constable and secretary of the Charlestown fire department, was sworn out here today after a member of the fire department had implicated him as an instigator of alleged incendiary fires that occurred here in 1926. One fireman was held for the grand jury and two others were under arrest while state fire marshals continued an investigation of numerous fires here.

Allen was implicated by testimony given at the hearing of Pete Tillet, one of the firemen arrested. Tillet was held for the grand jury charged with incendiarism.

ICE GORGE BROKE IN THE MISSISSIPPI RIVER

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 5—(AP)—An ice gorge in the Mississippi river 43 miles downstream broke late today, resulting in what rivermen said was the greatest ice rush here in thirty years. Barges and ferry landings were torn loose from their moorings and swept downstream.

The towboat Ruprecht, with one barge, bumped into the towboat John S. Walsh, with four barges, and all were engulfed in the rush. Two landings were torn away. Two men on one of the landings were rescued after they had been swept a considerable distance downstream.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

WARSAW, Jan. 5—(AP)—Soviet Russia and Poland exchanged 88 political prisoners held under various charges. Among those released by the soviets were 10 who had been sentenced to death.

RIGA, Latvia, Jan. 5—(AP)—Fifteen communists were arrested at a meeting held to celebrate the ninth anniversary of the capture of Riga by the bolshevika. Those arrested included two employes of the soviet trade mission.

KRASNOYARSK, Siberia, Jan. 5—(AP)—Vassili Abalskoff, a former Cossack officer, was condemned to death after a trial in which many witnesses told of the defendants terrible cruelties to which more than 400 deaths during the civil war of 1919 were attributed.

LONDON, Jan. 5—(AP)—A dispatch to the Daily Mail from St. Moritz says King Albert of the Belgians was injured slightly today in a bob sled accident. The king's elbow was hurt, but otherwise he was uninjured. King Albert was riding a slide owned by Lord Northesk. The British peer was acting as brakeman. When the accident occurred he was thrown from the sled with a resultant injury to his back.

RECEDING TIDE LEAVES SCHOONER HIGH AND DRY

ASTORIA, Ore., Jan. 5—(AP)—Stranded on the sands inside Peacock Spit, the four-masted schooner North Bend was left high and dry by a receding tide today after brave attempts to rescue her crew of 13 resulted in serious injury to the life savers on duty at cape Disappointment. It was expected the vessel would be a total loss.

Captain Alfred Rimer and George Kiltemaker of the life saving crew, were hurt when their rescue boat upset. They were rescued by fellow life savers who managed to right the boat and bring them ashore.

While the schooner and its crew were yet in danger, James E. Rezcra of Ravenwood, New Zealand, swam through the surf from the ship and took a line ashore.

ACTION TAKEN TO POSTPONE EXECUTION OF MRS. SNYDER

NEW YORK, Jan. 5—(AP)—Edgar Hazelton, of counsel for Mrs. Ruth Snyder, took legal action today which may necessitate postponement of her execution, set for next week.

Mr. Hazelton made application in supreme court for a jury trial of the suit brought by the Prudential Insurance company of America to cancel insurance policies totalling $97,000 on the life of her murdered husband. The application will be argued before Justice Levy tomorrow, and should be decide Mrs. Snyder is necessary as a witness, he may order her execution postponed.

THIRD FORMAL RECEPTION AT THE WHITE HOUSE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—(AP)—The third of the formal receptions of the winter social season was held at the white house tonight, President and Mrs. Coolidge receiving the federal judiciary.

First to be received was Chief Justice Taft, followed by the associate justices of the supreme court. Invitations had been issued to all federal judges, some of whom were able to come to Washington for the event.

A NEW $5,000,000 FIRE INSURANCE CO. FORMED

CHICAGO, Jan. 5.—(AP)—Formation of a $5,000,000 fire insurance company, to be known as the Fire Insurance Company of Chicago, was announced today.

Harold W. Letton, chairman of the organization committee, is to be the United States manager of the new firm. He is attorney for the Netherlands Insurance company of the Hague and vice president and general manager of the Great Lakes Insurance company of Chicago.

TEXAS BANK ROBBED BY TWO UNMASKED BANDITS

AMARILLO, Texas, Jan. 5.—(AP)—Two unmasked robbers late today robbed the Wildorado state bank, 20 miles from here, and escaped in an automobile after kidanping W. E. O'Neal, president of the bank, and using him as a shield. O'Neal was freed when the robbers were about two miles out on the highway. The loot was not believed to be large.

SCHOONER IN DISTRESS 100 MILES EAST CAPE HATTERAS

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—(AP)—The American schoner Alvena, reported in distress 100 miles east of Cape Hatteras, carries a crew of nine, according to available shipping records. The Alvena, which is owned by Gardiner Mills company, of San Francisco, is a vessel of 778 gross tons, 186 feet long and was built at Fairhaven, Cal., in 1901.

OBITUARY

George W. Dickerman

NEW YORK, Jan. 5—(AP)—George W. Dickerman, president of the Smith Premier Typewriter company, died at his home today after an illness of four months.

Mr. Dickerman, who was 69 years old, was born in Randolph, Mass., and was graduated from Harvard university in 1882. He was at one time president of the United Typewriter Supplies company. In 1914 at the time of the consolidation of the Remington, Smith Premier and Monarch companies, he became vice president of the Remington company. About five years ago he was made president of the Smith Premier company.

His widow, Mrs. Ida Rock Dickerman, and a sister, Mrs. Alice Dickerman Jones, of Newton Highlands, Mass., survive.

Gov. Smith Curt at Snyder-Gray Hearing

Gave Little Encouragement For a Stay of Execution or New Legal Action

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 5—(AP)—Governor Smith listened for two hours today while lawyers tried to convince him that he ought to stay the execution of Mrs. Ruth Snyder and Henry Judd Gray, scheduled for a week from today, but he gave them little encouragement.

Toward the end of the hearing he joined in the argument with considerable heat interspersed with dry humor. He delivered himself of decided opinions concerning psychoanalysis, the relative values of St. Paul and the New York legislature as interpreters of the law, and the duties of a public official sworn to see that the law is carried out.

When all sides of the argument had been presented the governor ended the session abruptly, merely announcing, "well, the hearing's over," and walking out of the room.

The lawyers tried to convince the executive that while Mrs. Snyder and Gray had unquestionably killed the woman's husband they may not have been able to withhold their hands.

Although it is not customary for the governor to make any statement after the clemency hearing he did issue a memorandum today concerning his refusal to override the courts in the case of Charles J. Doran, Albany gangster sentenced to die in the electric chair tonight. For this reason it was believed that within the next few days he would issue a memorandum concerning today's hearing, explaining in detail his reasons for whatever action, or inaction, he may decide on.

Governor Smith spoke bitingly to both defense attorneys of "this psychosis stuff" and this "twilight zone business." "Why," he said finally, "if what you are telling me was any argument, anyone who wanted to do a murder could just do a few other foolish things first and escape punishment altogether. I must ask you to stick to the law."

"St. Paul says," Hazelton replied, "that 'the letter of the law killeth but the spirit of the law x x x.'"

The governor interrupted the quotation.

"The legislature of the state of New York," he drawled, "has a different opinion, and the legislature is more modern interpreter of the law than St. Paul."

The two persons most vitally interested with the outcome of the hearings, Mrs. Snyder and Gray, were not present, remaining in their Sing Sing cells, but the mothers of both sat facing the governor with tear dimmed eyes.

FURTHER TESTIMONY OF SUBMARINE S-4 DISASTER

BOSTON, Jan. 5.—(AP)—Commander Leroy Reinburg, in charge of the third coast guard destroyer division basing in Boston today, told the naval court of inquiry investigating the S-4 disaster that up to the time of that accident he had not known that submarines operated submerged in the vicinity of Provincetown. The destroyer Paulding which rammed and sank the S-4 was a part of the third division.

"I have been operating in this vicinity for 14 months and I never knew that submarines moved into Provincetown submerged," Commander Reinburg said. "I have often seen them about New London, Conn., and at Portsmouth, N. H., and we expected to meet them there."

The mission of the Paulding on the Cape Cod coast on December 17, when the collision occurred, was, the witness said, to look for "the most astute enemy we have in these waters," which had been reported in that neighborhood.

After the hearing had been devoted for almost two days to the testimony of submarine experts, the coast guard witness took the stand late in the afternoon. The submarine experts were Lieut. Frank L. Worden, commanding the S-8, sister ship of the S-4, and Commander Edmund W. Strothers, commanding submarine division 2.

HARTFORD MAN PERISHED IN HOTEL FIRE AT OSSINING

OSSINING, N. Y., Jan. 5.—(AP)—Two men and a woman were known tonight to have perished in the fire which early today destroyed the century-old Westkora hotel.

Two of the bodies were identified as those of Albert McKenna, of Hartford, Conn., a guest at the hotel, and Albert Albrecht, a waiter. The third body was that of an unidentified woman. McKenna's body was identified by his father-in-law, Frank S. Jones, of Hartford.

While the hotel register was lost in the fire and a definite check of the guests was not possible, Charles Fleisch, owner of the hotel, said he believed all other persons escaped.

The fire, the fifth in the hotel in six months, was believed to have been of incendiary origin. Police said they were told by a negro that he had seen a man running from the vicinity of the hotel shortly before the alarm was sounded. The flames had gained such headway before the arrival of firemen that the buildings could not be saved.

200 FAMILIES MAROONED BY FLOODS IN ENGLAND

LONDON, Jan. 5.—(AP)—Rising waters at Dartford, Kent, marooned 200 families in their homes last night, but they were released before experiencing any undue hardship as the waters rapidly subsided.

Between Chertsey and Weybridge, in Surrey, the floods are four miles wide, while near Maidenhead, Berks, they are two miles wide and deep enough to swim on the King's highway.

The river Thames at Windsor is 4 1-2 feet above normal, Eton Town presenting an island-like appearance. The Brounds at Windsor castle also are inundated.

WEATHER HALTS SALVAGE WORK ON SUBMARINE S-4

PROVINCETOWN, Mass., Jan. 5.—(AP)—Unfavorable weather caused the suspension of all salvaging work on the sunken submarine S-4 today and a freshening northwest wind late this afternoon threatened to make tomorrow's sea too choppy for diving operations.

The salvaging fleet, which moved from the scene of the disaster into the harbor this morning remained at anchor all during the day.

Brighter Days For the Textile Industry

Secretary of Labor Forecasts a Gradual Improvement in New England.

(Special to The Bulletin)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5—The department of labor predicts a successful industrial year for Connecticut. After a survey the secretary of labor reports that "the industrial outlook is promising. The metal working trades, which have been operating at capacity will continue on this basis during the year. A gradual improvement in the textile industry is anticipated in those centers where mills are on part time schedules. The silverware industry should continue at its present maximum capacity. An increase in the leather and paper industries is predicted in one part of the state. The manufacturing of hats will probably exceed that of 1927. The sum of $11,000,000 to be spent on highways work throughout the state during 1928 will afford employment to several hundred men for a long period. Increased activity in building is anticipated in some localities, while in other sections no programs have been mapped out. An increase in tobacco acreage is expected in certain communities; no unusual activity is looked for in farm work in other localities. Everything points at the present time to normal productions in all industries throughout the state for 1928."

BARGES SWEPT AWAY BY ICE IN MISSISSIPPI RIVER

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 5.—(AP)—Two men being swept down the Mississippi river on a barge when a huge ice gorge broke 65 miles downstream, were rescued with the aid of life lines here late today. The men were on one of the thirteen river craft which were torn from their moorings and carried downstream by a current filled with churning ice.

Thirty boats and barges which were tied up for the winter were grounded as the river stage lowered nearly nine feet after the jam broke at St. Genevieve, Mo. Three of the barges which were carried downstream were not recovered tonight. The other ten river craft either were grounded downstream or pulled to shore by river and harbor workers.

When the ice pack let go, Henry Thorn and John Parker, carpenters were on one the barges. Their craft was carried swiftly downstream until it reached Arsenal street where life lines were thrown them by men on a boat moored there.

River men said the ice run was the worst experienced here since 1916. Ice fifteen feet deep held back the water causing the river stage to rise hourly. River and harbor employes were powerless to guard against the rushing masses of ice when the gorge broke, and could only wait until the run subsided before beginning their efforts to retrieve the runaway boats and barges.

VAST PLOT DISCOVERED BY TURKISH POLICE

CONSTANTINOPLE, Jan. 5.—(AP)—The Turkish police are reported to have discovered a vast plot for the reestablishment of Former Crown Prince Carol of Rumania in his own country. The plot is alleged to have had Sabri Bey, a Turkish cavalry captain belonging to Dobrudja, Rumania, as its head. Sabri Bey was condemned to death under the late Premier Bratianu for Carolist activities, but escaped to Constantinople.

The police seized manifestos alleged to have been printed here, which the plotters were sending to Rohrudja, it was arranged for Carol to come to Constantinople and fly from here to Dobrudja.

The Rumanian minister is noted as admitting the existence of such a plot, but as minimizing its importance, he asserted that the plotters were mercenaries who were operating without Carol's knowledge.

TESTIMONY BY SUP'T OF THE RUMFORD PRESS

CONCORD, N. H., Jan. 5.—(AP)—R. P. Weston, general superintendent of the Rumford Press of this city, was called to testify in the superior court this afternoon in the trial of Fred H. Thompson, a Boston Post reporter, charged with procuring a larceny in obtaining a copy of a letter written by Governor Alfred E. Smith of New York for publication in the Atlantic Monthly. The letter set forth Governor Smith's views as to the attitude of any Catholic who might be elected president of the United States.

Weston testified, in response to questions by County Solicitor Herbert W. Rainie, that it was not the practice of the Rumford Press toallow any copy of printed matter to be taken from the building by employes. He said that to his knowledge permission had never been given to any employe to remove material.

DR CHARLES M. M'MILLAN INDICTED FOR MURDER

LOS ANGESLES, Jan. 5.—(AP)—The county grand jury today indicted Dr. Charles M. McMillan, 67-year-old physician, for the murder of Mrs. Amelia Appleby, wealthy widow of a Chicago inventor, whose body was found sewn in a sack at a roadside between Los Angeles and San Fernando Dec. 26.

Dr. McMillan, who was the woman's business agent, has repeatedly denied he killed Mrs. Appleby, but the authorities have weaved a net of circumstantial evidence to enshroud the physician. The coroner's jury Wednesday found that Mrs. Appleby died of lung congestion resulting from exposure.

880-FOOT VESSEL PULLED TO SAFETY BY 18 TUGS

BOSTON, Jan. 5.—(AP)—Messages of commendation were dispatched by Rear Admiral Phillip Andrews, commandant at the Boston navy yard today to Captain Albert W. Marshall, commanding the U. S. S. Lexington, and Captain Joseph I. Kent, port captain and pilot of the Bethlehem Shipbuilding corporation's Fore River plant, for their feat of expert seamanship in safely navigating the mighty airplane carrier from the Fore River yards into the channel in Hull bay this morning.

Eigteen tugs pulled the 880-foot vessel through the Fore River draw bridge in 33 minutes and then towed her safely about a sharp bend into the channel.

SEN. BINGHAM DEFENDS U. S. NICARAGUAN POLICY

Connecticut Senator Defended the Administration From the Criticisms of Senator Norris—Heflin of Alabama Renewed His Demand For a Withdrawal of the Marines—A Rescue Column of Marines Has Arrived at Quilali, Where Serious Fighting Has Taken Place.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5—(AP)—The momentary tranquility on the battle front in Nicaragua was without counterpart today in congress where there were renewed strictures upon and defenses of the administration's course.

The verbal warfare was set off by Senator Wheeler, democrat, Montana, with the introduction of a resolution calling for a blanket investigation of the whole Nicaraguan situation by the state foreign relations committee.

Senator Heflin, democrat, Alabama, renewing his demand for a withdrawal of the marines, declared there was an "unholy" alliance between "the money changers of Wall street and the Roman Catholic hierarchy" in Nicaragua by which American forces were being held in the republic.

Finally, Senator Bingham, republican, Connecticut, came to the defense of the administration, calling attention that the United States had entered into an agreement with most of the factions of Nicaragua whereby it guaranteed a fair presidential election. He contended the United States was keeping that agreement.

In a running fire with the Connecticut member, Senator Norris, republican, Nebraska, renewed his criticisms of the administration's course and inquired whether the United States would finally be supervising elections in Panama, Ireland and other places where there are contending factions.

Debate in the house was comparatively brief, Representative Huddlestone, democrat, Alabama, renewing his attack on the administration's policy. He declared the agreement drawn up by Henry L. Stimson with the warring factions was illegal and asserted that the presence of American marines in the Latin-American republic smacked of imperialism.

Again Representative Begg, republican, Ohio, came to the defense of the administration. He declared it was the obligation of the government to keep marines in Nicaragua until a stable government could be set up there.

Late in the day the navy department was notified by radio that a detachment of marines, sent out to aid comrades at Quilali, had reached its destination without encountering any of Sandino's men who in the past week have inflicted casualties in skirmishes with the marines. No particulars were given in the dispatch.

COL LINDBERGH HAS RETURNED TO NICARAGUA

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, Jan. 5—(AP)—Setting a course from Tegucigalpa, which carried him down the western border of Nicaragua to Leon, and thence to Managua, Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh, ambassador of good-will from the United States, landed on the flying field in the suburbs of the capital at 2:25 this afternoon.

The air line distance from Tegucigalpa to Managua is approximately 265 miles but the aviator flew considerable more than that.

Colonel Lindbergh took the longer route to avoid any possibility of passing over the disturbed territory in the northwest. It is in this territory that United States marines and Nicaraguan constabulary are engaged in hostilities against the rebel forces of the former liberal General Sandino. But for the moment quiet prevails, the respective forces evidently preparing for attack or counter-attack.

Those who came in from various sections of the republic and joined Managuans in greeting Colonel Lindbergh, had laid aside all idea of revolution and politics, and even the recent battle between Sandino and the marines had not dampened their ardor.

Thirty thousand persons had assembled at the field—most of them were there from early morning—to watch the coming of the "Lone Eagle." As the Spirit of St. Louis appeared from behind one of the volcanoes, like a tiny bird at first, with an escort of marine planes, the crowds burst into cheers. Small children who tugged at the arms of their parents to get better view and beautiful senoritas, forgot all else and joined in the rush to be near the plane when it came to earth.

SLAYER OF MOTHER IS INDIFFERENT TO FATE

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 5—(AP)—Indifferent to his fate, Floyd Hewitt, 17 year old slayer of a mother and her child, tonight awaited death in the electric chair—twenty-four hours away.

His last hope of commutation dispelled by a recommendation of the state's clemency board and Gov. Donahey's refusal to intervene, the youthful murderer was non-commital and apparently unworried.

Tomorrow night at Ohio penitentiary, Hewitt will be electrocuted, the youngest slayer in this state ever to pay the extreme penalty in the chair.

Hewitt confessed to the brutal slaying of Mrs. Fred Brown and her five year old son at Sonneaut, in whose home he was an occasional visitor. The husband found the bodies when he returned home from work. Hewitt killed Mrs. Brown when she repulsed his advances and slew the boy to hide the crime.

Attorneys, his mother and sister and friends contended that Hewitt was feeble minded and unable to distinguish between right and wrong.

When told that his late hopes had faded Hewitt said, "I have nothing to say" and immediately became occupied with things in his cell. He showed no emotion.

HI-JACKERS GET TRUCK AND $20,000 LOAD GRAIN ALCOHOL

REVERE, Mass., Jan. 5.—(AP)—Three "high-jackers" armed with guns this afternoon jumped upon the running board of a truck, carrying $20,000 worth of grain alcohol, forced the driver from his seat and drove away with the load.

After compelling the driver, William McClellan to stop the truck, they pulled his cap over his eyes, bundled him into another automobile, in which there were others of the gang and left. The car containing the driver of the truck, after circling about some time, ran out of gas in Somerville and the occupants, leaving McClellan on the floor, jumped in a second car and escaped.

The alcohol was part of legitimate shipment which we being transferred on a commercial truck.

NEW HAVEN ROAD MAY REISSUE $17,000,000 PROMISSORY NOTE

HARTFORD, Jan. 5—(AP)—A promissory note for $17,000,000 may be reissued by the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad company, to be dated March 1, 1930, at 5 per cent if a petition to the state public utilities commission is granted. A hearing on the petition will be held January 12 in room 3A of the county building in New Haven. The 17,000,000 dollar note was first issued to raise money with which to pay the federal government for benefits and improvements made during the federal control of railroads. The original note was issued at six per cent.

CONTEST OVER FARM RELIEF IN THE SENATE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5—(AP)—Farm relief came up for its first round of consideration this session in the senate today amid an atmosphere apparently as bitter as old.

At the outset, Chairman McNary of the agriculture committee, inspired the McNary-Haugen bill supporters who again claim a majority in the senate, with the prediction that the revised measure would be sent to the white house by congress by March 1 where he hoped it would be signed by President Coolidge.

After Senator McKellar, democrat, Tennessee, had urged passage of the bill, Mr. McNary informed the senate that his committee would take up the measure probably about Feb. 1.

Senator McNary has revised the bill to meet many of the objections pointed to by President Coolidge last year in vetoing the proposal. As a result he expressed hope for presidential approval despite the fact that the bill still carries the controversial equalization fee, to which Mr. Coolidge objected.

While Senators Bruce, democrat, Maryland, and McKellar, became entangled in a spirited row over farm relief, Senator Capper, republican, Kansas, leader of the erstwhile senate farm bloc, put forward a resolution proposing a reduction of freight rates on grain and grain products exported from this country in an effort to equalize the position of American grain growers with Canadian competition.

Declaring Canadian wheat enjoys an advantage of eight to ten cents a bushel, in lower transportation charges, Senator Capper held this was a serious menace to American farmers and he called for an immediate investigation by the interstate commerce commission of export grain rates.

HICKMAN IS INDICTED FOR ANOTHER MURDER

LOS ANGELES, Calif., Jan. 5.—(AP)—another murder indictment was returned today against William E. Hickman and a plea of "not guilty by reason of insanity" immediately thrown up in his defense, the same as in his fight against the gallows for the murder of 12-year-old Marian Parker.

The county grand jury returned a charge naming Hickman and his companion, Welby Hunt, 16, as legally responsible for the death of C. Ivy Thoms, a druggist of Rosehill, a suburb, on Christmas eve of 1926.

Only a few hours after the indictment, Hickman who is 19 was taken into the same court room where the groundwork was laid for his defense in the Parker case, and entered his plea. Trial on the new charge was set for Feb. 1 by Superior Judge Carlos Hardy.

Hunt also appeared for arraignment and his case was transferred to the juvenile court after Judge Hardy heard testimony that the youth was born in 1911. The appearance of Hickman and Hunt in court caught everyone by surprise and the legal flourishes were made before empty seats.

PHANTOM STABBER NOW AT WORK IN ANSONIA

ANSONIA, Conn., Jan. 5—(AP)—Mrs. J. Poplowski, of 5 Crescent street reported to the police tonight that she was stabbed while walking near Day street. The stabber operated in the same manner as the "phantom stabber" of Bridgeport who has attacked 25 women and the stabber who has plunged his weapon into the breasts of two Hartford women.

The wound was superficial being barely more than a pin prick. Mrs. Poplowski told the police that the stabber's touch was so light that no pain resulted and it was not until she noticed a speck of blood on her clothing that she realized she had been stabbed.

Mrs. Poplowski recalled being followed for several blocks by a man unknown to her and also recalled that he suddenly brushed by her with upraised hand.

Her assailant appeared to be in his twenties and wore cap and overcoat.

AIR PILOT KILLED WHILE MAKING A TEST FLIGHT

THE PAS, Man., Jan. 5.—(AP)—Captain F. J. N. Stevenson, senior pilot of the Western Airways, Ltd., was killed today when his plane crashed from a height of about 500 feet while he was making a test flight preparatory to hopping off for the Cold Lake mining district.

Captain Stevenson, regarded as one of the best fliers in Canada, was dead when extricated from the tangled wreckage. It was believed his engine had stalled.

He served with the Royal Flying corps in the World war.

RELIEF CORPS OFFICERS INSTALLED FOR COMING YEAR

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Jan. 5.—Officers for 1928 were installed at a meeting of Francis S. Long Woman's Relief Corps, No. 28, held in G. A. R. hall Wednesday evening. There were a number of guests present including Adjutant James Haggerty, Adjutants and George Herrick of the Francis S. Long Post, No. 80, G. A. R. A roast beef supper was served in charge of Mrs. Alice Bentley. Mrs. Bentley was presented with a fancy glass bon bon dish in recognition of her seven years of consecutive service as chairman of the executive board. As retiring president of the organization she was presented with a handsome hand bag by her successor, Mrs. Amy Anderson. Mrs. Bentley has completed 12 years of service, having been conductor, senior vice and junior vice president of the local corps as well as senior aide to State Department President Mrs. Maud S. Deming. Mrs. Gertrude Reinman of Bridgeport, installing and instituting officer of the state department, who had been expected to conduct the ceremonies, was unable to be present and Mrs. Hatie Bowen, past president of the corps was placed in charge of the work. The officers installed were: President, Amy Anderson; senior vice president, Lucy Champlin; junior vice president, Frances McKenna; secretary, Helen French; treasurer, Alice Easterbroks; chaplain, Harriet Ladd; conductor, Marjorie Duggan; guard, Mabel Dimock; patriotic instructor, Maud S. Deming; press correspondent, Fannie S. Lamb; musician Ruth James; assistant guard, Lillian Fletcher. The assistant conductor and three of the color bearers could not attend and they will be installed at the next meeting. In recognition of her duties as installing officer, Mrs Bowen was presented with a silk scarf by the president, Mrs. Amy Anderson. Mrs. McKenna was appointed chairman of a public whist to be held next week.

A special city meeting to be held at the town hall Wednesday evening, January 11, at eight o'clock to act on the purchase of three voting machines, is called for in a warning issued today by Mayor Charles A. Gates The meeting is the result of the petition of 33 electors requesting that such a session be held to act on the purchase of the machines and that the action be determined by ballot and check list. It has been pointed out that a request on the manner of voting cannot be legally included in a petition and the matter is one that will have to be decided upon when the meeting opens. The petition was presented to the common council at its recent special meeting. The board refused to take action and left the calling of a special city meeting to the discretion of the mayor. As the voting machine situation now stands here, it is up to the coming city meeting to determine whether or not they will be in use for either town or city elections in the future. At a recent town meeting it was voted to purchase three voting machine provided that the city voted to purchase a like number the six machines being necessary to conduct the elections of the dual form of government. The petitioners for the meeting are believed to be among prime movers for an effort to defeat the proposed purchase of the machines.

Willimantic Lodge, No. 1082, Independent Order of B'nai B'rith, held its installation at a largely attended meeting in Odd Fellows' hall Wednesday evenning. The new officers are: President, Joseph Peck; vice president, Harry Kaufman; recording secretary, Hyman Chasen; financial secretary and treasurer, Benjamin Eisenberg; trustees, Philip R. Cohen, Wolfe Rosen and Maurice Davis; monitor, Nathan A. Knasin; assistant monitor, Benjamin Prague; warden, Albert Milevitz; guardian, Henry Rothblat. The installation work was conducted by Judge Sampson Nathanson, of Providence, R. I., district deputy; Nestor Dryfus, of New London, district deputy; and Max Hanover, of Norwich, acting district deputy. Luncheon was served followed by a smoker during which Judge Nathanson was heard in interesting remarks. The meeting was in charge of a committee composed of Carl Israel, Harry Kaufman, Harry Rosen and Louis Rabinowitz.

A series of open forums for young men will start at the Y. M. C. A. February 3. The first 3of these Sunday afternoon gatherins will be addressed by Principal George H. Burial was in the Willimantic cemetery The bearers were Morris Golden, Harold Nichols, George Andrews and Byron Hawkins. Arrangements were in charge of Avery and Van Zandt.

ONE LENGTH OF PIPE BURST IN WATER MAIN

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Jan. 5.—The break in the new water main which left a considerable section of the city without water for about four hours Wednesday morning has been found to be one of the most severe ever seen on water mains here. The break is located opposite the entrance to the Elks' home on Pleasant street and runs the whole length of one of the eight-foot sections of the main. The fissure tapers from two to six inches. Street department men has started the work of disconnecting the broken length. It is expected that a new section will be installed and other necessary repairs completed within two or three days. Meanwhile the damaged pipe does not affect the water supply which is being forced through the old main.

DANIELSON

F. S. LUTHER HAD REAL AFFECTION FOR BROOKLYN

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Jan. 5—No information was available here or in Brooklyn today as to whether the body of Flavel S. Luther, 78, president emeritus of Trinity college, who died at Pasadena yesterday, is to be brought east for burial.

His father and mother and his brother lie at rest in historic Old Trinity cemetery, on Church street in the town of Brooklyn, his native place. It was said today that no member of the Luther family is now resident in Brooklyn.

President Luther, so long such a prominent figure among the educators of Connecticut, was born in Brooklyn in 1850, in what is known as the John Palmer house. His elementary studies were made in a little schoolhouse that stood nearby and there were laid the foundations for the abundant knowledge that eventually led to his being selected as president of Trinity college, of which he was a graduate. His first teaching was in a Parish school at Troy, N. Y. Later he taught at Racine college and still later at Kenyon college, in Ohio, returning, in 1883, to become professor of mathematics and astronomy at Trinity and eventually president of the institution.

During all of the years he was in Hartford he made it a regular practice to return to Brooklyn from time to time, to view old scenes and to talk over old times with people remaining there that he had known in his earlier years.

In reminiscences he prepared some dozen years ago for a history of Windham county being arranged for publication at that time, he notes that: "My family were Episcopalians, and for years we attended the quaint wooden church half way between Brooklyn and Danielsonville.———Surrounded by its graveyard (in which his parents now rest) it appeals to one's tender emotions, and I am glad that there are ample funds for its maintenance in perpetuity. In my day Rev. Riverius Camp, later a doctor of divinity, was its rector."

The sparkling humor that was one of the characteristics that made President Luther so generally beloved, and his trait of whimsicality, runs all through the reminiscences herein referred to, as witness this little incident that he tells about a period when Brooklyn was a county seat and he still a little boy:

"Another source of interest during all my boyhood, and I presume, later, grew from the fact that Brooklyn was the county seat in those days. Court was in session, I think, four times a year. The judge and the lawyers swarmed in the hotels and everybody knocked off work to 'tend court. Distinguished members of the bar I recall were Governor Cleveland, John J. Penrose of Central Village, Johnson of Putnam, Graves of Danielson, besides Tyler of Brooklyn. The clerk of the court was Uriel Fuller, commonly called 'Square' Fuller. Judge Waite often came up from Norwich and once Charles O'Connor addressed a jury in the old courthouse. I couldn't get in to hear him, small though I was, and so I went up and sat on the stone and listened. As I remember the occasion, I might have stayed at home—half a mile way—and heard him."

And again: "It was as a baseball player that I really took my leave of Brooklyn. This was in the fall of 1867, when on a Saturday afternoon in mid-September, we had two or three hours of lively play. I can see now the landscape as I turned my back on the old fairground, the sun setting among the western hills, while I crossed the fields toward the old home. It was my last day as a boy. Monday I went to college and Brooklyn was no longer my town; and yet it was my town—and always will be."

This morning the funeral of Mrs. Melvina Lajoie was held from the home at Connecticut Village with services at St. James' church at 9 o'clock. Rev. James McCarthy, M. S., was celebrant of the high mass of requiem. Burial was in Holy Cross cemetery, the committal service conducted by Rev. Antheleme Mollard, M. S. The bearers were E. Lagace, C. Corriveau, N. Desjardins, A. Lagace, J. Morin and J. Thibeault. Louis E. Kennedy was in charge of the arrangements.

The second of a series of parish whist parties by groups representing sections of the borough was held last evening in Union St. John Baptist hall by members of St. James' parish. This affair was even more successful than the one of the preceding week, and that set a fine record. Last night families residing in the parish district between Franklin and Cottage street were the sponsors. The Ladies' committee of this week's whist was headed by Miss Anna Mailhot as president. The men's committee was headed by Joseph Labelle. The committees entered upon their work with fine enthusiasm and brought out a large attendance. Awards went to Mrs. Joseph Lebossiere of Putnam, who received a $5 gold piece; to Wilfrid Caron, who was given a boudoir lamp, to Diana Brule, whose award was a console. Honors at whist were won, for the ladies, by Mrs. Damase Boulais, who was first, and by Mrs. A. Lariviere, who was second. Ovila Heroux won first honors for the men, second honors going to Rev. Joseph A. Demers, M. S., and third to R. Fafard. Consolation honors went to Mrs. V. Lagace and Dolard Grennon.

There were no developments today relative to the disappearance last Saturday morning of Phineas G. Aldrich of North Main street. He appears to have vanished with the fog that enveloped him when he dashed from view into woods to the north and east of the Putnam Country club. Publication this morning of the fact that he has been missing for several days set some to searching about the country where he disappeared, but there was no organized hunt for him. There is the possibility that he may have made his way out of this section, for some unknown reason, and he had ample funds with him at the time of his disappearance to do that if he so desired.

Less remarkable things frequently attain to newspaper notice than the gorgeous sunset with which this winter day came to a close. Possibly one might select from the several hundred thousand words in the English language a suitable number to adequately describe the blazing lights and colors in the western sky tonight, but even then none but a word painter could do his subject justice. All of which may indicate that it was some sunset!

Members of the Wakitatina Camp Fire Girls held a regular meeting last evening, and, among other things, made plans for future camp activities.

On some of the smaller ponds from which ice is taken by dairymen, cutting will begin early next week, if there is no real warm spell meanwhile. Some of these ponds were reported tonight as having eight inch ice on them.

Joseph Brennan is seriously ill with pneumonia at the Day Kimball hospital in Putnam.

Adding to the list of similar unusual notations for this time of year, E. T. Tillinghast tells of seeing a frog hopping about near the north shore of Alexander's lake on December 30.

Members of the Civic federation are to meet Friday afternoon of this week with Mrs. Henry D. Crosby of Academy street.

Continuing the cold record of the week the mercury was down to three above zero in Danielson early this morning.

Mrs. Edward Bennett of Center street has been ill at her home for a few days.

Watching what were, to them, the strange antics of some young people at Davis park a recent evening, observers were about to put in a call for the state police, when, some how or other, it was discovered the strange actions were merely the activities of some young people engaged on a "treasure hunt."

Miss Marie Jane Getty, who has spent the holiday season here with her grandmother, Mrs. Marie Getty, returned to her studies in Canada this afternoon.

One heard some talk about town today about a plan for the formation of an "Al Smith" club, which would appear to be anticipating who the democratic national convention is going to nominate for president next June.

Hundreds of Killingly persons liable to pay a personal tax continue to take thier time about doing so.

It was being claimed here today on the strength of the new grand list figures and prospective budget items that the town tax rate likely will be reduced two or three mills from the 25 mill rate of last year.

A great deal of the thousands of dollars in gold withdrawn from banks in Danielson by persons who used them in making Christmas gifts is finding its way back in the banks' vaults. Bankers say this is a regular experience every year following the holiday season.

Insufficient evidence was produced, the court held, to warrant none other than a finding of not guilty in the case of Augustus Ducett of Lewis boulevard, who was before Judge W. Fenner Woodward in the town court this morning to answer to a charge of operating a motor vehicle while he was under the influence of an intoxicant. Ducett was ordered to court on the eve of New Year's.

Cards and letters are coming through from Danielson people who are in Florida for the winter telling of the unusually cold weather down there and of how difficult it has been to keep warm at times because of inadequate heating facilities in many buildings.

PUTNAM

J., Miss Ruth White of Brooklyn, N. Y., Miss Eleanor Murphy of Torrington, Miss Estelle Reeves of Essex and Miss Mary Carpenter.

Because of the holiday on Monday, the contest this week in the card tournament between the Elks club and the Masonic club was not played until Tuesday evening. There were but sixteen tables in play and the scores for the evening ended in a tie of eight to eight. In Auction Bridge the Masons won by six to three, the score in the bid whist game was tied and the Elks won the three games of cribbage.

Following is the score with the names of the Elks appearing first:

Auction Bridge—Milot and Lewis lost to Hansall and Miner; Girard and Wheelock lost to Holden and Miron; Hawkins and W. Averill lost to Kerr and Combs; Phillips and McIntyre lost to Prince and Duffy; Duvert and P. Gagne lost to Morse and Geissler; Mansfield and Rich lost to Sherman and Stanton; Cotter and A. At the first meeting of Putnam's new city council on Tuesday evening, Mayor Charles E. Richard presided.

The meeting was opened by the reading of a communication from the Citizens' committee. After a heated discussion of the water question, the matter was placed on the table for a while as the mayor thought it better to wait and have an excellent water system installed than a poor one in a hurry.

The captain of police, William J. Jarvis, submitted his yearly report, as did the treasurer, the public health officer, the superintendent of streets and the tax collector, all of which were read and accepted. The report of the superintendent of the fire department was not ready to be submitted but will be in the near future. It was voted to secure bids for the printing of the yearly Municipal register. Mayor Richard read a communication from the city engineer, George W. Perry, stating that in the future his services for engineering work would be $13 per day.

The police report for the month of December is as follows: There have been sixteen arrests during the month for the following causes: Drunkenness, seven; assault, one; breach of peace, one; violation of motor laws, three; embezzlement, three; clothing club arrests, three. The arrests were disposed of as follows: Committed to care of probation officer, one; placed on file, two; bound over, one; fines and costs paid, $338.34; paid fines and costs, seven; judgment suspended, four.

After bills were read and ordered paid, a motion was made that Alexander Gilman be reappointed as a member of the board of water commissioners and it was unanimously voted for.

Jackson Hall, one of the seventeen-year-old boys who deserted from the United States navy and who broke into the railroad station at East Thompson to find a warm sleeping place, was arraigned before Justic P. P. Tourtelotte at North Grosvenordale last evening. He was found guilty of breaking and entering and was given a sentence of thirty days in Brooklyn jail.

Dr. J. B. Kent, of Larchmont, N. Y., has been spending the past week with friends in the city. Dr. eKnt practiced medicine in Putnam for more than fifty years but retired about two years ago and went to live with his son, James M. Kent, at Larchmont.

Mrs. Margery Tutle and son, Henry have returned from a visit over the holidays with relatives in Holliston, Mass.

Captain John J. McGarry was at aHrtford recently, attending a meeting of the officers of the Connecticut national guard who are in charge of the various armories of the state.

ISSUING AUTO REGISTRATIONS

At New Haven on the rush days it took about five hours of standing in line to get a license. At the Hartford headquarters where a dozen clerks were working it took slightly less.

This is stated by the Ansonia Sentinel in connection with an editorial reference to the condition that exists at the end of each year wherein it points out that relief might be obtained by the auto owners if they didn't wait until the last minute to get their licenses.

The fact of the matter is that it is the same old story. Auto owners like others are inclined to wait until the time approaches for new licenses before getting them. They do it in many cases because it is an inconvenience to go many miles to another city, while it is recognized as a well known human trait to procrastinate.

The rush at the end of the year is perennial. The motor vehicle department is ready to deliver markers in October, but it hasn't as yet endeavored to serve the auto owners of the cities of the state alike. It expects those in most of the cities to spend hours in driving as well as awaiting before they can get their markers, or else it requires them to pay a notary public fee or hire some one to get their registrations.

In view of the fact that all auto owners are taxed alike on their particular make of car they ought to be treated alike. There's no reason why there should not be a branch office at Ansonia, or Derby, or Shelton which could serve those three communities. No reason why there should not be one at Norwich and in every city of the state at least, for that period when new registrations are available, or drivers' licenses are being issued.

As the matter stands there is discrimination. It is not surprising that owners do not like it. A branch in every city would greatly relieve the congestion and waits, even though it might not do away completely with the rush of the final days. It is no greater accommodation than the auto owners have a right to expect but one they ought to demand out of fairness. Why not send a few clerks with the licenses to the many auto owners, instead of requiring the many auto owners to go long distances to a few clerks? Auto owners are paying sufficient in state taxes to get that much service.

GET IT UNDERWAY

Ever since the loss of the S-4 it has been certain that there would be more than one inquiry set in motion. One is already underway by the navy department, but the suggestion which has been made to congress by the president that he be authorized to name a commission to make an impartial investigation cannot fail to be looked upon as a desirable method of procedure. Two retired admirals and three civilians should be able to get at the bottom of the matter and determine the facts in the case without bias. That is what is needed and that is what is wanted. The country isn't interested in political bickerings over this matter. It wants to get down to brass tacks to know as far as possible what happened, how and why it happened, whether it could and should have been prevented, whether there was negligence, whether adequate safety measures and provisions exist and what can and should be done for the prevention of just such accidents in the future.

Sound not snap judgment is wanted and it will be obtained only by getting at the full facts by those who are conscientiously striving for the same goal without including in their efforts the attempt to do a job of political salving through such an investigation.

The submarine is one of the important war vessels. It is constructed for that purpose and that fact cannot be overlooked in connection with its operation and its equipment. That doesn't mean that the welfare of those who man such a vessel should not get every possible consideration. The whole situation can be best revealed through an unprejudiced investigation such as the president has asked for authority to set in motion.

Congress will do well if it acts with a reasonable degree of promptness in doing what has been asked of it. Congress as well as the navy department should be interested in such an inquiry because congress as well as the navy department has its responsibility for making provisions for the navy.

KEEP GOING

Congress has had its holiday recess and is now back on the job, or should be. It is a job that might be much more easily disposed of if there prevailed a disposition to do a good job and to get it out of the way promptly.

There must be action on the various appropriation bills in order to keep the departments of the government in operation, but there are big problems in addition which include farm relief, flood legislation, allied property return, Boulder dam proposition, Muscle Shoals as well as a raft of smaller matters, including some that were left over from the last session of congress.

These do not include the matter of tax reduction in the revision of the revenue bill which promises to be delayed until such a time in the session that additional data and figures will be available for the exercise of judgment.

Furthermore there will be investigations on the desire on various features of the appropriation bills, the needs of army and navy, and the matter of treaties and international relations which, even though they should not require a tremendous amount of time, can easily be made the excuse for spreading all that is needed to throw the session into a jam during the concluding days.

From now on until adjournment congress has a straight way. Adjournment date might be indefinite barring the fact that this is a presidential year and the national conventions of the parties are to be held during the month of June. Congress expects to clear up its business in time so that its members will be enabled to attend these conventions if they desire. The desirability of getting the business out of the way before such conventions instead of adjourning until after them is apparent.

The amount of the business and the importance of it must impress the members with the responsibility resting on them to keep going ahead rather than to idle, to aid rather than obstruct action. Congress must keep going.

HANDSHAKING STRAIN

For a long time it has been the custom to hold receptions for the public as well as diplomats and other officials at the white house each New Year's day. This means meeting and shaking hands with thousands of people.

To the individual who passes through such a line there is a thrill and a pride in being thus honored by the president. Little thought is, however, given to the strain that this imposes upon the chief executive. It has been the cause for the abandonment of such a policy in the past only to be resumed because of the impression so many get that it indicates an aloofness.

In a despatch from Washington reference is made to the fact that the president this week has been wearing a bandage on his wrist because of a recurrence of a former strain. This was the outcome of the New Year's reception. It is something which will clear up, but it is apparent that it is a tax upon the physical ability of an otherwise busy man to enter as freely as he desires into the holiding of a public reception and the extension of the glad hand to all comers.

It is quite evident that such handshaking can be overdone, and that there is slight realization of what it means to stand for several hours grasping new hands as fast as they can be extended. It is one of those cases where the spirit is willing, even to the extent of breaking resolutions to the contrary, but where the strain is more than should be invited by the president. One can appreciate the reluctance of a president to drop such a custom but there would be a general opposition to it if the public had to go through the experience of handshaking strain.

RHODE ISLAND'S MOVE

Rhode Island has been having some unpleasant experiences in connection with the enforcement of its laws dealing with drunken drivers of automobiles. It recognizes the menace which they are in the highway and it has found that under the existing law there was an increase of 5% per cent in the number of such drivers during the past year. Instead of conditions being improved, they have grown worse.

One of the reasons for that is believed to be the leniency with which such drivers are treated. The result of this is that there has been introduced in the legislature of that state a law which would call for a fine of from $200 and $500, or a jail sentence of not over 30 days with revocation of license for a year for the first offense. The second offense would carry a year in prison and the loss of the driving license for two years with no authority having the power to defer or suspend sentence for this and subsequent offenses. For the third offense there would be a sentence of two years and permanent revocation of the license, while those convicted of driving during a period of revocation would face a sentence of one to two years.

Rhode Island hasn't adopted this law. Because it has been presented doesn't necessarily mean that it will, but it indicates that conditions have called for the enactment of a law that has teeth in it if the highways are going to be relieved of such a recognized danger. The price of getting protection for the users of the public highways as thus set forth may seem to be high, but it has been demonstrated that if only grows worse when the other method is used. It remains to be seen from the action of the legislature of the state to the east what Rhode Island wants.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Those who put their faith in almanac days have a right to be badly upset over the way January is acting.

Not many would like to, if they could, take the place of those divers who are working in icy cold waters on the S-4.

Probation and parole are likely to get a little more attention from the standpoint of the public rather than of the accused, in California for the present.

The man on the corner says: We have been successful in digging for water in the city streets. Now if we succeed in drilling for gas well he contributed to sink some holes for oil.

Now that Congressman LaGuardia has made a trip around Cape Cod in a submarine he ought to complete the investigation by donning a diver's suit and going down to the S-4 for a couple of hours inspection. He might them have a better idea of what such work involves.

THE TALE OF A SHIRT

"Morning!" said Miss Nangle. "Yes, indeed, all ready and waiting for you. You like this booth the best, don't you. Customers like you ought to be always humored in their likes, for, as I say to Bertha, it is the early bird that catches the worm. Now lay back and relax. What's that? Just excuse me one minute. There. It was the laundry man. Which, by the way, reminds me, do you know that Miss Helen Topping?

"No? Well, Miss Helen Topping is that young lady that is an orphan—she and her brother both. She was telling me only yesterday how nice they live in such a pretty little apartment for just the two of them.

"Well, Miss Topping is very pretty and, as I say to Bertha, with a prettiness that will cause her to never look her age or anywhere near it, for, according to her, she now is 26 and could pass for 19 without one qualm.

"She said she was looking over the laundry and how she is always careful to equip completely her brother's needs, for he is young and boylike, and so she was surprised to find a shirt among the linen which was completely and entirely a stranger. It was a white shirt like her brother's, but the collar was dissevered in its top layer not like anything of her brother's. And so one surprise led to another until she reached the tail of the shirt and there deciphered a white and red label indicating Hotel Morris, Trenton, N. J.

"As I said to Bertha, this gave Miss Topping a stop. For her brother had never been to Trenton, N. J., or even Atlantic City, or the Oranges or anything like that. So Miss Topping pondered, but all she could think of was to immediately write off a missive to the prop of the Hotel Morris at Trenton, N. J., and admit the shirt, and state in bad repair and so what would be his wishes?

"She was uneasy about the ethic morals of a strange labeled shirt in her laundry, and her brother off on a basket ball tour west or somewhere, and only postcards to say 'Won Mich, 4-3' or 'Won Ill, 5-0' or similar laconics.

"And so a few days went by and no word from the shirt or owner thereof, and Miss Toppin, to keep conscience from again menacing, decided if no reply from Hotel Morris, Trenton, N. J., why she would be compelled, as I said to Bertha, to more forcibly assume the defensive. And in preparation made a parcel of the shirt in a neat package.

"When, if you please, like Lochinvar leaping the dam on his steed, came a ring at the door and nothing less and nothing more than the messenger of doom from Hotel Morris, Trenton, N. J. And was a gentleman well in his thirties with an appreciation, he told Miss Topping, of her note of ladyship and honor and also including the requirement at this time of a business trip which made a combination, as I said to Bertha, devoutly to be admired.

"Of course Miss Topping said no more than to gently admit a congenial spirit at both dinner and a theater, but I with my romantic outlook and Bertha with her tender heart is all set for a culminating bond between a twain so brought together, while all about them is naught but the prosaic of modern plighted pairs.

"And I say to Bertha, what if it was a red and white label on a shirt tail or origin unknown, its tentacles is just as binding if affixed to loving hearts as a man and wife having met formal by picking up at waving ocean's marge, or where the clouds sit on the mountain peaks and breath deserts the diaphragms of those that get their joy in going to also sit on same.

"There! You look slick, and there hasn't anybody got such a shape head like yours, only you hate to have me say so, a modest customer like you are! What say? Oh, where did the shirt come from

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Woodbridge N. Ferris, who celebrates his 75th birthday anniversary, is a former governor of Michigan, and the first democrat to represent that state in the United States senate in 75 years. Senator Ferris has spent the greater part of his life as a school teacher. A native of New York state, he went west in early youth, studied for a time at the University of Michigan and then located in the town of Big Rapids. Here he established a private school with himself and his wife as the sole teachers. The school prospered, developing into a business institute of state-wide reputation, and in course of time placed its founder in the capitalistic class. Mr. Ferris served two terms as governor and made a third but unsuccessful run. In 1922 he was sent to the United States senate, where he was among the strongest supporters of Woodrow Wilson.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Appreciation of Holiday Fund

Mr. Editor: My friends at Uncas-on-Thames desire me to express their thanks to the many of Norwich, Jewett City, and other towns, who contributed so generously, to the holiday fund, at this sanatorium, and to express their best wishes to all, for a very happy New Year.

Signed:
DR. HUGH B. CAMPBELL,
Superintendent.

Norwich, Jan. 2, 1928.

Lorenzo Dow's Birthplace

Mr. Editor: In the letter of Mr. Troland in Wednesday's Bulletin in regard to Lorenzo Dow's clock, he states: "Whatever doubt may evist in regard to his birthplace, it is certain that the said Lorenzo Dow lived many years in Oxoboxo, near Gardner lake."

I was not aware that there was any doubt about his birthplace.

In his journal "The Dealings of God, Man and the Devil," published by him in 1833, he says: "I was born Oct. 16, 1777 in Coventry (Tolland county) state of Connecticut, North America. My parents were born in the same town and descended from English ancestors."

Norwich Rightly Named

Mr. Editor: I am sending you this letter as the silent messenger by which I convey my thanks to you for the calendar that I received with my copy of The Bulletin as of the date of Jan 2. Words in themselves are but at times only empty phrases but they are yet the happy medium through which we convey our thanks and appreciation for a kindness done. And they bring back to us memories of other days and other times when fancy free we looked out upon life as a time for play and we were free from the troubles and trials of mature years. As I looked upon the picture that is the center piece of the calendar, my thoughts turned back to the Norwich of some 60 years ago when I was just one of the boys and lived there. Since then I have been through different parts of this good old U. S. A. But 'tis said first impressions are always the strongest. But, I, in all my travels, have never seen any place, anywhere, that has the same appeal as has the city that has been rightly called the Rose of New England. With every good wish for a happy New Year and continued prosperity, and once again thanking you, I am

Sincerely yours,
C. H. "DAD" SHAW.

YOUR HEALTH

WINTER DISEASES

By James M. Anders, M. D., Philadelphia, Member Gorgas Memorial.

It is a noteworthy fact that many of the leading infectious diseases, which formerly prevailed epidemically and took such a heavy toll yearly or at longer intervals, have been brought under control. As a consequence, there has been a sharp decline in the death rate from all causes during the past decade and a half. This decline has been due mainly to improvement in the death rate of diseases that have prevailed principally during the summer and autumn seasons, e. g., typhoid fever, malaria, and the diarrhoeal diseases of childhood. Again, among babies under one year of age a marked fall in the death rate occurred after the introduction of the pasteurization of milk.

While the foregoing facts are undeniably true, there is a group of infectious diseases which have become a real menace to humanity. I refer to the so-called respiratory infections, such as bronchitis, influenza, and the pneumonias. The latter occur mostly in winter and spring. We are to regard colds and acute bronchitis as harmless, but they are often followed by pneumonia which, as we all know, is a very serious disease.

It is generally conceded that the best method of preventing this class of affections is to maintain the health of the community at the highest possible level. In other words, physical fitness or good bodily resistance to the invading germs of these complaints is the best preventive. We have no definite means of prevention furnished by the laboratory, as in diphtheria, although investigations are constantly being carried on with the hope of discovering a reliable preventive agent. In the meanwhile, as stated before, our energies must be focused upon the question of bringing about greater bodily resistance by improving the health of the masses.

Much wise and sane education must be carried forward to raise the community health to the desired maximum, and the program should include the special training of children of primary school age. In some of the leading cities of this country printed elementary courses of instruction are now being utilized. The object should be, and in Philadelphia and other cities is, to teach just enough physiology and personal hygiene to make clear to the pupil the necessity for the practice of health habits. To maintain the systematic observance of these habits by the pupils is the constant effort of the teacher.

Courses of instruction in hygiene and physical education are being formulated for use in our high schools with great promise of increasing health knowledge and the inculcation of health practices. It is hoped and believed that such a program systematically carried out and continued during college days and after-life will raise the standard of community health to a considerable extent within the near future. At all periods of life, it is wise to stress health habits rather than mere health knowledge in this way, by raising the physical resistance to infection, the danger of such infections will be greatly diminished.

Stories That Recall Others

'Twas Moses

George Jr., age 11, was viewing the Christmas toys with his mother. They stopped for a few minutes in front of a window that showed a moving Noah's ark. Young George was much intrigued by the comments of the onlookers.

"Oh, mother!" he chuckled. "That old lady said, 'Just look at Santa Claus!' She didn't know that's Moses!"

An Easier Way

Mrs. T. had just left the corner grocery after having made a few purchases. She happened to glance down at her three year old daughter Ellen, who accompanied her, and noticed that the child had several peanuts in her hand.

"Where did you get those nuts?" demanded the mother.

Mrs. T. realizing that lessons in honesty cannot begin too soon, explained that the nuts did not belong to Ellen and told her daughter that she must go right back to the store and give them to the man to whom they belonged.

When Ellen obediently handed back to the grocer her unethically acquired possessions, the grocer said: "That is right, we must never take anything that does not belong to us, after this when you want anything ask Mr. C. for it. Don't take it."

"All right," said Ellen, who had listened attentively, "I would like to have a Hersey bar, please."

Mr. C. as good as his word, presented the little lady with the candy. "And—I believe I would like just a few peanuts," she added.

IN THE DAYS NEWS

LINDBERGH IN CENTRAL AMERICA.

Colonel Charles Lindbergh, in flying from Mexico City to the Canal Zone, will make a journey only 500 miles shorter than his non-stop flight from Washington to the Mexican capital.

"The six Central American Republics which Lindbergh has announced he will visit, Guatemala, San Salvador, Honduras, Nicaragua, Costa Rica and Panama, seem similar, from the average American's viewpoint," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society. "Yet, like our own states, each differs from the other.

"Guatemala, the land of the quetzal, is the Texas of Central America in point of size and has the largest population.

"San Salvador, the coffee republic, has been called the 'Swinging Hammock,' because its fertile highlands have been rocked by earthquakes so often.

"Honduras has the only capital in the New World, excepting Colombia, which has no railroad. The nation is roughly the geographical center of Central America.

"Nicaragua, the land of lakes, may yet see a canal through its territory connecting the oceans by virtue of its ownership of two large bodies of water, Managua and Nicaragua.

"Costa Rica, the banana republic, sent 7,660,000 bunches to the United States last year.

"Panama, once was the hyphen between the North and South Americas, but with the building of the canal the bars of the hyphen were bent to make a sea gate for the ships of the world.

"After leaving Mexico City Lindbergh will pass over Mexico's highest mountains and will begin to sight the smoke plumes and crater which serve as aviators' guideposts on the volcano circuit all the way to the Canal Zone. At Salina Cruz he will pick up the route of the Army Good Will trail blazers who circumnavigated South America last year. Guatemala City, the first stop and capital of Guatemala, lies 650 miles south of Mexico City by airplane.

"The whole area of Central America, including small British Honduras, which Lindbergh does not plan to visit, about equals the area of our four South Atlantic states, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia and Alabama. The shorter growing season and lower soil fertility of these four states supports, nevertheless, twice the population of Central America.

Colonel Lindbergh will sweep down to smaller crowds because the drift to the big city has not yet been added to Central America's problems. In terms of United States communities, the capitals the young Good Will ambassador goes to are small; Guatemala City is the size of Reading, Pennsylvania; San Salvador, the size of Harrisburg, Pennsylvania; Tegucigalpa, Honduras, no larger than Stamford, Connecticut; Managua, Nicaragua, a town like Bloomington, Illinois; San Joe, Costa Rica, a city with the population of Decatur, Illinois; and Panama, despite the boom contributed by the canal, has a population about equal to Racine, Wisconsin.

"The geography of the six nations will unroll itself beneath the flyer in panoramas granted few explorers or travelers. The shadow of The Spirit of St. Louis will trace the route of the uncompleted Pan American railway and the path of the proposed Pan American highway. That famous shadow will play tag with palm trees spreading fronds like starfish in a green ocean, with monarch mahogany trees of the tropic forest, with the 'chewing gum tree' and the lowly coffee and banana tree.

"To understand the geography of Central America without an airplane one must go back to the inclined plane of high school physics. The cross section of Central America is an inclined plane. The long slope runs to the Atlantic. It stretches 200 miles long in Nicaragua and 15 miles long in Panama. The peak of the inclined plane appears as the mountain ranges and highland plateaus. And as the barrel was rolled up the inclined plane and dropped off, so Central America drops off into the Pacific Ocean. Lindbergh will follow the 'peak,' because the capitals of Central America have been located in the highlands, where altitude aids the peon in his trying battle against green growing things."

Former Norwich Leaders

Henry B. Cruttenden.

(From Norwich Bulletin, Dec. 10, 1898).

Henry Bartlett Cruttenden died at his residence, 117 Cliff street, Friday evening, after an illness of about two weeks, although his health had not been good for over a year. Mr. Cruttenden was a native of Hebron, where he was born in 1824. He served an apprenticeship in Hartford and came to Norwich in 1850 with a capital of $124. He established a picture frame business on Main street which he conducted successfully until 1867, when he sold out to John C. Ripley, who had been his clerk.

About this time Mr. Cruttenden purchased of the Niantic Indians a large tract of land on Niantic bay and founded Crescent Beach. The site became popular as a summer resort and attracted people from all over the country. There are now about 100 cottages there. Mr. Cruttenden devoted the latter part of his life to developing this colony and at the time of his death owned a large amount of property at the beach. He was accustomed to spend much time there each year.

Mr. Cruttenden was one of the best known residents of Norwich and stood well in the community at large. He was a shrewd and successful business man and amassed a considerable property. In 1852 he married Elizabeth, daughter of Joseph Tyler, of Norwich. She died in July, 1897. Both were members of the Central Baptist church. Four sons survive him, Joseph T., Edwin, Henry and Tyler Cruttenden. In politics he was originally a whig and later identified himself with the republican party.

PHYSICIAN FOUND DEAD IN ATLANTIC CITY HOTEL

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Jan. 5—(AP)—Bernard Desser, 55, a prominent merchant of Burlington, Vt., was found dead today in his room at the Aberdeen hotel. He had registered here November 24, declaring he had come to this city in an effort to recuperate following a recent illness. He was unaccompanied.

Charles Mark and Charles Mulligan, both guests at the hotel, heard him moaning early this afternoon and asked if they could be of assistance. They were told by Desser that he would be all right in a short time. Hearing no noise in the room an hour later, they called a maid. After receiving no response to their knocks on the door they entered the room and found Desser stretched across the bed dead.

CREOMULSION

The funeral of Frederick B. Lewis, formerly of this city, was held at Christ church, Pelham avenue and Shore road, Pelham, N. Y., Wednesday evening, at 8:15 o'clock. Rev. J. McVickor Haight, the rector, conducted the service. The church was filled with relatives and friends and there was a profusion of beautiful flowers. The Charles F. Noyes Co., Inc., of which Mr. Lewis, was treasurer, had two special cars from New York and there were 125 mourners from that organization. A delegation from the Norwich society of New York also went in one of the special cars.

The members of the Norwich society attending were James Halbertson, Charles F. Noyes, Edward J. Crawford, William B. Klein, Francis P. Bent, Howard C. Russ, Warren K. Dowe, Frank H. Lester, Charles N. Hurlburt, Charles A. Beach, Jeremiah Riordan, Charles H. Tirrell, William F. Converse, William P. McNamara.

The funeral party left Stamford for Norwich on the 8:17 o'clock train Thursday morning and burial was in Yantic cemetery, where Rev. J. Edred Brown, rector of Trinity Episcopal church, conducted the committal service. Undertaker C. A. Gager had charge of the local arrangements.

SPEAKS ON NEW YEARS RESOLUTIONS TO ROTARIANS

No resolution can be carried out to a successful conclusion without antecedent preparation no matter how great our aim, ambition and determination said Rev. Alexander H. Abbott in an address on New Year Resolutions at the meeting of the Norwich Rotary club on Wednesday noon. The value of a resolution depends on the efficacy of it, continued the speaker. Mrs. Grayson resolved to fly to Europe but could not, so her resolution was valueless, while Lindbergh resolved to fly to Mexico City and in accomplishing his resolution it became of value.

When any resolution works, we ask why it works and when it fails we also want to determine the reason. When resolutions succeed there is some pre-requisite which is lacking when our resolution fails. Some claim that the goal should be glowing and of such magnitude that it would attract us with a feeling of grim determination and unfaltering step. Jack Dempsey no doubt made a firm resolution that he would regain during 1928 the lost heavyweight title. His is the ambition and determination to accomplish it if it is possible. But is there not something over which he has no control?

Can he acquire 25-year-old legs for his 35-year-old body or is there some pre-requisite that is going to throw him? We can aim at many laudable things, have the ambition and determination but then we find that there is some antecedent preparation that we have neglected and we never attain our objective. The man who prepares befor he makes his resolution will attain his goal more often than the unprepared man. The value of resolution depends on what goes before. As Confucius once said, "Learning without thinking is foolish and thinking without learning is perilous." Rev. Mr. Abbott closed his talk with a poem by Sidney Lanier.

At the business session of the meeting President Clarence A. Spear presided and Herbert C. Adams was the song leader. There were several musical features, among them being the duet numbers by Maurice E. Wallen of Hartford and Frank R. Murdy, the solos by Mr. Wallen, and the father and son quartet, Hugh Campbell and son, Dr. Hugh B. Campbell and L. M. Carpenter and son.

A New Year greeting from the Norwich Rotary club of England to the local club were read by Secretary Jewett and a return of the season's greetings was cabled to England.

The meeting closed with the singing of the Star Spangled Banner.

SAYS NORWICH MERCHANTS CAN SERVE THEIR PUBLIC

With President William R. Frisbie in the chair, the weekly meeting of the Norwich Lions club was held Thursday noon at the Waurgan hotel with the usual large attendance. Edward Carpenter offered the blessing and E. A. Rich was the song leader. Pete Ethier presided at the piano.

The final report on the theatre party given the children of Norwich, Dec. 31, by the club was heard and accepted. Louis M. Crandall chairman of the entertainment committee, introduced A. D. MacMillan who assisted in the retail merchants bureau budget campaign. Mr. MacMillan in his interesting talk said that the merchants in all American communities are the greatest boosters of their home towns. He gave an interesting history of how the merchants recognized the need of the local chamber of commerce which led the organization of state chambers and the United States chamber of commerce. He showed that by combined effort the merchants of Norwich can serve the public as efficiently and with more comfort than the department stores of large cities.

The next speaker was Secretary Edwin Hill of the Norwich Y. M. C. A. Mr. Hill lauded the service work of the Lions, Rotary and service organizations. Mr. Hill expressly took it upon himself to thank the Lions for the joy which they gave the Norwich children by the theatre party. He spoke of the satisfaction citizens received from service which in many instances is a greater reward than they receive from their own business, because it is an unselfish satisfaction. Mr. Hill related an instance in his probation office work where a boy was paying him one dollar per week so as to repay $4 which the boy had stolen from a lady's purse. When there were only two dollars to be paid, Mr. Hill told the boy "in two weeks around you will not have to come no more." The boy with tears in his eyes answered, "Mr. Hill can't I come to see you after the two weeks You have done so much for me and to bring me back to the right path." "These words," said Mr. Hill, "were worth more to me than many times more than the pay which I receive for my work, though I need that to keep myself and family alive."

Epiphany Cake Served

The associates of the Girls Friendly society of Christ Episcopal church held its January meeting at the rectory Thursday evening. After the business session the associates and friends interested in the society spent a delightful social hour, after which the Epiphany cake was enjoyed with other refreshments, the feast of the Epiphany coming on Friday, Jan. 6.

BROGNO SENTENCE IS 2 TO 4 YEARS IN STATE PRISON AT WETHERSFIELD

Samuel Brogno, 30, of 71 North Main street, formerly in the plumbing business in this city, was found guilty by a jury in the criminal superior court here Thursday afternoon on five of the six counts against him involving keeping a house of illfame in the Lantern hill section of North Stonington. The jury was out 30 minutes before it returned with the verdict which was delivered by Foreman Frederick H. Gilbert of Griswold.

State Attorney Arthur M. Brown at once moved for sentence and Judge Arthur F. Ells pronounced a sentence of six months in jail, with execution suspended on the first count of keeping a house of illfame, and sentences of from two to four years in the state prison on each count relating to keeping two women at the place. These sentences are to run concurrently.

Attorney G. Curtis Morgan, who has been Brogno's counsel, moved to have bail set pending appeal which he said he intended to take to the supreme court, but Judge Ells overruled the motion upon objection made by State Attorney Brown to having the man released on bail.

Later the attorney said he had given up the idea of appeal.

Brogno was then placed in the pen by orders of Sheriff Sidney A. Brown and was taken to the Norwich jail after court adjourned.

The two girls in the case, Stella White and Dorothy Carney, changed their pleas from not guilty to guilty on the charge of frequenting a house of illfame and were each sentenced by Judge Ells to 30 days in jail. They will serve their sentences in the jail in this city. In sentencing the two girls, Judge Ells remarked that he would have been inclined to be even more lenient to them than the state attorney recommended if they had not gone on the stand and perjured themselves.

The case against Brogno was clinched by the prosecution when State Attorney Brown brought to the stand, after the defense had rested, the missing taxi driver, William Basette, who had driven three coast guardsmen to the North Stonington house on the morning of Dec. 2. He testified that some time before he made this trip Brogno had told him he was going to open a place in North Stonington where he would have booze and women and invited him to bring men out there. Thish was the kind of place the three coast guardsmen said they wanted to go to, according to Basette. He said he saw one of the girls hand Brogno a $10 bill which Brogno could not change, but asked Basette to change it, which Basette could not do. He said he saw Brogno give the girl back a dollar and tell her to fix it up between the three of them.

Besides the testimony of Brogno in his own behalf the two girls were put on the stand. Both denied that they went to the North Stonington place to entertain men, but said it was "just to drink." Dorothy Carney refused to tell her real name, but admitted that it was not Dorothy Carney. She said that they came from Franklin, N. H., and that she went to the North Stonington place in Brogno's machine.

Written and signed confessions made by them before the state police were introduced as exhibits.

Brogno testified that he served in the United States army in this country and France. He said that he drove the two girls to the house to accommodate Albert, who promised to pay him $5 a day for selling liquor. He denied that he told the taxi driver he was to have women at the place, but admitted he told the driver about opening up a booze joint.

During the trial of the case Thursday Judge Ells gave orders that no spectators should be allowed to stand in the court room and the deputy sheriffs kept out all but about 100 men who occupied the benches outside the railing.

GROTTO AND POLISHERS TIED FOR THE LEAD

Although the league leading Grotto team in the City Pinochle league won their first game Thursday evening by defeating the Knights of Columbus, they lost to the Polishers in the second half, while the Polishers, by winning both games are now tied for first place.

TWO BOYS TURNED IN NEEDLESS FIRE ALARM

The fire department was needlessly called out about 4:30 o'clock Thursday afternoon by a bell alarm from box 25, corner Franklin and Chestnut streets. Two small boys, about 10 or 12 years of age were responsible for the needless run. Sometime during the day they claimed they saw a fire at Mohegan park. They decided that it was best to notify the fire department of the blaze which they had seen at the park, so, they chose the bell alarm as the method of informing the department of the fire.

One of them broke the glass in the fire box and the other pulled the hook. A minute or two later the fire apparatus drove up to the box. Upon learning of the reason for the pulling in of the alarm the recall was quickly sounded. One of the companies drove up to the park but found no signs of any fire.

Bidwell and Mrs. W. Tyler Browne read from "The Holy Tree," Mrs. Channing M. Huntington sketched the life of Thackery and there was reading from Thackery by Mrs. Charles W. Prentice. Mrs. Fuller closed the study hour, reading "The Christmas Tree" by Dickens.

NAMES COMMITTEES FOR CATHOLIC WOMEN'S CLUB

A most enthusiastic and well attended meeting of the Catholic Women's club was held Thursday afternoon in the Catholic Ladies of Columbus rooms on Broadway. The meeting was opened by prayer offered by the secretary, Mrs. William Farrell. The retiring president, Mrs. Nelson C. Disco, then introduced to the members the new president, Mrs. Thomas J. McVeigh, who conducted the business meeting.

After the routine business was completed Mrs. McVeigh formed the new committee for the year: Sewing-visiting, and flowers. The sewing will be in general charge of the president assisted by the members. The visiting committee is Mrs. D. J. Hayes, Mrs. Thomas Savard, Mrs. James Casey, Mrs. Edmund Taft, Mrs. Thomas O'Rourke, Mrs. John Gallivan and Mrs. James Woods. The flower committee is in charge of Mrs. Nelson C. Disco.

Plans were formed for the various activities of the year, the first of which is a card party and dance to be held at the Wauregan hotel.

For this affair which is always a pronounced social success and a means of obtaining funds for the charitable work of the club the general chairman is Mrs. Thomas J. McVeigh assisted by Mrs. John Torrance, Mrs. John Mara, Mrs. J. A. Lede, Mrs. John Gallivan, Mrs. Thomas O'Rourke, Mrs. Chamberlain, Mrs. James Casey, Mrs. D. J. Hayes and Mrs. Frank Disco.

After the meeting a social hour was enjoyed during which dainty refreshments and tea were served by the social committee for the day. The tea table was prettily decorated with holiday decorations and red candles. The committee for the afternoon was Mrs. John Cantlin, Mrs. Maurice Kelly, Mrs. William Farrell, Mrs. James Woods, Mrs. Thomas O'Rourke and Mrs. Nelson C. Disco.

LARGE BEQUESTS MADE IN MRS. DAWLEY'S WILL

By the will of Mrs. Eugenia Ann Dawley, widow of Arthur J. Dawley, which was filed Thursday in the Norwich probate court, her home at 87 Broad street, with household furniture and contents, her automobile and $35,000 in cash are left to Alexander Finlayson, who was chauffeur for Mr. Dawley and has continued to act in that capacity for Mrs. Dawley since her husband's death. To Arthur M. Brown, who with Mr. Finlayson is named as executor, the will leaves $35,000, and to each of her two sisters, the Misses Mary and Helen McLean, both of East Hartford, the sum of $3,000 and to a brother James McLean of Hartford $2,000.

The residue of the estate with the exception of a few other small bequests, has been left to Charles E. Lamb, manager of the H. F. and A. J. Dawley Lumber company. The will was drawn in Feb. 1917.

GRANDCHAMP FAILS TO GET NECESSARY BAIL

Frederick J. Grandchamp of Montville, driver of the automobile in which Kenneth LaFlamme of Montville was riding on the night of Dec. 11, when it struck an automobile owned by William Towart, New York fireman, killing the latter and blinding the LaFlamme boy, pleaded not guilty to manslaughter in the criminal superior court here Thursday before Judge Arthur F. Ells. The accident occurred on Mohegan hill.

Upon recommendation of State Attorney Arthur M. Brown the case will not be tried until the May term of the superior court.

Grandchamp spent the day in the pen in court awaiting arrangements to be made for bail, which had not been secured up to the time court adjourned for the day and he was taken to the Norwich jail by Deputy Sheriff Oscar H. Main.

SHOWED PICTURES WITH LECTURE ON NEWFOUNDLAND

Unknown Newfoundland was the topic of an extremely interesting lecture given Thursday night at the Community house by Major Robert H. Tait, World war veteran, and a native of Newfoundland, under the auspices of The Norwich Fish and Game association. The lecture was illustrated by stereopticon slides and moving pictures. In the absence of President Arthur E. Story of the fish and game association, who was called out of town, Secretary W. W. Ives of the association, introduced the speaker.

Major Tait used a number of stereoptoon slides showing views in and around St. Johns, N. F., the harbor, fishing fleets, interior scenes, rivers, etc., and moving picture reels of scenery in Newfoundland to illustrate his talk. Gene Kieffer operated the stereopticon lantern.

In the course of his lecture Major Tait, who spoke to the local game and fish enthusiasts under the auspices of the Bureau of Commercial Economics of Washington, D. C., told of the border dispute between Newfoundland and Labrador and of the settlement of the dispute by which 110,000 square miles were added to the Newfoundland colony. The population of Newfoundland is about 240,000 people. There are large tracts in the interior unpeopled and untouched for the most part.

He spoke of fishing, especially cod fishing, as being the principal industry of the country and also referred to the wood pulp industry as the coming industry of that country. Major Tait told of the attractions of the country for the sportsman, especially as far as fishing is concerned. The rivers, he said, abound in salmon and there are numerous other fish including trout. Game birds abound as well. There are caribou in the woods, but the caribou have been protected by law for the past three years and probably will be for some time to come. Unlike states in this country there is no limit on the number of fish that may be caught or the number of game birds bagged. You can catch as many fish as you want, shoot as many game birds as you want and take away as many as you want to, he said. The season on salmon is open from January 15th each year to September 15. The best months to go to Newfoundland, however are June, July, August and September.

JUDGE SUSTAINS DECISION BY COMMISSIONER BAILEY

Going to work at three-quarters of an hour earlier than he was required by his employer, William Osakowicz was killed and now his widow, Bertha, of 53 Broad street, New Britain, cannot recover compensation for his death, because it did not arise in the course of and out of his employment.

A decision to that effect, was given by Judge Newell Jennings of the superior court this week, dismissing the woman's appeal and sustaining the result reached by Compensation Commissioner Albert J. Bailey.

Osakowicz was required to start work at 6 a. m. in order to get the fires started in the crucibles at the factory of North Judd Manufacturing company in New Britain. He left his home about 4:40 a. m., December 16, 1924, and entered the factory about 5:15 a. m.

The first man who followed him to work, Carmelo Carino, found his lifeless body in the elevator shaft of another of the factory buildings about 6:45 a. m.

The compensation commissioner said Osakowicz was not required to use the elevator and his first employe hour before he was required to be start the fires in the crucibles, not to go to the other factory buildings, unless to get cement for repairs to the crucibles. It was found that no repairs were then necessary.

"Osakowicz entered the building where he was employed more than one hour before he was required to report and his first duty was to light the fires in the crucibles, but from the evidence it does not appear that he had done or performed any act that was for the benefit of his employer, said Commissioner Bailey.

COUNTY BOYS LEAD IN HOME EGG LAYING CONTEST

A report from the state office of the Junior 4-H home egg laying contest reveals the fact that several New London county boys are among the leaders for the past month. In Class A flocks, between 10 and 25 birds, Donald McGrath of Bozrahville is first with an average of 14.7 eggs per bird. Russell Fenner of Mystic is second, with an average of 14.5 eggs per bird. David Tongren, Norwich, is third with an average of 13.5 eggs per bird.

In class B, flocks between 26 and 75 birds, Joseph Goodhouse of Litchfield is first with an average of 16 eggs per bird. Alan Lupins of Westford is second with an average of 9.7 eggs per bird and Alton Getchell of Montville is thirdwith an average of 8.03 eggs per bird.

In class C, flocks over 75 birds, Pauline Kahn, of Vernon, is first with an average of 13.83 eggs per bird. Allen Harrison of Forestville, second with an average of 12.05 eggs per bird and Raymond Allen of Hanover is third with an average of 10.96 eggs per bird.

POLICE GET LIQUOR IN PLAIN CLOTHES VISIT

"Got anything to drink?" inquired Sergt. Matthew Delaney of the local police force as he walked into the place at No. 121 Franklin street, accompanied by Officer John Quinn, Thursday night. "Yes," came the answer from one of the two men found in the place. A bottle was produced by a man who gave his name as Harvey W. Smith, 21, of Dallas, Tex., and as he attempted to pass it to the other man, who gave his name at police headquarters as Frank Ritacco, 21, of Westerly, Sergt. Delaney seized it. Both men were arrested on charges of violation of the liquor law and about a half pint of liquor was held as evidence that the liquor law was being violated. The place has been visited before by the police. The squad comprised Sergt. Delaney, and Officers Quinn and Patrick Shahan. The officers were in plain clothes and were evidently mistaken as bonifide customers.

DIAL TELEPHONE SYSTEM FOR NEW LONDON PHONES

Every telephone number in the New London telephone exchange, about 8,000 of them, will be changed at midnight, Saturday, January 7, when the new dial system is placed in use in that city and, in the interests of good service, subscribers here before placing calls for New London, should consult the new winter issue of the telephone directory, which will be effective on the same date.

Calls from this exchange to a subscriber in the New London exchange will be handled by the operators here in the usual way, but it is obvious that such service will be speeded up if the calling party will look in the New London Exchange listings for the new number of the party desired. For each subscriber to do this will save the subscriber's time, as well as the operator's time and it is hoped that subscribers here will not place an added burden on the operating force by compelling them to look up numbers which are listed in the directory.

While it is important that the new numbers be used after midnight January 7, it is equally important that the old numbers in the current directory be called for up to that time. Local subscribers are also urged to throw away the old directory when the new one goes into effect so that there will be no confusion and unnecessary wrong number calling.

Telephone subscribers in the city of New London and some outlying sections are to be given what is referred to as the first complete dial system telephone exchange in the state. The old equipment there has served well for years, but had to be replaced to keep telephone service abreast of New London's growing demand. All the available floor space in the old telephone building had been utilized and as a result it was the decision of the telephone company to erect a new telephone building, which will provide adequate space for years to come, and at the same time replace the old manual switchboard with the most modern type of dial system.

Nearly a year ago work was started on the new building which was completed some time ago and now is being occupied in part, while the mechanical forces of the company have worked for months on the installation of the dial equipment and replacing the old style telephone sets at subscribers' premises with the new dial telephone.

Because of the fact that there are many calls from this exchange to New London each day, it is desirable that local subscribers bear in mind the fact that after next Saturday night as stated, every New London telephone number will be changed and subscribers should determine the new number they wish before placing a call to that exchange.

ADMITS HE LIED TO PROTECT HIS UNCLE

Francis Redden, of New London, a nephew of James L. Sullivan, gave some sensational testimony in the superior court Thursday before Judge Christopher L. Avery, when the $750 damage suit of Sullivan against the Interstate Fire Insurance Co. of Detroit, which resulted from an automobile crash in Ocean avenue in June, went on trial in New London with Attorneys Morris Lubchansky and Russell H. Corcoran representing the plaintiff and Attorney Thomas E. Troland as counsel for the insurance company.

Redden, taking the stand for the defense, testified that on the night in question he told Policeman Augustus Ray that he and a man named "Grayson" were in the car and that "Grayson" was driving. He said that there was no such man as Grayson and that Sullivan himself drove the car and he (Redden) was riding in the back seat. He said that he falsely told Policeman Ray that Grayson drove the car in order to save Sullivan's arrest for evading responsibility.

At the time of the crash, which occurred in front of the Tracy Sheffield residence in Ocean avenue, the police found no one in the car. A searching investigation disclosed little information at the time.

Thursday Sullivan began his suit against the insurance company. He set out in his complaint that he possessed a $1,000 insurance policy, covering the collision and that his car was stolen from his garage in Ocean avenue, and the first thing he knew about the accident was when persons came to his door and told him about it.

Sullivan testified that he had been employed by Hirsch & Co., for 35 years.

He was given a terrific grilling by Attorney Troland and was particularly asked about why he did not mention the names of Grayson and Redden as being in the car when he made report to the state motor vehicle commissioner and to the insurance company.

Mrs. Sullivan corroborated her husband's testimony and became extremely indignant when Mr. Troland asked her if Redden was not in the habit of going there to get liquor. She said she had been a mother to Redden, her nephew, but that from now on he probably would not come to the house much.

Samuel Katz, garage man, next testified to getting permission from Sullivan to take the wreck to his garage. He was followed by James Doran, who testified that when he got to the scene of the accident he found Redden, who told him that Sullivan had driven the car himself and had left the scene.

The defense then opened with Redden telling of drinking with Sullivan and Mrs. Sullivan during the evening

Bar Rescue Workers' Solicitors

As a result of an investigation by the state police, the Connecticut branch of the American Rescue Workers, Inc., an alleged charity organization with state headquarters at Berlin, has been ordered to cease its operations in this state.

An inquiry revealed that the state welfare department does not commend the organization and that it has no license to solicit money in Connecticut and, therefore is compelled by law to confine its activities to Hartford county alone. A field agent of the welfare department visited the Berlin headquarters last August and found no evidence of the alleged "good work" at that time, Mr. Corbin of the Hartford chamber of commerce was told.

Miss Clementine C. Bachelor returned to the Wellesley club, New York Wednesday, after visiting for two weeks at her home on East Town street. She is an instructor in the French School for Young Ladies, teaching the History of Art, as she has for years, this being her specialty.

THIS WOMAN FOUND RELIEF

After Long Suffering by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

In a little town of the Middle West, was a discouraged woman. For four months she had been in such poor health that she could not stoop to put on her own shoes. Unable to do her work, unable to go out of doors or enjoy a friendly chat with her neighbors, life seemed dark indeed to Mrs. Daugherty.

Then one day, a booklet was left at her front door. Idly she turned the pages. Soon she was reading with quickened interest. The little booklet was filled with letters from women in conditions similar to hers who had found better health by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"I began taking the Vegetable Compound," Mrs. Daugherty writes, "and after I took the third bottle, I found relief. I am on my eleventh bottle and I don't have that trouble any more, and feel like a different woman. I recommend the Vegetable Compound to everyone I see who has trouble like mine. I am willing to answer any letters from women asking about the Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. Ed. Daugherty, 2308 Orchard Ave., Muscatine, Iowa.

Form Motor Bus Association.

Announcement was made Thursday of the formation of a New England Motor Bus association, the headquarters of which are to be in Boston, to be affiliated with the American Automobile association. DANIELSON TOWNERS RALLY IN LAST HALF TO BEAT OUT CLINTON GERMAN FIVE

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Jan. 5.—In one of the fastest and cleverest played games of basketball exhibited in Danielson Town hall this year the Danielson Town Team defeated the much talked of Clinton German Five 26 to 25 here tonight, and although defeated the Clinton team certainly lived up to its reputation as a fast quintet. Both teams played very hard from the start of the game. The Clinton team started off with some very beautiful passwork which netted them a few points and the lead.

However, the Danielson team soon came through with a couple of baskets and a foul that brought them within a few points of their opponents. But the Clinton team held the team throughout the half, the half ending 17 to 11 in their favor. The Danielson team went into the second half with a changed lineup and before three minutes of play Billy Schofield caged three beautiful baskets to tie the score. The score 17 all, Schofield again came into possession of the ball and made another beautiful shot, pushing Danielson into the lead, which they held for the remainder of the game. With the score 19 to 17 Armington came thorugh with a pretty shot, followed by another one-handed shot by Poirier, which gave the locals a fairly wide margin.

Baer and G. Dietel of Clinton each made two baskets at this point only to be followed by Godreau caging a basket and then a foul by Schofield ending the game at 26 to 25 amid excitement and cheering by the fans.

Every Danielson player played an exceptionally fine game of basketball tonight but Schofield led the scoring while the famous Vattes of Clinton was the shining light for the visitors. Summing up the game it can easily be said that this was one of the finest exhibitions of basketball seen in Danielson for a long time and the local boys deserve a great deal of credit for defeating such a whirlwind team as the Clinton Germans.

Next Thursday the Hartford National Guards will play in Town hall and in view of the fact that they have beaten all cofers in the western part of the state the fans know what to expect.

N. B. PHANTOMS AGAIN TROUNCE Y EMPS

The New Britain Phantoms once again proved too good for the Y Emps Thursday night at the Y gym, winning in even a more convincing fashion this time by the score of 39 to 27. Although pressed hard during the third quarter the visitors had too much of an early lead and also a wealth of stamina to speed through to a decisive win.

Neither team, however, was at its usual form, there being plenty of mistakes in evidence. Both clubs passed badly and were a bit lax on covering their men. The Emps were probably more guilty in the latter case while New Britain's passing probably had an edge for poorness.

The Phantoms took th lead from the start and glided through the frst two periods without much trouble, leading at the half by 17 to 9. But the Emps came out a different team to start the third quarter and all this session they had an edge on the New Britain team. A couple of times they were within two points of tying the score only to have superior ability at the foul-shooting line keep the visitors in the van.

The last quarter was more like the first two for the Phantoms again took the offensive and run up a safe margin.

Crane's work at right forward for the winners was a big factor in the win while Ikowitz at center was also good. For the Emps Murphy played a good game until forced out on four personal fouls while Economus, speedy forward, was another who helped the Emps along quite a bit.

In the preliminary Christy All-Stars defeated the Emps third team 6 to 3 in a hard-fought and strictly defensive game.

HAS NOT HEARD FROM SCHOOL REGARDING LEAGUE

NEW HAVEN, Jan. 5.—(AP)—Walter B. Spencer, president of the Connecticut Interscholastic Athletic conference, announced tonight that he had not heard from any of the state high schools regarding the acceptance of his invitation to attend a meeting on January 14, in New Haven for the purpose of discussing the feasibility of forming a class A high school football league.

On December 23, President Spencer sent out letters of invitation to the Warren Harding and Central High schools, Bridgeport, Commercial and Hillhouse High schools, New Haven, Weaver, Bulkeley, Public High schools, Hartford, Crosby High school, Waterbury, and Stamford High school.

WINGATE CONTINUES HIS MARCH IN AMATEUR PLAY

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla., Jan. 5.—(AP)—Robert Wingate, Jacksonville, today disposed of his first and second round opponents in the national tournament of amateur golf champions here today.

In the morning he defeated Louis Orrell, Etretat club of Havre, France, 6 and 4, and eliminated Harry Evans, local star, 4 and 3 in the afternoon.

LOUGHRAN FAVORED TO WIN FROM LOMSKI TONIGHT

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—(AP)—Confident that no man in the 175 pound class can out-maneuver, his nimble feet or escape his fast fists, Tommy Loughran, Debonair Philadelphian, will toss his light heavyweight championship into the Madison Garden ring for the second time in a month tomorrow night in a 15 round title test against Leo Lomski, of Aberdeen, Wash.

Tommy's effort to clean up the division as rapidly as possible before launching himself in a campaign for Gene Tunney's heavyweight crown, will bring him within range of Lomski's right hand smashes, for the heart only 25 days after his victory over Jimmy Slattery, Buffalo contender, in the same ring. Loughran polished off Part McCarthy, Boston light heavy in November after winning the championship from Mike McTigue in October.

Although Lomski is considered among the huskiest of present day rib punchers, Tommy has been a 7 to 5 favorite to retain his laurels, against Slattery, the Philadelphia adonis fought a clever, aggressive battle and showed ruggedness sufficient to weather the roughest of Jimmy's sharp head assaults.

Both battlers have trained for the match away fro mthe battle front. Loughran will not come to New York until shortly before weighing ceremonies here at 2 p. m. tomorrow. Lomski has worked for two weeks at the camp of Gus Wilson, trainer of Jack Dempsey, in Orangeburg, N. Y. Both are reported well under the 175 pound class limit.

On the supporting card of three eight round matches, K. O. Phil Kaplan, New York middleweight, has been matched against Babe McCorgory, of St. Louis. James J. Braddock, of Newark, N. J., will meet Paul Swiderski, of Syracuse, in a light heavyweight duel and Jimmy Byrne, Louisville southpaw, faces Jake Warren, Chicago heavyweight.

TWO RELAY RACES ON B. A. A. CARD ANNOUNCED

BOSTON, Jan. 5.—(AP)—The first two races of a relay program that will bring together the leading colleges in the east at the 30th annual indoor invitation games of the B. A. A. at the Arena here on February 4, were announced today by Manager Thomas J. Kanaly.

Dartmouth has been matched with Syracuse and the University of Pennsylvania in a triangular one mile relay and Harvard will match strides with Massachusetts Institute of Technology, in a dual encounter over the same distance. Syracuse defeated Dartmouth in their dual race here last year due largely to the sensational running of Barbutti, this year's Orange captain. Harvard won the 1927 brush with M. I. T.

More than 30 of the leading colleges and clubs of the east have been invited to send teams and individual performers to the meet, Manager Kanaly announced. The relay program will include some 15 match races supplementing the following special invitation events: The Briggs 40 yard dash, the Paul Keith 600-yard run; the Hunter mile; Williams three mile, 45 yard high hurdles; the running high jump and pole vault.

DUDLEY TURNS IN A 69 AT LOS ANGELES

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 5.—(AP)—A new favorite arose today among the field of 128 golfers which tomorrow will start a 72 hole drive in the Los Angeles $10,000 open tournament. When Ed Dudley, Hollywood professional, turned in a smashing card of 69 in a final practice round over the Wilshire Country club course.

Playing from the back tees which will be in Vogue during the championship tournament, Dudley shattered par by two strokes. His card was by far the best of a score turned in by other practicing contestants. Most of those playing today were exempt from the 36 hole qualifying test yesterday.

Tom Stevens, California Country club professional, who landed among the leaders in the last British open, also shot a 74, as did Johnny Rogers of Denver, Colo., and Paul Scott, of Santa Barbara.

With the pairings completed, everything was in readiness for the golf classic. Eighteen holes of play will be held tomorrow, starting at 8:30 a. m. with the field teeing off in threesomes.

DEMPSEY TRAINING ONLY TO KEEP IN CONDITION

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 5.—(AP)—Jack Dempsey has started light training in his downtown gymnasium here but insists it is only to keep fit and not with any definite plan in mind for another chance at Gene Tunney, to whom he lostthe heavyweight boxing championship.

"There's nothing in the wind at all," Dempsey said today. "I don't want to get fat and the only way to keep from it is to have a regular training diet.

"Fight Tunney again? Sure, but I'm not in the mood to do any elimination bouting to get another crack at the title. Of course, I might take on one or two preliminary scraps if there was a definite program in sight but there's absolutely nothing to report that one has been drawn up."

"Dempsey's time recently has been well filled with managing his hotel and other enterprises. Now he has started a daily session in his gymnasium, which includes bag punching and wrestling. He weighs about 205 and considers it too much.

BOSTON CLUB PREPARING FOR COMING CAMPAIGN

BOSTON, Jan. 5.—(AP)—Judge Emil E. Fuchs, president of the Boston Braves, returned today from a vacation in the south and plunged at once into the work of rounding up the player roster, spring training schedule and other details which are expected to be completed within a few days. He stopped in Springfield yesterday to attend the Eastern league meeting but declined any comment on the draft rule discussion which took place.

President Fuchs conferred immediately with Jack Slattery, the Braves new manager, and later intimated that details of the Braves 1928 plans would be forthcoming in a few days. News from the Red Sox camp also is expected soon after the return the latter part of this week of President Bob Quinn, who has been inspecting his club's new training grounds at Bradenton, Fla.

B. U. Marksmen Win

BOSTON, Jan. 5.—(AP)—The Boston university rifle team defeated Rutgers in the recent shooting contest, officials announced today on receiving the score of the New Jersey marksmen. Boston university scored 1,335 out of a possible 1,500 and Rutgers had 1,267.

CALDER MAKES RULING ON HARRINGTON CASE

BOSTON, Jan. 5.—(AP)—Frank Calder, president of the National Hockey league and high commissioner of the ice game, has ruled that Leland "Hago" Harrington is the property of the Boston Bruins National league club and not of the New Haven Canadian American league team on which he has been playing as a Bruin reservist.

The decision ends a controversy over the ownership of Harrington which at one time threatened a "hockey war" between the two leagues when Harrington declined to obey a recall order to Boston. President Calder's decision was communicated to President Charles C. Clapp, of the Canadian-American circuit here who made it public tonight.

Harrington was recalled by the Bruins several weeks ago, but refused to report to Boston on the ground that the club did not have a contract with him. President Charles F. Adams of the Bruins pointed out that Harrington had accepted $500 from Boston this year, over and above his New Haven salary, as a bonus to assure his continuance on the Bruins reserve list. Maurice Podoloff, owner of the New Haven team, stated his belief that Harrington's status had changed since the start of the year and the two owners agreed to place the entire case before President Calder. The National league head ruled that Harrington was Boston property by right of recall.

As an aftermath of the decision, the Bruins management announced tonight that Billy Coutu and Nobby Clark, who were loaned by the Bruins to New Haven, had been sold outright to the Eagles, thereby severing all Bruins relations with the New Haven club. Harrington, if he continues to play with Boston, also will be ineligible to represent the Canadian-American league under a new ruling adopted by President Clapp this year.

GOLF ASSOCIATION STARTS ANNUAL MEETING TODAY

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—(AP)—Development of closer international working relations with British golf authorities is in prospect for 1928, in the belief of delegates to the annual meeting of the United States Golf association here. The gathering of royal and ancient clans starts tomorrow with seasons of the green section and concludes with the annual business meeting Saturday.

In connection with renewal of competition this year between America and Britain for the Walker cup, International team trophy, it is expected that British officials accompanying the invading team will take advantage of the opportunity to confer with this country's guiding golf minds. Control of the ball is one of the salient possibilities of such a get-together, likely to occur at Chicago where the Walker cup matches are scheduled August 30 and 31.

The U. S. G. A. is slated to elect Melvin A. Traylor, of Chicago, to the presidency for 1928 succeeding William C. Fownes, Jr., of Pittsburgh, chief executive for the past two years. The new executive committee also will include Bobby Jones, British open and National amateur champion, George V. Rotan, Texas star, already is a representative of the playing element.

Besides the Walker cup matches, the 1928 competitive schedule will be put before the meeting in this form.

National amateur championship, at Brae Burn Country club, West Newton, championship, qualifying rounds in championship, qualifying rounds in various districts June 11 and finals at Olympic Fields Country club, Mattison, Ill., June 21-23; women's national championship, Virginia Hot Springs Golf and Country club, Sept. 24-29; National public links championship, Cobb's Creek municipal course, Philadelphia, July 31 to August 5.

YANKEES HAVE CORNER ON MINOR BASEBALL TALENT

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—(AP)—The New York Yankees, as a result of their latest deal in baseball have corralled three-fifths of the outstanding minor league infield prospects of 1927 in the opinion of close observers.

Major leagues scouts who combed the bushes last season came back generally with reports that less than a half dozen infielders showed sufficient promise to warrant any heavy bidding for their services.

The most eagerly sought, of course, were the "Keystone Kids" of the Oakland club of the Pacific Coast league—Lyn Lary and Jimmy Reese—whose purchase for an estimated $150,000 was announced yesterday by the Yankees for 1929 delivery.

The other prize brought up by the Yankees is Gene Robertson, St. Paul third baseman and a veteran of considerable major league experience who has shown all indications of staging a big "comeback." Robertson, in fact, is likely to be a strong candidate for Joe Dugan's post in the Yankee inner cordon this spring.

The two Chicago clubs have obtained the other two outstanding inner workers. The White Sox parted with the equivalent of $125,000 for Chalmer Cissell of the Portland (Ore.) club, setting a new record for purchase of an individual minor leaguer. The Cubs landed Freddy Maguire, Toledo second baseman and another highly touted performer, who is epected to fill the shoes of "Sparky" Adams in the Chicago infield.

The Cubs, incidentally, are understood to have offered Oakland a fancy price for Lary alone but the coast club turned it down in preference to making a deal for the sale of the two stars together.

OLYMPIC BOXING TEAM TO BE PICKED AT A. A. U. TOURNEY

BOSTON, Jan. 5.—(AP)—The National A. A. U. boxnig championships which this year will also determine the makeup of the boxing team to represent the United States at the Olympics in Amsterdam, next summer, will be held at the Boston Arena on April 23 and 24.

William P. Kenney, chairman of the National A. A. U. boxing committee, in announcing the dates today said that the schedule was temporary and subject to the approval of the national committee.

The New England Association of the A. A. U., through its chairman, William H. Cuddy, has arranged for an International inter-city tournament here on January 23 to promote further interest in the Olympic year boxing program. Boston, New Haven, New York, Pittsburgh, Montreal and Toronto will be represented.

Harrington Sold to Providence

BOSTON, Jan. 5.—(AP)—Sale of Leland "Hago" Harrington to the Providence club of the Canadian American Hockey league was announced tonight by President Charles F. Adams, of the Boston Bruins. The sale was made within a few hours after a decision by Frank Calder, president of the National league, that Harrington was the property of the Boston club and not of the New Haven club of the Canadian American league.

Gorman to Represent Canada

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 5.—(AP)—Assurance that Charles I. Gorman, world champion skater, will represent Canada in the Olympic speed skating events was expressed today by Arthur Black, secretary of the Old Orchard club of this city. Black said Gorman would be ready to make the trip abroad when the time came.

TUNNEY AND DOYLE DENIES RUMOR OF CHAMPIONSHIP BOUT AT LOS ANGELES

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—(AP)—Smoke from the conflagration Gene Tunney started in ringlic circles when he announced that he would fight twice in 1928 and already had received one offer of $135,000 more than Tex Rickard would pay for his services today, drifted as far west as the Pacific coast.

In a reply to a story in the New York Evening World which declared that Gene's high offer had come from Jack Doyle, Los Angeles promoter, who intended to match the heavyweight king with Pauline Uscudun for a title defense in the Wrigley ball park there next June, both Tunney and the promoter maintained "there is nothing to it."

Some credence, however, was lent to the story by the announcement of Al Mayer, manager of the Basque heavyweight, who said that Paulino had been matched to fight George Godfrey, the current "Black Menace," in Los Angeles either February 14 or 21. Fight followers saw in this declaration an indication that a Paulino victory might lead to a title fight under the direction either of Doyle or a promoter such as Jim Coffroth, The Juans sportsman.

From Chicago came the declaration of the Herald and Examiner that definite plans are being formulated by Anton J. Cermak, president of the Cook county board, for a title match next June in Soldier Field, where Tunney successfully warded off Jack Dempsey's come-back assault last fall.

Cermak was quoted as declaring he would stage the fight assisted by Jim Mullen, Chicago promoter, and prominent city officials, in conjunction with the democratic national convention which they hope to bring there in June. A percentage of the fight profits would go into the community chest fund for the benefit of Chicago's poor. Cermak said it was Tunney's belief that the option Tex Rickard holds on his services for 1928 would not bar the match.

The World said that Tunney had been offered a guarantee of $650,000 by the western promoter for the match with Paulino. The paper also quoted him as saying he expected to fight Dempsey again here in September for Rickard. Tom Heeney, New Zealand slugger, would whip Jack Sharkey, of Boston, in their elimination match here January 13, and then fail before Dempsey's attack in an outdoor bout in June, Gene predicted.

"RED" RANDALL SUSPENDED FROM BROWN UNIVERSITY

PROVIDENCE Jan. 5.—(AP)—Roy E. Randall, captain of the Brown football team in 1927, has been suspended indefinitely from Brown university, it was learned tonight. Suspension follows investigation by Dean Otis E. Randall, of the arrest of the football player by the Providence police on Thursday, December 29, on charges of driving a motor car while under the influence of liquor and illegal possession of liquor.

Randall has already faced the lower court on the charges. On advice of counsel, he pleaded sufficient evidence to convict and, after being fined $200 for driving while drunk and $10 for possession, took an appeal to the superior court. The former Brown captain and quarterback who, after his arrest, was released to appear when wanted and was then re-arrested, has been attending classes for the past two days. He will leave for his home in Brockton, Mass., tomorrow, to await final action in his case.

"Irish" Meusel Signed by Oakland

OAKLAND, Cal., Jan. 5.—(AP)—Emil "Irish" Meusel, former New York Giant outfielder and last season with the Toledo American Association club, was signed today by the Oakland Pacific Coast league team. Meusel hit .357 for Toledo last year and could have returned to that club but preferred to play ball on the coast. His services were sought by the San Francisco missions and Seattle teams, as well as by Oakland.

ACADEMY BRIEFS

Plainfield High cannot be taken as any set-up in their game with the Academy at the Y tomorrow night. The fact that it is the Red and White's first game of the season and consequently their first under Coach Whitney should make the odds about even for Plainfield High has had basketball for many seasons.

The starting lineup will no doubt find four of last year's team on the floor for the Academy, although the five to open the game will probably not be announced until starting time.

There's no reason why the local schoolboys should not have a good season. The boys all seem to be straining at the leash, to use a newly-coined phrase, and with the promising candidates available to help out Joe Viau, Les Pingree, Jim Kelly and Buck LaCroix, then, well—things look pretty good.

With three games slated for the night there ought to be a real turnout Saturday evening to welcome the boys.

The Academy's game should start about 9 o'clock, thus affording those working in stores or shopping a chance to be present.

A fact, having an important bearing on that state title question in baseball last spring, came out recently with the review of the New Haven Hillhouse season's work. It will be remembered that the Elm City school was supposed by some to have as good a claim on the state title as the Red and Whitesters but apparently these people did not know that Hillhouse lost twice to state teams during the season. In addition to their defeat by Harding they lost to Naugatuck. The Academy lost but once, that to Hillhouse while Harding, the other team lost to the Academy.

The Y Emps, it will be noticed, have five members on to Academy squad.

The five big events in the Academy's sport wear may be classified as follows: 1, the defeat of Warren Harding in baseball; 2, the two wins over Bulkeley of New London in baseball after uphill battles; 3, the win over Chapman Tech in basketball; 4, the win over Windham in football and 5, the post-season win over Westerly in baseball for the league title for the third successive year.

Thevenow Completely Recovered

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 5.—(AP)—St. Louis Cardinal pennant prospects became brighter today when it was announced that Tommy Thevenow, star shortstop, apparently had recovered completely from the ankle fracture which kept him out of the game a large part of last season.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Strand Theater.

"A Boy of the Streets," Charles T. Vincent's famous stage hit, is now screen entertainment and is being shown at the Strand. The story concerns the struggles of an elder brother who faces many pitfalls, while attempting to protect his young brother in a large city, Johnny Walker with Mickey Bennett and Betty Francisco head the cast in this heart interest play which reflects the tribulations of two brothers, one grown to manhood, the other a mere lad. They are both the victims of a congested city. A crooked politician attempts to trick the older one but overreaches himself. The other players in the cast are able and thorough in their work and it is our honest opinion that this play is more powerful on the screen than when it was a stage offering.

"Fighting Luck," starring Bob Reeves, is a whirlwind of action from start to finish. The story is a novel one and the action is so vividly portrayed that after seeing this picture you feel that you have actually witnessed the true west at the height of its romantic glory. There is also plenty of comedy to add spice and zest.

Heads Norwich Hudson-Essex Co.

The Harrington Hudson company announces the appointment of The Norwich Hudson-Essex Co., as dealer for Hudson and Essex cars in Norwich and vicinity.

The Norwich Hudson-Essex Co., is located at 195 North Main street. William E. Shechtman, head of the new company, comes to Norwich from Hartford, where he has been in the automobile business for eight years, and a Hudson-Essex dealer for the past four years.

"I am glad to have the Hudson and Essex lines for two reasons," says Mr. Shechtman. "Investigation shows that their reputation throughout the industry and with their owners is of the best. They have been building good cars for years and their financial stability is unrivalled and founded on years of efficient manufacturing and fair dealing."

"Certainly the Hudson and Essex cars of today are the finest in the company's long successful history."

"After looking over the present Essex line, its beautiful bodies, complete equipment and clean sturdy six cylinder chassis it is hard to understand how so fine a car can be built at such low cost."

"I have never before owned a car or ridden in one which will do the many things the present Hudson will accomplish with its new high compression anti-knock Super-Six motor. Even the old timers in my organization are astonished at its slow speed pulling on the grades and its lightning acceleration. Naturally we are all enthusiastic because we feel we can contribute something entirely new in the way of performance to automobile users in this community."

"My service men are enthusiastic, too. These Hudson and Essex cars are so sturdily built that I believe we will have little service other than the usual occasional adjustments to take care of. Both Hudson and Essex are very accessible cars. We can get at them easily and that means we can keep the cost of service at a satisfactory low figure."

"We want present Hudson and Essex owners to feel free to call on us for what attention their cars may need. We are anxious to make their acquaintance. No service we can render will be too small if it will help a Hudson or Essex owner get increased satisfaction from his car."

"Our new stocks of Hudson and Essex cars will be on display Saturday, Jan. 7, and we invite the public to come in and inspect them at their leisure."

Palace Theater.

Henry B. Walthall heads the brilliant cast in "A Light In The Window," Payarts new Imperial photoplay, which is the main feature at the Palace theater today and tomorrow.

Ever since "The Birth of a Nation," when he gave such a marvelous characterization of "The Little Colonel," Henry B. Walthall has endeared himself to film fans everywhere by one portrayal after another. But never since that epic of the Civil war, according to his own declaration, has a part given him such wide scope for the display of that emotional work which is his forte as he does "A Light in the Window." His impersonation of an old cobbler, whose daughter's desire for excitement leads her innocent and unwary steps along the pathway of unhappiness is the masterpiece of an artist in pantomime.

A refreshingly different plot forms the story of "The Dude Cowboy," Bob Custer's latest F. B. O. production which is the co-feature of the Palace today and tomorrow. Bob plays the part of a cowboy who buys a ranch in Arizona and when he arrives there to take possession of the place, finds that some crooks have converted the place into a fashionable resort. There is a generous share of comedy when the cowboys are treated to some views of what the city flappers are wearing, but the ranch hands get their innings when the guests try to adapt themselves to the western life. The story also gives Bob a chance to do the most remarkable riding he has done to date, and some brand new thrills are furnished by him which have never been seen on the screen before.

Motorcycle Unit Revolutionizes Commercial Delivery.

Due to the increasing congestion of traffic which in the past few years has been more or less of a detriment to the average merchant in getting about town and making his deliveries the motorcycle Service Car has come to be universally recognized not only as a medium for speeding up deliveries but also for cutting overhead costs. According to Kiefer Indian Co., local Indian Motorcycle dealer, thousands of automobile dealers, auto supply houses, battery service stations, tire service companies, taxi company repair departments, grocery stores, tailor shops, drug stores, and countless other small merchants throughout the country have found that they can handle deliveries and service more quickly and economically and also develop more business by the use of the Motorcycle Service Car. This tendency towards using motorcycle units for delivery has been more or less predominate of late with the advent of several novel body designs as produced by the motorcycle industry for 1928.

Property Sold.

Through the agency of A. V. Covello, real estate and fire insurance agent, Aaron Goldblatt has sold his property located at 147-157 Franklin street to Nicholas Mooney, of Westerly, R. I. The property consists of a three-story brick building with three stores on the first floor and six apartment house on second and third floors, with all modern improvements. Nicholas Mooney is buying the property for an investment.

BUCKWHEAT GRATES

For burning buckwheat and smaller sizes of anthracite coal use buckwheat grates. They are made to fit any type boiler, round or square. The type illustrated above can be seen on display in our office.

For years the Edward Chappell Co. has constantly endeavored to interest its customers in burning small sizes of anthracite coal in order to keep heating costs down. Through this effort, two of our largest office and business buildings have been heated, for years, with buckwheat coal. There is positively no rival to buckwheat coal on the question of economy.

We have on display in our office a sample of special grate and ring which can be attached to any boiler, at a very low cost, to allow buckwheat coal and smaller sizes of anthracite to be used. You are invited to investigate. Heating costs are lower with the smaller sizes of anthracite than with any other type of fuel.

TWO LAWS THAT SHOULD GO.

(Written Specially for The Bulletin)

Well, congress is in session again, and the state legislatures are beginning to meet.

And the country is, as usual under such circumstances, beginning to feel a little nervous.

Nobody is exactly scared, but a whole lot of people are peeping back over their shoulders who, ordinarily, look straight ahead and never give a thought to possible boojums on their trail.

Business is inclined to be, if not timid, decidedly wary and more than usually conservative. Industry doesn't stop its wheels, but it keeps its hand right on the brakes all the time, in order to shut down, if a monkey-wrench happens to be thrown into them. Even we slow-going and slow-witted old farmers off on the back-roads wonder in our ox-like way what tricks the so-called Solons will play, this time.

We are supposed, in theory, to elect congressmen and legislators to look after the welfare of the country; in the words of the old Roman formula, "To see that the republic take no harm." Instead of which in too many cases, we elect men to whom the general welfare is a secondary consideration when compared with their own glory or advantage.

We choose men who are long on talk but short on action. We seem to prefer to elevate self-seeking demagogues over real statesmen. If we were hiring a farm helper, we wouldn't pick out the applicant who could talk most glibly and smile most sweetly, but the one who knew how to handle a pitchfork and which was the gee side of the plow-team. It's different when we're employing men to make laws for us.

We not only elect them without first finding out whether or not they're fit for the job,—sometimes we do even when we suspect they are not. A shepherd who doesn't know the difference between the snarl of a fox and the bark of an honest watch-dog is no man to put in charge of the sheep-pasture. But we have sent and are sending lots of men to capitols and statehouses who don't seem able to discriminate between the needs of their constituents and the greeds of various "blocs" and gangs of malcontents who make up in vociferous viciousness for their smallness in numbers.

As a result when any of our legislative bodies are in session we're all of us more or less "on edge." We're the least bit fidgetty. There are always so many self-appointed reformers bawling around them for "a law agin this," and "a law agin that," that we're never sure over-night, what new sort of padlock will be chained to us, next day.

The only law I'd like to see passed this winter is one strictly forbidding any congress or legislature to pass any other bill on any subject whatever, till it shall have repealed, rescinded, revoked, reversed and abrogated at least two existing laws,——laws which are either obsolete or needless or unenforceable or working injustice.

There are plenty such among the 90,000 or more statutes which encumber the law-books of the nation. If no legislature were permitted to pass even a desirable new act till it had voided at least two of these, their number would be diminished in the course of time. It might take several years to get back down to solid ground again, even when slipping back two steps for every one taken ahead. But, at least, we should be making progress in the right direction instead of, as now, towards a confusion worse confounded.

There are especially two laws in which we farmers have a deep interest which need either repeal or such drastic amendment as woud transform them out of their present shape.

One is the game law.

I know perfectly well that I shall make several people mad when I say that any law for the protection of game, as game,——please note that wording, it is carefully chosen,—is an anachronism and out of place in any community where agriculture is accepted as a desirable and important vocation.

It may be unfortunate, but it seems to be a law of nature that two things can't occupy the same space at the same time. A grove is admittedly beautiful. A potato patch is confessedly useful. But you can't have both on the same lot at the same time.

The wild stag is much more graceful than the Cotswold ram. But people who have to wear woolen clothes during New England winters would find them more shivery than they are now, if they had to catch and shear antlered stags before they could have flannel shirts.

A rabbit is an appealing little bundle of fur and frolicsomeness,——till he girdles all the trees in your young orchard and gnaws of all your carefully set and nourished berry vines.

Even a bright-eyed and sleek-coated mink is a nice chap to look at,—till he gets into your hen-house and kills the entire flock, just from lust of slaughter.

A pheasant is a beautiful bird, whose grace you admire,——till, as in the case of my neighbor Sherman, you find a flock of them marching across your newly-planted corn-field and carefully digging out and eating every kernel you've planted.

When the land was held in fief and only at the will of over-lords and barons whose chief idea of "sport" was the slaughter of men or beasts or birds; when agriculture was regarded as a disgrace and the farmer held to be merely a serf or slave, hardly more important than a hedge-cock,——in those times the preservation of game to afford amusement for the upper classes was natural enough.

But, whether rightly or wrongly, we've taken the position that a man is of more account than a moose and a crop of grain more to the world than a bag of partridges. Having taken that stand, it will seem simply common sense to enact legislation to the advantage of the greater good.

Instead of which our game laws are trying to do the impossible, i. e. encourage agriculture while, at the same time, "preserving the wild game" whose depredations are constantly making agriculture more and more difficult.

By all means let us have "game preserves," where wild life can maintain itself on lands agriculturally unproductive, and to which such wild life can be restricted. The practical effect of existing game laws is to turn all the legally protected wild things loose on the farms for the farmers to feed, in order that a small minority of pot-hunters and fur-dealers and city nimrods may get a cheap living or some "sport" in killing the creatures during the "open" season for which the farmers have been fattening them.

Birds and beasts which are helpful to him,——and there are many such,——the farmers wants to see protected. Birds and beasts which are destructive enemies of his industry he should be protected against at all seasons.

There is no more reason, from the farmer's standpoint, why there should be laws protecting 'coons while they are eating his corn or rabbits while they are girdling his orchards than why there should be laws protecting potato-bugs while they are destroying his crop. To him, all three are unmitigated pests.

The purpose of a game law, like that of all other laws, should be the conservation of the greatest good to the greatest number.

Pot-hunters and fur dealers and people whose idea of "sport" is killing something are, numerically and inherently, less important to any state than its farmers. Yet they are the very classes which most of our game laws seem to consider first.

The other law which affects us, in some cases injuriously is the tuberculin test law.

I am not and never was a dairy farmer. I can speak of dairy matters only from observation, not personal experience. And I also know that I am exposing myself to sharp criticism if not abuse in questioning the wisdom of this test, as it is carried out in practice. In the hands of skillful and experienced veterinarians, men of scientific standing as well as long training in its use, it may perhaps be a valuable aid in diagnosing elusive symptoms. But to accept its more or less uncertain reactions, when manipulated by the average representative of officialdom, as infallible verdicts condemning its victims to the slaughter-house is a different proposition. Not only does the proper use of the test call for scientific accuracy and expert reading, but it also presupposes inflexible honesty on the par tof the tester. Yet I find a good many farmers suspicious of "graft" on the part of the officials who condemn their herds. They intimate a suspicion that there is, in cases, collusion between the testers and the buyers of condemned cattle. I have no proof of any such things. But where there's much smoke there is usually some fire.

The preservation of a supply of pure and wholesome milk is a proper object of legislation. Admitted. But such legislation should be conservative, not destructive. And its administration should be intrusted only to provenly capable and incorruptible hands. If such are not attainable, then legislation itself might well be suspended or held in abeyance.

When cows which seem to be in perfect health, cows with good appetites and bright eyes and firm flesh and normals hides and no suggestion of illness in their actions are condemned to the rendering vats on just one test of an admittedly variable reagent administered by young sprigs of doubtful expertness and unknown character, there ought to be at least an appeal open to them.

It doesn't seem quite right that a farmer who has spent years in breeding up his herd to meet the demands of his market, should have all his labor and trouble nullified at the so'e word of some stranger with a syringe and a thermometer and a bottle of unknown contents and a badge of authority. Yet such things have happened, and are likely to happen again.

Some dairymen feel that they ought to have greater safeguards against both error and "graft" than at present.

It doesn't seem, either, as if such additional safeguards were impossible or impracticable.

FIRST CONGREGATIONAL CH. REPORTS PROSPEROUS YEAR

The annual meeting of the First Congregational church was called to order at 7:45 Thursday evening, by the pastor, Rev. William C. Prentiss. The meeting was opened with the hymn, "Come, Thou Almighty King and a prayer. Reports were given by the clerk, Cecil L. Butler and the treasurer, Harold J. Lewis, James Royle, chorister, gave a report of the excellent work of the choir for the year and Mr. Butler reported for the standing committee. Ray W. Greene, chairman of the ecclesiastical committee, gave an interesting report o fthe finances of the church and Milton E. Winsor, treasurer of the society, read a careful report showing a good balance in the treasury. Reports from the following societies were given by their officers: Sunday school in all departments, including Bible classes, cradle roll and home department, the Ladies' Aid society, the Woman's guild, the Friendly helpers, the O. J. S. tLeh incoln xa(i-jfU- the O. J. S., the Lincoln club, the Christian Endeavor society, the Mission circle, Camp Fire girls, and the Boy Scouts. The work of the various organizations show a large range of activity and the reports reveal a growing interest and a splendid achievement for the church. All treasurers indicated a balance on hand.

The nominating committee, James Royle; standing committee, Charles A. Jerome, John C. Kingsley, Everett L. Dawley, Mrs. Charles O. Dodge, Mrs. Fred Greenwood, superintendent of the Sunday school, William F. Hall, assistant superintendent, Ray W. Greene; head usher, Charles H. Kenyon; ushers, William Inglis, John Dodge, Ernest Royle, Harold Dodge, Thomas Lees, Arnold Smith, Fred Eglin, Raymond Roode, Mrs. Herman A. Johnson has been appointed in charge of the Mission Circle, Mrs. Eva E. Pike Home department, Mrs. Sidney M. Mathewson cradle roll, Miss Rose N. Beaudry primary and junior department, Miss Margaret Lees birthday department.

A missionary committee of the church was created and the following committee elected, Miss Ruth A. Hall, Mrs. Everett L. aDwley, Mrs. Percy H. Wilcox.

During the year 33 members were added, 29 on confession of faith and four by letter. There was a loss of four, three by letter and one by death, Mrs. Ida E. Pratt. This brings the present membership up to 33. A rising vote of thanks was given the choir and chorister for their faithful and efficient service. Expression of appreciation were given to all who had met so ably and faithfully the responsibilities of the year.

Notable among the gifts of the year was $600 from Mrs. William P. Barstow to be applied on the repaid debt, $100. by Miss Lydia Walker to the church, and at the close of the year a check of 1,000, was donated by Mrs. Georgianna Lawton, to be applied to the debt, on condition that the church meet a small deficit in current expenses. The condition was met by generous contributions by members and friends of the church.

A resolution committee was appointed to express the appreciation of the church to the various donors of the year. The pastor thanked the members and workers of the church for the devoted service and loyal cooperation which marked the progress of the church.

The annual meeting of Plainfield library was held at the Community house Thursday at 7:30 p. m.

Monday next the Lincoln club is to meet at the Congregational church. An oyster supper will be served by the men. The speaker is to be Rev. Albert Abbott of Danielson; subject, "Cornwall and Cornsll People." An entertainment will be given by members of the O. J. S., Mrs. Everett Dawley, chairman.

The A. J. S. met in the vestry of the First Congregational church Wednesday evening. The meeting opened with singing, "Jesus is All the World to Me," followed by the Lord's prayer and reports of the secretary and treasurer. After business, the meeting closed with the singing of "There Shall Be Showers of Blessings." The president appointed the following committee for the coming year: Supper, Mrs. John Kingsley; chairman, entertainment, Mrs. William Krauss; membership, Mrs. George Babcock, Mrs. Winfred Gardner, Mrs. Irving Flagg; sick committee, Miss Helen Ashley. There were eleven members present. Readings by Mrs. Winfrd Gardner included Jimmie Brown's Sister Sue's Wedding Night" and "Watermillion." A solo by Mrs. George Babcock, reading by Mrs. Gardner, "A Married Love Letter," were also enjoyed. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Milton Winsor and Miss Helen Ashley.

Mrs. Thomas Marsland, Mrs. John Kingsley and Miss Marion Phillips motored to Norwich Wednesday.

Mr. Harold Lewis is ill.

The Boy Scouts are to meet at the parsonage this (Friday) evening. Those who are to enter the new contest are to report at this time. The second patrol will be announced and the new officers will assume their duties.

LIBERTY HILL

The annual business meeting and roll call of the Exeter Liberty Hill Congregational church was held in the church rooms Monday evening. Reports from the secretary and treasurer of the church and C. E. society, the Ladies' Aid society and Sunday school were read and accepted. The societies are free from debt. The following church officers were elected: Secretary and treasurer, Horace Foote; collector and auditor, J. George Clark; pianist, Mrs. C. B. Adams; trustees, John Clarke, Fred Green, H. W. Oehlers; collectors of offerings, Alvin Green, Fred Haddad, E. C. Payson, Homer Oehlers; ushers, John Kinnaird, F. A. Davoll, J. George Clark; H. V. Oehlers; delegates to New London County conference of Congregational churches and ministers, Mr. and Mrs. John Clarke. Supper was served before the meeting.

From Saturday afternoon to Sunday afternoon, the medcury dropped 30 degress, from 50 to 20. Monday morning the mercury was from 6 to 8 above zero. The roads were badly rutted. Saturday, the mud was very deep and now being frozen, it is hard to avoid the deep ruts.

Merely Absent-Minded

When you've drunk your steaming coffee, when you've eaten all you will—
The hot muffins, and the eggs, and bacon fried,
Will you kindly put some bread crumbs on the frosty window-sill,
For a little chap in feathers, who's outside?
He's an able-bodied beggar, and his appetite is great,
But he never leaves untidy bits behind him;
He doesn't want a knife and fork, he doesn't want a plate,
But don't put it where the pussy cats can find him!

When the ponds are frozen hard and fast, and all the streams are still,
When he can't get any drippings from the spout,
He will hammer at the icicles, and almost break his bill,
Trying might and main to get the water out!
He's an able-bodied beggar, but his beak is rather small,
And he'll thank you very much, if you'll provide him
With a dish of water twice a week; and then you'll hear him call
All his friends to come and drink your health beside him!

He will do his best to pay you—in the dark and freezing morn
You will hear his lovely carol through the mist;
He will tell you what o'clock it is before the light is born,
And that song of life no mortal can resist.
And the able-bodied sparrows all begin to chirp in time,
They've the chorus singers keeping well together,
Till the robin's solo sounds so sweet that 'mid the frost and rime
You can go to sleep and dream of summer weather!

HUMOR OF THE DAY

Bobby—How did the Sphinx get the credit of being so wise, papa?

Papa—By keeping his mouth shut for 3,000 years.—Montreal Family Herald.

Judge—"Have you anything to offer to the court before sentence is passed on you?"

Prisoner—"No, Judge. I had $10, but my lawyer took that."—Toronto Globe.

Trapp—"Say, I'd like to go South with the birds for the winter, wouldn't you?"

Tippler—"Yes, preferably to Cuba where there are plenty of swallows."—Boston Transcript.

"How did you find things on the farm this summer? Crops good, I hope."

"Well, father did fairly well with his lunch stand, but he just about broke even on his gasoline and oil."—Judge.

Farmer (showing stranger over famous cottage)—"Three hundred years old this is, sir, very historical, and never a stick or stone altered in all them years."

Stranger—"I've a landlord like that, too."—Pathfinder.

"Don't you think darling, it would spoil the curtains if I were to smoke in here?" asked Newlywed as he entering the drawing-room.

Oh, what a dear, thoughtful boy you are. Yes, perhaps it would.

Very well, then, pull 'em down.—Tit-Bits.

Judge—"I sentence you to two years in jail!"

Victim—"Just for going 70 miles an hour?"

Judge—"And—er—you say she goes 70 miles an hour? You won't be able to drive her. Do you want to sell?"—Detroit News.

The following was the verdict by an Iowa jury in a suit against a railroad company:

"If the train had run as it should have run; if the bell had rung as it should have rang; if the whistle had blowed as it should have blew, both of which it did neither—the cow would not have been injured when she was killed."—Los Angeles Times.

Miss Lenna Wilson, town clerk of Sharon, N. H., has a little green bird that lost its mate a short time ago. The disconsolate one forgot to sing until a small mirror was placed on the outside of the cage, leading him to believe that his mate is still with him.

An affectionate, active and unusual pet rides around with Dr. L. A. Werden, of Henniker, N. H., as he makes his rounds in his closed car. It is a year-old coon which the doctor brought from Illinois last year and which he has thoroughly tamed. The coon comes to heel like a dead dog.

For the first time since the gasoline tax was established in Kansas a demand for a refund has been made. A citizen of Sedgwick county purchased a gallon of gasoline for cleaning purposes and paid the tax under protest. Since the gasoline was not used for operating a motor car, the law says that the tax may be refunded. The item has been approved and returned to Sedgwick county, where a check for 2 cents will be issued.

The commuter and competition have combined to cause the transportation business to pay a profit in Barcelona, Spain. Ten years ago the tramways carried all the people that cared to go anywhere and the fare registers rang up only 14,000,000 pesetas a year. Today there are the tramways, two subway systems and an autobus line and the conductors ring up nearly 30,000,000 pesetas. Fares are lower and servicve is better.

EKONK

(Sterling Hill)

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Barstow and Miss Kelley, of Highland grange, visited Ekonk grange Monday evening and installed the officers.

The community was saddened by the death of Mrs. Eleanor Goodrich Sherman, 52, wife of Robert Sherman, Wednesday, Dec. 23. She had been a patient suffered for several years, a faithful and devoted wife and mother and leaves a large circle of friends. Besides her husband she is survived by four sons, Charles and Francis of California, and William and Edward at home, a sister in California and a brother in Boston. The funeral was held at Sterling Hill church Saturday morning at 10 o'clock with burial in Leominister, Mass. Rev. William C. Prentiss of Plainfield spoke comforting words to the sorrowing relatives and friends. Mrs. Harold Barber sang Lead Kindly Light and Safe in the Arms of Jesus. There were beautiful flowers.

Mr. and Mrs. Levi Carr of Manchester were calling on relatives here Saturday.

WESTERLY

D. A. R. CHAPTER MEMBERS HEAR PAPER ON VALENTINES

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, R. I., Jan. 5—The regent, Mrs. Lillian T. P. Freeman presided at the January meeting of Phebe Green Ward chapter, D. A. R., held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at the home of Mrs. Elisha C. Burdick, 7 School street. A paper, "Valentines," was read by Mrs. Charles H. Larkin. Mrs. Freeman reported upon her attendance Dec. 19th at the state board meeting of the D. A. R., with morning session at the rooms of the R. I. Republican club, Providence, also the afternoon meeting held at the Biltmore. Plans are being made for the D. A. R. Winter festival to be held by the state society Thursday, Jan. 19th at Rhodes-on-the-Pawtuxet. Among members from Phebe Greene chapter on state committees are a former regent, Mrs. Carrie E. Savage and Mrs. William A. Wilcox of Pawcatuck. There was discussion of the change of some parents of the constitution and by-laws of the Westerly chapter, which matter may come up at the next meeting, Feb. 2nd, at the home of the regent, 6 Crescent street.

At the close of the business session refreshments were served, the hostesses being Miss H. Louise Ayers, Mrs. Hannah M. Ayers, Mrs. Alan C. Thompson, Mrs. George L. Stillman, Mrs. Julius H. Gates, Mrs. Albert H. Langworthy and Mrs. Thomas Moore.

ELDER GENTER, OF NORWICH, TO HOLD M. E. CONFERENCE

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, Jan. 5—Grace Methodist Episcopal church, Rev. Henry C. Suter, pastor, Monday evening next will hold its board conference which precedes the fourth quarterly conference Jan. 30th at which the district superintendent, Rev. Myron E. Genter, of Norwich, will preside.

The annual district conference of Methodist churches comes at an early date this year, March 28th, at the new Union Methodist church, Fall River, Mass.

A largely attended meeting of Westerly band was the 65th annual session, held in the band rooms in the Porter-Loveland block Wednesday evening. John McCaffrey who preside was re-elected president. Other officers re-elected were vice president and assistant treasurer, Lewis Solomon, a member since 1903; Edward F. Card, re-elected secretary for his 20th consecutive term; Treasurer William A. Burk, re-elected treasurer for his 45th consecutive term and until 1933, when the Westerly band will hold its golden jubilee celebration.

Charles O. Gavitt was re-elected musical director for his 36th year with Lewis Solomon assistant. In the contest for attendance prize, Edward F. Card and James Cosenza were tied for firstplace with perfect attendance records. The annual celebration was attended also by many of the junior band members. Lunch and a smoker followed.

Frank L. Furness, president of Pawcatuck board of trade and proprietor of the Elm Tree inn, was removed from his Pawcatuck home late Wednesday evening in the ambulance of the Westerly Sanitary Corps to Westerly hospital, where he was operated upon for ulcers of the stomach.

The auxiliary to Harley P. Chase post, No. 1265, Veterans of Foreign Wars, Wednesday night had its second annual banquet at the inn on Granite street. Thirty-four members and guests were present for a turkey dinner. The guest of honor, Mrs. Edgar Chase, mother of Harley P. Chase, after whom the post is named, was unable to be present because of illness. A beautiful bouquet of roses was sent her. A march was played by the auxiliary musician, Miss Ethel Kenyon. President Bessie Cranston was toastmaster. Among the speakers was Mrs. Emma Bromley, honorary member. Dancing followed. Solos were sung by Misses Rose Bannon and Helen Morenzoni.

A union service of Westerly churches will be held Sunday next at 8 p. m. in the First Baptist church. A national speaker under the auspices of the Westerly Pastors' association will speak in reference to the eighteenth amendment.

The supper and meeting of Christ Episcopal church, Rev. G. Edgar Tobin, rector, will be held in the church school rooms Tuesday evening, Jan. 10th. This church was organized in 1822. Christ Church Girls' Friendly society, will hold its annual banquet Thursday evening, Jan. 12th. The new president, Miss Edith Ellis, will preside. Arrangements are in charge of Miss Marion K. Schwenk and Miss Dorothy Krebs.

Pawcatuck Congregational church, Rev. Luther G. Coburn, pastor, which was founded in 1843, plans to hold its meeting Thursday evening, January 12th.

Roy Dawley was installed master of Westerly Grange, No. 16, Tuesday evening at Grange hall, Avondale, by Past State Grange Master C. Palmer Chapman, assisted by Past National Pomona Isabelle C. Chapman. Other officers installed were: Overseer, William Owens; lecturer, Mary J. Coombs; steward, James Shaw; assistant steward, Harry Barber; chaplain, Hattie L. C. Barbour; treasurer, William H. Burdick; secretary, Grace E. Chapman; gate keeper, Edward C. Brown; Ceres, Eunice P. Dawley; Pomona, Mary Champlin; Flora, Eva Shaw; lady assistant, M. Isabelle Chapman. Chapman; resolution, Hattie L. C. Barbour, Isabelle C. Chapman; visiting, Cleveland Clark, Eliza Clark; reception, William Owens, Martha Owens, Ethan Gavitt, Florence Gavitt; hall, Maurice Nye; home economics, Isabelle C. Chapman.

The third adjourned meeting of Westerly Fire district, was called to order Thursday evening at 8 o'clock in Westerly town hall by Moderator Lewis Stanton. Clerk Carl E. Burdick read the call for the meeting.

Previous fire district meetings have been held, May 11, July 13, Aug. 31, Nov. 22, and Dec. 6, 1927, at all of which constructive action has been taken by the electors of the district.

To the 24 district voters present Fire Chief George E. Egger reported on the needs of the fire alarm system, saying that a whistle could be installed on the Main street mill of the Clyde Mills, Inc., formerly Westerly Textile company, at a cost of from 400 to $500. He said that the Hook and Ladder truck, now 12 years old, was in need of attention. It would cost about $2,500 to put the engine in proper shape and repair the ladders.

The meeting adjourned to Feb. 16 at which time matters pertaining to the issuance of bonds and for payment of any indebtedness of the district will be taken up for consideration.

George W. Sprague and son, Harold W. Sprague, motored to their homes in Brockton, Mass., Wednesday night.

Patrolman Adin R. Sheldon is Pawcatuck day officer on the Stonington police force while C. Wilson Crown is on night duty for the first half of January.

Westerly evening high school will begin sessions in the school building, Broad and Granite streets, Tuesday evening, Jan. 10th.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Barnes and daughter, Dorothy, of Norwood, R. I., formerly of Greeneville, Conn., and Westerly were guests of friends here the past week.

William Barrett of Pawcatuck has returned to his studies at Yale university.

NOANK

HUNTER GETS HIS DUCK THOUGH HE SWIMS FOR IT

Howard Brown was over at Mumford cove after ducks when a flock came in close to his right eye and picking out his bird he killed one. But the wind took it out to sea. Young Brown was getting mad to lose his dinner, so removing his coat and vest, also a watch, he made a dive into the January water and swam 75 feet until getting a good hold of the prize, he found it was a red-head duck, something not often seen around these parts. Having good luck, he got four more. But how cold that water was! Not at all like in good old July. He ran all the way to his home, two miles away, changing his clothes so not to take cold from the wetting. But he had saved his Thursday dinner and had four more with it.

Mrs. John Somerson has returned to New York, after a visit at Shirley Point.

Lloyd Frazer, of the battleship Florida, which is in Boston navy yard, has been home on 10-days' leave. Young Frazer is chief gunner on the ship and has spent about 14 years in the navy. He was telling the Sardine club about how he is leaving to be a diver, something all gunners have to learn. Putting on the suit for the first time, he went down 65 feet under water. It was some dark, but he was down 40 minutes and such queer sights on the bottom of the ocean! He told about meeting Ira Stark several times. Once in Germany, when he made the trip around the world Gunner Frazer says he will do 20 years in the navy and then quit. He claims it is the only place for young fellows—a chance to learn and travel. He talked for 25 minutes. The Sardine Band gave several selection, with William Crowell, leader. Sandwiches, cake and Oolong tea were served. Then the members gave him a send-off at the waiting room as Gunner Fraser left to join the ship.

Coach Billie Crane and four members of the Noank Crescents basketball team went by automobile Wednesday evening to Plainfield to see the world's colored champions, of New York, play against Plainfield town team. The boys from the big city showed how to pass a basketball and great team work. It was $2 to see them, but each player was a star, so it was a good game to watch. After the game, Coach Crane was talking to Stretch Saunders, the tall center of the colored team and he said "Get the pass work down first and that is what the fans like to see." He also gave the coach a few plays which the Crescents will use in their next game.

Bennie Benoit was smoking a cigar. He laid it down on the bed at his home and forgot that it was not in his mouth. It fell on his trousers, burning his right leg and hip. He put the fire out himself. The accident laid him up for a few days. He also is out a pair of trousers, for thread and a needle will not save the damaged knickers. Never again will he fall asleep with a cigar in his mouth. His place at the Main Street market is taken by Walter Welles.

A party of 26 from Providence came up to Noank recently and stopped at the home of Chief Park and Mrs. Park for a few days' visit. Many were relatives of theirs. The radio was started when the music came from Station WJZ and the party enjoyed singing and cracking jokes, etc. Fortunes were told from the tea leaves by Miss Mary Roberton. Refreshments were served.

Wednesday a new American flag was flown from the pole at the village school. The old flag had faced many hard storms while flying to the breeze for it has been in use for some time and was faded and frayed. The new one was put up by Janitor L. L. Smith. The children gathered and sang "The Star Spangled Banner" as Old Glory was rising to the top of the pole.

Groton Long Point is to have a busy winter as about eight large cottages will be built, making plenty of work for the village carpenters. This is the greatest number of cottages to be built since the rush was in 1916, when 18 were put up. The roads are to be repaired by Road Commissioner William Wheeler. There is now only one more plot left to put up a cottage on the board walk. The new cement sidewalk is one-half mile long and has made it like a city.

Severe Head Colds and Sinus Trouble

THE MOST ANNOYING OF ALL AILMENTS

Any stuffy nose from a cold that does not clear up in a few days produces Sinus trouble. Some Sinuses are large cavities in the nose, others are small (like honey-comb), and when a cold gets into them it causes pain, or pressure in the eye balls, over eyes, in temples, and back of head, fullness in ear, and mucus dropping in throat. This leads to a tickling cough, sore throat, head noises, and catarrhal deafness, due to improper drainage. To clear this up vaporize CAMPHOROLE, and inhale according to directions.

CAMPHOROLE opens up the nose, and gets into the Sinuses, killing the germs that multiply by millions in those stuffy cavities, reduces the inflamed, swollen mucous membranes, and gives good drainage for the discharge. This is what every specialist tries to obtain in order to get results. It is impossible for germs to live in the antiseptic vapors produced by CAMPHOROLE. Keep a jar handy and use at the first sign of a cold.

JEWETT CITY

MRS. GEO. BRIGGS RECALLS FATHER'S STORY OF WATKINS

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, Jan. 5—In connection with the story of the hanging of Oliver Watkins, referred to recently in this column and in the Danielson news, Mrs. George Briggs of Voluntown recalls most interesting facts. Her father was Dr. Hovey, of East Killingly, the physician who examined the murdered wife and found the whip cord with which she was strangled. She remembers hearing her grandparents and father tell the story of the way Watkins and his housekeeper conspired to kill the former's wife. A little child saw the deed committed. The ceiling over the room was of beams and a sheet was hung over the bed to keep the dirt from falling upon it. It was in this sheet that the whip cord was thrown. The little child saw where the cord was hidden and the doctor found it. The man rode on his coffin to his execution. Someone composed a march, which was played by a band as the procession marched to the place where he was hanged. Mrs. Briggs heard this composition sung by her father and from memory, sings it to the accompaniment of her autoharp, nearly one hundred years after the occurrence.

The funeral of Mrs. Michael Hopkins was held from the home of her daughter, Mrs. George Gill, Thursday morning. Solemn requiem mass was celebrated at St. Mary's church by Rev. J. J. McCabe, with Rev. Oscar Normand of Moosup deacon and Rev. Nicholas Caron sub deacon. Mrs. Noel Garand sang Pie Jesu at the offertory and Face to Face for the waiting hymn. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery, Lisbon. The bearers were Dennis Sullivan, Fred LaLiberty, Joseph Healy, Joseph and Royal Gill and William Wallace. There were beautiful flowers. Relatives and friends were present from Pawtucket and Norwich. Hourigant Bros. were in charge of the funeral arrangements.

Health Officer G. H. Jennings has arranged with the state board of health to have health pictures shown one night a week during this month in Finn theatre. Manager John Barnett was very willing to allow the showing of these most instructive pictures.

THE HEBERT-M'BROOME WEDDING THURSDAY EVENING

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, Jan. 5.—Walter J. Hebert and Miss Vera McBroome were married by Rev. John J. McCabe at St. Mary's rectory this evening. The witnesses were Mr. and Mrs. Edward Blanchard. After a wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Hebert will live in a newly furnished home at the Anderson farm, in Lisbon. Mrs. Hebert is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas McBroome. Mr. Hebert is manager of the local Red Wing grain store. Both have many friends, who will wish them happiness and prosperity in their married life.

STONINGTON

Stonington night school opened in the borough school house Tuesday evening with a registration of 14. Nine were seventh grade pupils, two in the eighth grade and three in the sixth. This is a very small enrollment. The town school committee and Supt. W. R. Snyder made application to the state board of education to do away with the school, as they felt the attendance and expense did not warrant holding sessions, but the state board refused the request.

Miss Virginia Joseph, Miss Margaret Monjo and Miss Helen Chesebro have returned to Connecticut college after a vacation of three weeks, spent here at their homes.

John Lopes of Fishers Island visited here Wednesday.

Stonington Steam Fire Engine Co. held a whist in the fire rooms on Williams street, Wednesday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Vennart are visiting in Manchester and Hartford.

The volley ball game held in the Community house Tuesday evening was an interesting affair. Atwood Machine Co., Stonington high school faculty, borough merchants and firemen were present. The next meeting will be held Jan. 9th.

Lawrence Clay is spending a few days in Kennebunkport, Maine. The January meeting of Pioneer Hook and Ladder Co. was held in their rooms Wednesday evening.

This (Friday) evening at 8 o'clock the League of Women Voters will hold a public meeting at the public library. Mrs. Rosemary O. Anderson of New London will be the speaker, her topic, "Child Welfare, Not Charity, But a Chance." She is a director of the Long Lane Farm for Women at Middletown.

Charles Palmer spent Thursday in Boston.

Deacon W. G. Rittenhouse was in charge of the mid-week prayer meeting of the First Baptist church. The annual meeting of the Stonington Steam Fire Engine Co. was held Thursday evening at headquarters.

ASPIRIN

To break a cold harmlessly and in a hurry try a Bayer Aspirin tablet. And for headache. The action of Aspirin is very efficient, too, in cases of neuralgia, neuritis, even rheumatism and lumbago! And there's no after effect; doctors give Aspirin to children—often infants. Whenever there's pain, think of Aspirin. The genuine Bayer Aspirin has Bayer on the box and on every tablet. All druggists, with proven directions.

Physicians prescribe Bayer Aspirin; it does NOT affect the heart

Aspirin is the trade mark of Bayer Manufacture of Monoaceticacidester of Salicylicacid

STOCK PRICES BROKE SHARPLY AS "BEARS" HAMMERED VULNERABLE ISSUES

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—(AP)—The stock market broke sharply today under the weight of heavy selling inspired by the unexpectedly large increase in stock exchange member loans. Extreme declines in the leading issues ran from 2 to 6 points, with much more sensational breaks in a few high priced specialties, but a partial recovery took place following the reduction in call money from 4 1-2 to 4 per cent. So great was the volume of trading that the ticker fell 10 to nearly 30 minutes behind the market at times, despite the abbreviated quotation system which went into effect a few weeks ago.

The day's sales totaled 3,404,100 shares, which have been exceeded only once in the history of the exchange. The record day's trading was March 3, 1926, when 3,785,700 shares changed hands.

The announcement of record-breaking loan figures came at a time when the market was in an impaired technical position. "Bear" traders were quick to take advantage of this situation and they started to hammer supposedly vulnerable stocks from the opening gong. The ease with which some of the industrial leaders lost ground led to urgent liquidation by traders and investors who desired to converse rapidly vanishing paper profits, with the result that brokers on the floor were swamped with selling orders. Touching off of hundreds of "stop loss" orders swelled the volume of liquidation, although repeated efforts were made to rally the general list. Impressive recoveries took place in several issues during the late trading, but final quotations were generally lower with declines of 1 to 3 points quite numerous.

The New York federal reserve rediscount rate was announced as unchanged at 3 1-2 per cent. The weekly statement of brokers' loans made public by that institution after the close of the market showed an increase of $92,401,000, bringing the total to a new record high for all time at $3,810,023,000. The stock exchange figures, which are issued monthly, showed a gain of $341,071,018 in December, setting a new peak at $4,432,907,321

Midland Steel Products preferred, which advanced from a low of 106 to 215 last year, opened at 274 3-4, broke to 252 and rallied to 265 1-4 for a net loss of 14 3-4 points. Greene Cananea Copper opened nearly 2 points lower at 150 1-4, ran up to 154 1-2, collapsed to 139 and snapped back to 148 1-4, off 3 3-4 net. Among the many issues to show losses of 3 points or more were Abitibi Power, American Machine & Foundry, American Radiator, Borden, Calumet & Arizona, International Harvester, Otis Elevator, Rossia Insurance, and United Drug.

U. S. Steel common fell 3 points and General Motors 4 3-8, with subsequent rallies of about a point each.

There were a few conspicuous exceptions to the downward trend, preferred. Certainteed Products, Internamely Adams Epress, Austin Nichols national Match preferred, Jones Brothers Tea and Westinghouse Air Brake, all up 3 to 7 points.

Little attention was paid to the day's trade news, although a further increase was reported in steel mill operations and several favorable chain store earnings reports for December were published.

Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Foreign exchanges moved within narrow and irregular limits with no changes of consequence. Sterling Cables were quoted around $4.87 7-8.

Commodity markets were mixed. Wheat prices lost about a cent a bushel but cotton rallied around $1 a bale. Coffee and sugar quotations were slightly easier.

MARKETS AT A GLANCE.

New England Industries

LAMPS AND REFLECTORS.

The making of supplementary products in slack seasons is a striking feature of the lamp and reflector industry in New England, the results of a survey by the United States Department of Commerce and the New England Council show. The industry, directly related to the automobile trade, is a relatively small one, but it is of well established maturity, and sales have been steadily upward in recent years.

Slack periods normally come in the late spring and summer months. Supplementary products developed to keep employment on a level scale include automotive signal devices, new types of lamps, traffic lights, benzine cans, and ice-cream containers. The regular products are lamps for motor vehicles, marine lamps, desk, table, and boudoir lamps, stage lighting material, headlights, etc.

In 1926 there were 185 lamp and reflector establishments in the United States in which 10,604 employes produced an annual value of product of $57,929,000. Of this amount New England made $2,265,000, with 4,922 workers in 17 factories. The industry in this section is practically confined to Massachusetts and Connecticut.

The average age of the reporting Massachusetts plants is twenty-six years, and of Connecticut plants thirteen years. The average number of years under present management for the entire group reporting is thirteen

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

Shadow Visits the Barn.

They gain the most who boldly seek.
It doesn't pay to be too meek.
—Shadow and Weasel.

Shadow the Weasel is not one to waste time. He was angry. He was angry clear through because Black Pussy prevented him from poking his nose into a certain hole in the stone-wall. Black Pussy was watching that hole in the hope that Striped Chipmunk would come out of it, and she refused to leave it for Shadow. But Shadow didn't propose to waste any time just because he couldn't look into that particular hole.

"It's only one hole, and what's one hole among so many?" said Shadow to himself. "It might be the right hole, but the chances are that it isn't. It would be silly of me to wait around waiting for that cat to leave."

So Shadow the Weasel hunted thoroughly through the rest of the stone-wall. He found no trace of Striped Chipmunk. At least, he found no sign of a hole where Striped Chipmunk could be living. "Probably," thought Shadow, "he filled the entrance after he got inside and so there isn't any hole to be seen. It would be just like him. Well, it is evident I won't have a Chipmunk dinner. Now what shall I do?"

He sat up on the end of the stone-wall and looked this way and that. It was the end nearest Farmer Brown's dooryard. Not far away was the barn. Even nearer was the henhouse. Shadow knew all about both. He had visited both in his time. He licked his lips greedily as he looked over toward the henhouse. It would be a perfectly simple matter to get over there and kill one of those hens. He was sorely tempted to try it. But just then he saw Farmer Brown's boy walking over toward the henyard and he immediately decided he would have a look in the barn instead. There were always rats and mice in that barn when he had visited it before.

So Shadow darted over to Farmer Brown's barn. He didn't take any particular pains to keep out of sight. You see, he knew perfectly well that he wasn't likely to be seen. He was so white that on that white snow it was hard work to see him even when you knew right where he was. So he reached the barn without any difficulty. Almost at once he caught a fat mouse. This was a good beginning. It ought to have been enough for such a little fellow as Shadow, but it wasn't. It simply filled him with hot desire to catch another. The desire to hunt and kill tingled through every vein of him.

But just then he saw Farmer Brown's Boy walking over toward the henyard.

Presently Shadow discovered a three-quarters grown rat. He was more than twice as big as Shadow. He was a young rat without experience, or he wouldn't have stepped and shown his teeth to Shadow. Had he been an old rat he would have taken to his heels and run for his life. But he was a young rat. This was his first sight of Shadow the Weasel. He guessed who it was, because he had been told about Shadow. At first he stopped out of curiosity, just to see what Shadow looked like. Then, seeing how much smaller Shadow was than he himself, he said to himself, "Pooh! Why should I be afraid of that little fellow? I'll show him my teeth and scare him half to death."

So the foolish young rat showed Shadow his teeth, and that was the last thing he ever did do. He didn't even have time to feel frightened. No, sir, he didn't even have time to be frightened. You know no one can move more quickly than Shadow the Weasel. It is difficult to believe that any one can move as quickly as he can. So, almost before he was through showing to himself the young rat was no more and Shadow was on his way looking for more trouble. I guess it is a mistake to say that he was looking for trouble. He wasn't looking for trouble. Instead, he was taking trouble to others.

LEGAL NOTICE
AN ORDINANCE OF THE CITY OF NORWICH
TO ALL PERSONS WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:
This is to give you notice that at an adjourned meeting of the Court of Common Council of The City of Norwich in the State of Connecticut held Tuesday, January 3rd, 1928, at 8 o'clock p. m., the following ordinance was passed and adopted by said Court of Common Council, to wit:
An Ordinance of the City of Norwich Amending an Ordinance of the City of Norwich Adopted December 1st, 1924
BE IT ORDAINED BY THE COURT OF COMMON COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF NORWICH:
Section 1.—Section 28 of an ordinance of The City of Norwich, adopted December 1st, 1924, concerning traffic, parking, etc., is hereby amended to read as follows:
Section 28.—No person shall park any vehicle on that portion of the east side of Broadway that is directly in front of the real estate owned by the Dime Savings Bank of Norwich for a longer period than five minutes or on that portion of the east side of Broadway from Main street to Bath street which is not in front of the real estate of the Dime Savings Bank of Norwich for a longer period than forty minutes.
Section 2.—Section 36 of an ordinance of The City of Norwich adopted December 1st, 1924, concerning traffic, parking, etc., is hereby amended to read as follows:
Section 36.—No person shall park any vehicle on either side of Thames Street southerly of Thames Square for a distance of one hundred feet and no person shall park any vehicle on the easterly side of West Thames street from the city line northerly to a point on said easterly side of West Thames street two hundred and ten feet southerly of the junction of the southerly line of Shipping Street and the easterly line of West Thames Street.
The above and foregoing is a true and correct copy of said ordinance so adopted.
Attest: WESTON C. PULLEN,
City Clerk and Clerk of the Court of Common Council of The City of Norwich, Connecticut.
Norwich, Connecticut, January 4th 1928.

PASSENGER INJURED STRANGELY ON LEAVING CAR AT NEW LONDON

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 5—Samuel Cherkasky, 52, is a patient at Lawrence-Memorial hospital suffering from a possible fractured right knee and multiple abrasions as the result of having been struck by a Connecticut company trolley car last night, under peculiar circumstances. Cherkasky was a passenger on the trolley car which left the State street terminal at 8 30 o'clock for Ocean beach. When the car arrived on Montauk avenue, corner of Linden street, Cherkasky started to alight and in doing so his overcoat caught on the handle. The motorman observing Cheskasky upon the step, believed that the passenger would step to the highway and started the car in motion. When Cherkasky's coat caught on the handle it caused him to be thrown in front of the moving car, which struck the man and threw him to the highway. The car was brought to a stop almost immediately and motorman and passengers going to the injured man's assistance, it was realized that Cherkasky was seriously injured. The ambulance was summoned and Cherkasky was taken to the hospital.

LEROY B. HOWARD'S FUNERAL HELD THURSDAY AFTERNOON

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 5—The funeral of Leroy B. Howard, son of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Howard, Lakes Pond, Montville, who died at Michigan City, Ind., several days ago, was held this afternoon at 3:30 o'clock at 48 Shapley street. Rev. Charles E. Spaulding, pastor of the Methodist church, New London, conducted the services. The bearers were Charles and Matthew Tinker, Albert Spencer and Austin, Leon and Clyde Rice. Burial was in Jordan cemetery.

Miss Julia Richards' funeral was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at the residence of Charles M. Litwhiler, Long Cove Groton, the services being conducted by Rev. Jerome Greer, of Gales Ferry. Burial was in Gales Ferry cemetery.

F. Gordon Ferrell, 59, died last night at his home, 8 Summer street, from pneumonia. Mr. Ferrell had been confined to his bed but a few hours. He is survived by his wife, two sons, Gordon and Palmer Ferrell and by two sisters, Mrs. Robert McKnight, of Barre, Vt., and Mrs. Herbert Davidson, of Montpelier, Vt. A brother, Andrew Ferrell and a sister, Mrs. Annie Logan both of Scotland, also survive. Mr. Ferrell was born in Scotland and was a stone-cutter. He had been suffering from a severe cold several days, but he had not been attended by a physician. Yesterday Mr. Ferrell was about the streets as usual, but in the afternoon he went to bed and a physician was summoned, who diagnosed the case as pneumonia. Mr. Ferrell's condition rapidly became worse and he died during the night.

Claude Fottrell, a Brooklyn, N. Y. attorney and Mrs. Irene B. Waters of this city, were married yesterday afternoon at the parsonage of the First Congregational church by Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth.

The funeral of Evelyn J., wife of Charles A. Gasson, was held this afternoon at 1 o'clock at 48 Shapley street, the services being conducted by Rev. Joseph A. Elder. The bearers were Alvin G Dutton, Adolphus J. King, Harold Gates and L. M. Perkins. Burial was in Jordan cemetery.

The funeral of Elaine A., wife of Jens B. Krestensen, of Meridian street extension, Groton, was held this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at 14 Masonic street. The services were conducted by Rev. Henry W. Hurlbut, pastor of Groton Heights Baptist church. The bearers were chief petty officers. Burial was in Cedar Grove cemetery.

Funeral services for Mary A. Payne, wife of Nehemiah Payne, of 249 Pequot avenue, were held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at 38 Shapley street. The services were conducted by Rev. Chester H. Howe, pastor of the First Baptist church. The bearers were George Harris, W. W Smith, Harry E Meadows and Charles Davies. Burial was in Gardner cemetery.

NIGHT SCHOOL QUARTERS NOW NEEDED BY CITY

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 5—The city is confronted with the problem of providing a night school since the destruction by fire a week ago of the Jennings school, Colt street. Today City Manager William A. Holt and Superintendent of Schools Warren B. Hanson inspected two buildings that might prove suitable for providing education to the adults who have been given instruction during the winter months. The city officials inspected the Miller building and the Sabagh building, both available and located on Bank street, but no decision in the matter was reached.

George Sullivan, of 49 Warren street, was in the police court this morning charged with breach of the peace. He was fined $10 and costs, but execution of the sentence was suspended and Sullivan was placed on probation. Judge Victor Prince made it plain to Sullivan that if he was before the court again for creating a disturbance or for intoxication a jail sentence of six months would be meted out to him, for Sullivan has been before the court repeatedly for various infractions of the law. Sullivan had been drinking last night and, accompanied by two friends, went to the Tavern restaurant, 345 Bank street. He created such a disturbance that he was ejected. He returned and in causing another disturbance fell and smashed a show case, also received a lacerated scalp. His friends took him to the office of a physician where the wound was dressed, after which Sullivan returned to the restaurant, apparently for the purpose of continuing his disturbing actions. Patrolman Michael Dorsey was in the restaurant and after remonstrating with Sullivan was forced to arrest him. Sullivan has agreed to pay the expense of the damage he caused.

Lawrence Feeley, a sailor, was at the Capitol theater last night and had been drinking. He created a disturbance and was arrested by Patrolman William Manice. In court today Feeley was fined $10 and costs on a charge of breach of the peace.

It is highly unlikely that Patrolman Henry Sylvia, against whom written charges of conduct unbecoming an officer have been made to City Manager William A Holt by Joseph Connolly, railroad employe and trainer of noise fighters, will be called "on the carpet." City Manager Holt said this afternoon that he did not consider the charges of a serious nature. After Connolly had presented the basis of his charges to the city manager Tuesday night, the matter was referred to Captain of Police Charles A. Pinney for investigation and report. Captain Pinney had Sylvia and Lieutenant James C Sullivan questioned, after which the captain made his report to City Manager Holt. It is understood that the report embodied the fact that, in the opinion of Captain Pinney, the charges were insufficient to warrant a hearing, inasmuch as the officers on patrol of Main street had repeatedly been given instructions not to allow loitering in the vicinity of Church street because of numerous complaints by pedestrians of vulgar language used by the groups and several fights that have occurred outside two restaurants there.

A still alarm was received at fire headquarters this afternoon for a supposed fire in the wooden building in the rear of the former Rialto theatre, Bank street. A locomotive had gone on the spur track there and close to the building and smoke issuing from it was believed by the towerman in the Fort Neck yard of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad, to be the result of a fire in the building, for the locomotive could not be seen from the tower. The towerman sent in the alarm and Chief Thomas Shipman and the Niagara Engine company responded. By the time that the firemen reached the building the locomotive had proceeded to the main line tracks and there was no semblance of a fire in the building.

Local ice dealers are preparing for their harvest. If the temperature that has prevailed the past week continues ice will be harvested next week. The ice has reached practically the desired thickness, nine inches so that if the weather does not moderate within the next few days an even greater thickness will have been added.

The annual meeting of Niagara Engine company, held at the quarters of the company, Bank street, last night, was attended by a large number of members. The election of officers resulted in the following being chosen: Foreman, Charles R. Brown; first assistant foreman, Leonard Rollo; second assistant foreman, George Campbell; secretary, Samuel M. Davidson; treasurer, Cornelius D. Twomey. At the conclusion of the meeting an old-fashioned clam chowder was served and the company's orchestra gave a lengthy program.

Mr. and Mrs. Maurice E. Sherman have returned to their apartment at the Hotel Mohican, after having spent several weeks touring Cuba and Florida.

Albert W. Lundberg, son of Mrs. Amelia Nelson, of 26 Viets street, and Miss Helen M. Derry, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Derry, 6 Lewis street, were married last Monday night at 6 o'clock at the parsonage of the First Baptist church by Rev Chester H. Howe. Herman Olsen, of Groton, was best man and Miss Rosamond Keyes attended the bride. Mr. and Mrs. Lundberg are on a wedding trip and upon conclusion will reside at 2 Steward street. Mr. Lundberg is employed as supply clerk by the Selleck Motor company.

The recently elected officers of the Alumnae association of Lawrence-Memorial hospital, were seated last night at a meeting of the association in the hospital recreation room. The officers are: President, Gladys Siswick; vice president, Teresa Kiely; secretary, Alice Gaudreau; treasurer, Exema Bisaillon. Miss Irene Wilson, treasurer of the fund being raised by the alumnae and which will go toward furnishing the nurses' home, now being constructed, reported that $1,037 had been received to date.

Thomas J. McCarthy, 901 Bank street, is recovering at Lawrence-Memorial hospital where he recently underwent an operation for appendicitis.

Patrolman John Clifford was unable to perform duty tonight, being confined to his home as a result of a severe cold.

The feline population of the city has been decreased the past 24 hours, three of these animals were killed by being struck by automobiles. One pussy was killed on Bank street, north of Howard street; a second died from injuries sustained when it was struck on Main street, near Mill street and a third fell victim to the motor vehicle on William street corner of Cedar street.

Two drunks were arrested on State street by Patrolman William Corcoran and John Courtney this afternoon. One of them, however, was ordered discharged by Prosecuting Attorney Daniel M. Cronin as the man is a member of the crew of a fishing steamer that was moored at the plant of the United Fishers' company, Groton. The departure of the boat was held up because of the arrest of one of its crew and for this reason the man was ordered discharged that the steamer might leave port for the fishing grounds.

Mrs. Lawrence Blake and infant daughter, 32 Willetta avenue, patients at Home Memorial hospital, were discharged today.

Mrs. Elizabeth Wilson, 88, widow of Robert T. Wilson, of Willetta avenue, died last night at Norwich State hospital, where she had been a patient for several months. She is survived by a son, Roscoe Wilson, of this city; A. R. Wilson, another son of Mrs. Wilson, formerly employed by the city as engineer of a steam roller, died several months ago. Mrs. Wilson was born in Maine, but had resided in New London the greater part of her life.

SHIP & ENGINE COMPANY MAY GET BIG CONTRACTS

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 5—The New London Ship & Engine company is negotiating for contracts for work that will make the plant a busy place for a long time, providing the contracts are secured. But little work is in the hands of the workers at present an dmany of the force are working but half-time.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Breed Theatre.

The management of the Breed theatre have secured the first run in Norwich of "7th Heaven," Fox Films epic picture version of the play by Austin Strong. This picture has been creating a sensation and playing to capacity houses all over the country and is considered one of the finest productions of the year. Janet Gaynor and Charles Farrell are featured at the head of an all-star cast which includes Gladys Brockwell, Albert Gran, David Butler, George Stone, Emile Chautard, Marie Mosquini, Ben Bard and Brandon Hurst.

"7th Heaven" will open at the Breed theatre commencing Sunday, January 8th.

Broadway Theater.

A beautiful love song has been photographed. At first glance, this seems beyond the limits of the silent drama but not after you have seen "Serenade" the Paramount picture starring Adolphe Menjou, which opens a three days' run at the Broadway theater, starting today.

Menjou deviates from his typical well-tailored characterizations and is intriduced as a poor Vienese composer, about to be evicted for non-payment of rent. He meets Katherine Carver, blonde, appealing and beautiful, when he engages a room in her home and they fall in love. This love is the spark that ignites the inspiration in him, and he writes a great operetta dedicated to his sweetheart. He then becomes immensely popular, which turns his head and causes him to forsake his old sweetheart. A new side of the meek and servile sweetheart is shown when she brings Menjou to his knees by a course of punishment that not only wins back his love but also his greater respect.

The vaudeville program is headlined by the Bader-Ladell Troupe, a company of talented bicycle riders. Creighton and Lynn, in bits of comedy, "Courting Days," a romantic comedy skit. Tuck and Harold in a song routine and Anthony in accordian selections.

An appeal to owners and management of industry in the United States to cooperate with organized labor in the "establishment and maintenance of sound economic standards and industrial peace," was contained in a New Year greeting to "the employers and the public," issued by William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor.
